The Republican National Convention

It Will Meet In Chicago June 21. Theodore Roosevelt To Be Named For President

THEODORE ROOSEVELT will be nominated for the presidency by the Republican national convention, which meets in the Coliseum, Chicago, on June 21. No other name will even be considered. Out of nearly 1,000 delegates who will vote on this question about 900 have been instructed by state conventions of the party to cast their ballots for President Roosevelt. Most if not all of those remaining are in favor of his nomination, although uninstructed, so that, barring accidents, Mr. Roosevelt will be the unanimous choice of the convention and will probably be nominated by acclamation.

It is a singular fact that such a nomination will be unprecedented in the history of the American republic. In the past a vice president who succeeded to the presidency on the death of the incumbent of the office has uniformly been denied a nomination by his party on the conclusion of the term for which his predecessor was elected. Chester A. Arthur succeeded to the presidency on the death of James A. Garfield and sought the nomination of his party in 1884, but it was given to James G. Blaine. Andrew Johnson became president on the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, but in 1868 the Republican party nominated for the presidency Ulysses S. Grant. Millard Fillmore became president in 1850 on the death of Zachary Taylor, who had been inaugurated the previous year. On the expiration of the term Mr. Fillmore, though still in his prime, was relegated to private life. The Whigs, to which party President Fillmore belonged, nominated General Winfield Scott. He was defeated, and Franklin Pierce, the Democratic nominee, became president.

C. W. FAIRBANKS.

The first American president to die in office was William Henry Harrison, whose death occurred just one month after his inauguration, in April, 1841. He was succeeded by Vice President John Tyler, who at the end of the term stepped down and out. Mr. Tyler belonged to the Whig party, and it nominated Henry Clay, who was defeated, the nominee of the Democrats, James K. Polk, being elected. A new precedent will be set by the Republicans this year at Chicago in the nomination of President Roosevelt, and the action will be likely to make the vice presidential nomination of greater value in the eyes of aspirants to the presidency in the future.

R. R. HITT.

The leading candidates for the second place on the ticket are Senator Charles Warren Fairbanks of Indiana and Representative Robert Roberts Hitt of Illinois. There is a general agreement that the candidate for vice president should come from the middle west, Mr. Roosevelt being a resident of New York state. Senator Fairbanks was elected to the United States senate in 1897. The term which he is now serving will not expire until 1909. He was born in Ohio in 1852, graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university in 1872 and began practicing law in 1874. He is regarded as one of the ablest members of the United States senate. Representative Hitt has had a long career in politics. It began with reporting the Lincoln-Douglas debates in 1858. He was born in Ohio in 1834, educated at Rock River seminary and De Pauw university, and his first important public position was that of secretary of legation at Paris, to which he was appointed by President Grant in 1874. President Garfield made him assistant secretary of state, and when in 1881 he was elected to congress his diplomatic experience won him the important position of chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs, which he has filled with great ability.

SPEAKER CANNON.

Although there is to be no contest over the nomination for president, the Republican convention will probably be protracted over several days. It will be called to order by the vice chairman of the national committee, the postmaster general, Henry C. Payne of Wisconsin. A temporary chairman will be chosen who will probably be the Hon. Elihu Root, former secretary of war. He will deliver an address, after which committees will be appointed, and then, in accordance with custom, a recess will be taken until the following day. The permanent chairman is likely to be the Hon. Joseph G. Cannon, representative from Illinois and speaker of the house of representatives. The adoption of a platform will be the business of most general interest aside from the nomination of candidates. The principal planks will pertain to the tariff issue, trusts and the Panama canal policy of the administration.

ELIHU ROOT.

The principal speech in nomination of Mr. Roosevelt will be made by former Governor Frank S. Black of New York. Ex-Governor Black is a magnetic speaker, and his speech will doubtless be well worth hearing.

Not the least important business incident to the convention will be the selection of a chairman of the national committee to succeed the late Senator Hanna. The choice is likely to be Secretary George Bruce Cortelyou, now head of the department of commerce and labor, who will thus become the manager of Mr. Roosevelt's campaign. The Coliseum, in which the convention is to be held, was dedicated in 1900, President McKinley being present. It has a seating capacity of 10,000. There will be about 4,500 persons in official attendance at the convention. The delegates number 992, and the grand total of delegates and alternates is 1,992, or nearly 2,000.

About 1,000 press representatives, including photographers, artists, telegraph operators, messengers, etc., will be in attendance. The sergeant at arms, who is the business officer of the convention, has about 200 deputies, 200 ushers, 200 messengers, 200 pages and 100 doorkeepers under his direction. The forty-five national committeemen each have private secretaries, stenographers and clerks who have to be provided for as official attendants on the convention. This class numbers something like 500 and brings the official attendance up to about 4,500. It is estimated that at least 20,000 people will be drawn to Chicago by the event.

G. B. CORTELYOU.

The expense of reporting a great convention is tremendous. It cost the Associated Press over $30,000 to report the various conventions of 1896, and over $12,000 was expended on one convention of that year alone, the Democratic. These figures do not take into consideration at all the amount expended by other press associations and individual newspapers. All of the large dailies have their individual correspondents on the scene, many of them sending a staff of several men and incurring a large expense.

An estimate as to the total expense that will be incurred in connection with the Republican convention at Chicago, based on the cost of previous conventions, gives $1,103,000 as the amount that will be paid out in railroad fares, hotel bills, reporting of the convention and similar expenditures.

The present secretary of the Republican national committee is Elmer Dover, a young Ohio editor and politician, who was the confidential secretary of the late Senator Hanna. Upon the resignation of Perry S. Heath as secretary of the national committee Mr. Dover was chosen to succeed him. Senator Hanna thought very well of the young man, and he doubtless will continue to serve the national committee as its secretary.

ELMER DOVER.

Mr. Dover's rise in politics has been rather remarkable. At sixteen he was editing and managing a country paper. It was a small paper, but young Dover succeeded with it. Eight years ago he was employed by Charles Dick, then assistant secretary of the Republican national committee, to do clerical work for him, and Dover took to the duties so well that Dick pushed him along into Senator Hanna's employ, and almost before he knew it Dover was getting more for assisting him than the salary which Mr. Hanna drew from the government as a member of the United States senate. Senator Hanna did not bother with details. He trusted all that to his secretary, who justified the confidence reposed in him.

Jeffrey's Tattered Books.

The famous reviewer Jeffrey treated with disdain the bookbinder's delicate art. Books were merely meant to be read, he contended, and he was quite satisfied so long as the words were visible. Lord Cockburn laments the fact that Jeffrey's library was, "for a lover of books and for one who had picked up a few, most wretched and so ill cared for that the want even of a few volumes never disturbed him."

Carlyle in his "Reminiscences" describes the study of his brilliant countryman as "a roomy, not overneat apartment on the ground floor, with a big baize covered table loaded with book rows and paper bundles. On one or perhaps two of the tables were bookshelves, likewise well filled, but with books in tattery, ill bound or unbound condition."

The Horse.

The reins may guide the horse, the bit may inspire him by its careful manipulation, and the whip may urge him forward to greater ambition, but the human voice is far more potent than all these agencies. Its assuring tones will more quickly dispel his fright, its sharp, clear, electric commands will more thoroughly arouse his ambition, and its gentle, kindly praises will more completely encourage the intelligent road horse than the united force of the bit and reins and the lash. No animal in domestic use more readily responds to the power of kindness than the road horse.

Loneliness.

What is loneliness? You may find it anywhere, perhaps most forcefully when you are among thousands of other people. There may come a feeling of being apart, of a solitary state, while you walk about and jostle a teeming population. You may be genuinely lonely among people whom you know quite well, and it is not to be supposed that this means any lack of feeling on the part of any one, for there come times when the thoughts of one cannot place themselves in harmony with those of others. The lowest creature as well as the highest in all the world may feel himself out of gear with others, and especially is this true of the average, everyday sort of people, who often experience a sort of aching void of companionship. It happens just occasionally that way.

It is only an affected person who always complains that "nobody understands" him. This man or woman may join with the great majority in so far that some of his actions are misconstrued. Who is there that has not had that experience, with all its bitterness? But, as a matter of fact, it is comparatively seldom that we are not pretty well understood by our close associates.—Charlotte (N. C.) Observer.

The Original Language.

According to the Bible, one language was spoken by all races until the "confusion of tongues." Following Biblical tradition this language must have been Hebrew, assumed also to have been the language of Adam and Eve. Another theory had it that Hebrew, Arabic and Chaldee were dialects of the original tongue. The Persians claim that there were three primitive languages, Arabic, the tongue used by Satan in addressing Eve; Persian, the language spoken by Adam and Eve, and Turkish, the speech used by the archangel when he drove them out of paradise. This would leave Persian as the tongue of primitive humanity. In olden days many ingenuous attempts were made to settle the question by excluding children from all human intercourse and observing the result in the means of communication growing up between them. Science has no answer to give.—New York Mail.

The Cat's Cleanliness.

The most fastidious mammals in matters of the toilet are to be found among the members of the cat family, as all must have noticed in domestic tabbies. The rough tongue makes an excellent brush, while the sharp claws are on occasion employed by way of combs, all these invaluable aids to cleanliness and smartness possessing the further advantage of always being at hand when required.

A healthy cat is not only clean, but finical, not to say vain, about her (or his) personal appearance, and moral degeneration in pussy is accompanied by neglect of personal grooming. That the dog is as dirty as a boy must reluctantly be confessed. He was the first animal to be domesticated, and long association with man has perhaps had to do with his carelessness in the matter.

Ely's Liquid Cream Balm is an old friend in a new form. It is prepared for the particular benefit of sufferers from nasal catarrh who are used to an atomizer in spraying the diseased membranes. All the healing and soothing properties of Cream Balm are retained in the new preparation. It does not dry up the secretions. Price, including spraying tube, 75 cents. At your druggist's, or Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York, will mail it.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

The Web Spinning Ant.

One of the most interesting observations made in ant life, says Andrew Wilson, the scientist, was that which showed that a certain red ant has evolved the habit of web spinning. The ways of this species were noted in the botanic gardens at Peradeniya, Ceylon, by E. G. Green. The extraordinary part of the story is that these ants used larvae as their spinning machines, the larvae employing their silk threads, used to make the cocoons, as their sewing machines. Mr. Green took some leaves which had been sewed together by the ants and unfastened the stitches. The separated edges were drawn together by the ants, and then, an hour afterward, the larvae or grubs, held in the mouths of the ants, were seen to be passed backward and forward across the gaps made in the leaves. The movements of the grubs were duly directed by the ants, and the silk threads spun by the mouths of the larvae soon repaired the defects in the leaves.

William Redmond's Answer.

William Redmond, M. P., once arose to speak in the house of commons, according to the Boston Record, and there came a question, hurled at him from the Right side of the house:

"Will you vote for this bill if it comes up?"

Mr. Redmond looked from one side of the house to the other and slowly answered:

"I will"—

Immediately the right side of the house burst into a storm of applause. But Mr. Redmond continued, as soon as he could be heard:

—"not"—

Then the storm came from the left side, and as soon as it subsided for a moment he completed what he started:

—"answer that question."

And perfect silence reigned on both sides.

An English Turf Custom.

A curious usage of the English turf is one which ordains that, when once worn, the cap and jacket representing a patron's "colors" become the property of the jockey. If, as frequently happens, the owner wishes to retain them as a memento of a successful race, he must buy them from the employee to whom perhaps he gave them but an hour or two before.

Thrown From a Wagon.

Mr. George K Babcock was thrown from his wagon and severely bruised. He applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely and says it is the best liniment he ever used. Mr. Babcock is a well known citizen of North Plain, Conn. There is nothing equal to Pain Balm for sprains and bruises. It will effect a cure in one third the time required by any other treatment. Two Cows.

Inconsistent.

Lincoln's Passes.

Lincoln's humor armed him effectually against the importunate persons with whom, as the head of the nation he was beset at all times.

During the civil war a gentleman asked him for a pass through the Federal lines to Richmond.

"I should be happy to oblige you," said Lincoln, "if my passes were respected. But the fact is, within the last two years I have given passes to Richmond to a quarter of a million men, and not one has got there yet."

Lost Historic Treasures.

Every year sees wiped out the remains which have lasted for thousands of years past. Now, in our own day, the antiquities of South Africa and of Central and South America have been destroyed as rapidly as they can be found. Elsewhere engineers of every nation use up buildings as quarries or wreck them for the sake of temporary profit. Speculators, native and European, tear to pieces every tomb they can find in the east and sell the few showy proceeds that have thus lost their meaning and history. And the casual discoveries that are made perish in a ghastly manner. The Saxon regalia of Harold, the treasures of Thomas a Becket's shrine, the burial of Alfred, the burial of Theodoric and the summer palace of Peking have within modern memory all gone the same way as the wonders that have perished in the French sack of Rome or the Greek sack of Persia.—Flinders-Petrie's "Archaeology."

The Horse In Action.

Did you ever think, says a horseman, how fast a horse in a 2:20 gait moves his feet? When a horse is trotting a 2:20 gait his feet move a little faster than a mile in 1:10. As his body is moving at 2:20, and as each of his feet when in contact with the ground is stationary and then is picked up and moved forward to take the next step, the foot must move as much faster than the body as to make the step, which is over twice as fast. Now, the action is: The foot is at rest upon the ground and is raised some one or two feet high, then forced forward nearly the full length of the leg, then lowered to the ground and is at rest for nearly two-thirds of the time that the next step is being taken. The time, nearly two-thirds, I think, is too long, but it is from one-half to two-thirds of the next step.—American Cultivator.

"Keep Your Head Cool,

The Desert of Sahara.

The greater part of the desert of Sahara is from 6,000 to 8,000 feet above the level of the ocean. The desert is not rainless, but showers cover it with grass for a few weeks in the year, large flocks and herds being mainly upon its borders, and the oases are depressions in which water can be collected and stored. It was at one time believed that the whole of the desert was below the sea level instead of only a comparatively small part of it.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets Better than a Doctor's Prescription.

Mr. J. W. Turner, of Truhart, Va., says that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have done him more good than anything he could get from the doctor. If any physician in this country was able to compound a medicine that would produce such gratifying results in cases of stomach troubles, billousness or constipation, his whole time would be used in preparing this one medicine. A Great Temple.

The most magnificent work of architecture is the Taj Mahal in Agra, Hindustan. It was erected by Shah Jehan to the memory of his favorite queen. It is octagonal in form, of pure white marble, inlaid with jasper, carnelian, turquoise, agate, amethysts and sapphires. The work took 22,000 men twenty years to complete, and though there were free gifts and the labor was free the cost is estimated at $16,000,000.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

An Anecdote of Richard Strauss.

An amusing story is told of Richard Strauss' early experience as a conductor in Germany. Strauss' favorite Wagner opera was "Tristan und Isolde," the score of which he knew intimately, but with the other Wagner works he was not so familiar, although he had already gained a considerable reputation in Germany as a "stir" conductor. On a certain occasion he was called on unexpectedly to direct a performance of "Die Meistersinger," which he did with much apparent self possession. Another eminent conductor who was in the audience noticed that in a certain passage in the third act the bass tuba, to which was allotted a very important phrase, did not make any effect with it at all. After the performance the visiting conductor, wondering if the orchestral player had been at fault, mentioned the circumstance to Strauss. The future composer of the "Symphonia Domestica" looked embarrassed.

"Why," he said, "to tell you the truth, I was so absorbed in bringing out the broader effects that I didn't notice that tuba part."—Harper's Weekly.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

"Save the Mark."

The ancient use of a cross instead of a signature was universal alike by those who could and by those who could not write. It was a symbol of an oath from its earliest associations. On this account Charles Knight, in his notes on "The Pictorial Shakespeare," explains the expression "God save the mark" (Henry IV.) as a form of ejaculation approaching to the form of an oath. Kelly, in his "Comments on Scotch Proverbs," observes that the Scots, when they used to compare person to person, used the expression, "Save the mark." Another explanation of the expression is that in archery when an archer shot well it was the custom to cry out, "God save the mark"—that is, prevent any one coming after to hit the same mark and thereby displace the arrow. Ironically it was said to a novice whose arrow struck nowhere.

Sued by His Doctor.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coachella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus. It never fails. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

The Peacock at the Feast.

Brehm informs us that the flesh of the young peacock is very delicate and has "a wild odor" which is very agreeable. He thinks an old bird fit only for stewing. The Greeks must have found it marvelous costly feeding if it be true, as Aelian says, that a single bird was worth a thousand drachmas—nearly £ . The esteem in which it was held in the last days of the Roman republic did not diminish under the imperial regime.

Vitellius and Heliogabalus served up to their boon companions enormous dishes of peacocks' tongues and brains seasoned with the rarest Indian spices. In mediaeval days it was still held in favor, particularly as a Christmas dish, and minstrels sang of it as "food for lovers and meat for lords."

To fit it for the table was no ordinary culinary operation. After the skin and plumage had been carefully stripped off the bird was roasted, then served up again in its feathers with gilded beak. No, I have forgotten that it was first stuffed with spices and sweet herbs and basted with yolk of egg. It floated in a sea of gravy, as many as three fat wethers sometimes supplying the unctuous liquor for a single peacock.—All the Year Round.

The June American Boy.

Starting out with a front cover design representing a healthy looking American boy in the act of throwing a ball over the home plate, the June American Boy is replete with matter of interest to wide awake boys, for in addition to the continuation of Kirk Munroe's celebrated story "The Blue Dragon," and W. J. Roe's "Camps and Campaigns of Washington," there are scores of articles long and short appealing directly to American youth. The stories are: "The organization of the Barryville Fire Brigade," "Riding the Bucking Broncos of the Sea," "The Rescue" and "The Ranch on the Pecos." Leading articles are "A Yankee boy who became the people's champion," being a brief review of the remarkable career of the late ex-Governor Pingree of Michigan; "Famous Guides of Forest and Stream," "Miss Clara Barton," "A Back Yard Club House," "A School for Choir Boys," "Children of the Chinese Legation," "Growing Peanuts at Home," "New Ways of Travel on Water," "A Famous Boy Fisherman," prize essays on rose growing, "Breeding Cages for Butterflies and other Insects" and "Five Minutes with a few Matches." The last of eight articles on "How to become Strong," also appears in this number. Best of all is the beginning of a two-part story by Arthur F. Duffey, the world's champion one hundred yard sprinter, telling of his triumphs over old world champions. This is easily the best story on athletics that have ever appeared in The American Boy. This number also contains a spl-ndid article on "The Advantages of Physical Training for Boys" by Dr. George L. Meylan, physical director of Columbia University, New York. $1 per year. The Sprague Publishing Company, Detroit, Mich.

BYGONE DAYS

Former Resident of Fulton is Reminiscent and Enters Protest Against Park Being Used for Public Library.

EDITOR TIMES: At intervals I am constrained to write a letter to you, though the majority of those whom I knew in what was the village of Fulton have departed, either by death or migration; but I remember it as the place where with me day-dreaming began and the happiest days of early manhood, or perhaps better, later boyhood, were spent. It is still the home of my parents, and over in Mount Adnah sleep so many whom I knew when gray hairs were yet afar off. No matter how short my visit in Fulton, I always find time to read the inscriptions on the memorials of Lloyd Loomis and his sister Hattie, Frank Vandercook and others, who went out into the unknown so long ago. Each year adds to their number, and in your latest paper I notice that Frank Titus has joined the majority. It seems so short a time since he and Eber Hubbard were running a grocery in Oneida street, and as he, like myself, was the son of a Methodist minister, there appeared to be a common bond between us. Latterly I have lost sight of him, but his name starts up memories and his face comes vividly before me. Then recently you chronicled the departure for the spirit world of Lyman Patterson.

In an old photograph album which dates back more than forty years ago, I find the face of a boy, rather under the average stature, whose hair is combed most carefully over his ears, as was the custom in those days, and this picture, with others, accompanied me on many a hard march in the southland during the rebellion days, a reminder of the times when as pupils in the seminary I called him "Lyme" and he called me "Alf." Later years did not keep up the old acquaintance, yet I have shouted a greeting to him when he was aloft on a painter's staging—once, I remember, well towards the roof of Nelson's mill. In spite of ourselves, the most of us run in grooves or on fixed tracks, hence we seldom meet, even though our ways be parallel.

Your latest number, also, has an item anent a location for the prospective Public Library. I hope the suggestion, though given editorially, that the building should be placed upon the park, does not express your sentiment. No edifice, though made of Parian marble and bedecked with the richest gilding, could enhance the beauty of that spot so much as its own unadorned self. In some way, I cannot tell just how, the village of Fulton became possessed, at an early day—probably on account of the adjacent seminary—of an open space such as no other place, little or big, in Central New York, can boast. It is the distinguishing feature of the place.

Fulton will not be any smaller. Naturally it will increase in dimensions and in population. The day is surely coming when every inch of that breathing place will be worth far more than it is to-day. Boston's Common is more highly prized to-day than her elaborate park system, because humanity can step into and upon the sacred enclosure and take a long breath, impossible elsewhere.

To-day Philadelphia is mourning over spaces, once open, now surrendered to school and engine houses—public utilities, but far better placed elsewhere than on what should be recreation space.

Yesterday I added my name to a list, already including that of Senator George F. Hoar, that of Stephen Salisbury, the wealthiest citizen of Worcester, and hundreds of others, asking that a house and lot recently bought for new school house purposes might be added to the near-by open space called Grant Square. This city once bought the rights of a church which for 200 years had stood upon the common, and much to the regret of a large portion of our people, placed upon the same the new city hall. Now there are very few who do not wish that the building, handsome though it is, were elsewhere.

Always give your public buildings a good wide space in front that they may have the advantages of perspective.

I have noted that several localities near the park have been considered, and I had hoped to hear that some one of them had been chosen. In the same number with the park suggestion was the statement that some far-sighted people were contemplating a real estate venture which might result in the placing of the structure near the upper bridge. Since, happily or otherwise, the villages on opposite sides of the Oswego are united in a bond, more or less lasting, is it not desirable that advantages of the library should be as ready for one community as for the other? Some sweet day the tinkling bell of the horse car in Fulton's beautiful First street or, far better, "River Road" will give place to an up-to-date electric system and communication between the water separated portions will be far easier than now. Then the wisdom of such location as that indicated, will become doubly obvious. The edifice, if adequate and fitting, will be of such dimensions as to be an ornament to the place and, fifty years hence, readers may con the pages of The Pathfinder, within hearing and sight of the very place which inspired Cooper to give to the world his magic tale. Do, my dear Mr. Editor, please champion the river location, thereby securing the ideal spot.

ALFRED S. ROE.

The third annual banquet and election of officers of the Fulton Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union, took place last Friday evening and was an enjoyable event.

The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Lura Lawrence; vice president, Dora Barker; recording secretary, Dora Harding; corresponding secretary, Dawn Root; treasurer, Florence Newell.

Vice president from First M. E. church, Jennie Terry.

Vice president from Baptist church, Ira Grove.

Vice president from Catholic church, Alice Murphy.

Vice president from Congregational church, Maude Newell.

Refreshments were served and dainty hand-painted menu cards were given to each guest.

The following responded to toasts when called upon by Miss Eleanor McCully, who acted as toastmistress: Walter Rust, Kenneth Clark, Harry Parks, Arthur Draper, Esther Baker and Maude Newell.

The "Y's" are an important factor for temperance in our city.

Children's Sunday, Universalist Church

The Sunday set apart specially for the children, now so generally observed, was first instituted many years ago by the Universalists of Massachusetts. It is the day on which they consecrate the child-life as a divine fact and emphasize the statement that every little child born into the world is God's child and always will be so.

The children, the singing birds, the blooming flowers, will be in evidence in this church both morning and evening.

In the morning, at 10.30 o'clock, there will be songs of praise by the girl choir, a sermon by the minister and the consecration of children.

In the evening at 7 30 o'clock a most interesting concert will be given by the children and young people under the direction of Mrs. Vincent, superintendent of the Sunday school. Miss Georgetta Foster will also sing.

To all these services every lover of children and of an inspiring religious faith is cordially invited.

MARRIED.

At the parsonage of State Street M. E. church, by the Rev. S. D. Robinson, on Friday, June 10, 1904, Mr. Arthur Woodward and Miss Mary J. Trapp, both residents of this city, were united in marriage.

In this city, May 25, by the Rev. James Vincent, D. D., Mr. Edward James Green of Middlesex, England, to Miss Flora Northrup of Syracuse.

Mr. Charles S. Hall of this city and Miss Annie Galt Perry of New York city were united in marriage last evening at 8 o'clock in the Church of the Ascension, corner of Fifth avenue and Tenth street, New York city, by the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant. The maid of honor was Miss Martha Kelley of Brooklyn, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Florence Hall, sister of the groom, and Helen C. Edwards of Brooklyn. The ushers were the Messrs. Malcolm F. McClure of East Orange and John R. McSutock of New York. The wedding march from Mendelssohn was played by Mr. Fred Carlisle of Newark, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Hall will make their future home in this city where Mr. Hall occupies a responsible position in the First National Bank. The Times joins with many friends in extending hearty congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Hall.

The marriage of Miss Estella M. Vail of Manlius and Mr. Thomas J. Humphrey of this city was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford J. Vail, parents of the bride, on Wednesday at 5.30 p. m., by the Rev. George D. Ashley of Christ Episcopal Church, Manlius, in the presence of 130 invited guests. The guests were received by Mrs. Wayne Bidwell of this city and Miss Bessie Candee of Manlius. Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey will make their future home in Fulton.

Last Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. T. J. Redhead, was solemnized the marriage of Miss Myrta Louise Beals, and Mr. Albert Norton Hudson, both of this city. The wedding was very quiet, owing to the recent death of the bride's brother, only immediate relatives being present. The Rev. S. D. Robinson was the officiating clergyman and the beautiful ring service was used. The home was prettily trimmed with smilax, roses and California lilies; the latter were sent the groom by a friend residing in that state. The bride who was unattended, was gowned in white silk and she carried a boquet of California lilies. Her little niece, Maurine Beals of Wayland, N. Y., was ring bearer. After congratulations were extended, the company enjoyed a sumptious wedding supper and Mr. and Mrs. Hudson left for a wedding trip of two weeks. The bride is one of our most estimable young ladies and during her residence of four years in this city, has become a favorite with a large circle of acquaintances. The groom is the popular and accommodating ticket agent at D. L. & W. depot, and he also has won many friends during his sojourn here. Mr. and Mrs. Hudson will make their future home in this city where they will be "at home" to their friends after July 15, at 306 South Fourth street.

Class Day.

On Wednesday evening of next week, the first class day of Fulton High school students will be observed by the class of '04 when the following program will be presented.

PART I.

Music	Webb Orchestra
Class Prophecy	Maude Newell
Class Poem	Elizabeth McAllister
The Will	Helen Brown
Class Song
Music	Webb Orchestra

For the second part of the program the farce-comedy, Our Regiment, will be presented. The cast of characters will be as published a few weeks since in the Times. The young people have been thoroughly drilled by Miss Wooley and a finished performance is anticipated.

Miss Grace Tucker invites all who are at all interested in stocks to visit the Stock Market which she will conduct at her home, No. 161 South Second street, during Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. It is the only Stock Market on record where one is certain to receive ample return for the money invested. Stocks will be sold from 5 cents to $1. All ladies and Misses are especially invited.

ART EXHIBIT

Scholars of Fulton Schools Win Prizes and Hearty Commendation.

The art exhibit given in the City Hall last week was a decided success, not only from a financial but an artistic standpoint, and it was also of great educational value to all who attended. It was a matter of surprise to many the amount of embryo talent possessed by the students which will surely develop under the inspiring direction of Miss Helen Parmenter, the capable and earnest instructor in drawing. The carbons received a large share of attention and admiration, but it was around the work of the students that the interest centered. On Friday evening Dr. Richard K. Piez, professor of philosophy and drawing in the Oswego Normal school, attended the exhibit and passed judgment upon the students' work, and on Saturday evening Miss Parmenter announced the prize winners as selected by Dr. Piez. A camera was awarded Miss Lucille Grigson for the best work done in a west side school. Madonna and child, handsomely framed, was awarded Harry McMahon of the Fifth grade for the best original Gothic ornament book. This prize was offered by Prof. Fairgrieve. The W. H. Patterson prize of $5 in gold for the best collection of drawings submitted by girl and boy was awarded to Muriel Bread and Mr. Robert Hull. Miss Parmenter announces that next year another art exhibit will be held, and it is expected that there will be as great improvement noted in the work of the students as between this year and last.

Mrs. N. H. Haviland wishes to correct the erroneous report that the work exhibited by her little nephew, Byron Newton, last week at the City Hall, was not done by himself. A portion of the work being done at school, some entirely by himself and the remainder at the home of Mrs. Haviland. The only instruction ever received by him in water-color painting was given by his teacher, Miss Wright, of the State street school.

Arrested on a Serious Charge.

A dispatch from St. Louis, Mo., announces the arrest in that city last Thursday of Marcus Crahan, a former resident of this city, for passing a counterfeit $100 bill.

At the time of his arrest the prisoner had thirty of the spurious bills in his possession, and there were about forty more in his room at the Planter's hotel. Crahan is held in $15,000 for examination, June 15.

Crahan bears an excellent reputation in Fulton, where he was born in 1869, the son of Patrick Crahan. Every few years he would visit this city from Providence, where he conducted a prosperous photo-engraving establishment. The counterfeit is reported to be one of the best ever made.

Dwelling House and Barn Burned.

The Summer residence and barn, hennery, granary and woodhouse, together with contents, belonging to L. P. Deesz of Denver, Col., located on the Whitaker road, about a mile and a half northeast of this city, were totally destroyed by fire on Sunday afternoon, with the exception of a few articles of furniture. The property was known as the Hewitt homestead, the dwelling containing sixteen fully furnished rooms. There were at least forty tons of hay in the barn. Nearly all of the furniture belonging to Daniel Farrell, who was care-taker and occupied the rear portion of the dwelling, was also destroyed and was uninsured. Mr. Deesz's loss is fully covered by insurance. Only one member of the family was here, Mrs. D. E. Dunn of New York, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Deesz. The other members were expected this week from Denver. It was at first supposed the fire was of incendiary origin and suspicion was directed to two boys, but the police have a positive knowledge of the whereabouts of one of the boys in question, and the cause of the catastrophy is still enveloped in mystery.

One lady remarked recently that she always wore a pair of Walkover shoes two years, and wore no other shoes at any time during that period. How's that for a recommend for a shoe? W. A. Butts is sole agent for the Walkover.

50,000 SHARES

Of the Capital Stock of the

International Broom Comp'y,

Patentees of the

KAPTOP BROOM

Is offered for sale at this time for the purpose of enlarging the capacity of their plant in Brooklyn, N. Y., to meet the demand of their present orders. Much of the stock ought to be disposed of where the sub-companies are located—where the people are familiar with the success of the undertaking—and for that reason I am endeavoring to dispose of as much of this stock as possible in this vicinity. The stock is offered to investors at

50 CENTS A SHARE

Par value $1.00, fully paid and non-assessable.

The Fulton Kaptop Broom Company of Fulton, N. Y., one of the sub-companies of this corporation, are now manufacturing and disposing of fifty dozen brooms per day. They have cancelled many orders, because of inability to fill them. Their capacity will be one hundred dozen brooms per day and their orders at the present time are much in excess of that number. Messrs. Louis Emerick, A. Bristol, William Hunter and other well-known gentlemen of Fulton are among the principal stockholders.

Other sub-companies are:

ADVANCE BROOM COMPANY of Philadelphia, Pa., now using one hundred kaptops per day.

NEW ENGLAND BROOM COMPANY of New Haven, Ct., now using one hundred dozen kaptops per day.

SUPERIOR BROOM COMPANY of Kansas City, now using one hundred dozen kaptops per day.

MANHATTAN BROOM COMPANY of Brooklyn, N. Y., now using from one to two hundred dozen brooms per day.

FULTON KAPTOP BROOM COMPANY, now using fifty dozen kaptops per day.

The Company is about to establish a sub-company in Chicago, also in the cities of Pittsburg, Pa., Baltimore, Md., and St. Paul, Minn., and negotiations have been in progress for the establishment of a sub-company in the City of Mexico, which has been practically closed.

It is confidently expected that the Company will pay a dividend on the par value of the stock within two months, and I would advise, if you are interested, that you avail yourself of this offer, as no more stock will be sold after the 50,000 shares now offered are disposed of. I will be pleased to call on anyone and explain further the merits of the proposition, and a postal card, addressed to me requesting my presence, will meet with prompt attention.

The funeral was held from her late home on Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock and was largely attended by sorrowing friends.

From the Chinese.

Here is a famous passage from the writings of a Chinese philosopher. More than twenty centuries ago it gained the author the sobriquet of "Butterfly Chung." The philosopher tells of a dream: "Once upon a time I, Chung Tsu, dreamed I was a butterfly, fluttering hither and thither, to all intents and purposes a butterfly. I was conscious only of following my fancy as a butterfly and was unconscious of my individuality as a man. Suddenly I awakened and there I lay, myself again. Now, I do not know whether I was then a man dreaming I was a butterfly or whether I am now a butterfly dreaming I am a man."

20 ALL EXPENSES PAID TO ST. LOUIS FAIR 20

TWENTY of our customers will go to the great Fair in St. Louis at our expense. We will pay all cost of travel both ways in Pullman Palace cars and allow the sum of Thirty-five Dollars ($35.00) for hotel and other expenses to the twenty (20) of our patrons who will estimate nearest to the number of paid admissions to the Fair on the Fourth of July.

$5,000.00

has been deposited by us in Bank to defray all expenses.

In the event of two or more estimating the same number, which number entitles to a trip to the St. Louis Fair at our expense, as above, each customer so estimating will be declared a winner and awarded accordingly.

If you are a winner and cannot spare the time to visit the Fair, we will pay you in full the amount which the trip would have cost us.

You can make as many estimates as you please, but each estimate to be recorded must be accompanied by one of the checks which we give free with all our goods. Should you desire a receipt for your estimates, enclose a two-cent stamp.

All coupons must be received by us not later than July 1st, and the names of the twenty successful contestants will be announced July 11th. Look for the list which will be posted in all of our stores.

No employe of the Company will be premitted to take part in this contest.

The following information will be found useful in making estimates:

The great Fair at St. Louis will open April 30th, 1904, and close November 30, 1904, and will no doubt attract a larger aggregate number than ever visited any previous World's Fair. The U. S. and governments of the various States are devoting twenty millions of dollars to the erection of handsome buildings, and filling them with exhibits, while foreign countries are represented to the number of forty-seven.

The Democratic National Convention will be held in St. Louis July 6th, which will doubtless draw a larger number of visitors to the Fair on July 4th than would otherwise attend.

The Fourth of July attendance at Chicago was 283,273; Omaha, 38,-618, Buffalo, 71,024.

Cut out carefully along this line and mail to us promptly.

I estimate, the number of paid admissions to the ST. LOUIS FAIR July 4th will be:

The Pest Of Sparrows.

The government has again been giving some attention to the English sparrow and, while at this writing no definite statistics are obtainable, it is roughly estimated that there are upwards of a hundred million of the little feathered creatures in this country. The sparrows have long ago been voted a pest, but it was not until recently that strenuous efforts have been made toward their extermination.

"Equip the boys with the Stevens rifle," says a well-known Washington official, "and the sparrow question won't be a matter of doubt very long."

This thought is right in line with the ideas that the J. Stevens Arms & Tool Co., of Chicopee Falls, Mass., the firearm makers, have been advocating for some time. The Stevens people have been urging the use of the small caliber rifle on farms where not only the sparrow, but woodchucks, squirrels, crows, hawks are also sources of nuisance.

As a general proposition it does seem reasonable to believe that a man or boy, armed with a "Stevens" and instructed in its use, could soon rid the neighborhood of the living crop destroyers at a small outlay and have a lot of fun himself while doing the work.

ED. PINAUD'S

EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC

A Positive Dandruff Cure!

is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

DANGER IN SIGHT

Democratic Conventions Reveal the Spirit of Socialism In That Party.

A Tremendous Sentiment That Menaces if Any Democrat Be Elected.

Hearst has more delegates under instructions to support him at St. Louis than any other candidate except Judge Parker. Rhode Island on the Atlantic, California on the Pacific, Iowa, South Dakota and Arizona in the central portion of the country are for him. Florida gives three out of ten to Hearst, and Massachusetts, Ohio and Illinois have each a few districts in which Hearst sentiment prevailed and would express itself in the convention if the unit rule did not prevent.

In Wisconsin in order to hold the delegates in line it became necessary for the conservatives to go the length of declaring that the last national platform must be regarded as the Democratic code until a new platform is adopted, which is considered by Bryan men as a practical indorsement of their doctrines of 1896 and 1900.

The platform of that state has a decidedly Bryanesque ring to it. It is as yellow as a Hearst editorial, with its talk of "brigandage" and "consciousless criminals" and the like, while it flatly "denounces the vicious tariff system fostered and perpetuated by the Republican party."

In short, from one end of the country to the other and up and down the center the Democrats have shown that they have a large element, controlling in whole states, which is outspoken for the most radical theories of government. As Senator Platt of New York said to the editors, the dominant note in the party is socialism. This element regards Hearst as "the living exponent of true Democratic faith."

This quotation is from the Iowa Democratic platform.

The Danger Apparent.

There is little danger that Hearst will be nominated. There is not yet a certainty that he will have anywhere near the one-third of the whole number of delegates needed to make serious trouble for the so called conservative element of the convention. But he has shown to the country just what danger confronts it. He is regarded as a living argument which cannot but bring Republicans and patriotic Democrats alike to the real condition in which the Democratic party today is.

It is honeycombed with socialistic ideas. It can barely hold itself from going wholly to that doctrine. It is with difficulty that it has been restrained from declaring for even worse than Bryanism, if that be possible. It has a tremendous element which cast off all the old theories of government when it became Bryanized, and in its hatred of those who did not stay with them, nurtured by the demagogy of two campaigns, it is rabid, violent and revolutionary.

Bryanism caught the great bulk of the party during the eight years it was the national Democratic creed. Even Judge Parker is claimed by the advocates of 16 to 1, and to appease them he wrote a letter in which he admitted having voted with them.

Parker, or Gorman, or Olney, or McClellan, or Cleveland, or some one unheard of may be nominated. But the Bryanized element which centers on Hearst is there. It will hold its views, whoever may be elected. It will demand and it will get recognition if any Democrat be chosen.

The People Must Choose.

The exigencies of politics will make that inevitable. Concessions will be made which will strike a blow at the very foundation of the nation's life.

The very concession which Judge Parker is said to have made when he supported 16 to 1 is all the illustration needed.

It remains with the people to say if they are willing to put into power the party which has this great element of socialists within its ranks. To a thoughtful man who loves his country there can be but one answer. Such a party is not the one to which the American people will surrender the control of their destinies.

AN AMERICAN.

Washington, May 31.

CAN PARKER DO IT?

Whether the Democratic candidate is to be Judge Parker or another, one thing seems to us to be as clear as noonday—that unless the candidate is a man who by his personality infuses strength and coherence into the Democratic campaign, that campaign will be a fiasco. It is perfectly possible that Judge Parker has it in him to do that, but we do not remember to have ever seen it asserted that he is a man of such a stamp, and quite certainly no such estimate of him has been established or has even gained currency.—Baltimore News (Dem.).

Intuition.

MRS. ALTON B. PARKER.

Parker in 1873. Two children were born, a son, who died as a child, and a daughter, Bertha, who is now the wife of the Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Cross at Kingston. Mr. and Mrs. Hall have two children, Alton Parker and Mary Parker, five and three years old respectively, of whom the judge and his wife are very fond. Mrs. Parker presides with stately courtesy over Rosemont, the colonial mansion at Esopus, near Kingston, which for many years has been Judge Parker's home.

Much More Than That.

"That milk looks as if it were half water," protested the woman at the kitchen door.

"It is much more than that, ma'am," replied the milkman, a college graduate in reduced circumstances. "I guarantee it to be 86 per cent water, 4 per cent butter, 3½ per cent casein and 6½ per cent sugar and various salts, the combination resulting in the liquid commonly known as milk. Chemical analysis of the same cheerfully furnished whenever desired. Good morning, ma'am."—Chicago Tribune.

The Norseman's Nastrond.

The Noresman's hades is as unlike the orthodox place of punishment as it is possible for one to imagine. This place of torment for the reprobate sons of the north is called nastrond and is situated far toward the frigid north and is directly under niflheim, the Scandinavian mythologist's purgatory. A description of nastrond as it appears in the "Prose Edda" (written in Iceland in the thirteenth century) is as follows:

"In nastrond there is a vast and direful structure with doors that face the north. This building is formed entirely of the backs and scales of serpents, wattled together like wickerwork. But the heads of the serpents themselves are turned toward the inside of the hall, and they continually vomit forth floods of venom, in which must wade throughout eternity all those who commit murder or swear to lies." Another description of nastrond is similar to this, but adds that the evildoers are occasionally bitten by the great dragon Nidhogg.

Seeing Distances.

About 200 miles in every direction is the distance a man can see when standing on a clear day on the peak of the highest mountain—say at a height of 26,668 feet, or a little over five miles above the level of the sea. An observer must be at a height of 6,667 feet above sea level to see objects at a distance of 100 miles. The distance in miles at which an object upon the surface of the earth is visible is equal to the square root of one and one-half times the height of the observer in feet above sea level. Some allowance has to be made for the effect of atmospheric refraction, but as the refraction varies at different heights and is affected by the various states of the weather, no precisely accurate figures for general purposes can be given. Probably from one-fourteenth to one-tenth of the distance given by the formula would have to be deducted, owing to the refraction of the atmosphere.

Dutch Noses.

A study of Jan Steen's pictures of Dutch home life some 200 years ago proves to conviction that in his day the noses of his country folk were quite as fantastic as they are now. Without their pendulous, heavy, mirth inspiring organs of smell, the artist's tipsy fiddlers and peasants, quack doctors and housewives would not make one smile half as much as they do. It is well that the average Dutchman is a good natured fellow. No matter whether his amiability be due to his phlegmatic temperament or to the reasoned discipline in his soul, the result is the same to the outer world. If he were naturally disposed to be a prey to his passions, there would be something horribly discordant in the broad comedy of his face.—Chambers' Journal.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

A POLITICAL REMINISCENCE.

A desire has been manifested on the part of the friends of our local candidate for county treasurer to explode the ammunition magazine in their own camp, and if the articles which appear in out-of-town papers, and which are evidently inspired, are to be given credence, others are blamed for a lack of harmony regarding the man in question. Complaint is made that owing to the strength developed by our local candidate a solemn promise has been broken. Nothing could be farther from the truth. For the purpose of harmony, the Republicans of this city have gone to extreme lengths. The alleged breach of faith should not be charged to those who have assumed direction of the Republican campaign in this county. The Balm of Gilead will therefore have to be sought elsewhere by the candidate who has deliberately turned what he considered a political certainty into a reminiscence.

IF any Methodists wish to play cards for recreation or to go to the theatre for amusement, they will have to do so on the sly since the conference at Los Angeles has refused to change the rule against these forms of amusement. Dancing is also forbidden.

SENATOR DUBOIS of Idaho, stopped long enough in Utah the other day to say that the Smoot Investigating Committee will meet in that State sometime before the next meeting of Congress. November will be a cool and interesting month for the proposed inquiry.

IT is amusing to hear the Democrats give out from their committee headquarters the opinion that they expect to overturn the Republican majority of 84 in the House. There'll be time enough for that after they elect Parker, or Gorman, or Olney, or McClellen, or Hearst, or whoever else gets the nomination.

AMONG the spellbinders who are expected to make nominating and seconding speeches at Chicago are Senator Beveridge of Indiana, Mr. H. S. Edwards of Macon, Ga., Joseph Colton of Duluth, Minn., George A. Knight of California. With all this talent there ought to be some stirring speeches.

As the St. Louis convention will contain 1,000 delegates, it will take 667 votes to nominate Parker. He now lacks about 460 of the required number. And Hearst has almost as many delegates as Parker. Some wise politicians think it possible that Gorman, Miles or Folk may come in and gobble up the whole concern.

PRESIDENT BAER, of the Anthracite Coal Trust, says God put up the price of coal. He also says he intends to sell coal at as high a price as people will pay for it, and get all the profit he can out of the business. Under these circumstances it is almost time for the United States government, and the people, to say what they will do about it. Four dollars a ton is a good price and would yield a fair profit. All above that is extortion.

SENATOR HOPKINS, of Illinois, is well satisfied with the Republican contest in that state. He thinks it a good thing to excite and stir up the people—it brings out the whole strength of the party at the polls. His estimate is that the ticket, whoever is nominated for governor, will be 20,000 votes stronger than if some one had been nominated on the second ballot. The Senator's philosophy is quite original, but it may be good all the same.

THE raising of sugar beets in the West for the purpose of making beet sugar, a policy fostered and protected by Republican administration, has proved a god-send to that section of the country, and opened up avenues of employment for thousands. Even school boys and girls by the hundred work in the fields, pulling weeds, for which they receive one dollar a day, twice as much as farm hands are paid in New England. This is vastly better in every respect than leaving boys and girls to run the streets, acquiring bad habits of idleness.

Warm Weather Wear

Your own personal comfort now demands clothing of a lighter weight.

You don't have to swelter for ten days waiting on a "merchant tailor" when you can slip into a stylish Schloss-made Suit that costs one half the price he would charge you.

But there's always something more than price behind the clothing made by Schloss Bros & Co. There's value—there's quality—there's style—there's reliability and durablity. And too, there's incomparable fit. What more does the most particular patron demand of the "merchant tailor?".

The Three Button double breasted coat shown in the picture is designed with an eye to comfort and coolness. It looks Summery but not negligee. Indeed with this suit one is dressed in the top-notch of fashion. No vest is worn, and the trousers are made with peg tops, cuff bottoms and belt straps.

DEMOCRATS REVOLT

Cannot Stand For Hill's Programme of the State Campaign.

Hill's Chairman, Meyer, Is Held Up as a Trust Magnate.

The trouble among Democrats in New York state is not confined wholly to the jolly old row between Murphy and McCarren in New York city. In the party throughout the state there is manifestly a considerable element which will not "stand for" the Hill programme of turning the Parker candidacy over to the management of Wall street.

Democrats who are not committed to Hill fear that this element is even now so strongly in revolt that, whatever may be done by Hill, Belmont and Meyer to make a show of consistency, Parker could not win at the polls even if he secured the nomination at St. Louis. The trouble is a great many Democrats after following Bryan for eight years will not allow Hill, Belmont and Meyer to put them into the position of stultifying themselves absolutely by so suddenly reversing their position. Democrats who are not in Hill's immediate train and who were "regular" in 1896 and 1900 are hot because a few who were "still, very still," in those years have assumed to put them in the attitude of insincerity. The Jamaica Daily Farmer, which is a Democratic paper, in an article headed "Democrats Displeased" said:

David B. Hill's choice of Cord Meyer for chairman of the Democratic state committee is singularly unfortunate because it will hurt the cause of Judge Parker in the state and particularly in the city of New York, to which Judge Parker must look for the vote that is to carry the state for him, if it is to be carried at all, and Mr. Hill's conduct seems to indicate that he does not care, for it is neither "safe nor sane." The Democratic party is on record as the foe of trusts, the Democratic record in congress bristles with denunciation of trusts, and the national Democratic platform when promulgated must bear down hard on the trusts, yet we have Cord Meyer, a representative of the mother of trusts, the iniquitous, grinding and corrupt sugar trust, made chairman of the Democratic state committee at a time when a Republican president is dealing deathblows to trusts. And this is but one of a large number of trusts that Mr. Meyer is prominently identified with.

Democrats who express themselves on the management of the coming campaign, however much they rejoice at Mr. Meyer's ability to raise a large campaign fund, say that Hill and Belmont made a mistake when they advertised to the country that they relied chiefly on a few Wall street men to back them.

BIG BALANCE ON HAND.

The State Treasury Will Have Six Millions After Paying Bills.

The state comptroller finds that when the appropriations authorized by the last legislature are paid there will be a balance of about $6,000,000 in the state treasury. And this without the necessity of levying any state tax.

If anything were yet needed to prove the falsity of the frequent Democratic charges of extravagance this alone is ample.

The governor has held strictly to the policy of economy, which has guided him during the three previous years of his administration, and during the very last days of his work with the thirty day bills he pruned the appropriations by $2,255,323.49. It is a saving worthy of note and worthy of general approval.

The finances of the state were never in a more satisfactory condition.

USUAL DEMOCRATIC SQUABBLE.

It isn't at all strange that Murphy and McCarren should be scrapping, but it is strange that the mayor and comptroller of New York city should permit the offices to be used by Murphy and McCarren in their fight. The offices belong to the people, and they should be filled with capable and efficient men. And good men shouldn't be turned out of them simply to gratify Murphy and McCarren.

The Democratic newspapers of New York are complaining that when the Democratic party seems to have a good chance for winning an election the Democratic leaders of that state can be depended upon to get into a squabble that threatens to destroy that chance. That isn't at all complimentary to the leaders in question and ought to be sufficient to cause them to adjust their differences and get to work for Democratic success.—Savannah News (Dem.).

AS TO ELLIOT DANFORTH.

Judge Parker's judicial dignity has not yet allowed him to say whether Elliot Danforth correctly set forth his views in his recently published interview.

Some think that even a judge of the court of appeals might properly dodge the responsibility of having as his mouthpiece a man whose last dealing of record with the said court was the payment of a fine for contempt in refusing to obey an order which involved the canvassing, on the part of said mouthpiece, of a fraudulent election certificate.

CLEVELAND TALKED OF.

The Man Who Sold Bonds at Night For a Third Term.

Distinct signs are visible of a Grover Cleveland boom for the nomination as the Democratic presidential candidate.

Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, was early in the list to declare for him. New Jersey is said to be ready to cast its votes in the St. Louis convention for him. From Indiana come reports that in spite of the instructions for Parker some of the delegates would gladly turn in for the ex-president. Ex-Comptroller Eckels took the trouble to give out an interview which many have construed as hinting at the sage of Princeton. Mr. Cleveland is said to have some ardent supporters among the independent Democrats of New York state, while he is said by intimate friends to have a lightning rod as high as the Flatiron building pointed toward the cloud from whence the bolt will descend on some one.

The Olney delegates from New England, the votes from Wisconsin which go on the first ballot to E. C. Wall, the favorite son, and others which are instructed for no one are said to be ready for the Cleveland rod, if proper manipulation can make the occasion.

Few believe for publication that he will be nominated, and if nominated few believe he could be elected. The country has a very distinct remembrance of his last administration and the hard times that went along with it.

Testimony from his own party has been brought out recently which refreshes the memory as to the Cleveland style of financiering. Reference is made to his sales of bonds. The New York World, which is in the ranks of Democrats and one of Parker's sponsors, said of the notorious bond syndicate deal:

Nevertheless one bond syndicate, working in the dark for its own profit, through a secret bond contract, made by Mr. Cleveland at midnight, was able in these four hours to debase the credit of the United States government to the level of some one of the South American republics, although no Stock Exchange quotation next day reflected the fall.

The debasement was private. It was for the profit of a syndicate. It was ordered by President Cleveland. The contract of debasement was drawn by the counsel of the syndicate, who was also Mr. Cleveland's former law partner, Mr. Francis Lynde Stetson. It was signed by John G. Carlisle, Mr. Cleveland's secretary of the treasury. Under this secret contract of debasement August Belmont, J. P. Morgan and those whom they permitted to share in the plunder of the second secret syndicate received from the government bonds for which they paid exactly $65,112,743 and resold to the public in twenty-two minutes for exactly $73,531,700.

The history of nations and of finance may be searched in vain for any parallel of this secret bond contract or for any instance where a civilized nation has been robbed by its own citizens on so great a scale in so short a time either in peace or war.

Mr. Belmont, mentioned in this World article, is now financing the Parker boom. Should Mr. Cleveland by any possibility be nominated, his friends believe it would suit Mr. Belmont just as well.

OFFICES FOR SALE.

Grout and Murphy In a Shameless Contest In New York.

The most serious side of the row in which Tammany Boss Murphy and Senator McCarren of Brooklyn are fighting for control lies in the scandalous participation by Mayor McClellan and Comptroller Grout.

The mayor, of course, is with Murphy, and the bright promises he made the first few weeks of his administration are suddenly being shattered. To deprive McCarren of strength the mayor, through his commissioners, is cutting off the heads of McCarren's friends in office. Allegiance to Murphy is the price of holding a job. Several heads have fallen for no other reason than to satisfy Murphy's thirst for revenge. The mayor stands for it.

Mr. Grout, having been nominated and elected by Murphy, has turned against him as he has heretofore turned against every other political leader who has helped him, and is supporting McCarren. As fast as Murphy deposes a man Grout appoints him to some fat place in his office. McCarren is allied with Hill. Hill will nominate a candidate for governor this fall. Grout wants to be governor.

Aside from the fresh revelation which the present spectacle gives of Grout's willingness to sacrifice any friend to help Grout and of the thorough control of the Tammany boss over the mayor's part of the city government, the row is resulting in demoralizing the public service. The offices of New York city are openly and shamelessly advertised as the price for support.

ANOTHER CHANCE AT HILL.

Isaac H. Maynard was held in high esteem until he fell under the influence of David B. Hill. The people had a vote on it then. Hill is again in control, and men in as high esteem as Maynard used to be are his lieutenants this year. The people are going to have another vote on it next November.

DOES HE MEAN BELMONT?

Democrats who have persistently bolted and maliciously denounced those who remained loyal are now fearfully wrought up lest the loyal ones go into the bolting business. The bolters are as inconsistent as they are treacherous.—William J. Bryan in Commoner.

COLONEL YOUNGHUSBAND.

Career of the Officer Who Is Invading Tibet.

The adventure of Colonel Younghusband into the strange and inaccessible country of Tibet is attracting a great deal of interest, and upon its outcome many important developments of the future may depend. The advance of the British under this officer requires no small degree of endurance and energy, but it is proving a costly expedition in point of both blood and treasure, and antiexpansionists in Great Britain do not withhold criticism of the enterprise.

The people of Tibet are a very fanatical and priest ridden people who are exceedingly jealous of any attempts to induce them to adopt modern ways of thinking and living, and innovators in that country take their lives in their hands. The British would like to extend their trade in that direction and would also like to offset Russian influence and pave the way for the extension of the British empire across the Himalayas into this region. The announced intention of the expedition, however, was merely the enforcement of treaty agreements made by the Tibetans which the British claimed they had failed to carry out. It was maintained that Tibetans had violated the English frontier and that trade obligations had been ignored.

COLONEL FRANCIS EDWARD YOUNGHUSBAND.

Colonel Francis Edward Younghusband, who is in command of the expedition, is a soldier who has a reputation for unusual bravery and is also an intrepid traveler and a clever writer. In 1886 he traveled through Manchuria and in the following year went from Peking to India by way of Turkestan. In 1895 he joined the Chitral expedition as a special correspondent and went to the Transvaal in a similar capacity. He has written several books.

A False Test For Steel Blades.

Many people imagine that by blowing their breath on the blade of a knife they can tell whether the blade is steel or pot metal. Now, a person's breath will adhere to a pot metal blade and fade away the same as on steel, but nine out of ten men don't know this, and that is the reason why so many people carry inferior pocketknives.

President In the Bible.

The title president occurs in the Bible. "It pleased Darius to set over the kingdom 120 princes, which should be over the whole kingdom, and over these three presidents, of whom Daniel was first, that the princes might give accounts unto them, and the king should have no damage."—Daniel vi. 1-2.

MME. WONG'S IDEAS.

She Is Enterprising and Believes In Freedom For Women.

It is seldom that one finds even an American woman who is more accomplished in her way than Mme. Wong Kai Kah, wife of the Chinese vice commissioner to the world's fair at St. Louis. Mme. Wong has been talked about because she brought 400 gowns with her on coming to St. Louis, worth from $400 to $700 apiece. But it should not be supposed from this that the mistress of the Wong home thinks of nothing but what she is going to wear. She is a shrewd business woman and recently invested $140,000 in rice lands in Texas, to the cultivation of which she is going to devote personal attention when the fair is over. She is finely educated, speaks French fluently and is well up on the customs of this country, believing that China could learn a great deal from America, especially in regard to the treatment of women. It is her firm conviction that more freedom should be granted Chinese women, that the absurd foot binding custom should be abolished and that, in short, a Chinese lady would be much better off if allowed freedom to exercise, to make herself proficient in knowledge and to learn an occupation by which she may support herself if necessary.

A Strong Heart

assured by perfect digestion. Indigestion swells the stomach and suffs it up against the heart. This causes shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and general weakness. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures indigestion, relieves the stomach, takes the strain off the heart and restores it to a full performance of its function naturally. Kodol increases the strength and by enabling the stomach and digestive organs to digest, assimilate and appropriate to the blood and tissues all of the food nutriment; tones the stomach and digestive organs Sold by H. C Giesler.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

The Siberian Cossack.

Tobolsk, where the Siberian Cossack is reared, is a well watered region, with 1,600 lakes, many of them of considerable size. Many of the inhabitants had their origin in the utilization of the territory as a penal colony for European Russia. The people are still very primitive, sheep being the unit of exchange in their barter system. Cattle breeding is extensively adopted, and it is from this source that the Russian army draws most of its horses for service in the far east. These animals are small and hardy, not particular about food and capable of enduring extreme heat and cold, but the load they can take even on a level road is only about 900 pounds. The preparatory class of the Cossacks comprises lads from the age of eighteen, who undergo three years' training. The Cossacks of the first ranks are enrolled from the age of twenty-one for a period of twelve years, and all serve for a further period of five years in the reserves, the age of discharge being, therefore, thirty-eight.

The Calendar Calculation.

Caesar's reformed calendar made the year about eleven minutes too long—that is, the solar year began eleven minutes earlier each twelvemonth than the calendar year. In 1582 Pope Gregory XIII. found that the solar year had gained ten days on the calendar year. He corrected this and to keep the two years more nearly together ordered that thereafter only centurial years divisible by 400 should be leap years. This calculation is this: By adding eleven minutes regularly to the year, at the end of a century the legal calendar has had one more day than the solar calendar. By giving up the additional day of leap year in three centurial years the legal calendar has at the end of three centuries nearly one day less than the solar calendar. This difference is corrected by having an extra day in the fourth centurial year. The arrangement is so nearly exact that the two years differ by only one day in 3,323 years.

Thrown From a Wagon.

A Forgiving Chinaman.

The following remarkable story appears in Mr. Whigham's "Manchuria and Korea:" "A Cossack in a fit of drunkenness had shot a Chinaman, and it was necessary to bring several of the men to the bedside of the dying victim for purpose of identification of the culprit. The Chinaman, however, refused absolutely to single out the guilty man, saying, 'Why should he be killed, since I must die in any case?' Then they explained to him that the man would only be severely punished, to which the Chinaman responded that since he forgave the culprit there was no reason why he should suffer. Then the theory of the punishment was adduced as an argument—the Cossack must be punished in order that he might not repeat the offense. 'But,' said the Chinaman, 'he will never do it again when he knows that I forgive him,' and there the matter ended."

A Blush Scientifically Defined.

Not long since we were asked to give a scientific definition of the word "blush." We have made an effort, from an anatomical and physiological point of view, to give the definition. A blush is a temporary erythema and calorific effulgence of the physiognomy, aetologized by one perceptiveness of the sensorium when in a predicament of unequilibrility from a sense of shame, anger or other cause, ventuating in a paresis of the vasomotor filaments of the facial capillaries, whereby, being divested of their elasticity, they are suffused with a radiance effeminating from an intimidated praecordia.—Southern Medicine.

The Blue Lakes.

About twelve miles northwest from the town of Upper Lake, Cal., is a series of waters known as Blue lakes—three in all—surrounded by spurs of the coast range that tower 1,000 feet over them. These lakes are steel blue in color and never freeze. The upper lake is nearly two miles in length and half a mile in width in the widest place, the middle lake is about half a mile long and half that distance in width, and the lower one is less than half the size of the nearest neighbor. The upper lake is nearly 500 feet deep in places, and all of them abound in trout.

The Oak.

The oak chooses a horizontal direction for its limbs so that their whole weight may tell and then stretches them out fifty or sixty feet so that the strain may be mighty enough to be worth resisting. At 90 degrees the oak stops short. To slant upward another degree would mark infirmity of purpose; to bend downward, weakness of organization. Other trees shirk the work of resisting gravity. The oak defies it.—Dr. Holmes.

Nasal Catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. A remedy for Nasal Catarrh which is drying or exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. Cream Balm is recognized as a specific. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. A cold in the head immediately disappears when Cream Balm is used, Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

The Cunning of Ants.

A naturalist found black ants were devouring the skins of some bird specimens on a table, so he made tar circles on four pieces of paper and put one under each leg of the table. Ants will not cross tar. Pretty soon he found the ants busily at work again and, looking at the tar circles, found each one was bridged by bits of sand which the clever ants had brought in from the street.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets Better than a Doctor's Prescription.

Mr. J. W. Turner, of Truhart, Va., says that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have done him more good than anything he could get from the doctor. If any physician in this country was able to compound a medicine that would produce such gratifying results in cases of stomach troubles, biliousness or constipation, his whole time would be used in preparing this one medicine. It is easy to take a joke in the spirit in which it is intended if it is on the other fellow.

No Competition.

The uniform success of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaints both in children and adults has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival, and as everyone who has used it knows, is without an equal. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

The Speed of Sense.

Hirsch proved that a touch on the face was recognized by the brain and responded to by a manual signal in the one-seventh part of a second. The scientist also found that the speed of sense differed for different organs, the sense of hearing being responded to in the one-sixth of a second, while that of sight required only one-fifth of a second to be recognized and signaled. In all three cases the distance traversed was about the same, so the natural inference is that the image travels more slowly than sound or touch.

Submarine Wells.

Submarine wells are found in many places. The supply of drinking water drawn upon by the population of Bahrein, on the shores of the Persian gulf, comes from springs which have their origin in the hills of Oman, 500 miles away and which rise in the salt waters of the gulf.

A diver, winding a large goatskin bag round his left arm and grasping with one hand its mouth, takes in the other hand a heavy stone secured by a strong line to his boat. Plunging with this to the bottom, he instantly opens the bag over the rushing jet of fresh water and closes it again as he springs up in the ascending current. The stone is then hauled up, and after a short breathing space the diver repeats the process.

Thus a constant supply of fresh water is found in a locality as dry and hot as any on earth, where there are no land springs and where no rain falls.—London Standard.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Democratic Belgium.

Belgium is probably the most democratic of all the monarchical states. The king of the Belgians not only does not wear a crown, but has not even got a crown to wear! No coronation ceremony is known to the constitution, the sovereign inaugurating his reign simply by taking an oath to govern according to the laws. Moreover, the births of his children, if he has any, must be registered in exactly the same phraseology and in the same set of books as the births of his humblest subjects.

Mark Twain on Polygamy.

A Mormon once argued polygamy with Mark Twain. The Mormon insisted that polygamy was moral, and he defied Twain to cite any passage of Scripture that forbade the practice. "Well," said the humorist, "how about that passage that tells us no man can serve two masters?"

Sued by His Doctor.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coachella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Prescott's Wagers.

Rollo Ogden, in his biography of William H. Prescott, the historian, cites many passages from the diary showing Prescott's habit of flogging himself to his work by making wagers with his secretaries that he would complete a given task by a certain day, the odds always heavily against himself. "Prescott always took this betting on his own industry with perfect seriousness. Sometimes he would radiantly greet his secretary with: 'You have lost! You owe me a dollar.' And he would exact payment. Occasionally he would, with woebegone countenance, produce and pay over to the protesting secretary the $20 or $30 he himself had lost." One elaborately made memorandum witnesses that a bet of $1 to $50 had been made "between E. B. Otis and William H. Prescott, Esq., the latter betting $50 that he will write 100 pages of his 'History of Peru' in 100 days." The document is signed William H. Prescott and Edmund B. Otis, but the latter subjoins the following: "I promise on my honor as a gentleman not to release Mr. Prescott from any forfeiture that may incur, except in such cases as are provided for in the contract—this contract being made at his desire for his own accommodation only."

DIED.

George Blanchard, aged 72 died at the Soldiers' home in Bath, Thursday. He was a former resident of this city. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Amy Blanchard, and four sons, Messrs. George of Granby, Frank of Oriskany, Clinton of Solvay and Charlton of Syracuse. The remains were brought to this city and the funeral was held from the Baptist church on Sunday, the Rev. Nelson Reynolds officiating. The G. A. R. attended in a body.

Ether Samantha, wife of Mr. James Hodges, aged 70, died at her home five miles east of this city on Thursday evening after an illness of a few hours. The deceased was apparently as well as usual when her husband left for Gilberts Mills to make some necessary purchases. He was absent a short time and when he reached home he found his wife unconscious on the floor Dr. H. P Marsh was summoned but found she was beyond help as she had sustained a severe stroke of paralysis. The deceased is survived by her husband and two sons, Mr. Frederick Hodges of this city and Mr. Edward Hodges of Boston. The funeral services were held on Sunday.

May, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Coleman, passed to rest at the home of her aunt in Oswego on Saturday evening, after a long illness with consumption. The deceased was taken to Oswego several weeks ago in hopes that the change might prove beneficial, and for a brief period she seemed to gain but there was nothing permanent about the improvement. The remains were brought to the parents home, corner of Second and Pratt streets on Monday and the funeral was held from the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Tuesday morning. A father and mother and one brother, Frank, who is a student in Pratt Institute, New York city, are left with a host of friends to mourn the loss of the young lady. The floral offering from friends were magnificent.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of the King's Daughters of the First Baptist church of Fulton the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, God, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our circle of Kings Daughters, Mrs. Louisa Snow, words count for little in describing the sadness of our loss. As a member of our organization she was held in high esteem. Ever ready to cheerfully assume any duty assigned to her. Her wise council was always reliable and her happy, cheerful disposition was an inspiration to all. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we as Kings Daughters of the First Baptist church of Fulton, wish to acknowledge the benefit of having associated with one so true and noble.

Resolved, That while we feel our loss so keenly, we realize the deeper meaning to the grief stricken family and to them extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the family of the deceased and also be printed in each of our city papers.

There has recently been a slaughter of birds at Elgin, Ills., which should arouse the members of the ornithological union to loud protest. After the killing, when the heads were counted, they numbered 1,228, all shot in one day. The deluded farmers did the wicked deed to protect their crops. Among the useful birds exterminated were crows, hawks, and butcher birds. Now look out for a large increase of field mice, and read Longfellow's "Birds of Killingworth."

VOLNEY CAUCUS.

Spirited Contest over Selection of Delegates to County and District Conventions.

A spirited contest was waged last Saturday by the Republicans of the town of Volney over the selection of delegates to the district and county conventions. There were two sets of delegates. Mr. Gerard F. Taft led one faction and Mr. John Distin the other. Mr. Taft was successful—the vote being 136 to 83.

As a preliminary, the following organization was effected:

Chairman—Robert Simpson, Jr.

Secretaries—Willis Streeter and Arthur Distin.

Tellers—Eugene Rowe, Norman Adams, Charles Parker and V. V. Vaut.

The county delegates selected were: Gerard F. Taft, F. A. Looker, A. A. Dean, Fred Jewett, Eugene Rowe, Henry Stevens, Fred Sikes.

Instructed for F. A. Looker for County Committeeman.

District delegates—Robert Simpson, Jr., E. B. Bartlett, Norman Adams, George Parker, Charles Bradford, Fred Hall, Frank Wright.

Town committee—E. B. Bartlett, Norman Adams, Morris Whitney.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted instructing the county delegates to use all honorable means to secure the nomination of Merrick Stowell for county judge, Thomas Moore for county treasurer, Clayton I. Miller for special surrogate, and LeRoy F. Hollis for coroner.

Delegates to the district convention were instructed to use all honorable means to secure the renomination of T. D. Lewis for member of Assembly and to support in convention, a delegation favorable to the renomination of Charles L. Knapp for member of Congress.

CLASS OF 1904

Eloquent and Instructive Baccalaureate Sermon by Rev. John Richards in First M. E. Church.

The Rev. John Richards preached a most eloquent and instructive sermon to the members of the graduating class of 1904, last Sunday evening, in the First M. E. Church. It was a union service and was participated in by the pastors of the several denominational churches of the city. A pleasing feature was a solo rendered in excellent voice by Mrs. L. Fowler Joy.

The pulpit platform was artistically banked with potted plants and cut flowers.

The Rev. Mr. Richards selected his text from Matthew iv. 10, the last clause of the verse: "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve."

Mr. Richards briefly reviewed Christ's temptations as portrayed in the chapter from which he selected his text and applied them to exigencies constantly arising in the various experiences of every-day life, emphasizing the fact that temptations would necessarily come and that men and women who overcame them were greater and nobler in spirit and life for having passed successfully through such a crisis.

The experiences of great men in sacred and profane history were recounted. The young people of the graduating class could evade temptation if they would, but no man could achieve the proper development of character who had not met and grappled with the grim tempter who came in every disguise. "Command that these stones be made bread," was the temptation that came to Christ after he had fasted in the wilderness and was a-hungered.

The great business of life, in the opinion of the world, is to succeed, and it too often applauds those who have attained success no matter by what means. It did not care what stones had been used for the purpose; there would be no close scrutiny. The Israelites turned to the worship of the golden calf after they had been specially favored by Jehovah.

"Man shall not live by bread alone." That was Christ's admonition to the tempter, and it is true to-day.

This world has no place for the shiftless man or woman. Those who are not well equipped for its duties and responsibilities will be pushed to one side. "Diligent in business, serving the Lord Christ," is the scriptural injunction.

The second temptation was what might be described as a short-cut to success: "If thou be the Son of God cast thyself down; for it is written, He shall give His angels charge concerning Thee," said the tempter. The Saviour's reply is familiar to all. In this connection the names of historic personages were given who had tried to win success by improper methods. There is no short-cut to anything worth having in life. The only proper method is by hard work. Thomas Carlyle, among others, was quoted, who heartily subscribed to the doctrine, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might."

The third temptation was to ambition, "All these things will I give thee if thou wilt fall down and worship me." Here was an opportunity to become renowned—to be hailed as a deliverer by his nation—one who could emancipate from the Roman bondage—to be a mightier than Judas Maccabæus.

The great difficulty is that the devil promises more than he can perform. It was always so. Aaron Burr, through his perfidy, obtained ignominy instead of political preferment. Macbeth's unholy ambition brought disgrace and death. Napoleon I. and the later members of his family suffered serious disappointment and failed to reach the goal of their ambition.

Young people of the graduating class, continued the speaker, when the temptations of life come to you, put them aside. Remember the words of the text. The best and noblest is only possible where the service is high. Give your lives to God. Let Christ have supreme dominion over you. Let His will dominate you, and no one can predict the possibilities that the future has in store. When the will is surrendered to Christ what an epoch it makes in a life.

The members were admonished to put the best of their heart and life into everything they did. The mightiest force in the world was that of human personality.

In conclusion, Mr. Richards stated in part:

Members of the graduating class. This is a most important event in your lives—one that you will always remember. Let your ambition be of the highest and holiest order. No other would be worthy of you. Endeavor to be the best, noblest, truest man or woman that Christ would have you be. Honor God, and I promise you in His name that you shall achieve the highest success and receive a just recompense of reward.

Mirror, Crystal and Sword.

The three symbols of the imperial house of Japan are the mirror, the crystal and the sword, and they are carried in front of the emperor on all state occasions. Each has its significance. "Look at the mirror and reflect thyself," or, in other words, "Know thyself," is the message of the mirror. "Be pure and shine" is the crystal's injunction, while the sword is a reminder to "Be sharp."

Republican First Assembly District Convention.

The Republican electors of the several towns and wards composing the First Assembly District of Oswego County, are hereby requested to elect delegates to attend the Republican First Assembly District Convention, which is hereby called to be held at the City Hall, Oswego, N. Y., Wednesday, July 20th, 1904, at 1 P. M., for the purpose of electing delegates to the Republican State, Congressional and Senatorial Conventions to be hereafter called, nominating a candidate for member of Assembly to be supported at the ensuing election and transacting such other business as may come before the convention.

The towns and wards of said district are entitled to the following number of delegates respectively:

Fulton City, 1st ward, 5; 2d ward, 5; 3d ward 5; 4th ward, 5; 5th ward, 5; 6th ward, 5; Granby, 6; Hannibal, 6; Hastings, 5; Oswego City, 1st ward, 6; 3d ward, 8; 5th ward, 5; 7th ward, 5; Oswego Town, 8; Palermo, 5; Schroeppel, 10; Volney 7; West Monroe, 5.

Dated Oswego, N. Y., May 24, 1904.

JOHN T. MOTT,
Chairman Republican 1st District Committee.

HENRY R. CARRIER,
Secretary Republican 1st District Committee.

The late Henry Seton Merriman, author of "Barlasch of the Guard," (McClure-Phillips) though not much of a social lion abroad, was a splendid host at home. At one time he lived in the country at the top of a very steep hill and extended the following racy welcome to his visitors: "Every man who bicycles up my hill is rewarded at the top with a bottle of champagne." It was a difficult hill, and every man who accomplished the feat got his bottle, as did also a great many other men who tried, failed, and acquired nothing but a great thirst.

The Island of Jersey.

The police court of St. Helier, the principal town of the island of Jersey, is remarkable in several respects. First, the proceedings are always opened with prayer; second, it frequently happens that after prayer there is no more business, and every one goes home. There is so little crime committed in the island that the police force (twenty strong) is kept up only for visitors. The beautiful carving in oak which forms the rostrum of this court is the work of a lady named Coxedge, a resident of the island. The dock is remarkable for its spaciousness and comfort. The authorities are very lenient with their prisoners, who are kept here, for court and station are under one roof. In the words of the genial old turnkey, "When we gets 'em brought in drunk during the day, if they behave well we lets 'em out at night." Every "bobby" is obliged to know the Psalms. It's all he has to do.

For a Hundred Years.

For a hundred years or more Witch Hazel has been recognized as a superior remedy, but it remained for E. C. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, to discover how to combine the virtues of Witch Hazel with other antiseptics, in the form of a salve. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the best salve in the world for sores, cuts, burns, bruises and piles. The high standing of this salve has given rise to counterfeits and the public is advised to look for the name "DeWitt" on the package, and accept no other. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Professor George Edward Woodberry, who is to be editor of McClure-Phillips' great undertaking, "McClure's Universal Library," is in Europe and will spend the Summer there. In answer to numerous inquiries McClure-Phillips wish to state that no futher announcements of their plans for the library will be made for some time.

McClure-Phillips recently stated that about fifty sets a day were being sold of Ida M. Tarbell's "Life of Lincoln" in the four volume edition and that over one hundred thousand dollars' worth of the books have been sold since its publication. This is proof enough of the vitality and commercial value of a good book on a good subject.

The Silence of Butterflies.

After all, the chief charm of this race of winged flowers does not lie in their varied and brilliant beauty, nor yet in their wonderful series of transformations, in their long and sordid caterpillar life, their long slumber in the chrysalis or the very brief period which comprises their beauty, their lovemaking, their parentage and their death. Nor does it lie in the fact that we do not yet certainly know whether they have in the caterpillar shape the faculty of sight or not, and do not even know the precise use of their most conspicuous organ in maturity, the antennae. Nor does it consist in this—that they of all created things have furnished man with the symbol of his own immortality. It rather lies in the fact that, with all their varied life and activity, they represent an absolutely silent world. * * * All the vast array of modern knowledge has found no butterfly which murmurs with an audible voice and only a very few species which can even audibly click or rustle with their wings.—T. W. Higginson in Atlantic.

The following information will be found useful in making estimates:

The great Fair at St. Louis will open April 30th, 1904, and close November 30, 1904, and will no doubt attract a larger aggregate number than ever visited any previous World's Fair. The U. S. and governments of the various States are devoting twenty millions of dollars to the erection of handsome buildings, and filling them with exhibits, while foreign countries are represented to the number of forty-seven.

The Democratic National Convention will be held in St. Louis July 6th, which will doubtless draw a larger number of visitors to the Fair on July 4th than would otherwise attend.

The Fourth of July attendanc at Chicago was 283,273; Omaha, 38,618, Buffalo, 71,024.

Cut out carefully along this line and mail to us promptly.

I estimate, the number of paid admissions to the ST. LOUIS FAIR July 4th will be:

Material Used In Making Note Paper.

It is not a pleasant thought that the brilliant white note paper which your hand rests upon may have in it the fibers from the filthy garment of some Egyptian fellah after it has passed through all the stages of decay until it is saved by a ragpicker from the gutter of an Egyptian town, and yet it is a fact that hundreds of tons of Egyptian rags are exported every year into America to supply our paper mills. At Mannheim, on the Rhine, the American importers have their ragpicking houses where rags are collected from all over Europe, the disease infected Levant not excepted, and where women and children, too poor to earn a better living, work day after day, with wet sponges tied over their mouths, sorting these filthy scraps for shipment to New York. Our best papers are made of these rags and our common ones of wood pulp, which is obtained by grinding and macerating huge blocks from some of our soft wooded forest trees.—National Geographic Magazine.

The Stage Mirror.

Whenever a looking glass appears in a scene in a play above a fireplace, in a sideboard or a cabinet one is almost sure to hear somebody ask his or her neighbor why the glass has been smeared with whiting or soap or something that dulls its surface completely. All sorts of reasons are hazarded or suggested. Sometimes it is stated that it is done for luck, at others that they did not intend to leave it dirty. The real explanation is, however, a simple one. The glass is dirtied to prevent the illusion of the scene being destroyed, as it certainly would be if the audience saw in it the reflection of themselves or, worse still, the reflection of the people in the wings carrying on the business of the stage.—Chicago Tribune.

Palestine.

When one thinks of the great events that have taken place in the Holy Land, the multitude of cities, villages and towns, the countless millions who have been born there and whose bones now lie in its rock ribbed hills, the small dimensions of Palestine are almost startling. West of the Jordan, where most of the historic events took place, there are only 3,800 square miles, including all the geographical divisions now called Palestine. Including the land both east and west of the Jordan, the total area is 9,840 square miles. The length of Palestine from north to south is about 150 miles. It varies in breadth from twenty-three to eighty miles.

Wanted None of His Art.

At a dinner in London, Theodore Watts-Dunton said: "It isn't generally known that Turner, the painter, and Dr. Augustus Pritchard once lived together for a year in Cheyne row. The painter and the physician had a fine garden, and they took a good deal of pride in their flowers. But the garden gate did not wear well, and one day Turner, because it wouldn't open, pettishly gave orders that it be nailed up. It was thought that this odd act would enrage Augustus Pritchard, but, on being told of it, all he said was, 'Oh, well, I don't care what Turner does to the gate, so long as he doesn't paint it.'"

Colds.

Every one knows when he contracts a cold on the chest. Not so with cold in the kidneys and bowels. The kidneys, however, are the weak point in many men and women nowadays, and they may be well protected by wearing a roll of white flannel, which should be about a foot wide and go twice around the waist for winter and once for summer. Try it, reader, if you have any tendency to bladder or kidney trouble.—Exchange.

ED. PINAUD'S

EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC

A Positive Dandruff Cure!

is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

CARDINAL SATOLLI.

THE EMINENT PRELATE AND HIS TOUR OF AMERICA.

To Visit the World's Fair at St. Louis and Officiate at the Marriage of Miss Margaret Maloney of Philadelphia—His Interesting Career.

During his tour of America Cardinal Satolli, prefect of the congregation of studies and former apostolic delegate to this country, will visit the Louisiana Purchase exposition, where the Vatican has placed on exhibition a great many of its priceless possessions, will bless the marriage of the daughter of the Philadelphia millionaire, Martin Maloney, and will visit several of the higher ecclesiastics of the Roman church, including the Rev. Dennis R. O'Connell, rector of the Catholic university at Washington, Archbishops Glennon of St. Louis, Quigley of Chicago, Ireland of St. Paul, and Farley of New York. On leaving Rome Cardinal Satolli received the apostolic benediction of Pope Pius X., and it is supposed that he may be charged by his holiness with the duty of reporting to the latter his personal opinion on the situation in the Roman Catholic church in the United States.

The presence of so high a church dignitary as Cardinal Satolli at the marriage of Miss Margaret Maloney of Philadelphia, on June 22, will give exceptional interest to a nuptial occasion whose splendid ceremonial will make it a notable event from many points of view. Indeed, it is expected that it will prove the most imposing ceremony of its kind witnessed in America in years. The father of the bride was created by Pope Leo XIII. a marquis of the holy Roman empire in recognition of his numerous benefactions to the Roman Catholic church. The marriage will take place in the beautiful chapel known as the Church of St. Catherine on Mr. Maloney's country estate at Spring Lake, N. J., built in memory of a favorite daughter. In the family home near the chapel, copied after the White House at Washington, surrounded by Italian gardens and erected at a cost of over a million dollars, the bride's father will entertain the church dignitaries present at the ceremony, who will include, besides Cardinal Satolli, Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia, Archbishop Farley of New York and Bishop McFaul of Trenton, N. J.

The events connected with the visit of this distinguished cleric will occasion general comment, and his stay in this country will doubtless increase his popularity with Americans by whom he is already held in high regard. He is expected to take part in the commencement exercises of Notre Dame university, Indiana, and of the Catholic university at Washington, the rector of which is one of his close personal friends. Cardinal Satolli's residence in this country during the time he was apostolic delegate at Washington was an important episode in the history of his church in this country. His priestly career has been identified especially with the subject of education, and he now holds the responsible post of prefect of the congregation of studies at the Vatican. It was partly because of his wisdom in the solution of educational questions and partly because of his broad minded character and diplomacy in dealing with individuals that Pope Leo XIII. sent him to the United States as apostolic delegate at Washington nearly a dozen years ago. It seemed to the pope that the controversies between liberals and conservatives in the Roman Catholic church in this country required for their settlement the services of a mediator direct from the pope.

The astuteness and ability as well as devotion to the see of Rome which Mgr. Satolli showed during the first two years of his stay in America won him the gratitude of the pope, who in recognition of his services sent him the scarlet berretta of a cardinal. The ceremony of raising Archbishop Satolli to the cardinalate was performed in the cathedral at Baltimore in January, 1896, and was one of the most impressive functions in the annals of Roman Catholicism in America. The ablegate of the pope, Mgr. Sbarretti, deputized Cardinal Gibbons to confer the berretta, and in doing so said that it was most rare as well as unique that "an apostolic delegate should be raised to the dignity and decorated with the insignia of cardinal in that place in which he has fulfilled his mission."

CAPTURED BY BANDITS.

Strange Case of Ion Perdicaris, an American Citizen in Africa.

It is not often in these enlightened days that American citizens are captured by bandits. For this reason the seizure of Mr. Ion Perdicaris, formerly a resident of New Jersey, by a brigand chief in Morocco has occasioned no little sensation, and much interest is taken in the efforts of the United States government to secure his release. Brigandage has flourished in Morocco from time immemorial. The efforts of the ruler of the country, who is known as the sultan, to crush it out are weak and spasmodic, and for this reason foreign governments have to act with firmness and promptitude when persons claiming their protection suffer at the hands of outlaws in the sultan's realm. Last year Walter B. Harris, the correspondent of an English newspaper, was captured in Morocco by bandits, and the English government made such strong representations to the sultan that he put up a large ransom for him and thus secured his release from captivity. The brigand chief, Frassouli, who took Perdicaris and his stepson, Cromwell Varley, captives, will doubtless secure from his shereefian majesty Abdul Aziz a large sum.

Perdicaris is an elderly man who has a fine estate, formerly a palace of the sultan, a few miles from Tangier. He is wealthy and highly educated. His father fled from Greece in 1848, became a professor at Harvard and made much money in commercial enterprises. The son Ion has been author, sculptor, painter and musician. He became fascinated with the picturesque character of Morocco and went there to live some years ago. He and his family were seated at dinner in their beautiful villa when the house was surrounded by armed Arabs, led by Frassouli, who seized Perdicaris and Varley and carried them off into a most inaccessible mountainous district. The brigand chief made as conditions to the release of his captives exactions very humiliating to the sultan. The latter, who is a young man about twenty-five years of age, is inclined to be a progressive ruler and introduce European and American ideas in his country, but his advisers prefer to have things go along in the old way.

HILL RUBBING IT IN.

Many Democrats Object to His Implication That They Were Insane.

The favorite expression of Hill, who is the political manager of the Democratic party in this state, in speaking of those who are in control now as against those who were active in the campaigns since 1896, is "sane Democracy."

His Wall street men who are to finance his campaign also find the word satisfying to their uses.

Belmont, the chief underwriter of the Parker syndicate; Meyer, the sugar trust magnate; Sheehan, the corporation agent; Whitney, the traction magnate, all seem to take a peculiar joy in speaking of the "sane" Democracy.

To be sure, the party is in their hands now. To be sure, it was not in their hands in 1896, 1898, 1900 and 1902.

But many Democrats who say they acted honestly resent the implication that they have been "insane" for eight years. They do not like the slur. They believe the Belmont-Meyer-Woodward group of financiers, if they would really lead the great mass of voters who stood by their tickets in these years, could do it better if they did not shout so loudly their implied belief that all who supported Bryan had been lunatics.

It is said a request will be made to Hill and the other Belmont-Meyer-Sheehan talkers to cease hinting that nine-tenths of the party have been "off their trolleys" for eight years. They say Hill is making a mistake by trying to rub it in.

A Country of Linguists.

Almost every native of Iceland, even the peasants and fishermen, can speak at least one foreign language besides his local Danish dialect. Some years ago it became a fad to study languages, and now a person speaking only one tongue is looked down upon as extremely ignorant. English leads; then come German and French. Papers in these three languages are read extensively in Iceland and may be found in all the village reading rooms.

THE LIBERTY BELL.

VENERABLE RELIC AND ITS VISIT TO ST. LOUIS.

Seventh Journey From Philadelphia of Uncle Sam's Priceless Memento of the Signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Though inanimate and therefore insensible of the affection bestowed upon it, the Liberty bell, which pealed out the news of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, is revered and loved by all the patriotic people of the United States. It is cracked now, and its tones are no longer mellow, but it is venerated and held in honor as a priceless treasure of the young republic of the west. So careful of the Liberty bell are its duly appointed guardians that when a request was made that it be sent to the city of St. Louis to be exhibited in the exposition now being held there in commemoration of the Louisiana purchase the request was at first denied. It was not until 50,000 school children had petitioned for its exhibition where it might be viewed and honored by many millions of people and receive especial honor upon Independence day, 1904, that the required permission for its removal from Philadelphia was obtained.

The old bell has made several trips about the country and has been the recipient of demonstrations as imposing and enthusiastic as if it were a conqueror returning home from a victorious war. In 1885 it went to the Industrial and Cotton exposition at New Orleans. It next went on a journey to Chicago to attend the World's fair in celebration of the discovery of America. It was taken to the Cotton States and International exposition at Atlanta in 1895 and to the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian exposition at Charleston in 1902. A year ago it made a journey to Boston to take part in the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill. Between 1778 and 1885 the old bell contented itself with staying in Philadelphia. During the British occupation of the Quaker City in 1777 it was removed from the statehouse and taken to Bethlehem, where it was placed in Zion's church, but it was returned to its old place in the statehouse June 27, 1778.

The Liberty bell was cast by Thomas Lester, Whitechapel, London, and arrived in America in August, 1752. It was recast in 1753 because of a crack it had sustained. It was ordered by the assembly of Pennsylvania, and Aug. 27, 1753, called the members together for the first time in the statehouse. It was on July 8, 1776, that Andrew McNair rang out upon it the proclamation of the Declaration of Independence. The bell is twelve feet in circumference around the lip and seven feet six inches around the crown. Every American school child knows its inscription, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof.—Lev. xxv, 14." Every child also remembers the poem, author unknown, which has these stirring lines:

> Hushed the people's swelling murmur,
> List the boy's strong, joyous cry!
> "Ring!" he shouts. "RING! Grandpa, > RING! OH, RING FOR LIBERTY!"

Besides proclaiming the Declaration of Independence, the dear old bell has rung out joyful tones in celebration of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, in welcome to the victorious General Washington at the close of the Revolution and in honor of the treaty of peace. Muffled and hushed it has tolled mournfully at the death of Washington, Jefferson, John Adams, Lafayette and John Marshall, and, singularly enough, it was while it was being tolled at the death of John Marshall, last of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, that the crack was received which attracts the attention of those who behold the relic. The bell had a great journey to Boston for the Bunker Hill celebration a year ago. It started from the statehouse on a truck adorned with flowers and bunting as a triumphal chariot and was placed on a car handsomely built and decorated with six large flags. On the route the bell received a great ovation. The stations were thronged, factory whistles screeched their welcomes, farmers turned from the plow to wave a rough but sincere godspeed, and everywhere a most patriotic greeting was extended.

When the bell went to New Orleans in 1885 it made a stop at Biloxi, where Beauvoir, the home of Jefferson Davis, was situated, and the tributes it received and the speeches made proved that the north and south are one again in their love for their country and their pride in its freedom. The grand old bell will be cherished and venerated as long as the love of liberty and the honor of those who founded the republic remain characteristics of the American people.

The Hindoo Idea of Wit.

An English lady reformer of uncertain age who visited India to deliver a lecture told the audience that she would be happy to answer any question, upon which a fat baboo came to the front with "How old are you?" "Oh, no," she replied; "I don't mean questions of that sort; only ones connected with the subject of the lecture." "Are you forty?" continued the baboo, nowise abashed. "No, I won't answer such a question," was the reply. "Are you fifty?" continued her tormentor. "Oh, no; I told you I won't answer such questions." "Are you sixty?" "Oh, no, no, no; I'm not sixty," the lady responded precipitately.

A shikarri out partridge shooting was seen in fits of laughter, slapping his thighs in the ecstasy of his glee. On inquiring the cause of his hilarity, he hurriedly said: "Hush, sahib! That cooly," indicating one of the beaters, "has just been bitten by a green snake, but he thinks it is only a thorn! Don't tell him or he'll be frightened and stop beating."—From General Gerard's "Leaves From the Diary of a Soldier and Sportsman."

The Jade Jokai Loved.

Of one phase of his life Jokai, the Hungarian novelist, wrote in disgust: "Well, confess it I must. I have a sweetheart, for whose sake I have been faithless not only to my wife, but to my muse also—a sweetheart who has appropriated my best ideas and whose slave I was and still am. Often have I wasted half my fortune upon her and rushed blindly into misfortune to please her. For her sake I have patiently endured insult, ridicule and reprobation; for her sake I have staked life and liberty. Now, if she had been a pretty young damsel there might have been some excuse for me, but she was a nasty, old, painted figurehead of a beldame, a flirting, faithless, fickle, foul mouthed, scandalmongering old liar, whom the whole world courts, who makes fools of all her wooers and changes her lovers as often as she changes her dress. Her name is Politics, and may the plague take her!"

Customs of the Kaffirs.

The author of a book on the Kaffirs of South Africa says: "The women are, on the whole, in favor of polygamy. Sometimes a woman who has a dozen other 'sisters,' as they call fellow wives, will go to a woman who is the solitary wife of a man and ask her if she does not feel lonely. No one can visit a large kraal—such, for example, as the king's kraal in Swaziland—where there are hundreds of huts, and not feel that there is a certain charm in the social life of the place. It is a sort of college life, and frequently my thoughts have reverted to my old varsity days, and it has struck me that if one could imagine a set of men living in the old court of Trinity surrounded by wives and children, with a social circle in which every one was related to every one else, one might get some idea of the sheer joy of life amid 1,000 relations."

Swallows and Microbes.

Swallows and other migratory birds invariably shun those places which are in the slightest degree infected by noxious microbes. Thus they are never to be found in districts where cholera, yellow fever, the plague and other epidemic diseases prevail. The districts which they select as their temporary homes are in all respects the most healthy that can be found. It is evident from this that persons who are afraid of catching cholera or other infectious diseases ought not to live in places which are shunned by these birds.

A Serious Decision.

A Useless Verdict.

"Yes," said the old traveler, "I was on a jury in California once. It was a murder trial. I didn't want the fellow hanged and so stuck out against the other eleven for nine days, locked up in the jury room, when they gave in, and we brought in a verdict of 'Not guilty,' and then I was ready to stab myself with spite."

"What about?"

"'Cause the mob had hanged the prisoner on the very first day we were locked up."

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

WHILE in St. Louis, Secretary Hitchcock kept one eye on the politicians and one on the fair. He admits that Mr. Folk has done a good work in exposing the corruption of the crowd which has been running the State of Missouri for years, but he wants a full Republican ticket and a square fight. With these conditions he is sanguine of the situation.

BOTH Senators Mitchell and Fulton of Oregon, are delighted over the recent Republican majority in that State. A Mr. Moon was elected justice of Supreme Court by a majority of 24,000, Senators Fulton telegraphs the President: "Count on 30,000 for Roosevelt in November." On the Pacific slope the personal popularity of the President is potent and pleasing.

OWING to the reduction in fares from the old world to the new, to the trifling sum of $10, immigration conditions are becoming complicated and promise to cause much suffering and detention of emigrants. Recently a ship arrived in Boston with over 140 Greek boys, most of them about nine years of age. They were not permitted to land as it was discovered that they were to be farmed out for menial employment. The government proposes to enforce a rigid inspection of all immigrants.

SENATOR LODGE announces at Boston that at heart he is not opposed to reciprocity with Canada, or any other outside nation. He is only anxious about the kind of reciprocity. He doesn't want it to be all on one side; like the handle of a jug. He doubts if it is wise to give Canada a market among 80,000,000 of people while the United States will get in return a market among 6,000,000 of blue noses. If Canada will agree to take our manufactured articles, then New England may take raw products from Canada.

THERE is at least one State which is prosperous. Advices from Florida represent everything as booming there. Jacksonville has been rebuilt since the fire of 1901, and is a much larger and handsomer city. The great orange freeze of a few years ago is now looked upon as a blessing, since it turned the attention of growers to diversified agriculture. Phenomenal profits are now made from early vegetables—tomatoes, potatoes, strawberries, celery, and pine apples. The orange crop, too, this year, will reach 3,000,000 boxes. So much for a Republican administration of the Department of Agriculture.

ACCORDING to official reports there is a fearful destruction of crops in all parts of the country from various blights and insect pests as well as worms. It seems almost as if the scientists made matters worse with their theories, insecticides, fungicides, germicides and importation of parasites. We are now told that the plant enemies and insects are countless. The cotton root rot in Texas will cause a loss of $2,000,000. Potato blight in New York has caused a loss of $10,000,000. There is corn smut in Maryland, alfalfa rust in Ohio, a rice blast in South Carolina, and in other parts of the land tomatoes, cucumbers, asparagus, fruits of all kinds, walnuts, etc., are suffering from one disease or another. Evidently there is much work for the Secretary of Agriculture.

Friends of the contestants in the Morton & Shattuck free trip to St Louis contest, should make every effort from now until July 29, to secure the prize for them. A coupon goes with every 25 cent purchase, whether paid on an old account or for new goods.

LIBRARY BUILDING

Trustees Ask for Popular Subscription of $5,000 with Which to Purchase Site for New Building.

To the Citizens of Fulton, N. Y.

The trustees of the Fulton Public Library, after very careful consideration for several weeks of the advantages and disadvantages of the various sites proposed for the new Carnegie Library, have unanimously reached the conclusion that the Thayer lot, corner of Third and Cayuga streets, is the most desirable of the available sites offered. They have secured an option on this lot and are circulating subscription papers asking for $5,000—$3,500 for the Thayer property, $1,000 for the furnishing of the new building and the $500 balance necessary for the maintenance of the Library until the annual appropriation of $1,500 from the city becomes available, no subscriptions to be binding until the whole amount is subscribed by responsible persons.

It seems to the trustees that this subscription should be a popular one and that the great majority of our people, young as well as old, rich as well as poor, should have a part in this laudable work. To this end subscriptions of $1 and upwards will be thankfully received. Already the matter has been brought to the attention of the school children and they have enthusiastically taken hold of the project and it is expected that large numbers of them will subscribe, and many of them earn $1 for the new Library. While some who are able will give much larger sums, there are hundreds of our citizens who are vitally interested in this enterprise who will, we believe, give $1 and upwards to this Library project and in this way no heavy burden will rest upon any one person and hundreds, possibly thousands, will share in the benefits which result from having a part in this magnificent work. The complete list of all givers will be published and also placed in the cornerstone of the new library building.

To assist in receiving and securing subscriptions, the following persons will aid the Library trustees:

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Paddock
Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Allen
Miss Alice May Gardner
Langdon C. Foster
F. W. Richardson
J. A. Morrill
C. W. Streeter
Hugh Murphy

Mrs. George P. Wells
Mrs. S. R. Royce
Mrs. J. H. Howe
Miss Helen C. Parmenter
George B. Farman
Mrs. W. B. Hollingsworth
Mrs. Amos Langdon
F. H. French

While the solicitors will expect to call upon as many as possible, it is hoped that very many will not wait to be asked, but will volunteer to bring subscriptions to the trustees, the committee or the librarian, Mrs. Emens.

By the above method it seems possible to raise in a short time $5,000 by subscription and thus make sure of the gift of $15,000 offered by Andrew Carnegie to our city for a Public Library building.

When this new edifice, tasty and convenient for its purpose, shall crown the site chosen, there will not be one of our citizens who desires the intellectual and moral welfare of our community who will not point with satisfaction and pride to the Fulton Free Public Library building.

MARRIED.

Mr. James W. Wallace and Miss Leona M. Darrow were united in marriage on Monday evening at the First M. E. Church parsonage by the Rev. John Richards.

On Thursday, June 16, at the home of the Rev. A. M. Roe, occurred the marriage of Mr. Frank VanValkenburgh of this city and Miss Nina Bracey of New Haven, N. Y.

On Monday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Mace, in Seward street, occurred the marriage of Miss Goldie G. Mace and Mr. Rexford E. Carvey, both of this city. The Rev. Nelson Reynolds was the officiating clergyman. The bride was gowned in white silk and carried roses. She was attended by Miss Minnie Allen as bridesmaid. The best man was Mr. Frank Root. Mr. and Mrs. Carvey will make their future home in this city.

At St. Bartholemew's church in Brooklyn at noon on Monday occurred the marriage of Miss Ruth C. Overton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Overton, and Mr. Victor Redmond Grimwood; the rector of the church officiating. The wedding was very quiet, only the immediate families of the young couple being present. Mrs. Grimwood was born in Fulton and is well known to many of our residents, as she had often visited her aunts, Mrs. Chauncey and Mrs. Barlow.

This evening at 7 o'clock, Miss M. Olive Tibbitts of Rochester and Mr Joseph C. Pierce of Buffalo, will be married at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. C. C. Tibbitts, 365 South Fourth street. The Rev. Nelson Reynolds will officiate, and the young couple will be attended by Mr. Charles Fulton and Miss Daisy Webb, both of Rochester. The ushers will be Messrs. C. J. Tibbits and Howard Bidwell of this city. The wedding guests will be dined at 4 o'clock, and a reception will be held after the ceremony. The guest from out-of-town include Mrs. M. K. Pierce and Miss Elizabeth Pierce of Fairport, N Y., Messrs Anson Squires and Mr. Hugh Harding of Rochester, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Gill, Mrs. C. V. Houghton, Mrs. E. J. Barton, Mrs. C. A. Barton and Mrs. Eva A Wright of Oswego. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce will be at home at 140 South Goodman street, Rochester.

June Weddings.

For wedding gifts go to G. B. Farley's, 21 First street, where you can find choice goods, in silver, cut glass, china, etc.

The free trip to St. Louis which Morton & Shattuck offer patrons of their shoe store, is exciting great interest, and a keen strife to secure the prize is now in progress. The offer will be withdrawn on July 29. Help your favorite contestant to win the prize.

DIED.

The remains of Frank Preston, a former resident of this city, were brought here from Auburn on Saturday for interment in Mt. Adnah. The body was taken to the home of Mr. Ellis Chubb from where the funeral was held on Sunday. The deceased was a member of the Tent of Maccabees and the members attended the funeral in a body.

Revolutionary Soldiers' Graves Located

Kayendotsyona Chapter, D. A. R., which was organized in February, has done a varied work during the few short months of its existence. All Chapters D. A. R., are composed of women who can trace their ancestry back to some patriot who aided in the work of gaining independence for the American people. The D. A. R. as a society is only 13 years old but it is steadily growing. Not only are societies in existence throughout the United States, but in England, Alaska, Honolulu, and the Phillipines chapters have been formed by enthusiastic eligibles.

Previous to Memorial Day, the local Chapter decided that the graves of all Revolutionary soldiers in this vicinity which could be located, should be decorated, and they succeeded in locating fifteen graves;-those of Elihu Bradley, Oliver Breed, Abram Barnes, Joseph Hughs Perego, Barney Miller, James Hart, Benjamin Robinson, William Colby, Major Lawrence Van Valkenburg, Barnette Mooney, William Burns, Cornelius Miller, Aaron Fish, Abram Huganon, Jonothan Hall, and upon the memorial arch erected in Mt. Adnah these names were placed by the Daughters.

The graves of 21 veterans of the war of 1812 have also been located, and it is expected that by another Memorial Day the list will be augmented by those whose ancestors graves have not been located and reported to the committee.

CORESPONDENCE.

EDITOR TIMES: I wish, through your paper, to thank the citizens of your city for the kind hospitality shown to me while in your midst.

I had heard much of your beautiful little city, and as I was about to purchase a home where I might spend the remainder of my days, I visited your city with this in view. As soon as I reached the Cayuga street station, I was deeply impressed with the busy scene.

The horses were ploughing a thoroughfare up the hill; men were hurrying hither and thither, some tearing up old walks, some cutting down trees, others cutting away lawns, still others busy with the new grade. I thought Oh! for a thousand tongues with which to sing the glories of this infant city. Surely it shall be a thing of beauty and a joy forever, (?) with its streets of lofty pinnacles and deep ravines; with its quaint, yet modern homes, some of them with the attic in the cellar, others with the cellar upstairs. The like of them surely never hath been and never shall be.

In most cities, the sign which greets you on every side is "Keep off the grass," but in Fulton it is so much more modern and so plain.

Thou shalt not slide on the Cayuga street pinnacle.

Thou shalt not fish in the creek in front of G. P. Wells' beautiful residence nor sit on the remainder of his lawn.

Thou shalt not hunt either in the Robinson nor Bennett groves.

Thou shalt not slide down the toboggan slide into the newly finished millinery store lest thou slide too far and sit on a pretty bonnet.

Thou shalt not sit on the fence post on the other side of the street, which must needs be there because the New Grade is as unchangeable as the law of the Medes and Persians.

Neither shalt thou think thy troubles o'er when thou shalt reach another street, for what awaiteth thee there, none knoweth save the Board.

If thou art weary, go sit in yonder beautiful park and there refresh thyself by thinking of that beautiful city where the streets are paved with gold and the grade changeth not.

All this was so new, I was fairly thrilled with it.

Having talked with some of your enterprising citizens, I have decided to buy a fine cement sidewalk. I find it is of so much more importance than a beautiful house. Whether I shall buy on the elevated railway plan or the underground plan, I have not quite decided, but think perhaps it will be an underground one, as I have a fine Indian canoe which I can use when rubber boots would not be just the thing to wear to church. The banks on either side will be such a protection from the storms which sometimes visit you.

In looking over the books for a map of the village, which I know was made long before you became such a glorious city, I found a receipt for a good sidewalk, which perhaps has been overlooked, viz.:

One tablespoonful of new grade if the old cannot be changed to advantage, without injuring thy neighbor's property which he has earned by the sweat of his brow.

One tablespoonful of gradual descent if necessary, rather than a jump-off spot, because thy neighbor insists on his rights and hath money to defend himself.

One-half tablespoonful of shade trees whose spreading branches shall sing to thee a lullaby of happy days gone by, when others sat with them 'neath their shade.

One after-dinner coffee spoon of regard for the value of property which has cost more than many sidewalks.

Mix these thoroughly with a pinch of common sense, a large proportion of the Golden Rule, some good cement, and thou shalt have a walk fit for a king; yea, verily, fit for the Board to walk upon, and over which their children's children shall walk and shall rise up and call thee blessed, because the home with its surrounding lawn and beautiful shade trees was not sacrificed for a few inches of grade.

JOSH BILLINGS.

New City Ordinance.

The Common Council at an adjourned meeting held on Thursday evening adopted the following ordinance which will not be at all pleasing to the average small boy, especially as July 4, is so close at hand:

Be it ordained, That it shall be unlawful for any person to explode or cause to be exploded any cannon or giant fire cracker upon any public streets or in public places of the city of Fulton, or to explode or cause to be exploded any powder, torpedoes, firecrackers, explosives or firearms upon any of the public streets or places within the East Side fire limits, or upon West Broadway between West Fifth street and the river bridge and West First street, Pine and Leitch streets.

A violation of this ordinance shall be punishable by a fine of not less than $5 or more than $25 or imprisonment or both. This ordinance shall take effect immediately.

50,000 SHARES

Of the Capital Stock of the

International Broom Comp'y,

Now offered at

50 CENTS A SHARE

I would respectfully call your attention to the stock of the International Broom Company of New York, as a safe investment. This company owns and operates the patent for making the Kaptop Brooms, of which the FULTON KAPTOP BROOM CO. is a licensed company.

The International Broom Company makes the metal cap and sells them to the subsidiary companies at a price which gives them a good profit. Besides this the subsidiary companies pay a royalty to the International Broom Company of from 20 to 25 cents on every dozen brooms manufactured and sold by them, the price of royalty depending upon the amount sold.

The following companies are now operated:

THE FULTON KAPTOP BROOM COMPANY, which has only been established about three months, is now making fifty dozen brooms a day, and will shortly increase their output to one hundred dozen per day.

THE ADVANCE BROOM COMPANY of Philadelphia, Pa., is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE NEW ENGLAND BROOM COMPANY of New Haven, Ct., is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE SUPERIOR BROOM COMPANY of Kansas City, is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE MANHATTAN BROOM COMPANY of Brooklyn, N. Y., is now making over one hundred dozen brooms per day.

The Company is about to establish sub-companies in the cities of Chicago, Ill., Pittsburg, Pa., Detroit, Mich., Baltimore, Md., St. Paul, Minn., and Washington, D. C., and negotiations have been practically closed for a sub-company in the City of Mexico. There are several applications for sub-companies still pending, but not yet acted upon.

The International Broom Company was incorporated under and pursuant to the laws of the District of Columbia in January, 1903. The present officers of the corporation are as follows: President, W. A. Shepard, a Syracuse whisk broom manufacturer; Vice-President, Jas. K. Polk, lawyer, Washington, D. C.; Secretary, Reuben S. Baldwin, Treasurer Empire Securities Corporation, New York; Treasurer, Henry F. Heuchel, retired contractor and builder, Brooklyn, N. Y. Executive Committee, W. A. Shepard, M. L. Shillak, R. S. Baldwin and H. F. Heuchel, all of New York.

I am offering at this time, 50,000 Shares of the capital stock of the company, par value $1.00, fully paid and non-assessable, at 50 CENTS per share. This stock is issued for the sole purpose of enlarging the capacity of the plant in New York, to meet the increased demand that will be made on them in the manufacture of kaptops. The Company believes that much of the stock ought to be disposed of where the sub-companies are situated; where the people are familiar with the undertaking. After this 50,000 shares are sold there will be no more stock offered. This is a splendid opportunity for a good and safe investment.

Some well-known men are interested in the local company in Fulton, which is in itself a guarantee of the standing of the International Broom Company,

It is confidently expected that within the next three months the Company will pay a dividend on the par value of their stock, and I feel sure that this proposition will warrant your investigation. I will be pleased to call upon you in regard to the same, and supply any further information desired.

Mrs. Mary A. Howe is gaining in health.

Corporation papers have been filed incorporating Wallace-Gilmore Amusement Company, consisting of Joe A. Wallace, Charles P. Gilmore and James A. Sayer of Oswego as stockholders and directors, to operate, manage and present amusement for Summer and outdoor purposes, to be exhibited at Summer resorts, under mammoth pavilions. This corporation already has three companies on the road and may add several more.

The Phoenix Yeast and Spirits Company has gone into involuntary bankruptcy. The petitioning creditors are The Thomas Gordon Malting Company, of Oswego, $911.96; the Ontario Telephone Company, Oswego, $10; Clarence W. Streeter, Fulton, insurance, $14.29. The charge is that the Yeast and Spirits Company permitted six creditors to recover judgments within the past four months and while the company was insolvent.

Attorney W. S. Hillick and Messrs. C. B. Gilbert and David Van Buren have become patriotic to the extent that they have taken upon themselves the work of collecting sufficient funds where with to purchase a canon for use in this city on the night preceeding Independence Day. The money may be left with Attorney Fanning at his law office, No. 19½ First street. It is now up to the Board of Aldermen to adopt an ordinance limiting the time for the firing of the canon, as beyond doubt sufficient funds will be secured for its purchase.

It speaks well for the interest felt in our schools that there is always such a rush to secure seats for the annual school exercises. Seats were reserved last Friday evening for class day exercises to-night and commencement exercises to-morrow night, and although the sale did not commence till 7 p. m., anxious friends of the graduates began coming before noon. By 4 o'clock the City Hall was jammed, and an hour after the sale opened every desirable seat was sold for both evenings. Those having the matter in charge have been blamed for not reserving seats earlier in the day; the hour was chosen, and properly to enable those who have to work till 6 p. m. to have an equal chance with the idlers and others who finish their day's work earlier.

Mr. C. W. Tippy has resigned his position as manager of the Fulton Fuel & Light Co., to accept a most desirable one as superintendent of manufactures of the Rochester Gas & Electric Light Co., which is one of the largest companies of its kind in this State. Mr. Tippy will leave for his new field of labor this week. During his sojourn in this city Mr Tippy has made innumerable friends, all of whom regret deeply to learn of his decision, but who extend to him earnest good wishes for success in his new home. It will be rather difficult for the Fulton company to find a man competent to fill his place, as he is an expert in his line of work and constantly pushing forward in his knowledge of gas and electricity.

Reception and Banquet.

The Alumni Association of the High school have issued a large number of invitations to a reception and banquet to be given in the City Hall on Thursday evening at the conclusion of the Commencement exercises. The committee on reception arrangements is composed of Dr. H. P. Marsh, Mrs. W. H. Patterson, Mrs. J. H. Howe, Mr. William Carr and Mr. L. W. Emerick.

An excellent menu has been prepared and will be served by the ladies of Zion Episcopal church.

The viands will be discussed in an appreciative manner and then will come the feast of reason and flow of soul. Attorney W. S. Hillick will preside as toastmaster and Dr. Homer P. Marsh will on behalf of the Alumni Association, extend a cordial welcome to the class of '04.

The response to the welcome will be made by Mr. Robert Hull, president of the class. Class socialism will be the subject to which Miss Maymie Bread will respond.

Informal toasts will be called for by the toastmaster. An informal social hour will follow the toasts.

DEMOCRATS IN REVOLT

Anti-Hill Men Propose to Let the World Know Their Sentiments.

State Convention to Send a Protest to the St. Louis Convention.

Democrats who are opposed to David B. Hill and object to his selecting the candidate for president, putting his campaign into the hands of Meyer, Sheehan, Belmont and the others of the Wall street crowd now backing Judge Parker, have come out into the open and are going it alone.

In a call for a state convention at Cooper Union it is announced that a delegation will be sent to the national convention at St. Louis to protest against the acts of the convention at Albany. This was the convention in which Hill rode rough shod over Tammany. It was here that Hill instructed the delegation to vote for Parker. It was here that he selected Cord Meyer, who is supposed to represent the sugar trust, to manage the campaign. It is against these things that these anti-Hill Democrats are now lifting up their voices.

A Strong Platform Demanded.

They do not mince words. In the call they say:

The Albany convention was a disappointment. The platform is meaningless. The section of the state which furnishes Democratic majorities is misrepresented, despite the protests of its delegates. The convention adopted an ambiguous platform and pledged the Democracy of the state to a candidate whose political views can be surmised only from the character of his sponsors. The majority of the convention registered the will of a leader who has been repudiated by the people.

We warn the national Democracy that a candidate who has no principles or does not declare them and stands on a platform of platitudes cannot carry the state of New York and does not deserve success. The good of the nation and common honesty require that the national Democratic platform shall express the purpose of the party clearly and so define its policy with reference to present issues that it cannot be misunderstood.

We hereby call a convention of the Democrats of the state in Cooper union on June 18, 1904, when we will be permitted to protest against the action of the Albany convention and to appoint a delegation to present the views of the meeting to the national convention in St. Louis, July 6, 1904. Our purpose is to protest against the action of the Albany convention.

A Strong Movement.

"I receive at least twenty-five letters a day from people who approve what we are doing," said Mr. Palliser, who is one of the signers of the call. "They offer their assistance and say that the only hope of Democratic success in this state is after Hill is eliminated from control of the state organization. This is the ground we take. It is what we have been saying ever since 1896. I was asked today why we were not able to make a better showing than we did two years ago, when we opposed Coler. We fought for a principle then, but the issue was of much less magnitude and the people were not as easily aroused then as they are this year. It is not true that this movement is confined to those who took part in the Liberal Democracy movement two years ago. It goes far deeper than that. Of the 116 names signed to the call not more than ten were identified with the Liberal Democracy movement two years ago. All the others are the names of active Democrats, members of the regular organization in their respective localities. Some of the men are members of Tammany Hall and others, particularly up the state, are Democrats of prominence in the councils of the organization. There are several Democratic editors in the list of signers. In fact, we have under way the most complete union of anti-Hill men since the antisnap convention early in the nineties."

BRYAN'S STRENGTH.

Mayor Harrison Thinks He Will Yet Have Something to Say.

Bryan has carried Nebraska and will be on hand in the St. Louis convention as a delegate at large. With him will be sixteen delegates from that state who are not instructed or pledged to anybody, but they will vote as Mr. Bryan wishes them to vote. Hearst has 122 instructed for him, and, while no one believes that Hearst can hand them around as he sees fit, they would go to Bryan or some other radical in preference to Parker, Cleveland, Olney, Gorman or any other of the so called "safe and sane" candidates.

There are scattering Hearst and Bryan men in other states, such as Ohio, Massachusetts, Oregon, Florida, Colorado and the territories.

Some think this radical strength is the only thing Judge Parker has to fear. Evidently Mayor Harrison of Chicago believes that Bryan by his personality, his oratory and his record will control this entire lot. He says in an interview:

I think William J. Bryan will control at least one-third of the national convention. A thing that must not be lost sight of is the fact that Mr. Bryan will be there. His personality will be felt on the floor of the convention. The people have seen what his personality can do in a convention. They are liable to see it again.

THE VOICE OF OREGON.

Its Election Shows the Greatest Republican Victory on Record.

The Oregon campaign this year was made on national issues. It resulted in the biggest Republican victory the state ever had. The "trend of public sentiment against Republicanism" which the Democrats were expecting to have for use in the early part of the campaign will not be available.

Two representatives in congress were chosen, and in addition a supreme court judge and a state food commissioner were voted for. It was a straight out party fight. Two years ago a Republican candidate for governor was defeated after a contest in which one disgruntled Republican faction threw its strength to the Democratic nominee. The vote for governor stood 39,862 for Chamberlain, Democrat, to 39,606 for Furnish, Republican, but the rest of the Republican state ticket was elected by an average plurality of 16,000. This June no local and personal antagonisms obscured the real issue between the two parties. The fight was avowedly made on national issues. The Republican organization presented a united front, and, after a sharp canvass, carried the state by about 20,000 plurality. In the First district Binger Hermann is credited with a plurality of 7,500, and John H. Williamson, in the Second district, with a plurality of about 10,000. The total plurality for candidates for congress—17,500—is nearly twice as great as the total plurality in 1900, but for the head of the state ticket this year the plurality claimed is 20,000.

The result has brought a feeling of satisfaction to the Republican leaders. It indicates that the people in Oregon take no stock in the professions of the Democrats that they know how to conduct the government better than the Republicans. It shows that they admire the president and believe in the policies which McKinley and Roosevelt have carried out.

The election figures are rather more convincing than the Democratic bluster which has been reasonably thick of late.

FIGHT OVER THE "LID."

Murphy Tells Just Why He and McCarren Disagreed.

Charlie Murphy, the boss of Tammany, has explained that his trouble with McCarren was not over Parker, but over "the lid" in Brooklyn.

McCarren, he says, through Deputy Police Commissioner Haggerty, tried to take the lid off. Murphy, being the presiding genius of the "Fourteenth street good government club," could not stand for that, and so had Haggerty fired.

Police Commissioner McAdoo says Murphy's story is true so far as it relates to his end of the business. And so, while this brings the Wigwam boss into bold relief as a reformer, it makes McCarren's friends grieve.

Does McCarren want the lid off? Would a man of his well known aversion to betting anywhere except at the track or any other old place favor opening pool rooms at a fixed price to be in hand paid to one of his followers?

His friends will not believe it. As a certificate of good character has not Hill selected McCarren to help manage his campaign for Parker? Hill never was charged with having any interest in any gambling concern. He makes no secret deals for police corruption. Would one of his lieutenants take off a lid? His lieutenants simply, in open and above board fashion, steal senates. If the people think it is wrong they can vote on it as they did in 1894. It seems hard to believe Hill would select a man who would remove a lid to manage Parker's campaign.

REPUBLICANISM MEANS PROSPERITY.

I can show that the happiness of the wage earner is dependent upon high priced farm products, and I can also demonstrate that the prosperity of the farmer is dependent upon the ready and constant employment of the wage earner. In other words, it is easily demonstrated that the prosperity of artisan and farmer is interdependent.

And what is the market of the American wage earner? It is the American consumer—artisan, farmer, freight handler, business man and capitalist. The Republican party insists that the American producer, to the limit of his ability, shall supply the needs of the American consumer. The Democratic party seems to think it of no consequence who produces that which we consume provided only it is cheap. The Republican party insists that it is measurably unimportant what price we pay so long as we pay the price to ourselves.

Higher wages mean more and better food for the wage earner, more and better clothes for his family, a better roof for the home and therefore a better market for the farmer. Higher prices for cattle and corn mean more and better furniture for the home, better carpets, better carriages and more and better implements of agriculture, and therefore a better market for the wage earner.

Whenever the Republican party is in power and its policies are in operation when public buildings are being erected, when rivers and harbors are being dredged, when railroads are being graded and widened and double tracked, when canals are being dug and when the home market is protected in the interest of the American producer, artisan and farmer, then are all men fed and all families clothed. But may the good Lord deliver us from another period when living expenses are cheap!—Secretary of Treasury Shaw.

DOESN'T KNOW WHAT TO SAY

The Democratic Congressional Committee Is in an Embarrassing Fix.

The Democratic congressional committee started out the other day to make a campaign for the election of a house of representatives in sympathy with a Democratic candidate for president, yet to be selected. Representative Cowherd of Missouri, the chairman, opened up the headquarters in Washington and was ready for business. After getting everything in shape it dawned on him that he was away ahead of time.

The trouble is he doesn't know what line of talk to put out. The committee cannot guess who will be the standard bearer or on what platform he will stand. It has no clear idea of what the issue is going to be, and it doesn't dare start in with the chance that its first six weeks of talk may be knocked higher than Gilderoy's kite by the St. Louis convention. It is really embarrassing.

Mr. Cowherd says the committee is receiving at its headquarters in Washington a great number of applications for speeches on this and that subject of current political interest, but especially on the tariff. He thinks this is going to be another campaign of education like that of 1896, but is not sure whether free silver will be a plank in the platform, whether advanced tariff doctrines will be expounded by the party's declaration of principles or what attitude will be taken in regard to the trusts and other matters.

Under the circumstances it is impossible for the committee to determine what kind of campaign literature should be sent out. If the school of tariff reform headed by John Sharp Williams, the minority leader in the house, is to prevail at St. Louis, the committee would immediately instruct the voters by the distribution of Canadian reciprocity speeches and similar matter. In the absence of any safe information as to what tack the St. Louis convention will take in regard to candidates and principles Mr. Cowherd's committee will go slow in the distribution of campaign literature.

It has been suggested that the first six weeks be put in in a general whoop for the "Democracy of Jefferson and Jackson," without any regard to anything that has happened since their days. But unfortunately no Democrat put a speech on that topic into the Congressional Record, and so they couldn't be sent through the mails without payment of postage. Besides, it seems like a waste of good money to pay for extensive machinery to do that sort of thing in hot weather. That of course is the usual Democratic stock in trade in February, when it costs nothing and is not expected to influence voters. It is really rather sad for Mr. Cowherd and his associates.

Nothing but Praise.

"Mr. Richley had nothing but praise for your work for him before the citizens' committee," said the friend.

"Yes," replied the lobbyist gloomily, "nothing but praise."—Philadelphia Press.

Hair Raising.

Just when the mutilation of the dead by tearing the skin from the head began will never be known, for the origin is lost in the midst of ages, the record extending back beyond even the mythical period of man's existence. In the book of Maccabees it is recorded that at the termination of one of the battles of which that bloody history is so full the victorious soldiers tore the skin from the heads of their vanquished foes. This would be evidence that the custom of scalp taking was one of the indulgences even of those people of whom we have record in the Bible.

Be it as it may, it is an established fact that the custom is a universal one, so far as savage man is concerned. Whether ethnologists can build a theory of a common origin of man from this or not, or whether this can be taken as an evidence that the Indians are the descendants of the lost Israelite tribes because of their habit of securing mementos of hair from their fallen enemies, is something time alone will develop. Be that as it may, it is a fact that all Indian tribes, to a certain extent, scalp their enemies who have fallen in battle.—London Globe.

Curious Fact In Natural History.

An incident which will be interesting to naturalists is told in a recent number of the Scotsman. One of the foresters in the employ of the Marquis of Lothian was returning from his work when he noticed a wild duck flying from a larch tree. On close examination he observed a common brown owl looking down from what appeared to be a nest in the cleft of the tree about thirty feet from the ground and apparently near the place from which the duck had flown. Curiosity prompted him to climb to the place, which he did with great difficulty. The owl on his approach flew off, and to his surprise he found in the nest two eggs—an owl's and a wild duck's. It is not uncommon for both owls and ducks to build their nests high up on trees, but it is unheard of for one nest to be appropriated by both birds.

A Clever Minister.

"To the town of Norridgewock, in Maine," said a clergyman, "a strange minister once came to preach. He preached duly, and after the sermon was over he mingled with the congregation, expecting that some one would invite him to dinner. One by one, however, the congregation departed, offering the hungry minister no hospitality, and he began to feel anxious. Where was he to eat? As the last deacon was leaving the church the minister rushed up to him and shook him warmly by the hand.

"'I want you to come home and dine with me,' the minister said.

"'Why, where do you live?' said the deacon.

"'About thirty miles from here.'

"The deacon reddened. 'Oh, you come and dine with me instead.' he said."

A Strong Heart

assured by perfect digestion. Indigestion swells the stomach and suffs it up against the heart. This causes shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and general weakness. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures indigestion, relieves the stomach, takes the strain off the heart and restores it to a full performance of its function naturally. Kodol increases the strength and by enabling the stomach and digestive organs to digest, assimilate and appropriate to the blood and tissues all of the food nutriment; tones the stomach and digestive organs Sold by H. Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

CHOICE GROCERIES— USEFUL PREMIUMS.

A Corning Concern Has Arranged to Supply Every Household With Both—Novel and Economic Plan Explained.

Every household in the land uses more or less groceries every week. The housewife's constant aim is to get the best edibles for the least money. This effort is closely connected with the practical side of life. It is a ruinous practice in domestic matters, to pay 75 cents for an article that might be bought for 50 cents. The difference between buying right and careless purchasing, may be turned into a competency for a "rainy day," or old age. A little saved on each item of groceries bought will amount to a considerable sum each year. Now, when is this saving to be accomplished?

The C. R. Maltby Co. of Corning, N. Y., is one of the oldest and most successful business houses in the country. It has been dealing in groceries for more than forty years. Possessing larger capital, goods are bought in enormous quantities from producers, at the lowest possible price. Selling direct to retail grocers no extra charges are incurred for brokers, jobbers, or middlemen. Only by doing business in this way can any concern actually sell choicest goods for a price attractively less than any and all competitors. The Maltby Co. has arranged to sell its entire list of "Signature Brands" of choice family groceries, in sealed packages of various sizes. Included in this list are: Teas, coffees, spices, fancy fruits, cocoa and chocolate, rice, sliced beef, tapioca, rolled oats, mincemeat, popcorn, saleratus, condensed milk, crackers, flour, flavoring extracts, soap, matches—in fact, all kinds of groceries.

All articles are prepared and packed by the company or under its supervision. This means always highest quality and uniform, full quantity, also perfect and pure groceries. You can buy these goods in the smallest grocery and be equally assured of cleanliness and quality. The price is fixed at less than goods of the same quality and weight are sold for by any other firm. In addition the Maltby Co. facsimile signature is on every package. These are valuable. Here's where this concern shares additional profits with its patrons. These signatures are redeemed by a list of their hundreds of useful and valuable articles for wear and household purposes. Among these are: Corning cut-glass, all kinds of silverware, cutlery, watches and chains, toilet articles, razors, carving-sets, furniture, desks, rocking-chairs, electric novelties, pipes, purses, suspenders, umbrellas, sadirons, all kinds of crockery and chinaware, dinner and tea sets, sausage-mills, talking-machines, food-choppers, etc. The value of each signature is based on the price paid for the package on which it is written. Its worth is counted and applied on any article desired, in the entire list. For the purpose of giving each signature a specific value, what is called the point system has been adopted. Each signature is worth a certain number of points. The entire premium list is valued at "points" instead of dollars. So it is that so many signatures, representing so many points will purchase a premium valued at an equal number of points.

These "Signature Brands" of choice groceries are for sale at all grocers. A free illustrated catalogue of premiums can be had for the asking. Remember the C. R. Maltby Co. is a wealthy concern of the highest business standing. It can and will keep its word to the letter. As long as you have to buy groceries why not serve yourself and purse the best? Buy "Signature Brands" and you will use no other.

Billiard Balls.

Billiard balls are made of Zanzibar ivory, the other ivory, known as the Bombay ivory, being too liable to crack or chip. The Zanzibar ivory is soft and therefore lasts better. The regulation ball is two and three-eighths inches in diameter, and a set of four costs about $30. They are rough turned—that is, turned a little larger than the balls are to be when finished—and are stored away in open crates for from sixteen to twenty-two months to season the ivory after being turned and to allow any shrinkage to take place before the balls are finished. If the balls were not seasoned in this way they would be liable to shrink after they were finished, and, as they only shrink in the direction of the grain, they would become oval instead of remaining round, as they should be, and it would be necessary to have them turned again.

Editor Versus Lawyer.

A lawyer in a courtroom may call a man a liar, scoundrel, villain or thief, and no one makes a complaint when court has adjourned. If a newspaper prints such reflections on a man's character there is a libel suit or a dead editor. And this is owing to the fact that people believe what an editor says; what a lawyer says cuts no figure.—Routt County (Colo.) Courier.

The Head and Feet.

The connection between the head and feet is well known. A hot head is ordinarily relieved by a hot footbath. So cold feet tend to congest the brain and other internal organs. Sometimes cold feet are caused by tight lacing or tight fitting shoes. But it is as much a suicidal act to hasten death by compressing the lungs or the feet as by compressing the neck with a rope.

No Competition.

Poets' Opinions of Each Other.

A good story about Browning and Tennyson is to be found in the diary of the Right Hon. Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff. Browning referred readily to the charge of obscurity in his poetry. "He once told me," says Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff, "after repeating a story Wordsworth had told him illustrating his own strange want of humor and wit, that Wordsworth, after all, was unjust to himself, for that on hearing of Browning's engagement to Miss Barrett he had said, 'Well, I suppose they understand each other, although nobody understands them!'"

Tennyson's opinion of Browning (and, incidentally, of himself) is shown in his remark that "Browning is devoted to music and knows a great deal about it, but there is no music in his verse. I know nothing about music and don't care for it in the least, but my verse is full of music."

In reading Milton's Lycidas aloud, says Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff, Tennyson would stop at the line,

> And, oh, ye dolphins, waft the hapless youth, with the comment that this was "the only bad line Milton ever wrote."—Harper's Weekly.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail For sale by H. C. Giesler.

BAD FOR PARKER.

Democratic Criticism of the Managers Hill Selected For Him.

There is "plutocracy in the Democracy" of New York, an alien and dangerous admixture. Hill, Sheehan, McCarren and Meyer are all connected with corporate influences. Cord Meyer, because of his connection with the sugar trust, is especially offensive and unfit to be the campaign manager of the party in a pivotal state.—New York World (Dem.).

The World was the earliest and stoutest advocate of the nomination of Grover Cleveland. When Cleveland forbade the use of his name it backed Parker. But here it is stabbing in the back Hill, Parker's friend and sponsor Sheehan, Parker's confidential agent McCarren, chairman of the executive committee, and Meyer, chairman of the state committee. Yet the World professes to be warmly in favor of Parker's nomination.—Buffalo Commercial.

A Gypsy Prophecy.

An English magazine relates a curious instance of gypsy prophecy. The third Earl of Malmesbury, as Lord Fitzharris, was riding to a yeomanry review near Christchurch, when his orderly, some distance in front, ordered a gypsy woman to open a gate. The gypsy woman quietly waited till Lord Fitzharris and his staff rode up, when she addressed them, saying, "Oh, you think you are a lot of fine fellows now, but I can tell you that one day your bones will whiten in that field." Lord Fitzharris laughed and asked her whether she thought they were going to have a battle, adding it was not very likely in that case they would choose such a spot. More than forty years later the field was turned into a cemetery.

The Search For Success.

This is my advice to young men seeking for success: Fix your eye on England, fix it on Alaska, fix it on the moon, collect beetles, desire tram tickets, demand lost boot laces, die for dead cats—do any of these things and you may have your will. KEYNOTE OF CAMPAIGN

Chairman Root's Defense of Republican Policies.

WILDERNESS OF VACANT SEATS.

Lack of Public Interest In First Day's Proceedings — Mr. Root's Feeling References to McKinley and Hanna. Senator Fairbanks Sure of Nomination For Second Place.

Chicago, June 22.—Without a disturbing element, the first day's program for the Republican national convention was carried out like clock work. Not a jarring sound was heard, not a false step taken. It was an assembly of non-combatative delegates who carried into effect, without the thunderous demonstration usually attendant upon political conventions, a purpose that had been clearly defined.

An organization was perfected preparatory to the adoption of a platform and the making of nominations in the succeeding days of the convention. From the quiet, yet unmistakable enthusiasm provoked by Senator Fairbanks' arrival at the Coliseum, his nomination for vice president is but little less assured than that of Theodore Roosevelt for president.

Keynote of the Campaign

The keynote to the campaign of 1904 was sounded by Elihu Root in his speech as temporary chairman. His address was a review of the accomplishments of the present administration and a defense of Republican policies in general. When that had been delivered and the various committees dispatched to their labors, the business of the first day's session was complete.

Another picture was presented by the opening day, so different from the customary convention scene as to attract marked attention. It was the failure of the delegates and spectators to warm to the spirit of the occasion. Mention of President Roosevelt was responded to with hearty though not prolonged applause. The lack of contest eliminated the necessity for enthusiastic display of feeling and the mild cheering and rather listless hand-clapping which was the greeting given impartially to national figures of the party was all, probably, that could be expected under the circumstances.

The lack of public interest in the convention was evidenced by the large number of vacant spectators' seats. Seats at former Republican conventions usually brought a premium. Today speculators offered them, but there were few takers, and as the hour approached for the convention to assemble they sold them for a song. The wilderness of vacant seats was in the gallery and on the mezzanine floor, where not more than two-thirds of the chairs were occupied. The first floor was well filled. The picture was one of good order, where sergeants-at-arms and policemen were not needed.

From a decorative point of view the Coliseum was a success. The architecture of the imposing structure is peculiarly adapted to the interior dress given it. Flags and bunting were used profusely but in good taste. Foliage and palms softened the general color scheme and formed a setting for 60 large engravings of President Roosevelt used in festooning the national colors above the galleries and ranging entirely around the hall.

The crowning feature of the decorations is a painting of the late Senator Hanna which hangs directly over the platform and occupies the most conspicuous position in the Coliseum. Something of the magnitude of this painting may be realized when it is said that its surface is as great in square feet as the combined surface of the 60 large pictures of the president.

President Roosevelt, however, was as prominently shown to the delegates in a heroic painting spectacularly unveiled on the chairman's platform at the conclusion of Mr. Root's speech, a climax that brought an outburst of enthusiasm.

Tribute to President McKinley.

The incidents which are destined to live long after the spasmodic demonstrations have been forgotten are Mr. Root's tribute to President McKinley. The temporary chairman spoke of the late president's adminstration of progress, his gentleness of character and those qualities so beloved by the nation and in that connection said feelingly: "And with McKinley we remember Hanna."

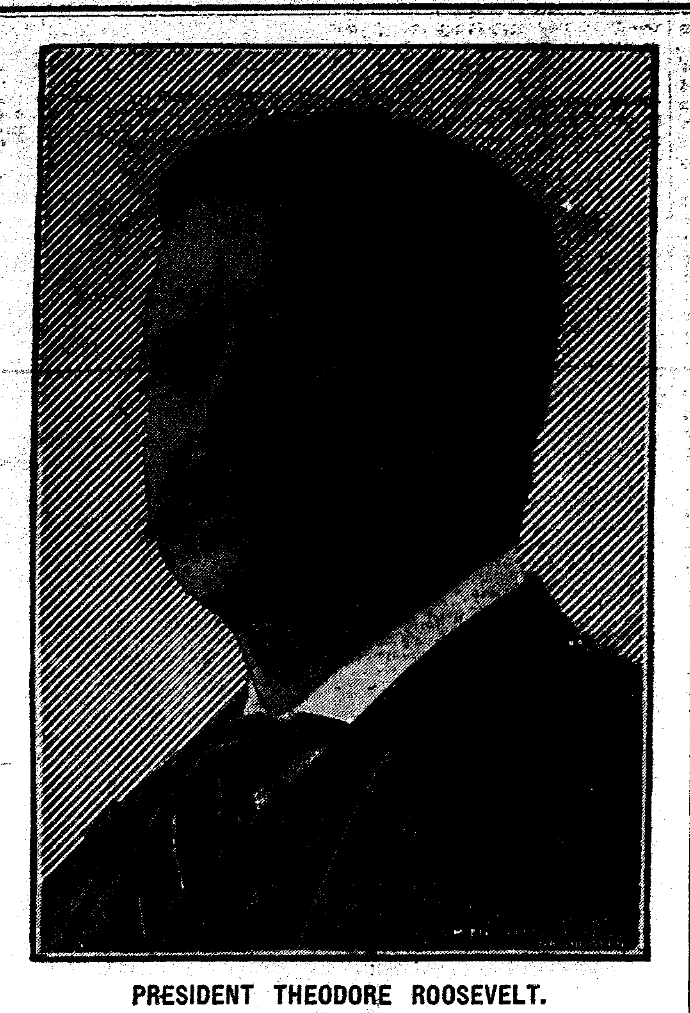
A hush, almost oppressive, spread over the 7,000 or more persons present. The speaker paused expectantly. As he started to resume, the full force of the tie stretched between the two greatest of recent political heroes went home to the delegates. The applause started and in a sympathetic wave was carried to every part of the great hall. The demonstration was unlike any that had preceded it or came after. An indefinable dignity was attached to the demonstration which seemed foreign to a political gathering.

The Fairbanks boom for vice president flourished unrestricted during the convention proceedings. Its impetus was gained when the Indiana delegation entered the Coliseum and led by Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge proceeded down the aisle to their seats near the stage. The ovation given Senator Fairbanks was greater than was received by any of his distinguished colleagues.

The proceedings afforded no opportunity for the advancement of other candidacies. No mention was made of the names of favorite sons, whose ambitions are not taken seriously beyond the boundaries of their own states. The applause for Senator Fairbanks appeared to be general.

Shortly be fore the adjournment for the day, Senator Depew was recognized to deliver to the convention an invitation from President Francis and the directors of the Louisiana Purchase exposition to delegates and members of the press to visit the fair at St. Louis before returning to their homes. Senator Depew started to read the invitation from his seat, but at the demand of delegates and spectators he mounted the platform. There he passed the invitation over to a clerk to read.

When it was concluded Chairman Root suggested that the senator might want to make a few remarks. The suggestion was accepted and in recommending that the invitation be accepted Senator Depew said that the Democrats are claiming the credit of gaining an empire peaceably on the ground that the party, through Jefferson, had bought the land. The Republicans, he said, had tilled it and were going to share the harvest. The speech was received with favor and the invitation accepted.



PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

[From new photograph.]

TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

Mr. Root Makes a Review of Administration's Work.

Elihu Root of New York as temporary chairman spoke in part as follows:

The responsibility of the government rests upon the Republican party. The complicated machinery through which the 80,000,000 people of the United States govern themselves answers to no single will. The composite government devised by the framers of the constitution to meet the conditions of national life more than a century ago, requires the willing co-operation of many minds, the combination of many independent factors, in every forward step for the general welfare.

The practical governing instinct of our people has adapted the machinery devised in the 18th to the conditions of the 20th century by the organization of national political parties. In them men join for the promotion of a few cardinal principles upon which they agree. For the sake of those principles they lay aside their differences upon less important questions. To represent those principles and to carry on the government in accordance with them, they present to the people candidates whose competency and loyalty they approve.

The people by their choice of candidates indicate the principles and methods which they wish followed in the conduct of their government. They do not merely choose between men; they choose between parties—between the principles they profess, the methods they follow, the trustworthiness of their professions, the inferences to be drawn from the records of their past, the general weight of character of the body of men who will be brought into participation in government by their ascendency.

When the course of the next administration is but half done the Republican party will have completed the first half century of its national life. Of the 11 administrations since the first election of Abraham Lincoln, nine—covering a period of 36 years—have been under Republican presidents. For the greater part of that time, the majority in each house of congress has been Republican.

History affords no parallel in any age or country for the growth in national greatness and power and honor, the wide diffusion of the comforts of life, the uplifting of the great mass of the people above the hard conditions of poverty, the common opportunity for education and individual advancement, the universal possession of civil and religious liberty, the protection of property and security for the rewards of industry and enterprise, the cultivation of national morality, respect for religion, sympathy with humanity and love of liberty and justice, which have marked the life of the American people during this long period of Republican control.

With the platform and the candidates of this convention, we are about to ask a renewed expression of popular confidence in the Republican party.

We shall ask it because the principles to which we declare our adherence are right, and the best interests of our country require that they should be followed in its government.

The first administration ... fought and won the war with Spain, put down the insurrection in the Philippines, annexed Hawaii, rescued the legations in Pekin, brought Porto Rico into our commercial system, enacted a protective tariff, and established our national currency on the firm foundations of the gold standard by the financial legislation of the 56th congress.

The present administration has reduced taxation, reduced the public debt, reduced the annual interest charge, made effective progress in the regulation of trusts, fostered business, promoted agriculture, built up the navy, reorganized the army, resurrected the militia system, inaugurated a new policy for the preservation and reclamation of public lands, given civil government to the Philippines, established the republic of Cuba, bound it to us by ties of gratitude, of commercial interest and of common defense, swung open the closed gateway of the isthmus, strengthened the Monroe Doctrine, ended the Alaskan boundary dispute, protected the integrity of China, opened wider its doors of trade, advanced the principle of arbitration and promoted peace among the nations.

The American people have now to say, whether policies shall be reversed, or committed to unfriendly guardians; whether performance, which now proves itself for the benefit and honor of our country, shall be transferred to unknown and perchance to feeble hands.

No dividing line can be drawn athwart the course of this sucessful administration. The fatal 14th of September, 1901, marked no change of policy, no lower level of achievement. The bullet of the assassin robbed us of the friend we loved; it took away from the people the president of their choice; it deprived civilization of a potent force making always for righteousness and for humanity. But the fabric of free institutions remained unshaken. The government of the people went on. The great party that William McKinley led, wrought still in the spirit of his example. His true and loyal successor has been equal to the burden cast upon him. Widely different in temperament and methods, he has approved himself of the same elemental virtues—the same fundamental beliefs. With faithful and revering memory, he has executed the purposes and continued unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace, prosperity and honor of our beloved country. And he has met all new occasions with strength and resolution and far-sighted wisdom.

As we gather in this convention, our hearts go back to the friend—the never to be forgotten friend, whom when last we met we acclaimed with one accord as our universal choice to bear a second time the highest honor in the nation's gift; and back still, memory goes through many a year of leadership and loyalty.

And with McKinley we remember Hanna with affection and sorrow—his great lieutenant. They are together again.

But we turn as they would have us turn, to the duties of the hour, the hopes of the future; we turn as they would have us turn, to prepare ourselves for struggle under the same standard borne in other hands by right of true inheritance. Honor, truth, courage, purity of life, domestic virtue, love of country, lowalty to high ideals—all these combined with active intelligence, with learning, with experience in affairs, with the conclusive proof of competency afforded by wise and conservative administration, by great things already done and great results already achieved—all these we bring to the people with another candidate.

Shall not these have honor in our land? Truth, sincerity, courage! these underlie the fabric of our institutions. Upon hypocrisy and sham, upon cunning and false pretense, upon weakness and cowardice, upon the arts of the demagogue and the devices of the mere politician—no government can endure in which the people do not believe and trust.

No people can maintain free government who do not in their hearts value the qualities which have made the present president of the United States conspicuous among the men of his time as a type of noble manhood. Come what may here—come what may in November, God grant that those qualities of brave true manhood shall have honor throughout America, shall be held for an example in every home, and that the youth of generations to come may grow up to feel that it is better than wealth, or office, or power, to have the honesty, the purity, and the courage of Theodore Roosevelt.

NATIONAL CONVENTION

New York to Cast 78 Votes For Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

A UNIT ON ALL PROPOSITIONS.

Iowa Delegation Rejected Governor Cummings' New Presentation of the "Iowa Idea"—Expressions of Regret at Absence of Faces Familiar at Former National Conventions.

Chicago, June 21.—With the time occupied in caucuses of state delegations, which with a few exceptions were mere ratification meetings held to approve state convention programs, the day preceding the opening of the Republican national convention has been the quietest ever known as the forerunner of similar gatherings.

Senators and representatives in congress were as thick on the streets and the hotel lobbies as they are in the national capital when a particularly uneventful or dry debate is in progress in congress.

Figures prominent in the political strife of former national conventions were everywhere. They mingled with the delegates and others not on the inside, talking of anything which promised even momentary interest. When the leaders reached Chicago a few days ago they found nothing for them to do. Program for convention was mapped out weeks ago and there was a full realization that it was unalterable.

Iowa Idea In New Form.

The principal diversions were offered by the caucuses of Iowa, Illinois and Washington delegations. Governor Cummings presented to the Hawkeye delegation the "Iowa idea" in an entirely new dress. It was in the form of a plank setting forth the "idea" as a diversion for reciprocity of tariff schedules. It was rejected by the delegation and this sounded its death knell so far as the present convention is concerned. In the Illinois caucus the interest was in chairmanship of delegation. Senator Cullom was opposed by the Governor Yates factor but won handily. It is conceded that his defeat would have prevented his re-election to the senate.

In the Washington caucus Senator Ankeny was elected national committeeman against the combined opposition of former Committeeman James M. Ashton and J. S. McMillen, both of whom were candidates for the position.

What has been popularly termed the "Indiana puzzle" was one of the features of the day. The members of the delegation from the Hoosier state met to determine their course in regard to the boom of Senator Fairbanks for vice presidency. Senator Fairbanks attended the meeting and addressed the delegates. He talked for 15 minutes, the meeting adjourned and the delegation was no wiser concerning his wishes, beyond a repetition of his statement that he did not desire his state to present his name for the vice presidency.

Absence of Familiar Faces.

Expressions of genuine regret at the absence of faces familiar at similar gatherings four, eight and twelve years ago are heard on every side. Men who have played leading roles in the art of making tickets and platforms are absent.

One whose absence is felt more than that of any others is the late Senator Hanna, though his debut on the political stage is of more recent date. Numerous pictures of the late senator attest his popularity.

Contests worthy of the name are utterly lacking. The fight betewen the LaFollette and "stalwart" factions in Wisconsin, the contest between Addicks and the anti-Addicks faction in Delaware, the "Lily white" and the "Black and Tan" factions of Southern states, were disposed of with so much dispatch that they failed to furnish the gossip necessary to an interesting convention. About all that was left to feed the craving of delegates for excitement and furnish a topic of conversation was the question of how long Senator Fairbanks' inscrutible silence would continue.

New York's 78 Votes.

The New York state delegates in caucus instructed Senator Thomas C. Platt by motion of Governor Odell to cast its 78 votes for the Theodore Roosevelt of New York for President and Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana for Vice-President. The meeting of the delegation was harmonious.

Governor Odell personally named Senator Platt as chairman of the delegation and moved that he be allowed to cast New York's vots as a unit on all propositions.

Then the governor moved that New York instruct for Fairbanks for Vice-President, there was a cheer and former State Senator J. Sloat Fassett said, "I want to say that I think Governor Odell's proposition a very sensible one. We all know Senator Fairbanks and we know that he is a capable and patriotic man. He will lend strength to the ticket."

The resolution unanimously was adopted.

Prior to this Delegate Coman had asked that Roosevelt be selected as the choice for president and the chairman putting the motion said, "All in favor say aye. There are no negatives."

Senator Depew was chosen chairman. Senator Platt to cast the vote of the delegation, and William L. Ward to be National committeeman.

Warm Weather Wear

Your own personal comfort now demands clothing of a lighter weight.

You don't have to swelter for ten days waiting on a "merchant tailor" when you can slip into a stylish Schloss-made Suit that costs one half the price he would charge you.

But there's always something more than price behind the clothing made by Schloss Bros & Co. There's value—there's quality—there's style—there's reliability and durablity. And too, there's incomparable fit. What more does the most particular patron demand of the "merchant tailor?".

The Three Button double breasted coat shown in the picture is designed with an eye to comfort and coolness. It looks Summery but not negligee. Indeed with this suit one is dressed in the top-notch of fashion. No vest is worn, and the trousers are made with peg tops, cuff bottoms and belt straps.

'04 CLASS EXERCISES

After Rendering Programme, "Our Regiment" is Presented -- Dr. Raymond's Scholarly Address -- Diplomas Awarded--Alumni Banquet.

The first annual class day of Fulton High School was observed by the class of '04 in Stephens Opera House on Wednesday evening and proved a most enjoyable event. The class prophesy by Miss Maude Newell; the class poem by Miss Elizabeth McCallister, and the reading of the class will by Miss Helen Brown, with the unexpected codicil by Mr. Glenn Morrell, were all greeted with interest and approval by the audience. The class song was rendered by the class with the accompaniment of the Webb Orchestra.

The second part of the program consisted of the play, "Our Regiment," and to Miss Woolley, the elocution instructor in the High School, must be accorded a large meed of praise and congratulations for the manner in which it was presented. It had required careful training to bring the participants to the degree of proficiency which they had attained in the delineation of the different characters, and that they fully understood and portrayed with spirit the different personages, was evidenced by the applause bestowed. It would be difficult to decide to whom the palm should be awarded for cleverness, so well did each one perform his or her part.

On Thursday evening the regular commencement exercises were held, and again the seating capacity of the opera house was taxed. The speaker of the evening, Dr. A. V. V. Raymond of Union College, Superintendent of Schools Fairgrieve, the High School faculty, the Board of Education and the graduating class, occupied the stage during the evening.

Miss Mable Dominick, as salutatorian, and Miss Florence Hunter, as valedictorian, bid the class, instructors [illegible] "Hail and farewell," on behalf of the class of '04, very pleasingly.

Dr. Raymond charmed all who listened to him by his earnestness of manner and purpose, and all who were present agree that it was a fortunate thought which prompted the Board to invite him to speak before the class and their friends. Dr. Raymond payed a well-deserved tribute to Prof. Fairgrieve, whom he had known for many years, before beginning his address, and every word was listened to with the deepest attention.

At the conclusion of Dr. Raymond's address, Prof. Fairgrieve, in a brief but excellent talk, congratulated the class upon their record, and expressed hope for their future. He then presented them with their diplomas. The successful contestants in the prize-speaking contest held in May, were also presented with their gold and silver medals by Prof. Fairgrieve.

Following the commencement exercises, the Alumni Association gave its annual banquet in the City Hall, which was attended by over one hundred members and a few invited guests. The banqueters were received by Dr. H. P. Marsh and Messrs. L. W. Emerick, H. Putnam Allen, W. G. Bennett and David Van Buren, and after a brief social session in the Citizen's Club rooms, all proceeded to the assemblage room in the hall, where a delicious menu was served by the ladies of Zion Episcopal Church. After the edibles had been thoroughly discussed, toasts were next enjoyed.

Attorney W. S. Hillick presided as toastmaster, and in a few introductory remarks he placed each guest in a happy frame of mind and then called upon Dr. H. P. Marsh to welcome the class of '04 into the association. Dr. Marsh urged the association to do something other than exist, and suggested the maintaining of a scholarship in some college.

A meeting will be held on Thursday evening of this week to discuss ways and means for attaining this end.

Mr. Robert Hull responded to Dr. Marsh in a few well chosen words.

Miss Mayme Bread, in responding to the toast, "class socialism," gave a spicy and droll talk, which was very entertaining.

Messrs. L. W. Emerick, Charles R. Bennett and Richard Carr were called upon for informal toasts and each treated his subject in a pleasant manner. Mr. Carr, in his advocacy of extensive improvements and enlargement of the present High School building, touched a responsive cord and he was greeted with applause.

The floor was cleared about 1.30 o'clock and the young people enjoyed dancing to music furnished by the Webb Orchestra until an early hour.

MARRIED.

Mr. John Coppenger of North Andover, Mass., and Miss Anna O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien of West Broadway, were united in marriage in North Andover on Monday of last week. Mr. and Mrs. Coppenger are now visiting Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien and other relatives in this city.

[illegible] Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Giroux on First street, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Grace, to Mr. Burton Bond of Wanakena, N. Y., the Rev. A. H. Grant performing the ceremony. Miss Lona Moore, the bride's cousin, and Mr. William Morgan, were the attendants. A wedding supper was served, after which the young couple left on the evening train for their future home in Wanakena.

On Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother in Marion, occurred the marriage of Mr. Oliver Perry Davis, of this city and Miss Anna May Gillette. The bride is one of the most popular young ladies in her home town and she is a very talented musician. The groom has been a resident of Fulton for two years and during that time has made many staunch friends by his splendid character and uprightness in business. The Times will join with these friends in extending hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Davis.

On Tuesday at high noon, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lydia Monroe, occurred the marriage of Miss Emma Monroe to Prof. Frank Churchill of Menlo Park, California; the Rev. John Richards officiating. The house was beautifully decorated with pond lilies, ferns and daisies. The bride was gowned in gray Ninon veile over pink silk, with pearl trimmings, and she carried bride's roses. A dinner was served after the ceremony which was witnessed by the immediate friends of the contracting parties, and Prof. and Mrs. Churchill left on the afternoon train for Clinton, where an honorary degree will be conferred upon the groom by Hamilton college, this evening. The bride's going away gown was of brown pongee and she wore a hat to match. The wedding trip will include St. Louis, Chicago, Boston and other places of interest and they will make their future home in California.

This Wednesday evening at 7,30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, 316 Erie street, will occurr the marriage of Miss Jessie Olive Campbell to Mr. Thomas Button, both highly respected residents of this city. Only the immediate relatives of the family being in attendance. The home has been prettily decorated for the occasion with palms, roses, daisies, ferns and other cut flowers, and the ceremony will be performed under a floral wedding bell, the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle officiating. The beautiful ring service will be used. The guests will be greeted at the door by Master Hugh Reynolds [illegible] Lohengrin will be played by the brides brother-in-law, Mr. Hugh Reynolds of Geneva. The bride will wear a handsome gown of white silk mull, trimmed with lace and ribbons, and she will carry a boquet of brides roses. She will be attended by Miss Susie Campbell as maid of honor, who will wear a gown of pink organdie and carry carnations. The best man will be Mr. Elmer Harper. The little Misses Mary Reynolds and Edith Campbell will be flower girls. At the conclusion of the ceremony, congratulations will be extended by the forty invited guests present, and supper will be served. The young couple will go away on the evening train, and after July 10, they will be "at home" to their friends at No. 316 Erie street, this city.

DIED.

Lena M., the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Richards, died at their home on the west side on Wednesday. The funeral was held on Saturday.

Louis Deesz, who owned the Hewitt homestead which was destroyed by fire two weeks ago, was found dead in his berth in the steamship Iroquois while en route from Jacksonville Fla., to New York, and his purpose was to visit Fulton to straighten up affairs connected with the destruction of his Summer home. It is thought death was caused by apoplexy.

Charity E., wife of Mr. G. Mace, died at her home in Palermo on Sunday after an illness of a week. The deceased was 76 years of age and was one of the most highly respected residents of that place. The funeral was held from the late home on Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, the Rev. G. R. Foster officiating. Interment was made in Volney Centre cemetery. The deceased is survived by her husband who is seriously ill; two daughters and one son.

The Leopard and the Kid.

To illustrate how perfectly he had the animal under control Professor Bach of Berlin once put a live kid in the cage with a leopard. Then the professor fixed his glittering eye on the savage beast and willed that he should remain quiescent. There was something wrong with the thought transference, for the leopard immediately changed his spots, and so did the kid. A bleat, a growl and a crunch, and the illustration was ruined.

JOHN T. MOTT,
Chairman Republican 1st District Committee.

HENRY R. CARRIER,
Secretary Republican 1st District Committee.

The late Henry Seton Merriman, author of "Barlasch of the Guard," (McClure-Phillips) though not much of a social lion abroad, was a splendid host at home. At one time he lived in the country at the top of a very steep hill and extended the following racy welcome to his visitors: "Every man who bicycles up my hill is rewarded at the top with a bottle of champagne." It was a difficult hill, and every man who accomplished the feat got his bottle, as did also a great many other men who tried, failed, and acquired nothing but a great thirst.

An Irishman's Compliment

Ellis Meredith, the author of "Heart of my Heart" (McClure-Phillips), the story of a child's coming into this world and the record of the mother's spiritual life before it is born, has occupied a prominent position all her life in politics in Colorado. Ten years ago, at the first election in which women took part in her state, she was nominated for the Legislature. She consented to run, though much against her will, and spoke many times during the campaign. At the close of one of the meetings, an old Irishman, with a beau tiful brogue, stepped up to her. He shook her hand, then turning to a friend near by, he said: "There ain't the same brains to the same bulk anywhere in the State of Colorado." As Miss Meredith is distinctly a small woman, she has never been able to decide whether "Paddy" intended this remark for a compliment or not.

Certified Checks.

When one wishes to use a personal check to pay a note due at some other bank, it may be necessary to get the check certified. This is done by an officer of the bank, who stamps across the face of the check the words "Certified" or "Good when properly indorsed" under his name. Banks will usually certify any check drawn upon them if the depositor has the amount in the bank, as the check is immediately charged against the account when certified. A check certified and not used should be deposited, lest one's account be overdrawn.—New Idea Magazine.

For a Hundred Years.

For a hundred years or more Witch Hazel has been recognized as a superior remedy, but it remained for E. C. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, to discover how to combine the virtues of Witch Hazel with other antiseptics, in the form of a salve. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the best salve in the world for sores, cuts, burns, bruises and piles. The high standing of this salve has given rise to counterfeits and the public is advised to look for the name "DeWitt" on the package, and accept no other. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Professor George Edward Woodberry, who is to be editor of McClure-Phillips' great undertaking, "McClure's Universal Library," is in Europe and will spend the Summer there. In answer to numerous inquiries McClure-Phillips wish to state that no futher announcements of their plans for the library will be made for some time.

American Boy Day At The St. Louis Exposition.

The St. Louis Exposition management wisely determined to recognize American boys by setting apart a special day for them at the Exposition. The day selected is July 5th, and the program and arrangements for the day are in the hands of William C. Sprague, editor of The American Boy, of Detroit. The program includes athletic contests in the stadium between the boys of the public chools, in which public school teams are entered from Chicago, New York and other cities, and opportunities will be given for individual entries. From 2:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon public exercises will be held in the Festival Hall, the central attraction of the grounds. It is expected that three thousand boys will take part in a unique program, consisting of orations, recitations, music, etc., by talented boys from various parts of the country, the reading of messages from President Roosevelt and the governors of all the states and territories, music by one of the Exposition bands, and by Professor H. B. Roney, who will preside at the great organ—the largest in the world. Three thousand boys will be heard in chorus singing patriotic songs. There will be an address of welcome by President Francis, a response by an 11-year-old boy, and a salute to the flag. Prizes will be awarded to boys competing in the contest for the best poem on the subject, "The American Boy," and the best song that can be sung to the tune America. At 4:30 o'clock the boys will form in procession and march to the Pennsylvania building, where they will pay their respects to the old Liberty Bell, and a 10-year-old boy will crown the bell with a floral offering on behalf of the boys of America. At 5:30 o'clock a reception will be given the boys in the Michigan building. It is fair to say that every boy in the country who can be at the fair on July 5th will try to be there, as the occasion will be one long to be remembered.

Sunday Trips Via New York Central.

Special low rates Fulton to Ontario Beach, Three River Point and Syracuse. Convenient train service. Ontario Beach tickets include exceptional privileges not obtainable via other routes.

McClure-Phillips recently stated that about fifty sets a day were being sold of Ida M. This is proof enough of the vitality and commercial value of a good book on a good subject.

Low Excursion Rates To St. Louis Via O. & W.

The Balloon Plant.

One of the curious devices of nature for scattering seeds is seen in the balloon plant of California. The fruit is yellow and is a little larger than an egg. It has the appearance of an empty bag, but it contains a watery substance, which evaporates or dries up when the fruit matures, a sort of gas taking its place. This gas is lighter than air, and the fruit flips back and forth in the wind until it finally breaks loose from its slender stem, rises into the air to a height of from seventy-five to a hundred feet, and sails away to fall in some distant spot and thus extend the growth of its kind.

Mary heard a little lie
That did another wrong,
And everywhere that Mary went
The lie went right along.

It followed her all through the town,
And as it went it grew;
Of course they all vowed secrecy
That Mary told it to.

GOT EVERYBODY GUESSING.

Business World is Asking How it is That a Corning, N. Y., Concern Can Sell Choice Family Groceries Cheaper Than All Competitors—The Real Reason.

Grocer—to former customer: "How is it, Mr. Wright, that I don't get your trade any more?"

Mr. W.: "Well, to be frank, I am now buying this Signature Line from Brown over here as you don't keep them. My wife sent and got the catalog of a big Corning concern and we spent about a week o' evenings studying it. It stated that this concern had been handling choice groceries, teas, coffees, household supplies, etc., for more'n 40 years. It said that their long experience had prepared them to handle goods at the least expense and their big capital enabled them to buy large quantities of merchandise for the least money. Then it went on to tell how they had originated what they call 'Signature Brands' of groceries. This 'Signature' business kind o' bothered Mandy and me at first, but Cora—that's our eldest daughter who had just graduated from the High school—explained that the 'Signature Brands' are choice family groceries put up in sealed packages by this firm. This, she said, guarantees both quantity and quality and absolute cleanliness. The firm's name is written across their seal on each package and stands for quality and character in the goods. These signatures are to be saved, as each one is valuable according to the amount of goods one buys. For instance, eight signatures cut from packages of Old Holland Coffee the firm puts up are equal to 400 points. These points are accepted in payment for any one of a list of 300 premiums. Thus each signature is valuable."

Grocer: "What's the name of this concern?"

Mr. W.: "C. R. Maltby Company of Corning, N. Y."

Grocer: "You ought to have experience enough by this time to know that they add the cost of these premiums to the price of the goods they sell."

Mr. W.: "It's natural for you, being in the same line o' business, to think that way. We did too, at first, but seein' as how we actually get better and more tea, coffee, flour, etc., in these 'Signature Brands,' we had to change our minds. Since we get these groceries cheaper'n we ever got any before, Mandy 'lows that the premiums in silverware, cut-glass, chinaware, furniture, etc., are purty convenient things to have and are clear gain. These we get in exchange for the signature which is written on each package."

Grocer: "Somebody has to pay for these premiums and the chances are they are a snide lot anyway."

Mr. W.: "We were suspicious of them at first, but in their catalog it said that every article had been carefully selected and is of standard value and many of them are made specially for The C. R. Maltby Company. We asked our bank about this house and they told us there is none better and that their word is as good as their bond. We then began to use their 'Signature Brand' of groceries; we sent in the signatures and got a set o' silverware and other things and they are as pretty as a big, red apple and have never tarnished. By using their goods exclusively, the signatures accumulate rapidly and we get a lot of premiums."

Grocer: "You seem to have been studying this question of getting high-class groceries for the least money."

Mr. W.: "Yes, and there are others. The time is here when the women folks are going to buy where they can get the best goods for the least money. Don't you forget it!"

ROOSEVELT-FAIRBANKS.

Nominated by Acclamation For President and Vice-President.

Resounding Demonstration of Approval by the 10,000 People Gathered In the Coliseum—Nominating Speeches Made by Ex-Governor Black and Senator Dolliver.

Force of public opinion for the second time in the history of Republican conventions resulted in the selection of a national ticket without a dissenting voice. Theodore Roosevelt for president and Charles W. Fairbanks for vice president received every vote in the convention.

Regardless of the fact that the nomination of one had been assured for months and the other for days, the announcement of the choice was accompanied by a resounding demonstration which attested the candidates' universal popularity. The cheering was led by figures known through the breadth of the land and echoed by a mighty throng of enthusiastic men and radiant women assembled in the Coliseum to witness the crowning feature as well as the close of the national convention that marks the semi centennial o fthe Republican party in the United States.

No less than 10,000 men and women participated in the ratification of the party program and the consequent roar of cheering and handelapping was deafening. The band stationed high among the girders of the hall was drowned by the tumultuous, unbounded demonstrations. Hats were tossed in the air, state emblems were waved and flags, beautiful tri-colored shimmering silken flags, fluttered from every hand as though stirred by a gale.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

When former Governor Black of New York made his speech nominating Theodore Roosevelt to succeed himself as president, the delegates in the Republican convention proved there was no absence of enthusiasm in their ranks when occasion justifies the exhibition of that quality. For 25 minutes the great throng told its approbation of the convention's choice for president. The name of Roosevelt came from every throat. The Republican delegates proved that by shouting at the top of their voices. Other delegations joined in the process and the well ordered body of half an hour before was a shifting mass, every semblance of organization gone.

(The speech of ex-Governor Black will be found in another column.)

Senator Fairbanks Nominated.

Senator Dolliver of Iowa in presenting the name of Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana for vice president spoke in part as follows:

The roll call of this convention is a reminder not without its melancholy suggestion, that the veterans of Republican leadership are transferring the responsibilities which they have borne to the generation born since 1850. A heavy hand has been laid since we met at Philadelphia upon the men who guided the counsels of the party.

We stand at the beginning of the new era, and while the Republican party leans upon the counsels of its old leaders, it has not hesitated to summon to the responsibilities of public life the young men who have been trained under their guidance to take up the burdens which they are ready to lay down, and finish the work which comes to them as an inheritance of patriotism and duty. That is the significance of the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, and that is the explanation of the call which has been made by the Republican party, without a dissenting vote, upon Charles W. Fairbanks to stand by the side of the president in the guidance and leadership of the Republican party.

The office has sought the man, and he will bring to the office the commanding personalities which belong to public affairs. A leader of the senate, the champion of all the great policies which constitute the invincible record of the Republican party during the last 10 years, his name will become a tower of strength to our cause, not only in his own state, but everywhere throughout the country. A man of affairs, the whole business community shares the confidence which his political associates have reposed in him from the beginning of his public life.

The quiet undemonstrative popular opinion, which has given the Republican party a platform upon which all Republicans can stand with no dissenting voice, here or anywhere, has long since anticipated the action of this convention in adding to the national Republican ticket the name of Senator Fairbanks of Indiana.

I take pleasure in presenting this name, honored throughout the United States, as our candidate for vice president.

When Senator Fairbanks had been nominated for vice president, there was no diminution in the demonstration. Voices were hoarse, but the noise for the choice was just as unanimous as it was in filling the first place on the ticket.

NOMINATION SPEECH.

Ex-Governor Black Presented Name of Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention: We are here to inaugurate a campaign which seems already to be nearly closed. So wisely have the people sowed and watched and tended, there seems little now to do but to measure up the grain. They are ranging themselves not for battle but for harvest. In one column reaching from the Maine woods to the Puget sound are those people and those states which have stood so long together, that when great emergencies arise the nation turns instinctively to them.

In this column, vast and solid, is a majority so overwhelming that the scattered squads in opposition can hardly raise another army. The enemy has neither guns nor ammunition, and if they had they would use them on each other. Destitute of the weapons of effective warfare, the only evidence of approaching battle is in the tone and number of their bulletins. There is discord among the generals; discord among the soldiers. Each would fight in his own way, but before assaulting his Republican adversaries he would first destroy his own comrades in the adjoining tents. Each believes the weapons chosen by the other are not only wicked but fatal to the holder. That is true. This is the only war of modern times where the boomerang has been substituted for the gun.

Whatever fatalities may occur, however, among the discordant hosts now moving on St. Louis, no harm will come this fall to the American people. There will be no opposition sufficient to raise a conflict. There will be hardly enough for competition. There are no Democratic plans for the conduct of the fall campaign. Their zeal is chiefly centered in discussion as to what Thomas Jefferson would do if he were living. He is not living, and but few of his descendants are among the Democratic remnants of today. Whatever of patriotism or wisdom emanated from that distinguished man is now represented in this convention.

It is a sad day for any party when its only means of solving living issues is by guessing at the possible attitude of a statesman who is dead. This condition leaves that party always a beginner and makes every question new. The Democratic party has seldom tried a problem on its own account, and when it has its blunders have been its only monuments, its courage is remembered only in regret. As long as these things are recalled that party may serve as ballast, but it will never steer the ship.

When all the people have forgotten will dawn a golden era for the new Democracy. But the country is not ready yet to place a party in the lead whose most expressive motto is the cheerless word "forget." That motto may express contrition, but it does not inspire hope. Neither confidence nor enthusiasm will ever be aroused by any party which enters each campaign uttering the language of the mourner.

There is one fundamental plank, however, on which the two great parties are in full agreement. Both believe in the equality of men. The difference is that the Democratic party would make every man as low as the poorest, while the Republican party would make every man as high as the best. But the Democratic course will provoke no outside interference now, for the Republican motto is that of the great commander, "never interrupt the enemy while he is making a mistake."

In politics as in other fields, the most impressive arguments spring from contrast. Never has there been a more striking example of unity than is now afforded by this assemblage. You are gathered here not as factions torn by discordant views, but moved by one desire and intent, you have come as the chosen representatives of the most enlightened party in the world.

You meet not as strangers, for no men are strangers who hold the same beliefs and espouse the same cause. You may separate two bodies of water for a thousand years, but when once the barrier is removed they mingle instantly and are one. The same traditions inspire and the same purposes actuate us all. Never in our lives did these purposes stand with deeper root than now. At least two generations have passed away since the origin of that great movement from which sprang the spirit which has been the leading impulse in American politics for half a century.

In that movement, which was both a creation and an example, were those great characters which endowed the Republican party at its birth with the attributes of justice, equality and progress, which have held it to this hour in line with the highest sentiments of mankind.

From these men we have inherited the desire, and to their memory we owe the resolution, that those great schemes of government and humanity, inspired by their patriotism, and established by their blood, shall remain as the fixed and permanent emblem of their labors, and the abiding signal of the liberty and progress of the race.

There are many new names in these days, but the Republican party needs no new title. It stands now where it stood at the beginning. Memory alone is needed to tell the source from which the inspirations of the country flow. A drowsy memory would be as guilty now as a sleeping watchman when the enemy is astir. The name of the Republican party stands over every door where a righteous cause was born. Its members have gathered around every movement, no matter how weak, if inspired by high resolve.

Its flag for more than 50 years has been the sign of hope on every spot where liberty was the word. That party needs no new name or platform to designate its purposes. It is now as it has been, equipped, militant and in motion. The problems of every age that age must solve. Great causes impose great demands, but never in any enterprise have the American people failed, and never in any crisis has the Republican party failed to express the conscience and intelligence of that people.

The public mind is awake both to its opportunities and its dangers. Nowhere in the world, in any era, did citizenship mean more than it means today in America. Men of courage and sturdy character are ranging themselves together with a unanimity seldom seen. There is no excuse for groping in the dark, for the light is plain to him who will but raise his eyes.

The American people believe in a man or party that has convictions and knows why. They believe that what experience has proved it is idle to resist. A wise man is any fool about to die. But there is a wisdom which with good fortune may guide the living and the strong. That wisdom springs from reason, observation and experience. Guided by these this thing is plain, and young men may rely upon it, that the history and purposes I have described, rising even to the essence and aspirations of patriotism, find their best concrete example in the career and doctrines of the Republican party.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS.

But not alone upon the principles of that party are its members in accord. With the same devotion which has marked their adherence to those principles, magnificent and enduring as they are, they have already singled out the man to bear their standard and to lead the way. No higher badge was ever yet conferred. But great as the honor is, the circumstances which surround it make that honor even more profound.

You have come from every state and territory in this vast domain. The country and the town have vied with each other in sending here their contributions to this splendid throng. Every highway in the land is leading here and crowded with the members of that great party which sees in this splendid city the symbol of its rise and power.

Within this unexampled multitude is every rank and condition of free men, every creed and occupation. But today a common purpose and desire have engaged us all, and from every nook and corner of the country rises but a single choice to fill the most exalted office in the world.

He is no stranger waiting in the shade to be called suddenly into public light. The American people have seen him for many years and always where the fight was thickest and the greatest need was felt. He has been alike conspicuous in the pursuits of peace and in the arduous stress of war.

No man now living will forget the spring of '98, when the American mind was so inflamed and American patriotism so aroused; when among all the eager citizens surging to the front as soldiers, the man whom this convention has already in its heart was among the first to hear the call and answer to his name.

Preferring peace but not afraid of war faithful to every private obligation yet first to volunteer at the sign of national peril; a leader in civil life and yet so quick to comprehend the arts of war that he grew almost in a day to meet the high exactions of command. There is nothing which so tests a man as great and unexpected danger. He may pass his life amid ordinary scenes and what he is or does but few will ever know. But when the crash comes or the flames break out, a moment's time will single out the hero in the crowd. A flash of lightning in the night will reveal what years of daylight have not discovered to the eye.

And so the flash of the Spanish war revealed that lofty courage and devotion which the American heart so loves and which you have met again to decorate and recognize.

His qualities do not need to be retold for no man in that exalted place since Lincoln has been better known in every household in the land. He is not conservative, if conservatism means waiting till it is too late. He is not wise, if wisdom is to count a thing a hundred times when once will do.

There is no regret so keen, in man or country, as that which follows an opportunity unembraced. Fortune soars with high and rapid wings, and whoever brings it down must shoot with accuracy and speed. Only the man with steady eye and nerve and the courage to pull the trigger brings the largest opportunities to the ground.

He does not always listen while all the sages speak, but every day at nightfall he holds some record which if not complete has been at least pursued with conscience and intrepid resolution. He is no slender flower swaying in the wind, but that heroic fibre which is best nurtured by the mountains and the snow. He spends little time in review, for that he knows can be done by the schools.

A statesman grappling with the living problems of the hour he gropes but little in the past. He believes in going ahead. He believes that in shaping the destinies of this great republic, hope is a higher impulse than regret. He believes that preparation for future triumphs is a more important duty than an inventory of past mistakes.

A profound student of history, he is today the greatest history maker in the world. With the instincts of the scholar, he is yet forced from the scholar's pursuits by those superb qualities which fit him to the last degree for those great world currents now rushing past with larger volume and more portentous aspect than for many years before.

And in the man whom you will choose, the highest sense of every nation in the world beholds a man who typifies as no other living American does, the spirit and the purposes of the twentieth century. He does not claim to be the Solomon of his time. There are many things he may not know, but this is sure, that above all things else he stands for progress, courage and fair play, which are the synonyms of the American name.

There are times when great fitness is hardly less than destiny, when the elements so come together that they select the agent they will use. Events sometimes select the strongest man, as lightning goes down the highest rod. And so it is with those events which for many months with unerring sight have led you to a single name which I am chosen only to pronounce: Gentlemen, I nominate for president of the United States the highest living type of the youth, the vigor and the promise of a great country and a great age, Theodore Roosevelt of New York.

VICE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE.

Senator Fairbanks Never Held Public Office Before His Election to the Senate.

Charles Warren Fairbanks of Indianapolis was born on a farm near Unionville Center, Union county, Ohio, May 11, 1852. He was educated in the common schools of the neighborhood and at the Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, O., graduating in 1872 in the classical course. Was admitted to the bar by the supreme court of Ohio in 1874; removed to Indianapolis the same year, where he has since practiced his profession.

Mr. Fairbanks never held public office prior to his election to the United States senate. He was elected trustee of the Ohio Wesleyan university in 1885; was chairman of the Indiana Republican conventions in 1892 and 1898; was defeated by David Turpie, Democrat, for United States senator by vote of the Indiana legislature in 1893; was temporary chairman of the Republican national convention at St. Louis in 1896; was a delegate-at-large to the national convention at Philadelphia in 1900, and as chairman of the committee reported the platform.

He was a member of the United States and British joint high commission which met in Quebec in 1898 for the adjustment of international questions and was chairman of the United States commissioners. He was elected to the United States senate Jan. 20, 1897, to succeed Daniel W. Voorhees, Democrat, and took his seat March 4, 1897; was re-elected in 1903.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

As Read by Senator Lodge, Chairman of Committee on Resolutions.

Fifty years ago the Republican party came into existence, dedicated among other purposes to the great task of arresting the extension of human slavery. In 1860 it elected its first president. During 24 of the 44 years which have elapsed since the election of Lincoln the Republican party has held complete control of the government. For 18 more of the 44 years it has held partial control through the possession of one or two branches of the government, while the Democratic party during the same period has had complete control for only two years.

This long tenure of power by the Republican party is not due to chance. It is a demonstration that the Republican party has commanded the confidence of the American people for nearly two generations to a degree never equalled in our history, and has displayed a high capacity for rule and government which has been made even more conspicuous by the incapacity and infirmity of purpose shown by its opponents.

The Republican party entered upon its present period of complete supremacy in 1897. We have every right to congratulate ourselves upon the work since then accomplished, for it has added lustre even to the traditions of the party which carried the government through the storms of civil war.

We then found the country after four years of Democratic rule in evil plight, oppressed with misfortune and doubtful of the future. Public credit had been lowered, the revenues were declining, the debt was growing, the administration's attitude toward Spain was feeble and mortifying, the standard of values was threatened and uncertain, labor was unemployed, business was sunk in the depression which had succeeded the panic of 1893, hope was faint and confidence was gone.

We met these unhappy conditions vigorously, effectively and at once.

We replaced a Democratic tariff law based on free trade principles and garnished with sectional protection by a consistent protective tariff, and industry freed from oppression and stimulated by the encouragement of wise laws, has expanded to a degree never before known has conquered new markets and has created a volume of exports which has surpassed imagination. Under the Dingley tariff labor has been fully employed, wages have risen and all industries have revived and prospered.

Gold Standard Firmly Established.

We firmly established the gold standard which was then menaced with destruction. Confidence returned to business and with confidence an unexampled prosperity.

For deficient revenues supplemented by improvident issues of bonds we gave the country an income which produced a large surplus and which enabled us, only four years after the Spanish war had closed, to remove over one hundred millions of annual war taxes, reduce the public debt, and lower the interest charges of the government.

The public credit, which had been so lowered that in time of peace a Democratic administration made large loans at extravagant rates of interest in order to pay current expenditures, rose under Republican administration to its highest point and enabled us to borrow at 2 per cent even in time of war.

We refused to palter longer with the miseries of Cuba. We fought a quick and victorious war with Spain. We set Cuba free, governed the island for three years and then gave it to the Cuban people with order restored, with ample revenues, with education and public health established, free from debt and connected with the United States by wise provisions for our mutual interests.

We have organized the government of Porto Rico and its people now enjoy peace, freedom, order and prosperity.

In the Philippines we have suppressed insurrection, established order and given to life and property a security never known there before. We have organized civil government, made it effective and strong in administration and have conferred upon the people of those islands the largest civil liberty they have ever enjoyed.

By our possession of the Philippines we were enabled to take prompt and effective action in the relief of the legations at Pekin and a decisive part in preventing the partition and preserving the integrity of China.

Isthmian Canal Assured.

The possession of a route for an isthmian canal, so long the dream of American statesmanship, is now an accomplished fact. The great work of connecting the Pacific and Atlantic by a canal is at last begun and it is due to the Republican party.

We have passed laws which will bring the arid lands of the United States within the area of cultivation.

We have reorganized the army and put it in the highest state of efficiency.

We have passed laws for the improvement and support of the militia.

We have pushed forward the building of the navy, the defense and protection of our honor and our interests.

Our administration of the great departments of the government has been honest and efficient and whenever wrong doing has been discovered the Republican administration has not hesitated to probe the evil and bring offenders to justice without regard to party or political ties.

Laws enacted by the Republican party which were intended for the protection of the public against the unjust discrimination or the illegal encroachment of vast aggregations of capital, have been fearlessly enforced by a Republican president and new laws ensuring reasonable publicity as to the operations of great corporations and providing additional remedies for the prevention of discrimination in freight rates have been passed by a Republican congress.

In this record of achievement during the past eight years may be read the pledges which the Republican party has fulfilled. We promise to continue these policies and we declare our constant adherence to the following principles:

Protection which guards and develops our industries is a cardinal policy of the Republican party. The measure of protection should always at least equal the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. We insist upon the maintenance of the principles of protection and therefore rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration; but this work cannot safely be committed to other hands than those of the Republican party. To entrust it to the Democratic party is to invite disaster.

Whether, as in 1892, the Democratic party declared the protective tariff unconstitutional, or whether it demands tariff reform or tariff revision, its real object is always the destruction of the protective system. However specious the name, the purpose is ever the same. A Democratic tariff has always been followed by business adversity, a Republican tariff by business prosperity. To a Republican congress and a Republican president this great question can safely be entrusted. When the only free trade country among the great nations agitates a return to protection the chief protective country should not falter in maintaining it.

We have extended widely our foreign markets, and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension, including commercial reciprocity wherever reciprocal arrangements can be effected consistent with the principles of protection and without injury to American agriculture, American labor or any American industry.

We believe it to be the duty of the Republican party to uphold the gold standard and the integrity and value of our national currency. The maintenance of the gold standard, established by the Republican party, cannot safely be committed to the Democratic party, which resisted its adoption and has never given any proof since that time of belief in it or fidelity to it.

American Shipping Unprotected.

While every other industry has prospered under the fostering aid of Republican legislation, American shipping engaged in foreign trade, in competition with the low cost of construction, low wages and heavy subsidies of foreign governments, has not for many years received from the government of the United States adequate encouragement of any kind. We, therefore, favor legislation which will encourage and build up the American merchant marine and we cordially approve the legislation of the last congress which created the merchant marine commission to investigate and report upon this subject.

A navy powerful enough to defend the United States against any attack, to uphold the Monroe Doctrine and watch over our commerce, is essential to the safety and the welfare of the American people. To maintain such a navy is the fixed policy of the Republican party.

We cordially approve the attitude of President Roosevelt and congress in regard to the exclusion of Chinese labor and promise a continuance of the Republican policy in that direction.

The civil service law was placed on the statute books by the Republican party, which has always sustained it, and we renew our former declarations that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced.

We are always mindful of the country's debt to the soldiers and sailors of the United States, and we believe in making ample provision for them and in the liberal administration of the pension laws.

We favor the peaceful settlement of international differences by arbitration.

We commend the vigorous efforts made by the administration to protect American citizens in foreign lands and pledge ourselves to insist upon the just and equal protection of all our citizens abroad.

It is the unquestioned duty of the government to procure for all our citizens, without distinction, the rights of travel and sojourn in friendly countries and we declare ourselves in favor of all proper efforts tending to that end.

Our great interests and our growing commerce in the Orient render the condition of China of high importance to the United States. We cordially commend the policy pursued in that direction by the administrations of President McKinley and President Roosevelt.

We favor such congressional action as shall determine whether by special discriminations the elective franchise in any state has been unconstitutionally limited, and if such is the case, we demand that representation in congress and in the electoral college shall be proportionally reduced as directed by the const. United States.

Combinations of capital and of labor are the results of the economic movement of the age, but neither must be permitted to infringe upon the rights and interests of the people. Such combinations when lawfully formed for lawful purposes are alike entitled to the protection of the laws, but both are subject to the laws and neither can be permitted to break them.

Untimely Death of McKinley.

The great statesman and patriotic American, William McKinley, who was re-elected by the Republican party to the presidency four years ago, was assassinated just at the threshold of his second term. The entire nation mourned his untimely death and did that justice to his great qualities of mind and character which history will confirm and repeat.

The American people were fortunate in his successor, to whom they turned with a trust and confidence which have been fully justified. President Roosevelt brought to the great responsibilities thus sadly forced upon him, a clear head, a brave heart, an earnest patriotism and high ideals of public dutyand public service. True to the principles of the Republican party and to the policies which that party had declared, he has also shown himself ready for every emergency and has met new and vital questions with ability and with success.

The confidence of the people in his justice, inspired by his public career, enabled him to render personally an inestimable service to the country by bringing about a settlement of the coal strike which threatened such disastrous results at the opening of the winter in 1902.

Our foreign policy under his administration has not only been able, vigorous and dignified, but in the highest degree successful. The complicated questions which arose in Venezuela were settled in such a way by President Roosevelt that the Monroe Doctrine was signally vindicated and the cause of peace and arbitration greatly advanced.

His prompt and vigorous action in Panama, which we commend in the highest terms, not only secured to us the canal route, but avoided foreign complications which might have been of a very serious character.

He has continued the policy of President McKinley in the Orient and our position in China, signalized by our recent commercial treaty with that empire, has never been so high.

He secured the tribunal by which the vexed and perilous question of the Alaskan boundary was finally settled.

Whenever crimes against humanity have been perpetrated which have shocked our people, his protest has been made and our good offices have been tendered, but always with due regard to international obligations.

Under his guidance we find ourselves at peace with all the world and never were we more respected or our wishes more regarded by foreign nations.

Pre-eminently successful in regard to our foreign relations, he has been equally fortunate in dealing with domestic questions. The country has known that the public credit and the national currency were absolutely safe in the hands of his administration. In the enforcement of the laws he has shown not only courage, but the wisdom which understands that to permit laws to be violated or disregarded opens the door to anarchy, while the just enforcement of the law is the soundest conservatism. He has held firmly to the fundamental American doctrine that all men must obey the law, that there must be no distinction between rich and poor, between strong and weak, but that justice and equal protection under the law must be secured to every citizen without regard to race, creed or condition.

His administration has been throughout vigorous and honorable, high minded and patriotic. We commend it without reservation to the considerate judgment of the American people.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

For President of the United States,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT
of New York.

For Vice-President,
CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS
of Indiana.

ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS.

The nominations of Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency and Charles W. Fairbank for vice-president of the United States were made unanimously last Thursday in the Republican National Convention at Chicago. By placing such men in nomination the Republican party is justified in earnestly appealing to patriotic citizens of every class. The fitness of Theodore Roosevelt to discharge the duties of chief executive of this great nation has been fully exemplified during the past three years, as he has won renown as an administrator and leader, risen to the full requirements of the office and reached the highest plane of party hopes and expectations.

Mr. Fairbanks, through his long experience in national affairs, is equally well qualified and admirably equipped for the office to which he has become a candidate, and will add strength to the ticket. Victory is assured.

THE "OBSERVER'S" WHIMPER.

The Observer, last week, opened its columns to some one who has assumed the role of political spanker, and who inveighs against the Times for publishing a very just criticism of our local candidate for county treasurer. The article in the Observer rings the changes on "bossism" in county political circles, making it somewhat of a bloody idol which requires the sacrifice of dearest connections in private life. The Republicans of the city and county are united for the purpose of promoting, by their joint endeavors, municipal, county, State and national interests. The party has leaders of which it is proud, but there is no disposition on the part of any member to play the role of dictator; and it might be well to state that they can not be blown off their ground by every childish whimper. As much as we respect the principles of Prohibition; yet it must be conceded that all Prohibitionists are not saints, and that there are even more henious sins than "bossism" or intemperance. There is an excellent clause in the Book of Common Prayer, to which the attention of the writer in the Observer is called. It reads as follows: "From all blindness of heart, from pride, vain-glory and hypocrisy; from envy, hatred and malice, and all uncharitableness, Good Lord deliver us."

As the times seem likely to improve in the near future, the 6,000 coal miners at Scranton, Pa., who proposed to strike, have agreed to postpone the job until cooler weather.

THE "cattle kings" of Nebraska, who have violated the law, or may do so, in the matter of fencing in the public lands for gazing purposes, will continue to be prosecuted by the Government just as fast as Marshal Mathews of Omaha can get witnesses and money to pay the jurors.

WHEN Lord Roberts, of England, visits the United States, as he says he hopes to do at no distant date, and shakes hands with our young Soldier President, Roosevelt, Ambassador Choate says he would like to be at the White House and see the two sitting together, cheek by jowl, from the rising to the setting of the sun, exchanging views on war. Mr. Choate thinks public business would be suspended on that day.

THE President is fond of surprising his friends. He has now appointed to the seat at the Cabinet table vacated by Secretary Moody, Mr. Paul Morton, son of Sterling Morton, Cleveland's Secretary of Agricultural. As this assignment of the portfolio comes at the very hour of the nominating convention it must be regarded as [illegible] for the next term. His public [illegible] of the Democratic party [illegible] only seven weeks ago, but [illegible] terms satisfied the president [illegible] not to have consulted [illegible]. Morton is a railroad [illegible]

ASTRONOMERS are just now interested in the "cosmic fog" out of which stars, suns, and planets are made. The great question is whether this fog is composed of radium or helium, and when another star will be evolved. Politicians are also interested in the "cosmic fog" which is slowly gathering over St. Louis, in advance of the assembling of the Democratic National Convention. Exactly what will come out of the fog, a radium candidate or a hel (1) ium, no one is now able to say.

ONE day the press telegrams from Russia tell the public that the American Ambassador at St. Petersburg, is unpopular and being boycotted. The next day the news-gatherer says the Ambassador is out of the city for the Summer; that all society has departed. The day after the world is informed that Mr. McCormick gave a great banquet to the British and Spanish Ambassadors, and that all the principal government officials of the Russian empire were present. Evidently events move with rapidity in Russia.

POLITICIANS of the far-reaching and prescient sort, are going to fight shy of the tariff issue. At least that is a determination the Democrats have come to. If that issue is pressed too hard it may cause wealthy Democrats, who are profiting by protection, to decline to open the much-needed barrel. We are now told that "over-production" causes mills to close and markets to sag. This was a favorite theory with Sterling J. Morton when he was Secretary of Agriculture. In any event it is vastly better than under-production.

MRS. PHOEBE HEARST, the wealthy and gentle mother of the Presidential candidate, has felt compelled to give notice to the University of California, that owing to the great demands made upon her purse, she is forced to omit her benefactions to that institution, amounting annually to some $20,000. This is much regretted at the college, and several teachers have resigned. Some uncharitable people imagine that her son's tapping of the family barrel at the bung has caused the mother to turn off the golden stream at the spigot. Possibly, after the St. Louis convention, Mrs. Hearst will again see her way clear to resume her gifts to the many worthy institutions she has founded.

50,000 SHARES

Of the Capital Stock of the

International Broom Comp'y,

Now offered at

50 CENTS A SHARE

I would respectfully call your attention to the stock of the International Broom Company of New York, as a safe investment. This company owns and operates the patent for making the Kaptop Brooms, of which the FULTON KAPTOP BROOM CO. is a licensed company.

The International Broom Company makes the metal cap and sells them to the subsidiary companies at a price which gives them a good profit. Besides this the subsidiary companies pay a royalty to the International Broom Company of from 20 to 25 cents on every dozen brooms manufactured and sold by them, the price of royalty depending upon the amount sold.

The following companies are now operated:

THE FULTON KAPTOP BROOM COMPANY, which has only been established about three months, is now making fifty dozen brooms a day, and will shortly increase their output to one hundred dozen per day.

THE ADVANCE BROOM COMPANY of Philadelphia, Pa., is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE NEW ENGLAND BROOM COMPANY of New Haven, Ct., is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE SUPERIOR BROOM COMPANY of Kansas City, is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE MANHATTAN BROOM COMPANY of Brooklyn, N. Y., is now making over one hundred dozen brooms per day.

The Company is about to establish sub-companies in the cities of Chicago, Ill., Pittsburg, Pa., Detroit, Mich., Baltimore, Md., St. Paul, Minn., and Washington. D. C., and negotiations have been practically closed for a sub-company in the City of Mexico. There are several applications for sub-companies still pending, but not yet acted upon.

The International Broom Company was incorporated under and pursuant to the laws of the District of Columbia in January, 1903. The present officers of the corporation are as follows: President, W. A. Shepard, a Syracuse whisk broom manufacturer; Vice-President, Jas. K. Polk, lawyer, Washington, D. C.; Secretary, Reuben S. Baldwin, Treasurer Empire Securities Corporation, New York; Treasurer, Henry F. Heuchel, retired contractor and builder, Brooklyn, N. Y. Executive Committee, W. A. Shepard, M. L. Shillak, R. S. Baldwin and H. F. Heuchel, all of New York.

I am offering at this time, 50,000 Shares of the capital stock of the company, par value $1.00, fully paid and non-assessable, at 50 CENTS per share. This stock is issued for the sole purpose of enlarging the capacity of the plant in New York, to meet the increased demand that will be made on them in the manufacture of kaptops. The Company believes that much of the stock ought to be disposed of where the sub-companies are situated; where the people are familiar with the undertaking. After this 50,000 shares are sold there will be no more stock offered. This is a splendid opportunity for a good and safe investment.

Some well-known men are interested in the local company in Fulton, which is in itself a guarantee of the standing of the International Broom Company,

It is confidently expected that within the next three months the Company will pay a dividend on the par value of their stock, and I feel sure that this proposition will warrant your investigation. I will be pleased to call upon you in regard to the same, and supply any further information desired.

ANY WOMAN
In Fulton.

Ask any woman in Fulton, who uses a gas range, whether you should or should not buy one. Nothing like seeking information from people who have used them—people who know how cheaply, how quickly and how well a gas range does its work, people who know the delights of a cool kitchen—then, having obtained reliable information, your next step will be to call on us to make a choice and arrange for free piping. Should it best suit your convenience, call any week day evening after 7:30.

You may buy on easy payments or for cash.

People who buy now will again be entitled to free piping, should they move.

The paragraph published in last week's Times, containing the information that Mr. Rowe had resigned his position as superintendent of the Battle Island Pulp & Paper Company's plant, was entirely erroneous. Mr. Rowe is perfectly satisfied with his position and has no intention of resigning. The information was obtained from what was considered at that time a reliable source.

Orlando B. Rhodes, editor of the Watertown Daily Standard, committed suicide by shooting on Thursday. He has been a long time sufferer with dyspepsia and it is thought that his suffering had effected his mind. The deceased was born in Scriba, Oswego County, and was possessed of an unusually brilliant mind. He had recently been tendered the position of principal of the Adams High school.

A certificate of incorporation has been filed with the Secretary of State by the Michael C. Ryan Company, of Oswego County. It is proposed to manufacture and sell novelties, metal goods, hardware specialties, etc. The capitol stock is $5,000, divided into shares of $100 each, and the directors for the first year are as follows: Michael C. Ryan of Phoenix, Rollo G. Jermyn of Scranton, Pa., and George H. Bond of Syracuse.

John W. Jackson, whose home is at Hannibal, and who was a member of Company F, 193d Infantry in the Civil War, has been notified that his pension has been transferred from the old order, where he received $12 a month, to the order, and that hereafter he will receive $72 a month and back pension to the amount of $2,500. About four years ago Jackson was rendered helpless from rheumatism, contracted, it is claimed, while in the service.

A new system will be operated in the local schools hereafter. At the conclusion of each term the students will be furnished with slips containing the names of all books, &c., which they will need for the commencement of the next term and they will be expected to have the books and be ready to commence study the first day of school instead of waiting until school has opened to receive their list. The plan is a most practical one and will save needless delay and confusion each term.

The Oswego meat dealers are urging their patrons to boycott beef for two weeks and thus force the beef trust to lower its prices. Fulton meat eaters might follow the same course; in fact it would be small hardship if throughout the United States this course were pursued. It would mean easier times for the retailer and the user in the future.

Miss Ada Wright will spend the Summer vacation with her sister at Dwight, Ills. She will visit the St. Louis exposition enroute. At the conclusion of the school work on Thursday, Miss Wrights pupils in State street school presented her with a very pretty pink satin fan as a token of their affection.

Mr. Irving Galusha, who has been the Syracuse Herald correspondent for several months, has been transferred from Fulton to Auburn where he will become correspondent for the paper. He has been succeeded in this city by Mr. F. W. Burnett, the former correspondent for the Syracuse Journal. Mr. Galusha made many friends during his sojourn in Fulton by his genial manner, all of whom will wish him success in his new home.

Pictures Do Not Make Clothes

SOME of the highly artistic clothing illustrations done in gilt and otherwise, somehow or other suggest a "can opener." If you had your little hammer and would rap on one of these suits you could hear it rattle.

These fashion plates that look like tin ware, are meant to simulate hair-cloth stiffness.

Take our honest word for it, these hair-cloth fronts are a glittering deception. They fit like a coat of mail till they break and then they look sad,—just how sad, every man who has actually worn one knows full well.

THE CLOTHING made by Schloss Bros. & Co., doesn't have to rely upon such artifices for good looks or shape-retaining style.

A SCHLOSS COAT is held up by good tailoring and good cloth. Knowing how to do this thing right is their trade secret.

A SCHLOSS COAT has a natural "hang" about it that we like to describe as "draping." It gives the garment a graceful, unforced look, that has an indescribable charm for the particular man with artistic sensibilities.

Everything that enters into this coat is the best that brains can select and money can buy. No detail of construction is to insignificant to be disregarded. The wrong button too frequently spoils an otherwise perfect garment.

THE SCHLOSS COAT has a perfect fitting collar and hollowed out shoulders of broad effect; minus the "little tin soldier" front, so much in evidence in other makes of clothing. There is no stuffed or padded look about the shoulder so common in clothing made by houses that give less attention to artistic details.

If you have never investigated the Art-Tailored Clothing of Schloss Bros. & Co. a revelation awaits you.

IF "SCHLOSS" is on the label you're safe.

SCHLOSS is the kind we sell.

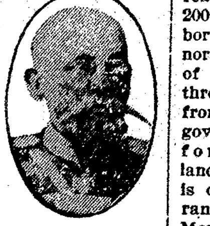
PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

General Nicolai Bobrikoff, governor general of Finland, who was shot and mortally wounded while entering the door of the senate house at Helsingfors, was some years ago one of "Skobeleff's men." He won a reputation at that time as an able commander, but a man of extreme harshness and even cruelty. In his administration of Finland this reputation was rather enhanced than diminished. Indeed, his appointment as governor general was made on the ground that, being so stern a disciplinarian, he would be the man to carry out the imperial order that "Finland must be Russianized." He lost no time in obeying the czar's behest, and his severity cost him his life. The Finns claimed that his appointment was in violation of their constitution, which guaranteed them the right to accept or refuse the nominee of the czar. His efforts to compel enlistments in the Russian army resulted in riots in which many people were injured. Six months ago an attempt was made to kill the chief of police of Helsingfors, and the assassination of Bobrikoff is doubtless the precursor of more trouble in Finland.



GENERAL BOBRIKOFF.

Miss Susan B. Anthony was one of the conspicuous figures at the recent international council of women in Berlin, Germany, and despite her advanced years she holds her wonted grasp on the affairs of the time with remarkable success. As one of the pioneers of the movement for broadening the opportunities of women she can look back over a life given up to unselfish effort to advance the condition of her sex. At eighty-four she is not only respected, but beloved, and it is now almost impossible to realize that in earlier years her name was so often hooted and jeered. She has grown old gracefully. Her voice is still strong and clear, and she retains wonderful command of her faculties. An incident in Miss Anthony's childhood shows how much ideas in regard to women have changed since she was a girl, largely as a result of her labors. When she was six years old and living at Battenville, N. Y., she was sent to a district school taught by a man in winter and by a woman in summer. No teacher appointed to the school could teach Susan long division or understand why a girl should need to learn such a subject. Before Susan was much older her father built a new house, and one room in it was devoted to school purposes. Better teachers followed, and little Susan was thus enabled to learn all about long division.

SUSAN B. ANTHONY.

An interesting episode in connection with Miss Anthony's appearance before the international council of women was the presentation of the venerable champion of women's rights to the large audience by Count von Bulow, who chivalrously kissed her hand as he led her forward. The German societies represented in the council of women have done much to create conditions favorable to the advancement of the women of that county. The change in public sentiment is most notable in the matter of higher education for women, gymnasium courses for them having recently been established in many cities of the empire. Even the universities have begun to open their doors to the gentle sex.

J. Frank Hanly, who has been nominated for governor of Indiana by the Republicans, had a hard struggle as a young man to get his start on the road to professional prosperity and political preferment. Mr. Hanly was born in 1863 at St. Joseph, Ill., in a log cabin. The nearest neighbors lived four miles away, and educational privileges were limited. When young Hanly was six years of age his father purchased a history of the civil war, and from this the lad learned to read. He conned the book so faithfully that he soon became familiar with every page of it, and, indeed, almost knew the story of the war by heart. In 1876, when Hanly was thirteen years of age, there was a Fourth of July celebration at Champaign, Ill., and the eloquent Will Cumback of Indiana was the orator. The speech so impressed the ambitious boy that he was filled with an ardent desire to become educated and take a part in public affairs. But young Hanly's father was an invalid, and the burden of providing for the younger children fell on him. To add to the misfortunes of the family the mother, in 1875, became blind. The future gubernatorial nominee had then obtained about six months' schooling all told and could not think of securing further education then. At sixteen he went to Indiana, where he dug ditches, sawed wood and worked as a farm hand, in the latter capacity receiving $10 per month. In the winter he was able to attend school for six weeks. In this way and by devoting spare time to reading he acquired enough education to teach the rudimentary branches in the district schools. He married at eighteen. While teaching school he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1889. His rise in his profession and in politics has been rapid.

J. FRANK HANLY.

Colonel William C. Greene, the multimillionaire "copper king," who has bought the San Rafael de la Zanja ranch in southeastern Arizona, is now said to be the greatest landowner on the American continent. The ranch embraces 300,000 acres and, with the cattle upon it, cost him $1,200,000. Before the purchase of this ranch he already owned to the eastward of it 200,000 acres in Arizona, and over the border in Mexico, in the state of Sonora, he has fully a million acres of land, secured through direct deed from the Mexican government or in form of Spanish land grants. All this is one grand cattle range, and in the Mexican part of the domain lies the Cananea chain of mountains, where the copper mines from which his princely fortune has mainly been derived are located.

COLONEL W. C. GREENE.

Colonel Greene went through all kinds of narrow escapes from death on the Mexican border in the days when he was known as "Broncho Bill," but he never had greater occasion to display his nerve than one day last spring on Broadway in New York. He was accosted by a man with whom at one time he had had business dealings and who was the representative of a Mexican mining company. The man claimed that money was owed him and threatened to kill the colonel. He emphasized the threat by showing the muzzles of two revolvers which he held in his pocket in such a way that he could press them against Colonel Greene's stomach.

"We'd better talk it over first," coolly remarked the colonel. "I'm on my way to my office, and I'll talk with you there." Later in Greene's office a demand for $500,000 was made, but the "copper king" completely outwitted his assailant and without giving up any money landed the man who had threatened his life in the hands of the police.

Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker of Colorado who was recently elected president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, once declined an election to the same office under interesting circumstances. It was at the convention four years ago at Milwaukee, and Mrs Decker, then Miss Platt, was the choice of the majority of the delegates for presiding officer of the federation But she would not accept an election and it appeared afterward that she was about to be married and would not let even the honor of election to such a position of influence among women interfere with what she thought to be her duty to her future husband. After several years of married life Mrs. Decker now feels that she can properly assume the duties of presiding officer of this influential body of women. Her experience as a wife has not lessened her interest in the welfare of woman in general or changed her belief that in the matter of political status woman should be on an equality with man. At home she has taken an active part in public affairs for in Colorado women enjoy the privilege of the ballot. She delivered an address at the recent convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in St. Louis on the subject of the results of woman suffrage in Colorado. Her election as president of the federation was opposed by antisuffragist members, but the progressive element was successful.

SARAH PLATT DECKER.

John Sharp Williams, Democratic leader of the house, is one of the best story tellers in congress. He said the other day that he went to Texas a few years ago with a party of prospective English land investors. They stopped at a small town, and the mayor took them to the leading saloon and introduced them to the bartender, saying:

"Jack, these gentlemen are earls dukes and lords from England. What do you think of that?"

"Well, Bill," said the bartender to the mayor, "they ain't but two classes of men in this here place. One class takes sugar in theirn and the others ain't so blanked particular. What 'll you have, gents?"

Williams and Judge Tate of Georgia used to have adjoining rooms at a hotel. One night Williams was hurriedly dressing to go to a dinner. He had a hard wrestle with his collar and another with his tie. Finally he had the one buttoned and the other tied and he threw on his coat and went into Tate's room.

JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS.

"Judge," said Williams, "how do I look?"

Tate surveyed Williams carefully.

"Really, John," he said finally, "I think you would look much better if you would put your trousers on."

CAPTAIN VAN SCHAICK.

Career of the Commander of the Ill Fated General Slocum.

It is not uncommon for a commander to lose his ship, but happily it is a rare occurrence when a captain loses both his ship and hundreds of the lives committed to his care.

Captain W. H. Van Schaick of the ill fated excursion steamer General Slocum, the burning of which in the East river on June 15 entailed the loss of about 900 lives, stuck to his post until the flames drove him from the pilot house. He is an old seaman and claims to have done the best he could in the handling of the burning steamer. Captain Van Schaick is sixty-one years of age. He was a pitiable sight as he sat in the police station in the borough of Bronx, New York, where he was taken by the officers who arrested him soon after the occurrence of the disaster. His feet were blistered by the flames before he left the pilot house. He was dripping wet, for he had jumped overboard and swam ashore on North Brother island when the boat grounded. His sufferings and the shock of the horrible calamity, for which he knew the public would hold him in some sense responsible, seemed to have unnerved him completely.

CAPTAIN W. H. VAN SCHAICK.

Captain Van Schaick said that when he started out on the morning of June 15 with the party of merry excursionists from St. Mark's Lutheran church, New York, he supposed his vessel was in good order for the trip. There were probably between 1,400 and 1,500 persons on board, the large majority women and children. He was glad when he got by Hell Gate without an accident, but almost at that very moment the fire broke out in the forward part of the vessel and in scarcely five minutes the ship was aflame from bow to stern. Captain Van Schaick has been criticised for not running his boat ashore the moment the fire was discovered. Instead of doing so he steamed for North Brother island, about half a mile away. He claims that this was the only place he could beach her safely. The captain was taken from the police station to a hospital, where it was found that his foot was broken and he had been burned severely.

Turkish Conspiracies.

Midhat Pasha, formerly a power in Turkey as leader of a reform party, brought about the deposition of Sultan Abdul Aziz. Prince Murad then was proclaimed sultan. Five days later the ex-sultan committed suicide, a fact which was proved by nineteen doctors. Ten days after this tragedy Sultan Murad became insane and was deposed and Abdul Hamid ascended the throne. Midhat was banished, but was received with so much favor in Europe that the sultan became nervous and recalled him and appointed him governor of Syria. Here he did much good, but found himself called upon to resign in 1880. He next became governor general of Smyrna, but shortly afterward he was arrested with Mehemet Rushdi Pasha and others on a charge of being concerned in the murder of Abdul Aziz. The trial dragged on for months, and Midhat, with others, was condemned to death, but on the intervention of the English government his sentence was changed to imprisonment for life. Midhat was sent to Taif, in Arabia, where many attempts were made to poison him, which were frustrated by his servant. One night, however, he was dragged from his room by some of the sultan's officials and strangled.

FORGIVEN BY THE CZAR.

Romance of Grand Duke Michael and Beautiful Countess Torby.

The Grand Duke Michael of Russia met beautiful Countess Torby in 1891 and fell violently in love with her. She at first discouraged his advances, but finally married him. For this alliance he was disgraced by the late czar, disowned by his father and deprived of his military rank. For love of a woman who is finely educated, accomplished and in every way charming, but not his equal in rank, he sacrificed his chances of succession to imperial power. But he gained domestic happiness, which few imperial families seem to possess.

The countess is said to be more cultured and well bred than the average daughter of a European royal house. She has the warm friendship of King Edward VII. of England, and his powerful influence has been exerted in behalf of the grand duke and herself at the Russian court. Her husband has recently been promoted to the rank of captain and his commission dated back to 1900. This is taken to signify his official recognition by the czar, and his father has also become reconciled to him. However, although the grand duke is now welcome at the court of the czar, no recognition has yet been proffered the Countess Torby. She lives in hope of one day being recognized as a duchess and her husband's equal in rank.

The Truth.

"Mr. Hardup must have used a great deal of flattery to win the heiress."

"No; he simply told her the truth."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; he said he couldn't live without her."

A Strong Heart

is assured by perfect digestion. Indigestion swells the stomach and puffs it up against the heart. This causes shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and general weakness. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures indigestion, relieves the stomach, takes the strain off the heart and restores it to a full performance of its function naturally. Kodol increases the strength and by enabling the stomach and digestive organs to digest, assimilate and appropriate to the blood and tissues all of the food nutriment; tones the stomach and digestive organs Sold by H. C. Giesler

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

How Seventy-six, Ky., Got Its Name.

Back in Clinton county is a village called Seventy-six. In the midst of the village is a waterfall, which greeted the eye of the first frontiersman who went to that part of the state when it was still a part of Virginia. He measured the depth of the fall and found it to be seventy-six feet. The accuracy of the measurement has never been called into question, and the inhabitants of the town to this day have their mails addressed to "Seventy-six, Ky." The fall is of little volume during the summer months, but is of great beauty at all times. In the winter it is a roaring cataract, and Indian creek frequently goes upon a rampage. The section was a favorite hunting ground of the Indians in the early days, and the creek derived its name from the number of spearheads and spikes which are found in the fields around.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Strategy of the Cuckoo.

The Indian fruit cuckoo, which, like all members of the cuckoo family, lays its eggs in the nests of other birds and thus avoids the trouble of hatching them, is said to exhibit most interesting strategy in dealing with crows, which are its enemies. Whereas the hen, an inconspicuous speckled gray bird, conceals herself in the foliage, the cock, remarkable for his brilliant black plumage and crimson eyes, places himself on a perch near a crows' nest and makes a great noise. The crows immediately rush out to attack him, and he takes to flight with them in pursuit. The hen meanwhile slips into the nest and deposits an egg. Sometimes the crows get back before the egg is laid, and then the intruding hen cuckoo gets a trouncing.—Youth's Companion.

Origin of the Picture Postal Cards.

The originator of pictorial post cards was a Frenchman, M. Besnardeau of Sille-le-Guillaume, in the department of La Sarthe. To this gentleman occurred the happy thought at the time of the war with Germany that, as there were 40,000 conscripts, most of them somewhat illiterate, in the camp of Conlie, he might as well sell them cards instead of paper and envelopes. He did so, illustrating his cards with pictures of cannons and shells, quickly cleared out his stock and responded to the continuing demand by issuing a second series, with spaces on which soldiers were invited to write the names of any battles in which they might have taken part.—Westminster Gazette.

Thrown From a Wagon.

Mr. George K Babcock was thrown from his wagon and severely bruised He applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely and says it is the best liniment he ever used. Mr. Babcock is a well known citizen of North Plain, Conn. There is nothing equal to Pain Balm for sprains and bruises. It will effect a cure in one third the time required by any other treatment. Left on the Cobbler's Hands.

Pointing to a row of dusty shoes on a shelf, the customer asked the cobbler: "How in the world did you collect all those shoes? Do you mean to say that people leave their shoes for repairs and then never come after them?"

"Just that," replied the cobbler. "Sometimes after they have left their shoes they come to the conclusion that they'd rather spend a little more money and get a new pair outright. Then again if they have a lot of shoes they don't miss the pair they've left in here, and they forget all about them. It's generally men who do that sort of thing, though. A woman seems to be more provident.

"No; the work on them is not a dead loss to me, for after keeping them a year I generally offer them for sale at a price in advance of the value of my work on them. Sometimes I reap quite a little money from my sale of deserted shoes, and many a poor person gets a slick shoe for about a third less than its worth."—New York Press.

An Alarm Clock for 25c.

If you want to get up early and feel good all day take a Little Early Riser or two at bed time. These famous little pills relax the nerves, give quiet rest and refreshing sleep, with a gentle movement of the bowels about breakfast time. W. H. Howell, Houston, Tex., says "Early Risers are the best pill made for constipation, sick headache, billiousness, etc." Sold by H. C. Giesler.

A Good Samaritan.

A southern writer tells this story of a negro preacher's version of the parable of the good Samaritan: There was a traveler on a lonely road, said the preacher, who was set upon by thieves, robbed and left wounded and helpless by the wayside. As he lay there various persons passed him, but none offered to assist him. Presently, however, a poor Samaritan came by and, taking pity on the wounded man's plight, helped him on his mule and took him to an inn, where he ordered food and drink and raiment for the man, directing the innkeeper to send the bill to him. "And dis am a true story, brethren," concluded the preacher, "for de inn am standin' dere yet, and in de do'way am standin' de skel'ton ob de innkeeper, waitin' fer de good Samaritan to come back an' pay de bill."—Harper's Weekly.

SHERMAN M. BELL.

Adjutant General of Colorado, Who Is Unpopular With Striking Miners.

The strike among the miners of Colorado has brought the name of General Sherman M. Bell into frequent notice, for as commander of the militia forces in the portions of the state under martial law he has exercised powers of an extraordinary character. General Bell has been cowboy and mine superintendent, and he was a sergeant in the regiment of rough riders of which President Roosevelt and Major General Wood were officers. He acquitted himself well at San Juan hill, and no one doubts his personal bravery, though his threats against alleged disturbers of the peace have made him many enemies. His military rank is that of adjutant general of the state.

The length to which General Bell has gone in the discharge of his functions as commander in the districts under martial law has excited strong opposition to his authority on the part of the union miners and has aroused much discussion of the question whether his acts could be justified on the plea of military necessity.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets Better than a Doctor's Prescription.

Mr. J. W. Turner, of Truhart, Va., says that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have done him more good than anything he could get from the doctor. If any physician in this country was able to compound a medicine that would produce such gratifying results in cases of stomach troubles, biliousness or constipation, his whole time would be used in preparing this one medicine. A Mean Bank.

"Madam, you've already overdrawn your account."

"What's that?"

"You haven't any more money in the bank."

"The idea! A fine bank, I think, to be out of money because of the little I've drawn! Well, I'll go somewhere else."

No Competition.

The uniform success of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaints both in children and adults has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival, and as everyone who has used it knows, is without an equal. Milk and Bright's Disease.

A physician suffering with Bright's disease and weighing 155 pounds began to restrict himself exclusively to a milk diet, taking one quart at each meal, or three quarts daily. Soon no traces of his former ailment was perceptible. He gained thirty pounds in flesh, and this notwithstanding constant attention to professional duties both day and night. —Chicago News.

Cats in a Bombardment.

A lady who was in Port Arthur during the bombardments by Admiral Togo's fleet thus describes the curious effect produced on cats by the cannonade: "I was at my window during each bombardment by the Japs, but only through the day, because at night I did not dare stir out of bed. In front of me there was a little roof on which five or six cats of the neighborhood collected. Each time there was a bombardment the cats duly arrived, and, having observed them, I on the second occasion proceeded to watch them. With my family we passed the hours looking at them. At each gunshot the cats arched their backs and stiffened their legs and seemed both terrified and furious. Then when a hissing shell arrived it gave the signal for a frightful battle. They jumped at each other, raging like tigers, and seemed to hold each other responsible for what was taking place. The effect was so comical that we could not help laughing, although the occasion did not inspire gayety. After having fought, the cats retired for awhile, as though bewildered, but as soon as the bombardment began again they went through the same business. Each time it was always the same."

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Wives Must Work In Japan.

As an example of the humble attitude of the Japanese wife Mrs. Hugh Fraser relates this incident: "A middle aged man on the upper floor was suffering terribly from heat, and his little wife seemed greatly distressed about him. All the screens had been opened, but it was a breathless day, and no breeze came to ring the little glass bells on the hanging fern wreath on the veranda. The man sat with his head in his hands groaning, while madam, kneeling on the mats behind him, fanned his back and from time to time rubbed him down with a blue towel, an expression of the deepest respect and sympathy on her face. When he seemed a little better she busied herself with preparing tea, which he drank eagerly and of course made himself frightfully hot again, when she went back patiently to her fanning and rubbing."

Sued by His Doctor.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coachella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Onions For Diphtheria.

In cases of diphtheria onions in the form of a poultice and a sirup are said to have an almost magical effect. The poultice in this case is made of the raw onion pounded to a pulp and bandaged around the throat well up to the ears, changing as often as the mass becomes dry. A poultice of the same on the sole of each foot reduces the fever. The mucilaginous properties of onion juice make it specially soothing to the inflamed mucous membrane and therefore acceptable in case of whooping cough, croup or diphtheria. An excellent way to make the sirup is to cut the onion into slices, sprinkle plentifully with sugar and press between hot plates and a heavy weight until all the juice is extracted.

KIDNEY DISEASE CURED

A Typical Letter to Dr. David Kennedy's Son About Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent.

Gilbert F. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., makes public the following letter from one of the most prominent men in Utica, N.Y., but who does not wish his name used publicly:

My Dear Sir: I received a sample bottle of Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, a few months ago. I was greatly pleased with it, and decided to try a large bottle I therefore purchased three bottles of Mr. Sheehan, and I am pleased to inform you that I have been greatly benefited by it and consider myself cured. If my kidney trouble ever asserts itself again (and I am sure it will not) I will not hesitate to continue the use of this grand medicine. I wish you would send some samples to the parties on the enclosed list. All are suffering from kidney trouble. Yours very truly,

A Cow Superstition.

According to Indo-European folklore, the clouds of the heavens were nothing but cows who were invested with the duties of a psychopomp. At times these clouds descended to the earth and assumed their bovine garb, but their duty remained the same; hence the superstition prevalent in many agricultural countries that a cow breaking into a garden foretells a death in the family. The psychopomp was merely looking for a soul to escort to the hereafter.

A Seven Days' Feast.

Here is a description of the marriage entertainment of the eldest daughter of a knight of King Henry VIII.'s time: Seven days of feasting and revelry were indulged in, the following being among some of the numerous items provided: Beer and ale, $35; two hogsheads of wine, $20; one hogshead of red wine, $10; nine cranes, twelve peacocks, three red deer, twelve fallow deer, seventy-two fat capons, thirty dozen of mallards and teal, two dozen of herons, two oxen, and among the fish turbot, pike, sturgeon, ling, salt and fresh salmon, eels, lampreys, oysters and porpoise figured. For the amusement of the guests there were "first a play and straight after the play a mask, and when the mask was done then the banquet, which was 110 dishes and all of meat, and then all the gentlemen and ladies did dance, and this continued from the Sunday to the Saturday afternoon." The wedding outfit, included in which was apparel for the bridegroom, cost $135.—Chicago News.

When Koi Floats In Japan.

When the koi floats from its bamboo pole it means trouble is brewing—in Japan. The koi is a paper fish brave in purple and gold, orange and black, so skillfully made that the wind, inflating it, sets it swirling and swerving as if alive with an energetic flapping of its fins. A fisherman will tell you that it represents the carp, that mighty swimmer which makes its way upstream against all obstacles. A poet will affirm that the koi typifies predominance. It is all one and the same. When the fish floats over a Japanese dwelling it announces the birth of a male child, but when war is imminent or in progress the streets of the cities are gay with the polychromatic emblem flaunting and flashing before the door of every loyal household. This is equivalent to the display of bunting in the occident when troops go forth to war.

Mongolian Sheep Killers.

A recent traveler in Mongolia writes: "On arrival in camp a sheep is killed for the stranger's benefit. It is worth going to Mongolia to eat mutton, which is unlike any other in my experience. No traveler who has written on the country fails to mention it. Missionaries, Protestant and Catholic alike, refer to its succulence. The method of killing sheep is curious and unpleasant. The animal is thrown on its back, when the butcher makes an incision in its belly, into which he thrusts his hand, where he presumably severs an artery, as death ensues and the carcass is suffused with blood. He then takes a ladle and transfers the blood to a receptacle at his side. No drop is

CAMPAIGN LEADERS.

RESPONSIBILITY OF A NATIONAL COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN.

Men of Commanding Executive Ability Needed For the Position—Clothed With Great Power—How They Are Chosen.

Once every four years the national committees of the various political parties spring into activity, and from the time the candidates are named in convention until the votes which determine who shall sit in the executive chair at Washington are counted they lead the strenuous life, for on the shoulders of the men who compose the executive force of the committees rests in a large measure the success or failure of the parties they represent.

The national committees consist of representatives from each state, chosen by the state committees and ratified by the national conventions, but the real work of the campaign is ordinarily delegated to a subcommittee selected by and from the larger body. The head, front and lord paramount of all, however, is the chairman, whose power is absolute. He plans the campaign and directs the battle. Needless to say he must possess great executive ability and keen business sense. The other officers are the treasurer and secretary and sometimes a vice chairman.

The committee appointed by the last national Republican convention is at present without a head. The vacancy caused by the death of Mark Hanna will not be filled until the next convention, which meets in Chicago on June 21. It is customary for the presidential candidate to select the man who is to manage his campaign, so in all probability President Roosevelt will have the naming of Hanna's successor. Among those who have been mentioned for the place are W. Murray Crane, former governor of Massachusetts; Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, and ex-Secretary of War Elihu Root. Cornelius N. Bliss will again serve as treasurer, and probably Elmer Dover of Ohio, who was elected secretary to Perry Heath last winter, will be retained.

The Democratic party will also have a new leader, it being understood that ex-Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas, who directed Mr. Bryan's two campaigns, will retire. Little has been said as to his probable successor, although in the event of Judge Parker's nomination August Belmont may direct his campaign, or perhaps ex-Senator David B. Hill might gird on his armor. Senator William J. Stone is the present vice chairman of the Democratic committee, and C. A. Walsh of Iowa is secretary.

Cornelius N. Bliss has been treasurer of the national Republican committee during the last three presidential campaigns. He is a native of Massachusetts, but has lived in New York city for many years, where he is the head of a great wholesale dry goods house.

Mr. Bliss has long been a prominent figure in New York politics, but has always refused to run for office because his important business interests demanded all his time and effort. He declined the nomination for governor of New York in 1885 and again in 1891. He several times refused cabinet positions, but in 1897 accepted the portfolio of secretary of the interior under President McKinley, resigning the following year.

The chairmen of the congressional committees of the two big parties direct that end of the political battle and are expected to elect a majority of the house of representatives. Joseph W. Babcock, who has managed the Republican congressional campaign since 1894, is known as the "Sage of Necedah," although he is by no means a graybeard. He is one of the most powerful members of the house and won his place in the councils of his party by his own ability. His friends say he always knows what to do and how to do it.

Mr. Babcock is the father of what is known as the "Iowa idea"—that is to say, the policy of protection must not degenerate into a "shelter for monopoly." He has the personal appearance of a prosperous business man, and is of stocky build, generous girth and florid complexion. He comes of old New England stock and first saw the light of day in Vermont. Mr. Babcock was first sent to Washington as a member of the Fifty-third congress and has since been regularly returned.

Representative William S. Cowherd, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, is a new man in the position, having only recently been elected to succeed Congressman James M. Griggs of Georgia. Mr. Cowherd is one of the leaders on the minority side of the house, and is now serving his fourth term in [illegible]

Memory.

The different kinds of memory are described in an extended article in Cosmos, Paris. It is noted that some children, when they learn a lesson, have only to read it over a few times; others will not remember it unless they have heard it recited; others must repeat it aloud to themselves. These are the three kinds of memory—visual, auditive and motor. Those who need to recite the lesson aloud to themselves are at once auditive and motor. Certain persons retain a passage well only after they have copied it out. These have a combination of motor and visual memory.

PUBLIC LIBRARY BUILDING

Praiseworthy Effort Being Made By the President and Trustees to Secure the Amount Necessary for a Site. All Are Asked to Contribute—A Most Worthy Cause.

Praiseworthy efforts are being made by Mr. E. R. Redhead and the trustees of the Public Library to secure Andrew Carnegie's munificent gift of $15,000 for the erection of a substantial building for the Public Library of this city. This is a work in which all should join—for all will be equally benefited—not only those of this generation, but for ages to come. It is encumbent, therefore, that the subscriptions with which to purchase a site should come from all classes and conditions of men and women—all sharing equally in the honor of raising the required amount with which to purchase a site, viz.: $5,000.

After several conferences of the library trustees and the soliciting committee as to the best plan for raising the funds needed for purchasing the site and furnishings for the new Public Library building, it was decided to divide the city into twelve districts—six on each side of the river—and to appoint a leader or chairman for each district who should organize a canvassing force and have charge of the soliciting work in each district. The following persons have been selected as chairmen; Messrs. Verner W. Shattuck, Joshua Rigley, George B. Fairman, F. J. Switzer, George W. Brooker and Thomas Sullivan on the west side, and Messrs. E. R. Redhead, Charles R. Bennett, John Hunter, Frank W. Richardson, George E. True and Harry L. Platt on the east side.

As soon as the trustees have obtained some of the larger subscriptions, which work is now engaging their attention, and the committees are thoroughly organized in the several districts, a personal canvass of our adult population will be made for subscriptions of $1 and upwards, according to ability. It is desired to make this subscription a popular one in which a large number shall have a part—the larger the better—in this magnificent work.

At least $5,000 will be necessary, and no part of this sum will be binding until the whole amount is secured in cash or good subscriptions. Three months' time will be given, if desired, but on the smaller subscriptions it is hoped that cash will be paid, if possible, so as to avoid the time and expense of collecting small sums.

The school children are making a canvass of their own.

A list of all contributors will be kept and will be published; the list will also be placed in the corner stone of the new library building.

It is hoped that this canvass can be completed within two or three weeks, and that very soon the work of erecting the new Carnegie Library building will begin.

The following are the boundaries of the districts:

WEST SIDE OF RIVER.

No. 1—Verner W. Shattuck, chairman—From the center of Worth street north to the north line of city.

No. 2—F. J. Switzer, chairman—From the center of Worth street south to the south line of lot 74, Granby.

No. 3—G. B. Fairman, chairman—From the south line of lot 74, Granby, to the center of Kellogg street.

WORTHY OF COMMENDATION.

Praiseworthy Devotion to Duty by the Fire Department.

For the first time in the history of Fulton, the chief and several members of the volunteer fire department remained in the engine house during the night of July 3, and all day July 4, for the purpose of facilitating service in the case of fire. Chief Harry L. Waugh was determined that the city should have the best fire protection possible. As this service was voluntary and unremunerated, thanks are due the men who were on guard for others safety throughout the national holiday.

The "Glorious" Fourth.

Young America and some of the elders, ushered in our Nations natal day in a manner most noticable. Several of our patriotic citizens had subscribed a fund of nearly $50 for the purpose of aiding this cause—the contribution always forthcoming with the understanding that the celebrating should be done remote from the doner's residence. The cannon boomed, rifles and pistols were fired, bells were rung and crackers were used freely from midnight. Some of our more prominent citizens were given a rousing serenade during the early morning hours.

Knights of Pythias Excursion.

Pathfinder Lodge, Knights of Pythias, has decided to hold its annual excursion and picnic at Long Branch, on Onondaga Lake, next Tuesday, July 12, and invite their friends to help them make the event one of the largest and most enjoyable excursions of the season.

There is no finer picnic ground in Northern New York at which to have a good old fashioned basket picnic, such as the Knights propose to give. There is a large shady grove, long tables, easy seats, plenty of room, under cover in case of rain, a fine dancing pavilion with first class orchestra, bowling alleys, merry-go-round, boating and different sports.

A base ball game is being arranged between a nine from Fulton and a Syracuse Lodge, which promises to be interesting.

Arrangements are made whereby those wishing to may return on a train reaching Fulton station at 6:15 p. m., and the special will be held until 9:30 or 10 o'clock for those wishing to spend the evening.

With the facilities for trolley rides to Syracuse, Baldwinsville and the other Lake resorts for those who do not wish to spend the whole day at Long Branch, it cannot fail to interest any who contemplate a day's outing during July.

The special train will leave North Fulton at 10 o'clock a. m., stopping at the upper station for any passengers who may wish to get on there. The passengers will be transferred at Pleasant Beach, where the Lakeside road will have cars waiting to convey the picnicers to Long Branch.

The fare for the round trip will be 50 cents for adults and 30 cents for children over five years old. This fare includes the pleasant trolley ride from Pleasant Beach to Long Branch and return. The special trolley will leave Long Branch at 9:30 p.m., meeting the train at Pleasant Beach which will leave at 10 o'clock.

Common Council.

The regular monthly meeting of the Common Council was held last evening. Considerable routine business was transacted. The City Chamberlain, City Judge and City Clerk were granted two weeks vacation each. The following resolution was adopted.

"Resolved, That the Common Council appropriate two hundred and fifty dollars for the purpose of a reward in the detection of the parties who have recently set fire to several buildings within the city, and for such investigation as may be necessary in the case."

An adjournment was taken until next week Tuesday.

Business Meeting, Y. P. C. U.

The monthly business meeting of the Universalist Young People's Christian Union will be held in the church this (Wednesday) evening at 7:30 o'clock. All members are expected to attend.

MARRIED.

Dr. Frank Edward Fox of this city was united in marriage to Miss Maebelle Isora Wetmore of Wichita, Kansas, on Wednesday, June 22. Dr. and Mrs. Fox will be "at home" after July 29, at No. 234 Oneida street, this city. The Times extends hearty congratulations.

Delightful Piano Recital.

Miss Leila Church's class in music gave a recital at her home in Sixth street on Wednesday evening, which was attended by about fifty pupils and their friends. The participants in the program acquitted themselves with credit to themselves and their instructor. Miss Georgetta Foster assisted Miss Church and delighted all who were present with a solo. Three prizes were awarded pupils by Miss Church as follows: First grade, photos of great composers, to Mildred Faulkner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Faulkner; second grade, a book, "First studies in Biography," by Tapper; to Dorothy Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Webb; third grade, a book, "Pictures from the Lives of Great Composers," by Tapper, to Barbara Gilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace N. Gilbert. Glenn Ford received honorable mention for the excellent work he had done during the past five months. At the conclusion of the program, light refreshments were served. The recital was thoroughly enjoyed.

Proposed Young People's Club.

The ladies of the southern part of the city appreciate the needs of the young people. As proof of this they are planning the formation of a Young Peoples Club. A building at the corner of Fourth and State streets, adjoining the new tennis court has been rented and fitted for the purpose. Furnished rooms and dinners may be obtained. The rooms will be open both afternoon and evening. Ice cream, home made candies, literature, games and various entertainment will be provide for the young people of both sexes.

The Club will be formally opened Wednesday evening, July 6, and will be under the management of the ladies. All interested are invited to attend and inspect the rooms and join in this laudable movement. The young people from all parts of city can show their appreciation by patronizing the Club rooms.

George J. Woodcock, aged 60, died at his home four miles south of this city on Friday. The funeral was held from his late home on Tuesday morning, the Rev G. R. Foster officiating. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah. The deceased is survived by his widow and two daughters.

In Penn Yan on June 30, occurred the death of Lillian G, wife of Dr. Charles Shumway, at the age of 26. The remains were brought to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hollenbeck, five miles east of this city, on Friday and the funeral was held on Sunday. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

Fourth of July Fires.

The Fire Department had a busy time on Monday night when four fires demanded their attention. The cause for the fires is unknown, although it is suspected that carelessness with fire crackers caused nearly all of them. The large barn, corner of West Fourth and Phillips streets belonging to Mr. Thomas Wright was destroyed with its contents entailing a loss of over $1,000.

At three o'clock the firemen were called to the Eureka Paper Mill storehouse where a blaze had started in some rags. The blaze was extinguished with little loss.

An old barn at the corner of Pratt and Canal streets was destroyed.

The Willis Nelson saw mill in Hubbard street, was totally destroyed, with its entire contents, early in the morning, at a loss estimated at $1,500.

A false alarm was sent in from box 59 at 1 o'clock on Tuesday morning.

Card of Thanks.

We want to thank each and all for services and kindnesses rendered us during the fire at the home of Mr. L. P. Deesz.

Happy Widows.

Realizing that nothing in the line of celebrating was being done in Fulton on July 4, the widows in Utica street between Third and Fourth streets, decided to observe the day in fitting manner, and at 6 o'clock they gathered at the home of Mrs. Hannah Fish and Mrs Amos Wolever for that purpose. The lawn had been decorated with flags and bunting and a long table placed thereon which groaned, 'neath a load of delicious edibles and was most beautifully decorated. The ten widows, the Mesdames Fish, Wolever, Cable, Law, Slocum, Highriter, Lawrence, Ervine, Cooper and Henderson, all in high spirits, gathered round the festive board, determined to do or die in their country's cause, and each attached the toothsome viands placed before them by the Misses Mary Marsh, Eunice Sisson, and Sara Perry, as though each helping might be the last.

With the ices came wit and humor, and later came a lone widower with roses. Each guest supposed the floral offering was for her, but at a seasonable hour the lone masculine departed, bearing with him the flowers. The widows enjoyed the event so heartily that they now propose to meet together again before the close of leap year, and the subject for debate will undoubtedly be, who do you think he intended the roses for?

The Korean.

The Korean is omnivorous. Birds of the air, beasts of the field and fish from the sea—nothing comes amiss to his palate. Dog meat is in great request at certain seasons, pork and beef with the blood undrained from the carcass, fowls and game, birds cooked with the lights, giblets, head and claws intact, fish sun dried and highly malodorous—all are acceptable to him.

The Foolish Man

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last Summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by H. C. Giesler.

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

When Honeymoons End.

The late Mrs. John Ridgway of Paris was noted for her ready wit. At one of her receptions apropos of marriage Guy de Maupassant said:

"The honeymoon ends when the wife first asks the husband for money."

"No," Mrs. Ridgway retorted. "It ends when the husband ceases to ask the wife how much he can have the pleasure of giving her."

Strengthened His Suspicion.

Hugh Miller in "My Schools and Schoolmasters" tells us that while he was making his first after dinner speech he began to suspect that he was making a failure of it. This suspicion was strengthened when he took his seat, for the band at once began to play "A Man's a Man For A' That."

Attractive.

"Yes, his painting attracts a great many people."

"Great artist, eh?"

"No; just a house painter. He puts out a sign, 'Fresh Paint,' and every one touches it to see if it's dry."

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This remedy is certain to be needed in almost every home before the summer is over. It can always be depended upon even in the most severe and dangerous cases. It is especially valuable for summer disorders in children. It is pleasant to take and never fails to give prompt relief. Why not buy it now? It may save life. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

A ROYAL ALLIANCE.

Will Princess Thyra Marry Into Family of Emperor William?

An alliance between the royal houses of Germany and Denmark that would strengthen friendly relations between these two countries is a possibility of the near future which is exciting interest abroad. This could be accomplished through the marriage of the German Crown Prince Frederick William to Princess Thyra of Denmark. Strained feelings have existed for many years between Denmark and Germany, but the recent visit of the Danish crown prince at Berlin and his reception by the kaiser and princes of the imperial family are thought to indicate the establishment of cordial relations.

The princess is the youngest daughter of the crown prince of Denmark and is a niece of the queen of England. Her brother Charles is the husband of one of King Edward's daughters, the Princess Maud. The Princess Thyra herself is not in any haste to contract a matrimonial alliance, it is said. In fact, she has declared that she will never wed. But as young ladies have said such things before and changed their minds the declaration of the princess is not taken seriously.

A Positive Dandruff Cure!

Is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

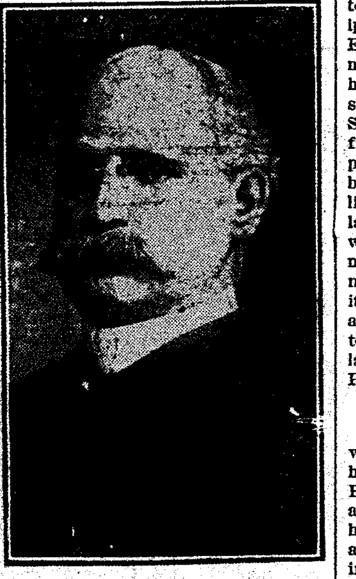
VICTOR HOWARD METCALF.

Mr. Roosevelt's Choice as the Next Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

The recent appointment of Attorney General Knox to the late Mr. Quay's seat in the senate and the choice of Secretary Cortelyou of the department of commerce and labor as chairman of the Republican national committee will result in several important changes in the cabinet of the president. The Hon. Victor Howard Metcalf, who is to take Mr. Cortelyou's place as head of the department of commerce and labor, is from California, and his appointment, therefore, gives the Pacific coast a representative in the cabinet. The president has confidence in Mr. Metcalf's knowledge of commercial law and for this reason is said to have selected him for the important post in question.



VICTOR HOWARD METCALF.

Mr. Metcalf was born in Utica, N. Y., Oct. 10, 1853. He attended the Utica Free academy and Russell's Military academy in New Haven, Conn., and in 1872 entered Yale university. Leaving the academic department in his junior year, he began the study of law at the Yale Law school, graduating from it in 1876. After practicing law in Utica for two years he removed to California, locating in Oakland. He was elected to congress from the Third district of California in 1898 and was re-elected in 1900 and 1902. He is a member of the ways and means committee of the house, is generally popular in congress and, next to Senator Perkins, is regarded as the most influential member of the California delegation at the national capital.

The Englishwoman's Latchkey.

Talking about the British aristocracy, a woman who has met it on its native heath tells me that the feminine section of it never stirs out without a latchkey. We carry latchkeys over here, but we don't do it in the British way. The American woman ties her key in the corner of her handkerchief or hides it under the mat or puts it into her purse along with cold cream recipes and car tickets and samples. The Englishwoman parades hers. The woman who knows her tells me that she has seen latchkeys set with precious stones and fastened to long chains. She has seen them gilded and strung from belts; she has seen them with pins on the back of them, worn as brooches. She tells me that the Englishwoman would no sooner leave her latchkey at home than her husband would his bath. The thing is possibly new to the Englishwoman and, being new, is paraded. With us over here it is an old story. Possessing the reality, the symbol is of small moment to us. We are content to leave the latchkey under the mat.—Washington Post.

A Philosopher as a Fisherman.

Herbert Spencer once won a curious wager. He was staying for a fishing holiday in the house of Sir Francis Powell, the president of the Scottish academy, and while angling for trout he happened to drop his eyeglasses into a deep pool of the river. In the evening he related his misadventure to his host and the guests, and said that he was prepared to bet that he would recover the pince-nez from the bottom of the pool. His friends declared that this was an impossible feat, but Herbert Spencer still offered to make the bet. His challenge was accepted by one of the visitors. Upon the following evening Spencer returned to the house with the missing eyeglasses. He had fastened a strong magnet on the end of his fishing line and fished for the glasses until it came into contact with their steel rims.

Floating Targets of the Sea.

Even the French and British warships that patrol the Newfoundland coast during the fishery season do not escape the danger of icebergs, crowded with men and carefully navigated though the vessels are. The ice masses serve a novel purpose for the fleets all the summer through, being used as targets for big gun practice. When a specially formidable one drifts along past St. John's a cruiser slips her moorings and runs to sea after it, pelting it with projectiles until she fires away her allowance. It is one of the sights of St. John's, the endless procession of icebergs of every size and shape that drift by day after day, charming the eye and cooling the summer atmosphere. Sometimes they ground in the harbor mouth and prevent ships entering or leaving.—P. T. McGrath in McClure's.

MARCONI'S LATEST HIT.

The Wireless Daily Newspaper In Midocean a Complete Success.

Signor Guglielmo Marconi, whose success in the application of the principles of wireless telegraphy is one of the marvels of the twentieth century, has scored a hit from all points of view in his latest project, the publication of daily newspapers in midocean on board the great Atlantic liners. Hitherto transatlantic passengers on reaching land have been very anxious to get the news. They could scarcely wait for the steamer to reach her dock to learn what had happened on shore while they were on the ocean. But hereafter on ships which have wireless daily newspapers for the pleasure and convenience of their patrons no such eagerness to learn the news is likely to be manifested when the steamers arrive in port.

The Cunard Daily Bulletin is the name of the first daily newspaper to be published in midocean by the aid of wireless telegraphy. The Cunard liner Campania had the honor of witnessing the birth of this new venture in journalism. During a recent trip from Liverpool to New York the paper was printed every morning and gave in brief form all the important news of the world as well as "local news"—that is, reports of doings on shipboard. The newspaper was set up and printed at night and delivered to passengers at breakfast time. Signor Marconi himself assisted the wireless telegraph operators in the receipt of wireless messages for the various editions. The latest movements of the Russian and Japanese armies, the introduction of the budget in the Canadian parliament, the tests of submarine torpedo boats in American waters, the playing of Travis in the golf tournament in England and the landing of American marines at Tangier were among the events chronicled. In one issue news was published from Cape Breton, 2,000 miles distant, of the passing of icebergs by various vessels.

Marconi predicts that such journals will soon be regular features of ocean voyages on all important steamship lines.

A Fish With Hands.

Zoologists have long regarded the fish which remains for days out of water and climbs trees as one of the strangest departures from nature, but the most wonderful of these is the periophthalmus of the west African coast. It not only is at much at home on land as in water, but climbs the mangrove roots and takes long journeys about the swamps on them and builds itself mud houses raised above the surface, with an opening at the top, from which its bulging eyes stare out at every alarm. For this life the fish is fitted with long arms, with elbow and wrist, while the fingers are separated and prehensile, instead of being flat and finlike. These hands in the African species hold the mangrove roots in climbing and are the means of propulsion through the mud. The round eyes project from the skull and can be turned in every direction; hence the Greek name, which may be freely translated "rolling eyes."

Wellington as a Scout.

The Duke of Wellington, according to G. R. Gleig's reminiscences, was ignorant of most things and seemed incapable of learning. Once, for instance, he asked Arbuthnot how turnips propagated, whether by seed or by cuttings like potatoes. But he was a scout! Once upon a time he and Croker beguiled a drive by guessing the nature of the country beyond the hills which they mounted. The duke's guesses were always correct, and Croker at last asked the reason. "The reason?" replied the duke. "Why, what have I been doing the greater part of my life except that which we are doing now—trying to make out from what I saw the shape of the country which I could not see?"

Great Sunken Lake.

In the Cascade mountains, about seventy-five miles east of Jacksonville, Ore., the seeker of the curious will find the Great Sunken lake, the deepest lake in the world, so far as its situation is concerned, for it is said to average 2,000 feet down to the water on all sides. The depth of the water is unknown, and its surface is smooth and unruffled by the strongest winds. It is about fifteen miles in length and four and one-half wide. For unknown ages it has lain still, silent and mysterious in the bosom of the great mountain range, as though scooped out by the hand of a giant genie.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

For President of the United States,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT
of New York.

For Vice-President,
of Indiana.

IT is all very amusing, and perhaps instructive, to keep constantly reading in the Democratic papers that delegates to St. Louis have been instructed to vote for Judge Parker. And suppose they all do vote for Parker, what then? If no stronger candidate can be found to oppose those nominated at Chicago, the Democratic goose is already cooked.

PERHAPS the most remarkable ceremony ever witnessed at any university took place at Wesleyan, Middletown, Conn., when Prof. Atwater of nutrition and calorimeter fame, gave to each members of the graduating class a day's ration of "alcholic food." He wanted them to try it for themselves and prove that it really is food, or bottled energy.

ALREADY there is a scramble out in Indiana by the men who are willing to serve the United States in the Senate in place of Senator Fairbanks. The race is between Gov. Durbin and the following members of Congress: Charles B. Landis, James A. Hemenway and Edgar D. Crumpacker, with the odds in favor of Landis, famous as an orator.

MUCH alarm and newspaper discussion has resulted from the fact that immigrants can now cross the Atlantic for $10. It has been given out that most of the poor people in the Old World would at once embark for America, the land of prosperity and high wages. As a matter of fact the immigration up to date is a little less than that of last year when the passage cost more. It is estimated that the total for 1904 will not exceed [illegible]00,000.

SENATOR FAIRBANKS will take the stump in Indiana and a number of good speeches are expected from him. He has a grit, for only a little over thirty years ago he was a farmer's boy in Ohio, bending his back to the really useful strenuous life which has made so many of our great men. From that to law; from law to wealth; and from wealth to politics and the Senate. He will make a very dignified presiding officer when he becomes Vice-President.

As usual, Kansas farmers are crying out for help to gather the harvest, notwithstanding, they have had a year of cloud bursts, floods and cyclones. But there are those who remember how some harvesters who went to Kansas last year were treated. They were laughed at, jeered, worked to death, poorly fed, and some of them could not collect their wages, and were turned out to find their way East as well as they could. This sort of things is not soon forgotten. The few days harvesters would find employment in Kansas would not pay the fare out and back. People who are well off will stay at home.

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN of Cornell University continues to take a gloomy view of the future of this country. The other day he told the graduating class that they leave the university at a time of profound unrest, political, social and religious. And he asked, "Is the republic to remain a Democratic organization under which men with equal rights govern themselves, or is it to become a tyrannical organization under which special interests of capital, labor or the military spirit [illegible] to control the destinies of men?" [illegible] the election the profound unrest [illegible] become less profound, and the [illegible] will know what to expect for [illegible] more.

Cornell Scholarship Endowment.

At a special meeting of the Fulton High school Alumni As-ociation, held on Thursday evening, it was decided that the association would establish a precedent for alumni associations and endow a perpetual scholarship in Cornell University at a cost of $2,500. This was following out the suggestion made at the annual banquet two weeks ago by the president, Dr. H. P. Marsh. A committee consisting of the Misses Mabel Osborne, Anna Hartigan, Olive Baker, and the Messrs. L. W. Emerick and Walter Draper, was appointed to acquaint all absent members of the association with the facts, and to solicit their assistance in this magnificent work. Many favorable and encouraging replies have already been received.

Stephens Opera House.

The Sharpley Stock Company has been booked to play a return engagement at the Stephens Opera House all this week. Any comment from us is unnecessary, as the citizens of Fulton already know the strength of this company. They played an engagement here a short time ago. The artists with this company have been selected with the utmost care, each being especially adapted for the part they play. A special matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon. An entire change of specialties at each performance. Remember the price is only 10 cents.

Full line of Photographic supplies at lowest prices. Lasher's bookstore.

50,000 SHARES

Of the Capital Stock of the

International Broom Comp'y,

Now offered at

50 CENTS A SHARE

I would respectfully call your attention to the stock of the International Broom Company of New York, as a safe investment. This company owns and operates the patent for making the Kaptop Brooms, of which the FULTON KAPTOP BROOM CO. is a licensed company.

The International Broom Company makes the metal cap and sells them to the subsidiary companies at a price which gives them a good profit. Besides this the subsidiary companies pay a royalty to the International Broom Company of from 20 to 25 cents on every dozen brooms manufactured and sold by them, the price of royalty depending upon the amount sold.

The following companies are now operated:

THE FULTON KAPTOP BROOM COMPANY, which has only been established about three months, is now making fifty dozen brooms a day, and will shortly increase their output to one hundred dozen per day.

THE ADVANCE BROOM COMPANY of Philadelphia, Pa., is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE NEW ENGLAND BROOM COMPANY of New Haven, Ct., is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE SUPERIOR BROOM COMPANY of Kansas City, is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE MANHATTAN BROOM COMPANY of Brooklyn, N. Y., is now making over one hundred dozen brooms per day.

The Company is about to establish sub-companies in the cities of Chicago, Ill., Pittsburg, Pa., Detroit, Mich., Baltimore, Md., St. Paul, Minn., and Washington, D. C., and negotiations have been practically closed for a sub-company in the City of Mexico. There are several applications for sub-companies still pending, but not yet acted upon.

The International Broom Company was incorporated under and pursuant to the laws of the District of Columbia in January, 1903. The present officers of the corporation are as follows: President, W. A. Shepard, a Syracuse whisk broom manufacturer; Vice-President, Jas. K. Polk, lawyer, Washington, D. C.; Secretary, Reuben S. Baldwin, Treasurer Empire Securities Corporation, New York; Treasurer, Henry F. Heuchel, retired contractor and builder, Brooklyn, N. Y. Executive Committee, W. A. Shepard, M. L. Shillak, R. S. Baldwin and H. F. Heuchel, all of New York.

I am offering at this time, 50,000 Shares of the capital stock of the company, par value $1.00, fully paid and non-assessable, at 50 CENTS per share. This stock is issued for the sole purpose of enlarging the capacity of the plant in New York, to meet the increased demand that will be made on them in the manufacture of kaptops. The Company believes that much of the stock ought to be disposed of where the sub-companies are situated; where the people are familiar with the undertaking. After this 50,000 shares are sold there will be no more stock offered. This is a splendid opportunity for a good and safe investment.

Some well-known men are interested in the local company in Fulton, which is in itself a guarantee of the standing of the International Broom Company.

It is confidently expected that within the next three months the Company will pay a dividend on the par value of their stock, and I feel sure that this proposition will warrant your investigation. I will be pleased to call upon you in regard to the same, and supply any further information desired.

THIS LABEL ON GARMENTS:

Schloss Bros & Co. Wholesale Drapers. COPYRIGHTED 1891

Guarantees Superiority.

Pictures Do Not Make Clothes

SOME of the highly artistic clothing illustrations done in gilt and otherwise, somehow or other suggest a "can opener." If you had your little hammer and would rap on one of these suits you could hear it rattle.

These fashion plates that look like tin ware, are meant to simulate hair-cloth stiffness.

Take our honest word for it, these hair-cloth fronts are a glittering deception. They fit like a coat of mail till they break and then they look sad,—just how sad, every man who has actually worn one knows full well.

THE CLOTHING made by Schloss Bros. & Co., doesn't have to rely upon such artifices for good looks or shape-retaining style.

A SCHLOSS COAT is held up by good tailoring and good cloth. Knowing how to do this thing right is their trade secret.

A SCHLOSS COAT has a natural "hang" about it that we like to describe as "draping." It gives the garment a graceful, unforced look, that has an indescribable charm for the particular man with artistic sensibilities.

Everything that enters into this coat is the best that brains can select and money can buy. No detail of construction is to insignificant to be disregarded. The wrong button too frequently spoils an otherwise perfect garment.

THE SCHLOSS COAT has a perfect fitting collar and hollowed out shoulders of broad effect; minus the "little tin soldier" front, so much in evidence in other makes of clothing. There is no stuffed or padded look about the shoulder so common in clothing made by houses that give less attention to artistic details.

If you have never investigated the Art-Tailored Clothing of Schloss Bros. & Co. a revelation awaits you.

IF "SCHLOSS" is on the label you're safe.

SCHLOSS is the kind we sell.

"Drop in and let us talk it over."

FIFTY YEARS OF EMANCIPATION

Senator Depew's Rattling Speech Seconding Nomination of Fairbanks.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew made the first speech seconding the nomination of Senator Fairbanks for vice president at the Republican national convention held in Chicago, on June 23. A remark coming from a delegate, "Have you had your dinner?" was used by the Senator as a text. He said:

My friend wants to know if I have had my dinner, but what I am about to say is in behalf of dinners for the American people. [Laughter and cries of "Good."]

I cannot help thinking, in listening to the eloquence with which we have been entertained this morning, what will be the difference when our Democratic friends meet on July 6 to go through with their duty of nominating candidates and adopting a platform. We here have been unanimous upon our candidates, all agreed upon our principles, all recognizing and applauding our great statesmen, living and dead, and agreeing with them, while on the other hand in that convention there will be the only two living exponents of Democratic principles.

On the one side will be their only president, rising and saying, "Be sane," while on the other side, in opposition, will come their last candidate for president, saying, "Be Democrats." The two are incompatible. [Laughter and applause.]

I present two thoughts which it seems to me in the flood of our oratory have been passed by. There has been criticism of this convention that it was without enthusiasm and perfunctory and would occupy little place in history. But this convention is an epoch making convention because it marks the close of fifty years of the life of the Republican party.

That fifty years—if we should divide recorded time into periods of half a century—the fifty years from 1854 to 1904 would concentrate more that has been done in this world for the uplifting of humanity than all the half centuries which have preceded.

While this half century has done so much in electricity, so much in steam, so much in inventions, so much in medicine, so much in surgery and in science, its one distinguishing characteristic will be that it was the half century of emancipation—emancipation all over the world, led mainly by the American thought and the success of the American experiment.

But when for our purpose we look back over the accomplishment of this half century we find that the best part of it, that which has made most for the welfare of the country, most for emancipation, has been done by the Republican party.

Just one word to throw the picture on the wall. In 1854 the Missouri compromise was repealed and the territory whose purchase is now being celebrated at St. Louis was dedicated to slavery, and in 1863 Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves. [Applause.]

In 1854 James Buchanan at Ostend issued the manifesto to buy or conquer Cuba for slavery, and in 1900 William McKinley set up Cuba as an independent republic. [Applause.] In 1854 the first cable flashed under the Atlantic ocean, and the use of this tremendous discovery came from a Republican president who was the only president since the formation of the country who had presided over the destinies of a free people, with freedom in the constitution, and the Declaration of Independence no longer a living lie.

America's Commercial Progress.

So it is also in diplomacy. Fifty years ago those of our people who were located among the semicivilized nations of Asia and Africa placed themselves under the protection of the consuls of Great Britain or the European government most influential in that territory. Today an American fleet appears in the harbor of Tangier, and the secretary of state sends the thrilling message, "We want Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead." [Cheers.]

Now, it was only sixty years ago, ten years preceding the birth of the Republican party, when that great wit and great writer, Sydney Smith, asked, In the four quarters of the globe who reads an American book or goes to an American play or looks at an American picture or statue? What does the world yet owe to American physicians and surgeons? What new substances have their chemists discovered or what old ones have they analyzed? What new constellations have been discovered by the telescopes of Americans? What have they done in mathematics? Who drinks out of American glasses or eats from American plates or wears American coats or gowns or sleeps in American blankets?

The answer is that from the figures coming yesterday from the Department of Commerce and Labor we discovered that this year $450,000,000 of manufactured articles from American looms and factories go into European markets to compete with the highly organized industrial nations of the world in their own market places. [Applause.]

An American can start and go around the world and not leave his country. He can cross the Pacific to Yokohama in a Northern Pacific steamer. He rides through Japan and China on American electrical appliances. He goes 6,000 miles across the Siberian railway in American cars, drawn by American locomotives, ... alongside of their orange groves, he finds California and Florida oranges. In France he drinks wine labeled French which has come from San Francisco. [Laughter and applause.]

He crosses the Nile upon a bridge made in Pittsburg. [Applause.] In an English hotel he goes to his room near the roof in an elevator manufactured in New York. His feet are in carpets made in Yonkers. On the banks of the Ganges he reads his cables by an electric light run by an American and made in America. He goes under old London in tunnels dug and run by American machinery and American genius, and then he goes to Newcastle and finds that the impossible has been profitably accomplished, and coals—American coals—are carried to Newcastle. [Laughter and applause.]

Now, my friends, while we represent the positive, the convention which meets on the 6th of July represents that element unknown heretofore in American politics, the opportunist. It is waiting for bankruptcy, waiting for panic, waiting for industrial depression, waiting for financial distress.

There was an old farmer upon the Maine coast who owned a farm with a rocky ledge running out into the ocean and called Hurricane Point; on it ships were wrecked, and he gathered his harvest from the wreckage, and, in his will, he wrote, "I divide my farm equally among my children, but Hurricane Point shall be kept for all of you forever, for while the winds blow and the waves roll the Lord will provide." [Great laughter.] But we have put a lighthouse on Hurricane Point, a lighthouse of protection, with a revolving light shedding golden beams over the ocean, and American commerce in going and coming is absolutely safe. [Applause.]

Time eliminates reputations. One or two men represent a period. There are very few statesmen who are remembered by succeeding generations. The heroes of the civil war on both sides are reduced in popular recollection to two names. Issues and events, which make history, bring out qualities of greatness in those specially gifted for statesmanship and government. The constructive genius of the country was first in the Federal, then in the Democratic, then in the Whig and for the past half century in the Republican party. This is the result: In our first era the leaders were Washington, Hamilton and Adams, Federalists; in the second era, Jefferson and Jackson, Democrats; in the third era, Webster and Clay, Whigs; in the fourth and most productive era of all that makes life worth living and citizenship valuable, Lincoln, Grant and McKinley, all Republicans. [Applause.]

We love Roosevelt because of his "indiscretions." When everybody else thought it foolish his foresight provided powder and ball for Dewey. When the financial world said it was folly to enforce the laws the supreme court of the United States justified the wisdom of the president. Who calls him rash, impetuous and tumultuous? It is the statesmen who enacted the Wilson bill, with its attendant distress, bankruptcy and ruin; the statesmen who would have given us silver at 16 to 1, with the inevitable collapse of our home industries and our foreign markets; it is the statesmen who would give up the Philippines and would have lost the opportunity to build the isthmian canal while discussing questions of international law and constitutional prerogatives. [Applause.]

To Roosevelt's "impulsiveness," "rashness" and "indiscretions" we owe the settlement of the coal strike, which, if continued, would have produced among a freezing people in the great cities and among millions thrown out of employment, because of manufactories shut down, suffering, riot and revolution. We owe to Roosevelt's "indiscretions," "rashness" and "impetuosity" the removal of the fear and the perils of gigantic trusts by proving that they are the creatures of and within the power of the law. We owe to Roosevelt's "indiscretions," "rashness" and "impetuosity" the solution of the problem of 400 years, the realization of the hope of the statesmen of this country for more than a half of a century, the fruition of the dream of Columbus and the welding of the east and the west and gaining of the Pacific ocean and the orient for our commerce, in the concession of the right and the beginning of the work of the construction of the isthmian canal. If, as our opponents say, the campaign is Roosevelt, we follow the fortunes of our young leader, confident of victory. [Applause.]

Office of Vice President.

And now, gentlemen, it seems to me we have not attached enough importance to the office of vice president of the United States. [Applause.] It was not so among the fathers. Then of the two highest potential presidential possibilities one took the presidency, the other the vice presidency. But in the last forty years ridicule and caricature have placed the office almost in contempt.

Let us remember that Thomas Jefferson, let us remember that old John Adams, let us remember that John C. Calhoun and George Clinton and Martin Van Buren were vice presidents of the United States. Eighty million people want for vice president a presidential figure of full size.

He presides over the senate, but he does more than that. He is the confidant of the senators. He is the silent member of every committee. He is influential in that legislation which originates and which is shaped in the senate, and now that we have become a world power, now that treaties make for either our prosperity, our open door or closed harbors, he is necessarily an important factor in the machinery of the government.

By the tragic death of McKinley the vice president was elevated to the presidency, and to ... have renominated the vice president who thus came to be the president. [Applause.]

All that has been said here about Theodore Roosevelt is true, but the highest tribute to him is that the American people for the first time unanimously demand that a vice president shall be the elect of their choice for the presidency of the United States.

Now, gentlemen, it is my privilege in looking for vice presidential possibilities to announce what you all know—that we have found a vice presidential candidate of full presidential size. [Applause.] Everybody knows that if the towering figure of Theodore Roosevelt had been out of this canvass one of the promising candidates before this convention for president of the United States would have been Charles W. Fairbanks. [Applause.]

And New York, appreciating his great ability as a lawyer, appreciating the national name he has made for himself as a senator, appreciating his dignity, his character and his genius for public affairs, seconds the nomination of Charles W. Fairbanks for vice president of the United States. [Prolonged applause and cheering.]

Tonics.

Health of body is directly dependent on obedience to natural laws and is not to be kept by any medicinal means when those laws are broken. The system may, however, be so "run down" that it is unable to use pure air, exercise and good food as a healthy system can use them. It then needs something which will enable it to derive from these things the benefits they can yield. The "something" is a tonic, but it should be given only until the natural means—air, food and exercise—are producing good results. Perhaps a familiar illustration will make things clearer: A man works the handle of a pump disused for many weeks during hot, dry weather. No water comes. He then pours water down the pump. This causes the sucker to swell and act. He does not need to pour more water. Unfortunately all tonics confer almost immediately an increased sense of well being. And if a person has fallen into ill health by a badly regulated life he will feel so happy under the tonic that he will be inclined to pursue the old course; hence his health will be undergoing slow destruction while he believes it to be gaining in strength. Then a time comes when the tonic fails and the exhausted system collapses.

Could Talk Shop.

A Washington merchant used to tell this story of Mrs. Stover, a daughter of President Andrew Johnson, who resided at the White House during the presidency of her father:

"Mrs. Stover came to my store and bought a stylish cloak of the then modern pattern, the price of which was $75. She had it sent to the White House and charged to President Johnson's account. About one week later she sent the cloak back, and as we had not received cash for it we were obliged to take it. Mrs. Stover gave no explanation of her course then. But a short time afterward when she visited the store I asked her what was the cause of her dissatisfaction with the cloak, and she answered:

"'I was satisfied with it, but papa was not. He said that the cloth was not of the best, the workmanship inferior and the price too high. Now, it is useless for you to argue with me about it, for I don't know anything about it. If you want to argue about it, go to the White House and see papa. He was a tailor, you know, and he can talk shop to you all right.'"

The Breakfast Table Strategist.

The boarding house keeper was entertaining a friend of her youth, who was much impressed by the landlady's success. A question or two as to method led the keeper of the boarding house to disclose her secret.

"If it hadn't been for my breakfast system I should never have been able to lay by a single penny," said the boarding house keeper, with modest pride.

"Your breakfast system?" echoed the friend.

"Yes, my breakfast system," was the brisk reply. "You see, my boarders are all business people, so they have to be downtown at a certain time. I serve the week day breakfasts piping hot, so hot they have to wait a little for things to cool, and then they haven't time to eat so much.

"Sundays I serve them rather cool, and then they don't care to eat much. Holidays I make the breakfasts especially good and just hot enough, so they decide they'll wait awhile before moving, as perhaps they had intended. It works beautifully!"

Final Settlement.

"Do you know a man of the name of Beaseley around these parts?" asked the tourist.

"I surely do," answered the tall native.

"What kind of a man is he?"

"Good fi-nan-cier—mighty good. I had a farm, an' he schemed me out of that. I had a little property in town, an' he's got that. I used to buy groceries at his store, but he formed a combine, an' they boosted prices. I had a wife, but the way he beat me disgusted her so that she left. In fact, he's got everything I ever had. See this shotgun?"

"Yes."

"I'm goin' down an' interview him now. I jist got a note sayin' he'd give me $400 fer four square inches of my skin to graft on his arm that was burnt last week. He's welcome to the farm, an' the town property, an' so forth, but I'll be dad blamed if I don't draw the line when it comes to givin' him my skin. S'long, pardner."—Indianapolis Sun.

CAL-CURA SOLVENT

Dissolves and swiftly removes stone and gravel (red and white) from the Kidneys and Bladder, thus relieving the pain of Kidney Colic and avoiding the use of the surgeon's knife. Calcura Solvent prevents the formation of uric acid in the Blood and corrects those conditions of the Stomach which produce Gout poisoning and Rheumatism. Calcura Solvent is A NEW MEDICINE. It expels gall stones, gives health to the liver, and cures bilious colic and constipation. Dr. David Kennedy said of it, "Calcura Solvent is the outcome of my long experience as a Physician and Surgeon and I consider it the greatest achievement of my life." Freaks of Icebergs.

The fishermen of Newfoundland possess the curious faculty of being able, as they say, to smell icebergs and thereby escape many encounters with them. Really, however, the fact is that the approach of a berg is heralded by a sudden and decided cooling of the atmosphere, which these experienced mariners soon perceive and are warned by. But oftentimes a vessel will run into a nest of bergs and may have to be towed to safety by her boats. A frequent cause of disaster is that, the submerged section of a berg being caught in the grip of a current, the mass moves steadily against wind and sea and crashes into the craft before she can escape. The same circumstances cause the remarkable sight sometimes witnessed of floes driven one way by the wind, while bergs cut a wide swath through them in another direction, impelled by the currents. The lee of a berg is often a favorite shelter from storm, and arctic steamers, northern whalers and Newfoundland sealers frequently adopt the novel expedient of anchoring to bergs which experience shows them to be surely balanced.

Made It Brief.

Dr. John Kerr, in his book of memoirs, recalls a number of humorous Scotch stories. For example, there is the story of the "argumentatively tipsy" Scot, who, calling on the minister and being told to go home and return the next day when he was sober, replied, "Man, minister, when I'm sober I dinna care for religious conversation." Then there is the story about Thomas Thorp, who died leaving his fortune to a poor relative on condition that a headstone with the name of the said Thomas Thorp and a verse of poetry be erected beside the grave. Costing so much a word to chisel letters in the stone, the poor relative ordered that the poetry should be brief. Upon his refusal to approve on account of their too great length the lines

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Kilkenny Cats.

During the rebellion which occurred in Ireland in 1798, or it may be in 1803, Kilkenny was garrisoned by a troop of Hessian soldiers who amused themselves in barracks by tying two cats together by their tails and throwing them across a clothesline to fight. The officer, hearing of the cruel practice, resolved to stop it. As he entered the room one of the troopers, seizing a sword, cut the tails in two as the animals hung across the line. The two cats escaped, minus their tails, through the open window, and when the officer inquired the meaning of the two bleeding tails being left in the room he was coolly told that two cats had been fighting and had devoured each other, all but the tails.

Love Among the Spiders.

"A spider's love for her children is pretty strong," said a biologist. "Take her children away from her and she will remember them for twenty-four hours."

"How do you know?"

"I have often made the experiment. Always, at the end of ten, twelve, twenty hours, a spider mother welcomes back the young that you have removed from her. After a full day has passed, though, she forgets. Keep her little ones away from her a full day and they are strangers to her on their return. She is liable to eat them.

"Her marital is stronger than her maternal love. Take her husband from her and she will mourn him faithfully for a day and a half."

H. C. Giesler.

ask the readers of this paper who are suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia to call on them at once and get a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. If you knew the value of this remedy as we know it, you would not suffer another day. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a thorough digestant and tissue-building tonic as well. It is endorsed personally by hundreds of people whom it has cured of indigestion, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart and stomach troubles generally. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. It is pleasant, palatable and strengthening.

"Tattletale" Boys.

Both teachers and parents should discourage tattling among children. The practice is bad enough among girls, but is contemptible among boys. A boy who tells tales on others will doubtless be properly castigated by the courts of juvenile justice which convene in alleys and back lots, but he should not have the satisfaction of feeling that his punishment is in the nature of martyrdom nor should he be made a favorite with his teacher for doing that which most boys instinctively detest. Boys have always been educated to regard tattling as cowardice. This code of ethics has developed some pretty good men. It is good enough for the present generation of schoolboys.—Chicago Tribune.

To Preserve Cut Carnations.

To prevent that premature bursting of the calyx which so often injures the appearance of several varieties of carnations, especially the cut blooms, turn down the calyx of each blossom and slip beneath it close to the base of the sepals and quite out of sight a tiny collar of soft silk or cotton thread. Tie and cut off the ends of the thread, then turn the calyx back to its natural position, smoothing it carefully over the thread collar, and the flower will retain its perfect shape until it fades and dies.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Weak Hearts

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, the stomach expands--swells, and puffs up against the heart. This crowds the heart and shortens the breath. Rapid heart beats and heart disease is the final result. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat, takes the strain off the heart, cures indigestion dyspepsia, sour stomach, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Sold by H. C Giesler.

Clever Detective Work.

A distinguished surgeon, who was also a detective in embryo, was called to perform an operation upon a man who had been shot by an unknown assassin. The position of the man and the mystery of the shooting rendered the case notorious. The man was unconscious at the time of the operation, and nothing could be obtained from him. When the doctor examined the wound, he said to his assistant:

"A pistol has been fired at him by a person who is left handed."

While he was explaining the reasons for his conclusion Mr. ——'s partner, a Mr. X., entered the room. Something about his manner attracted the attention of the eminent surgeon, and he whispered to his colleague:

"If that man were left handed, I should at once suspect him of the crime."

The next instant he turned to X. and said:

"Will you kindly hand me that lint?"

X. did so, using his left hand. The man died. X. was accused of the murder and upon being tried and condemned confessed his guilt.

A certain railroad, according to the Boston Transcript, has set its face against the free pass evil and has resorted to Scripture to make plain its position. It has posted in the two or three passenger cars that comprise its equipment the following notice:

This means you!

None shall ever pass.—Isaiah xxxiv, 10.
Suffer not a man to pass.—Judges iii, 29.
The wicked shall no more pass.—Nahum i, 15.

Grilled Lion Steaks.

An explorer who has often by compulsion eaten the flesh of animals not generally used as human food says that grilled lion steaks are delicious and much superior to those of the tiger; that the flesh of the rhinoceros, properly prepared, has all the good qualities of pork; that the trunk and feet of young elephants resemble veal, and that stewed boa constrictor is a splendid substitute for rabbit.

Coal Tar Colors.

If a pound of coal is subjected to a dry distillation and the products and residual treated chemically by the processes for obtaining the well known coal tar color, it will yield enough magenta to color 500 yards of flannel, vermilion for 2,560 yards, aurin for 120 yards and alizarin sufficient for 155 yards of red cloth.

De Foe's Story About England.

De Foe, the author of "Robinson Crusoe," traveled through the great eastern marshes of England in 1722. He records that in that "damp part of the world" it was common to meet with a man who had had from five to fifteen wives. Indeed he says that some had more. De Foe adds that a merry fellow who had himself had about a score of wives, told him that the men of the marshes, being seasoned to the damp climate, took little harm from it, but that they went into the "hilly country" for their wives. "When they took the young lasses out of the wholesome and fresh air, they were healthy, fresh and clear and well. But when they came out of their native air into the marshes among the fogs and damp there they presently changed their complexions, got an ague or two and seldom held it above half a year or a year at the most." One wife was sacrificed, another was procured, and so the process went on. De Foe is careful to state that his merry informer "fibbed a little," at least concerning his own wives, but he declares that the general statement is perfectly true.

KIDNEY DISEASE CURED

A Typical Letter to Dr. David Kennedy's Son About Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent.

Gilbert F. Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., makes public the following letter from one of the most prominent men in Utica, N.Y., but who does not wish his name used publicly:

My Dear Sir: I received a sample bottle of Dr. Kennedy's new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, a few months ago. I was greatly pleased with it, and decided to try a large bottle. I therefore purchased three bottles of Mr. Sheehan, and I am pleased to inform you that I have been greatly benefited by it and consider myself cured. If my kidney trouble ever asserts itself again (and I am sure it will not) I will not hesitate to continue the use of this grand medicine. I wish you would send some samples to the parties on the enclosed list. All are suffering from kidney trouble. Yours very truly,

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION

It Was a Most Pronounced Success at the Mount Pleasant M. E. Church.

The Fourth of July celebration at the Mt. Pleasant M. E. church was a thorough success from start to finish.

In the afternoon, commencing at 2:30, the single and married men began their battle for supremacy in base ball. It was a seven-inning game and resulted in a victory for the single men by a score of 15 to 11. Following the base ball were the different athletic events, which continued until dark with the following results.:

Potato race for boys—James Bartlett first prize; Leon Hubbard, second prize.

Running broad jump for men—George Cole, first prize; Willis Streeter, second prize.

Standing broad jump for men—George Cole, first prize; Willis Streeter, second prize.

100 yard dash for boys—Master Hinds, first prize; R. Smith, second prize.

Bicycle race for men—Claude Lathrop, first prize; A. Williams, second prize.

Putting the shot for men—Mr. Simonds, first prize; George Cole, second prize.

100 yard dash for men—George Cole, first prize; Willis Streeter, second prize.

Pole vault for men—George Cole, first prize; Willis Streeter, second prize.

As darkness came on the fireworks were started, which were of various kinds, and for two hours those in attendance were entertained by a fine display.

Financially the affair was a success. It is not known as yet what the exact net proceeds will be, but it is known that a larger amount was realized than has ever been reached by a social affair held by the society at any other time.

Happy Surprise.

Friday evening after an hour of awaiting her return from a picnic, Miss Alice Tucker was tendered a happy surprise party by a few friends in celebration of her eighteenth (plus) birthday. Those who were present were Dr. H. M. Doane, Mrs. B. W. Bennett, Mrs. F. B. Dilts, Mrs. Elizabeth McCully and the Misses Bertha and Lucia Emerick, Adelaide Schenck and Myrtis Gilbert, who, after conferring congratulations upon the tardy hostess, took possession of her dining room and a sumptuous feast was soon spread. The table decorations were unique, being more particularly of a stiff and stately character. The tokens of love for the hostess were heaped around her plate, all of which she appreciates more for the spirit in which they were given than for their intrinsic value. The choice dainties which were placed upon the table could only have been prepared by those with long experience in a Young Ladies' Cooking Club. We give the menu in its entirety:

Pork and beans, lettuce sandwiches, cold boiled eggs, red lemonade, cocoanut pie, Dutch cheese, pickles. When this classical repast had been thoroughly discussed, the piece de resistance was brought to the table—the birthday cake brilliantly lighted with eighteen (plus) wax tapers. When the cake was finally cut amid exclamations of joy from hostess and guests, it was found to contain not only figs but a diamond ring, a gold watch and chain, a jeweled thimble and a big wax doll. These were distributed according to schedule and the dining room then lost its interest for the fair diners.

When the host and guests finally separated it was with the expressed wish that Miss Tucker might be spared to spend many hundred more anniversaries with them.

Connell Family Reunion.

The second annual reunion of the Connell family was held at Long Branch, Wednesday, June 29 There were about seventy members present. Tables were spread at one o'clock and after partaking of the good things provided for the occasion by the different families, M. V. Connell of Fulton, president of the association, called the members to order, and after the report of the secretary and treasurer, J. E Connell, speeches, reminiscences and stories were given. After this the election of officers for the ensuing year was held. L W. Connell was re-elected secretary and treasurer. The day was perfect and everybody heartily enjoyed the outing and in meeting together. Mrs. Susan Weller of Syracuse, who has passed her 93d birthday, was present and is very active for a person of her age.—Baldwinsville Gazette.

The words "orphan" occurred in the Sunday school lesson. Miss Ida V. Stamps asked if any of the little boys in the class knew what an orphan was. There was no response. Thinking to help the little fellows to search out the right answer, Miss Stamps, the teacher, said,

"Why, children, I'm an orphan; now, can't you tell me what an orphan is?"

Up went the hand of a little boy.

"All right, Johnnie," said the teacher, "that's a good boy. You tell us what an orphan is."

"An orphan," replied the little fellow, without the slightest hint of a smile and with deep earnestness, "an orphan is a young lady what wants to get married and can't."—Silas Xavier Floyd, in July Lippincott's.

Where Woman Is Heroic.

The determination to do her duty at all costs inspires the society woman of today as much as it did the defenders of the British flag at Trafalgar. She goes into action with a grim resolve to dance and dine as all her friends expect. Though her back is aching, her head splitting and she knows she is grewsomely bored, she will heroically go through her day's programme, fortified by the consciousness of having done her duty.—Ladies' Field.

A ROMANCE OF WAR.

The Grand Duke Cyril and His Love For His Beautiful Cousin.

A romance associated with the war between Russia and Japan is that of the Russian Grand Duke Cyril and the Grand Duchess of Hesse. Their case is one which illustrates the adage that true love never runs smoothly. The Grand Duke Cyril is in the line of succession to the throne of the czar. Only three lives stand between the Russian throne and this young prince. He was born in 1876 and is a young man of fine appearance and soldierly instincts.

He had a naval training, and on the outbreak of war with Japan he was anxious to be in the thick of the fight, so the czar selected him as first officer on the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk. And here is where the romance of the story comes in. The grand duke had fallen very deeply in love with his beautiful cousin, the Grand Duchess of Hesse, who before her marriage to Ernest Louis of Hesse-Darmstadt in 1894 was Princess Victoria Melita of Saxe-Coburg. She is a niece of King

THE GRAND DUKE CYRIL.

Edward VII. of England. She was divorced from Ernest Louis in 1901, the ground of the dissolution of the union being incompatibility. The duchess is military in her tastes, is a colonel of hussars and takes her military rank seriously, loving to gallop at the head of her regiment. Her former husband is effeminate in his tastes, cultivates the arts of peace and is devoted to canvas embroidery and knitting. The czarina, who is the sister of the Grand Duke Ernest, took her brother's part in the family quarrel, and when the Grand Duke Cyril went to the czar for permission to marry the divorced duchess it was refused, owing in part to the wishes of the czarina.

This was the situation when the sinking of the battleship Petropavlovsk occurred in the harbor of Port Arthur. The grand duke had a wonderful escape from death. Being an expert swimmer, he dived from the ship, sank deep and swam far before coming to the surface. After a time he was rescued.

The narrow escape of the grand duke seems to have softened the heart of the czar, who has finally consented to his marriage to the fair lady of his choice.

Enforced Church Attendance.

In the reign of Edward VI. an act was passed which provided that every one "shall diligently and faithfully, having no lawful or reasonable excuse to be absent, endeavor themselves to their parish church or chapel accustomed, or, upon reasonable let, to some usual place where common prayer shall be used—on Sundays and holidays—upon penalty of forfeiting for every nonattendance 12 pence, to be levied by the church wardens to the use of the poor." As the years rolled on, however, the penalties for nonattendance became more and more severe, until in Elizabeth's reign such harsh legislation as the following was passed: "All persons who do not go to church or chapel or other places where common prayer is said according to the act of uniformity shall forfeit £20 per month to the queen, being thereof lawfully convict, and suffer imprisonment until paid."

An Eastern Tale.

"In many cases," says Sir John Lubbock, "religious differences are mainly verbal. There is an eastern tale of four men—an Arab, a Persian, a Turk and a Greek—who agreed to club together for an evening meal, but when they had done so they quarreled as to what it should be. The Turk proposed azum, the Arab aneb, the Persian anghur, while the Greek insisted on staphylion. While they were disputing—

"Before their eyes did pass,
Laden with grapes, a gardener's ass.
Sprang to his feet each man and showed,
With eager hand, that purple load.
'See azum,' said that Turk. 'And see
Anghur,' the Persian. 'What should be Better?' 'Nay, aneb, aneb 'tis,'
The Arab cried. The Greek said, 'This Is my staphylion.' Then they bought
Their grapes in peace.
Hence, be ye taught."

Gold Sweat.

"These millions will sweat themselves considerably in the hold of the ship," said a mint official as he superintended the stowing of an export of gold.

"Gold sweats," he resumed, "and it sweats particularly hard at sea. When this gold reaches the other side it will be a little lighter than it is now. If an inexperienced hand should weigh it over there he would say that some of it had been stolen. It won't be handled in Europe by the inexperienced though. It will be handled by men who will know just what allowance to make for sweat.

"Gold sweat—the phrase has an attractive sound, eh? If you and I could sneak down into this ship's hold each day of the coming voyage, if we could gather up the sweat from the gold before it evaporated and was lost, would that be stealing?

"Well, anyway, gold does not sweat visibly. Its sweat is impalpable, and you can't collect it. Attrition is the name given to it by the scientists."

Wounds Dressed With Burnt Straw.

At a cost of about 25 cents Japanese doctors can dress the wounds of 500 men. They use a finely powdered charcoal obtained by the slow combustion of straw in closed furnaces. Sachets filled with it are applied to the wounds, and its antiseptic and absorbent qualities generally effect a rapid cure.

Carlyle on Thackeray.

Of Thackeray Carlyle wrote: "Thackeray and his two girls were with us. I had never seen him so well before. There is a great deal of talent in him, a great deal of sensibility, irritability, sensuality, vanity without limit—and nothing or little but sentimentalism and play-actorism to guide it all with."

A Silent Pilot.

Nothing helps so much in the enjoyment of your vacation as a good map. It shows you the streams and lakes you can fish, the mountains you can climb, the places of interest you can visit and the roads you can wheel or tramp. The Lackawanna Railroad has just issued a set of colored maps on a large scale, showing the territory reached by its lines in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. These maps give every highway, postoffice, trolley line and railroad and are so bound that they can be conveniently carried in the pocket. They are invaluable to automobile tourists and travelers and should be owned by every one who wishes to be informed on the geography of these three states. The entire set in a neat cover may be had by sending ten cents in stamps to T. W. Lee, General Passenger Agent, Lackawanna Railroad, New York city. The edition is limited. Write today.

REGARDING LIBRARY SITE

EDITOR TIMES: I read in your columns an article by Mr. Roe, a resident of Worcester, Mass., against using the park for a library site. It was quite evident that Mr. Roe was not acquainted with our present conditions, as his reasoning was faulty. There has been discussion with a number who are opposed to locating the library in the park, but the only reason advanced by any one as a basis of their opposition is personal desire. This is not sufficient, and if their argument ends thus, should not be given consideration. The library is to be maintained by the taxpaying public, and the opinion of the majority of the taxpayers should prevail.

I believe that fully three-fourths of the taxpaying public are in favor of locating the library in the southwest corner of the park for the reasons given below, and that the remaining one-fourth will also favor that site as soon as they base their opinion on logical deductions rather than individual prejudice.

First—Location: light and quiet and sufficient land to make beautiful grounds are essential. There is no other place to be compared. It is an ideal place, and as to its accessability, it is far more desirable than any site yet proposed. It is central for East Fulton, and as Academy street will soon be extended to First street, it would accommodate the residents of the southern part of West Fulton (Upper Oswego Falls) far better than other sites named.

Second—Instead of curtailing the public use of public ground, it would be a very material factor in bringing the public to use the park for park purposes. The building itself would probably not occupy an area of more than fifty feet square, and that fifty feet square would be the only ground covered that would be used for public purposes in the truest sense of the word, and would be a very great ornament to the park. Unquestionably the grounds surrounding the library would be beautified and devoted to public use, so that there could be at least one small portion of the park that the public could enjoy as it was intended it should be enjoyed.

The most attractive part of Central Park is the museum. Those vast buildings were put there because it was the proper place for them. An immense art gallery has been built in the Chicago park. Museums, art galleries, libraries, where parks are well located, should be placed in the parks. It is their natural place.

The triangle on the south side of the park is not a part of the original park. The big trees indicate the old line. The objection that the ground for such a building should not be taken out of this bare space and given over to a fuller and better public use, is absurd.

Third—The great majority of those who pay the city's bills would like to see a proper use of the park while they are still in the flesh. The dream of what may be in the future has ceased to interest after a quarter century of waiting and hoping. Year after year we have expected to see a beautiful velvet lawn, beds of flowers, playing fountains, resting places occupied by mothers and children, enjoying the quiet and beautiful—but these, if they ever come, will probably be after we have put on our spiritual body. Instead, we have had for years—most of the Summer season—a big open field of weeds, cut sometimes, trees untrimmed, no place to sit, and all through the season a howling mob of boys, using the foulest language known to Young America, and ball games in full swing, so that it is dangerous to use the paths. All about under the trees you will see young boys playing cards and smoking cigarettes. It has become a great breeding ground for card-playing, cigarette smoking and foul language.

Further, the only decoration that has been put on the park for the past twenty years is a stone monstrosity that destroys the proper use of more ground than would the library, and that is the main cause of keeping down public interest in the park. This week is added another abomination—a big bare pole. It is more than probable that the next public insult will be an iron fence, bought at half price from some grave-yard association.

Fourth—A proper library building will do more to instill civic pride in the public mind and bring about a proper use of the park so that it can furnish rest, comfort and enjoyment to the people, than all that has been done for the past fifty years. It is poor judgment to permit 500 feet square of the best ground to be used for ball games, subjecting pedestrians to the danger of being hit by passing balls, and objecting to an unimproved corner of fifty feet square being decorated with a building costing $15,000, to be devoted exclusively to the use of the entire public, both old and young. It is the natural, fitting place for it. Make a break in that corner and have grounds properly beautified and kept, and it will be a wonderful incentive to make the park what it should be. At the present rate of progress it will be 15,000 years before the public spends $15,000 in park improvements.

Fifth—Our citizens have had and are having their "legs pulled" for about all they can stand for various things, and it is the poorest kind of judgment to spend their extra thousands in buying a library site when the city already owns a site which ought to be beautified.

Sixth—The money necessary to buy a library site would buy a park for West Fulton.

If those who have the matter in charge will consider further they can serve the public better by raising this money for an athletic field. For the same money you would pay for a library site you can buy sufficient land for a much-needed athletic ground. If you carry out your present plan it is probable that the park will be continued as a semi-nuisance and a combination cemetery and athletic field.

EX-SENATOR SLOAN DEAD.

He Had Been Ill for Several Months and Passed to Rest Last Sunday at His Home in Oswego—Funeral Services this Wednesday Afternoon.

Former Senator George Beale Sloan died at his home in Oswego last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Sloan had been ill for about eighteen months, ever since he suffered a stroke of apoplexy a few days after the death of his partner, Theodore Irwin, with whom he had been engaged in business for nearly forty years. It is said by his closest friends that his illness was caused by the shock of his partner's death.

Last Winter Mr. Sloan went to Clifton Springs and returned in the Spring greatly benefitted in health. About eight weeks ago he was taken seriously ill and since that time has been almost continuously confined to his room. During the past week his condition rapidly became worse and for three or four days his death was hourly expected.

Mr. Sloan was the wealthiest and most prominent man that ever lived in Oswego. He is survived by a brother, James Sloan, his widow and three children, Mrs. John W. Danenhower, Robert Sloan and George B. Sloan, jr. all of Oswego.

Following the desire of the deceased to have his funeral late in the afternoon it has been decided by the family to have the services this Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. A public funeral will be held at Christ Church and the interment will be private.

Interment will be made in Riverside Cemetery.

Flags on all the muncipal and county buildings in Oswego are at half mast in honor of the deceased.

George B. Sloan was born in Oswego in 1829, and was 75 years old. His name has been prominently identified with the business, social and political interests of that city ever since he was a young man. Through his efforts much was accomplished in the line of improvement and development that has made Oswego the prosperous city that it is to-day.

Senator Sloan was educated in the common schools of Oswego and began his business career as a clerk in a dry goods store. Milling and lake transportation were at their height when he became 21, and for a time he turned his attention to this business. He later entered the grain and commission business with Theodore Irwin, under the firm name of Irwin & Sloan, and they were associated for more than half a century and up to the very hour of Mr. Irwin's death, January 1st, 1903. They organized the Second National bank, of which Mr. Sloan was the president; were prominent in the organization of the Oswego Shade Cloth company, the National Railway Steel Springs company, Fitzgibbons Boiler company and other enterprises.

Mr. Sloan for years was a member of the Board of Trade and for many years was its president. He was one of the directors of the local board of the Oswego State Normal and Training school, trustee of the Oswego Orphan asylum, and was one of the several citizens who, on February 10th, 1872, incorporated the Home for the Homeless. Mr. Sloan was a thorough Christian and was a member of Christ Episcopal church, and was one of the vestrymen.

Senator Sloan was a strong member of the Republican party and did much toward making Oswego county one of the banner Republican counties of the State. His political career dates back to 1860-'61, when he was elected an Alderman from the Third ward. He was elected to the Assembly in 1874 and served on the ways and means committee. In 1876 he was returned to the Legislature. In 1877 he was elected Speaker of the Assembly. In 1879 he was elected to the Assembly for the fourth time and was made chairman of the Ways and Means committee. In 1886 he was elected to the Senate from the Twenty-first district, which was made up of Oswego and Jefferson counties, and served with efficiency for three terms, becoming one of the leading men of the State at Albany and earning the title of "Little Giant," by which he was know among his political friends.

He took a leading part in the barge canal project; carried his fight against the duty on barley and lumber in the McKinley and Wilson tariff bills to Congress, has been many times a State and national delegate to Republican conventions and was twice a Presidental Elector.

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT PULASKI

Arrangements are Being Perfected and Eminent Speakers are Being Secured.

Arrangements have been made for a Republican mass meeting in Pulaski at the conclusion of the Republican County and District convention, July 19. The meeting will be held in the park, if the weather is pleasant, and several enthusiastic addresses will be delivered by speakers of prominence. Congressman Charles L. Knapp, who is a pleasing and finished orator, will deliver an address. Hon. Sereno E. Payne of Auburn, one of the most influential men in the country, has promised to attend. Mr. Payne is close to President Roosevelt and his speech will be of unusual value to the people of Oswego County. Hon. N. N. Stranahan and the Hon. P. W. Cullinan will also address the assemblage. The meeting is sure to be a rousing one.

Mr. and Mrs. Tibbitts are arranging to give a large reception in their honor in the near future.

DIED.

The Rt. Reverend Bishop Frederick Dan Huntington, died at his Summer home in Hadley, Mass., on Monday after a year of ill health, but acute illness of a few days. His son, the Rev. George P. Huntington died at his home in Hanover, Mass., within a few hours after his father's demise.

Alfred F. Churchill, aged 19, died at his parent's home near this city on Friday morning after an illness of four days with ascending paralysis. The deceased who had been an employe in the Morrill Bros. printing establishment for three years, was taking a short vacation and spent July 4, in Syracuse. When he returned home in the evening he complained of not feeling well and grew rapidly worse until death came. He is survived by his parents and three sisters, Mrs. Herbert C. Luddington and the Misses Mabel and Dora Churchill of this city. The funeral was held from the parent's home on Sunday at 2 o'clock, and from the State street M. E. church at 3 o'clock, the Rev. S. D. Robinson officiating. The funeral was attended by the Maccabees in a body and they conducted the last rights at the grave. The deceased was a popular Grange officer and the members attended the funeral in a body and assisted in the services at the grave. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors, and also the members of Oswego Falls Grange, for the kind sympathy manifested during our recent sad bereavement in the loss of our beloved husband and father, George Woodcock. Especial thanks are due those who furnished appropriate music at the last solemn rites.

CONTINENTAL CLUB.

An Adjourned Meeting Will be Held This Wednesday Evening in the City Hall for the Purpose of Reorganizing and Drilling.—Recruits Needed.

A meeting of the Continental Club was held last Wednesday evening in the City Hall. In the absence of the president, Hon. T. D. Lewis, Surrogate S. B. Mead called the assemblage to order, and on motion, Mr. B. W. Bennett was made secretary.

Mr. Mead explained that the time was opportune for the reorganization of the drill corps for active service in the Fall campaign.

Mr Pentelow stated that a Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner was in course of preparation and thought that it would be finished about the week of the county convention (July 19), when it was hoped the raising of it would be attended by the drill corps and that the event would be furthur honored by addresses from one or more Republicans enjoying a wide reputation [illegible] oratory.

On [illegible] and Mr. [illegible] instructed to make [illegible] the time and place of the [illegible] raising

It was thought advisable to adjourn the meeting until this Wednesday evening, and Secretary Bennett was requested to notify all members on the roster of the corps by postal card to that effect, urging their attendance and also the attendance of any young Republicans who might desire to join the ranks. An election of officers will be held and a short time will be devoted to drilling the corps.

Mr. William Ellis was present and reported that there were at least fifty uniforms in excellent condition for service, but that new torches would have to be purchased.

Teachers' Training Class.

The following members of the High School teachers' training-class have earned certificates as a result of the examinations held last month: The Misses Jessie A. Bidwell, Ethel Brown, Anna Harris and Beulah Kelsey.

We Dearly Love a Train.

Where it the person with soul so dead, who never to himself, herself or itself hath said, "I dearly love to see the train go by?" We love action, movement, speed, and find them all in a limited or unlimited express. Apropos, one of she exhibits at the St. Louis fair is a fac-smile of the Empire State Express of the New York Central, a creation of George H. Daniels. Nothing in the entire show attracts more attention, for this train has been advertised throughout the universe. It has been on our postage stamps, and that's the only way it ever got licked, says Mr. Daniels. On June 17th, by actual count, 7,022 persons walked through the splendid coaches and hovered about the locomotive. Alongside is the ancient relic, the DeWitt Clinton, with its three quaint cars—the first train ever placed on the Central road. The contrast is powerful, appealing and instructive.—From "On the Tip of the Tongue," New York Press.

The Grange Scholarship.

Competative examinations for the grange scholarship to the agricultural college will be held August 6, at some convenient point in the various counties. These examinations are to be conducted in the presence of the committee. Each master of the Pomona, or each deputy in counties where is no Pomona, is to appoint one brother and one sister to act with himself and hold examinations in each county. No county can have more than one scholarship at one time. Any member in good standing in any grange is eligible to compete for these scholarships. The candidate should make application to the master of his Pomona or to his deputy. Each scholarship is valued at $50. In case any candidate fails to pass the entrance examination to the agricultural college, the scholarship falls to the one of the same sex having the next highest standing. Patrons desiring further information regarding the college of agriculture should apply to the director at Ithaca for the catalog.—American Agriculturist.

An Enjoyable Wedding Anniversary.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Dorr B. Calkins, whose home is just north of this city, on Saturday July 2, there was a very pleasant gathering of relatives and friends. The occasion was the celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Calkins' golden wedding. The same day was also the tenth anniversary of their youngest daughter, Mrs. George B. Kellogg.

It is not often that an entire family is gathered together after a lapse of so many years. Their five children and eleven grandchildren, with the exception of the two oldest ones, Dr. Haeubly Orchard and sister, Edith of Ossining, N. Y, were present.

The youngest grandchildren, Lois Calkins, aged 6 weeks and five days, and Dorr Porter Calkins, who is but five days younger than his fair little cousin, made the event most enjoyable, and it was greatly added to by a fine recitation given by Miss Helen Foster, a granddaughter of Mr. George B. Kellogg.

Among those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Buren of Newark, N. Y., Miss Jennie Bell of Ossining, N. Y., Mr. Charles Van Buren of New York, Mrs. Lindsley Seymour and Mrs. James Foster and daughter Helen of this city.

A sumptuous dinner was served which was made up of the delicacies of the season, including some handsome cakes which were decorated for the two brides.

The gifts showed much love and forethought for the happy recipients.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last Summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by H. C Giesler.

Serious Accident at North Volney.

Earl McDougall, employed by the United Construction Co., of Albany in the building of a bridge at Black Creek, North Volney, met with a serious accident on Tuesday morning. He was engaged in pile-driving, and while adjusting one of the piles, the weight in some unaccountable manner fell on his arm, tearing the flesh and crushing the bone above the elbow. Supervisor Taft witnessed the accident and taking care of the patient, hurried Drs. Marsh and Simpson to the unfortunate man's assistance. Dr. Marsh dressed the wound and it is thought that the arm will be saved.

HOUSEHOLD EXPENSES.

Interesting Hints at Economy, Which Explains How All Housewives Can Save Money—Valuable and Useful Premiums.

In buying staple groceries and household supplies, every purchaser wants full value in attractive, honest goods. Only those firms with large capital and experience can handle this trade so as to fully satisfy their patrons. Now and then an old-established business concern with exceptional facilities is found at the head of the commercial column. They are there because they have uniformly given their customers the best value for the money and thus established their high character and integrity beyond question.

The C. R. Maltby Company of Corning, N. Y., are such a firm. They handle almost everything used or consumed by the household. They stand midway between the producer and consumer. By their capital and experience they work to best advantage of the consumer. Sound business methods enable them to operate at the least cost. They thus save to their patrons that large percentage other firms pay out to "expense" in doing business. This amounts to a big item to the average family during the course of a year. They are willing to further share their profits with customers; they have originated a line of "Signature Brands"—goods prepared by them and sold to consumers in sealed packages. In this list are teas, coffees, spices, flavoring extracts, flour, soap, matches and a general line of dry groceries. The signature of C. R. Maltby Company, Corning, N. Y., is written across their seal on all these "Signature Brands." This signature is valuable.

In addition to getting the very best goods possible for the money, one can save the signatures and the firm will redeem them according to the value of the purchase. There is a premium list of over 300 different articles to select from. This includes: Corning cut-glass; electric novelties; all kinds of silverware; table and pocket cutlery; toilet articles; razors; carving-sets; scissors; knife and scissors sharpeners; rocking-chairs; writing-desks; watches; chains; clocks; lockets; suspenders; umbrellas; pipes; coffee-mills; toilet sets; china and tea sets; food choppers; talking machines, etc.

Do not lose sight of the fact that all "Signature" goods are prepared, packed and sealed by this company and are uniform in honest weight and quality. Guaranteed absolutely clean and pure. Each signature is valuable regardless of what package it may be taken from. It is counted in at the face value on any article that may be selected from their catalog premium list. All these things are clearly explained in C. R. Maltby Company's premium catalog, illustrated—sent free on request. The premiums offered are as good value for the price as are to be found in the market. They are a part of the profits this firm divides with its patrons. Few concerns can do as much for the money and continue in business. It has required years of experience to enable them to make this statement and tell the truth. These premium goods are either made especially for C. R. Maltby Company of Corning, N. Y., or else they are selected from the largest and best houses, whose stamp stands for good value. Ask your grocer for C. R. Maltby Company's "Signature Brands" of coffee, tea, flour, spices, fruits, flavoring extracts and all brands of dry groceries. If your grocer cannot supply you, write the firm direct who will advise you where the goods may be obtained. They mean what they say and do what they promise.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

The Word "Cad."

"Cad," it is pointed out by a writer, is a word furnishing "a pathetic instance of verbal degeneration." He says: "Its grandfather 'cadet' and its father 'caddie' are still alive in the language, though the relationship is recognized by few. 'Cadet,' signifying by derivation from the Latin a 'little head,' or 'little chief,' was a sufficiently honorable word for the younger son of a noble family, and acquired its modern army sense from the fact that the army was often the destiny of younger sons. But it also begat 'cadie' or 'caddie,' a junior or subordinate in general, such as a bricklayer's assistant or the familiar golf caddie. Then 'caddie' or 'cad' came to mean an odd job man, and from calling the men who hung about to pick up jobs by this name, Oxford undergraduates presently applied it to 'town' in general, as contrasted with 'gown.' As no compliment was thereby intended its final degradation is obvious."

During a long life I have proved this not one kind word ever spoken, not one kind deed ever done, but sooner or later returns to bless the giver.—Lord Shaftesbury.

A Water Volcano.

One of the greatest natural curiosities in Central America is the Volcan de Aqua or water volcano, which is situated in Guatemala, about twenty-five miles southwest of the capital. Its apex is 14,450 feet above the level of the sea, and cultivated fields and forest trees extend almost to its summit. It occasionally vents forth torrents of pure cold water. On one occasion an "eruption" of this kind inundated the northern valley and destroyed a whole village situated on the side of the peak.

"LeRoy Plows Turn the Earth."

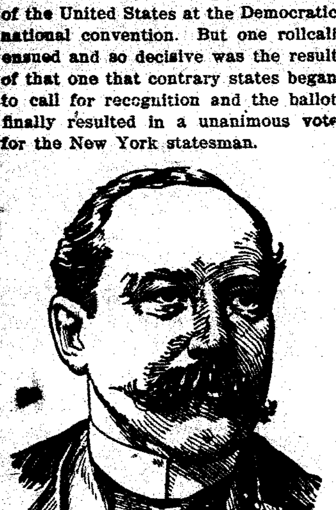
Horses and men grow fat, their labor is pleasant and easy, and the results of the labor are highly satisfactory, all because the farmer profited by the experience of his well satisfied neighbors and purchased a "LeRoy Plow." The draft is just right. The turn of the moldboard is found only on the "LeRoy" and is just right. If the "LeRoy Plows" are not all right they will not cost you a cent. Sold by E. Quirk, Fulton.

FOR PARKER AND DAVIS.

Nominees of Democratic National Convention.

Judge Sends Word to Convention That He Considers the Gold Standard Irrevocably Established — Delay in Balloting For Vice President—Reply of the Convention to His Position.

Chief Judge Alton B. Parker of the New York state court of appeals was nominated at about 15 minutes to 6 o'clock Saturday morning for president of the United States at the Democratic national convention. But one rollcall ensued and so decisive was the result of that one that contrary states began to call for recognition and the ballot finally resulted in a unanimous vote for the New York statesman.



ALTON B. PARKER.

The scene was dramatic in the extreme. Darkness had witnessed the gathering of the Democratic hosts while broad daylight, the sun paling the electric light, witnessed the close.

The convention took a recess Friday until 8 o'clock at night for the purpose of receiving the report of the committee on resolutions. The report was received and adopted by a viva voce vote. So far as surface indications were concerned, there was no more opposition to the platform than there had been to that accepted unanimously by the Republican convention in Chicago a few weeks ago.

Eight Candidates Nominated.

Nominations were immediately proceeded with. Alabama yielded to New York and Judge Parker's name was the first presented to the convention. After that Hearst, Gray, Cockrell, Wall, Williams, Olney and Miles were named in speeches which took nearly the entire night.

In the end all the claims of the Parker forces were proved accurate. Parker had within a few votes of enough to nominate and these were forthcoming. The speeches which had been cheered so long and loud had neither made nor lost a vote. The Parker forces, under perfect organization, remained serene.

One of the features of the long drawn out session was the beautiful tribute paid to Senator Cockrell of Missouri, when his name was placed in nomination, by Representative Champ Clark. It was a spontaneous outburst and for that reason the more complimentary to the senator. The delegates, already weary by the tedious and trying session, paused in their labors, and in the guise of a nomination for the presidency which the senator's friends knew to be beyond his reach, indulged in a demonstration, continuing half an hour.

The thousands of cheering persons apparently converted Mr. Bryan to the belief that Senator Cockrell's chances of nomination were greater than other favorite son candidates. The Nebraskan gained recognition soon after the Cockrell demonstration and in a speech directed undoubtedly in an effort to defeat Parker, made his electrifying plea for the anti-Parker forces to rally. He was given the closest attention. The great convention, which the police and sergeant-at-arms were powerless to control, listened as though every word were a personal message to each person, as if a hypnotic spell had been cast over the throng.

But when it was all over the Parker forces had not been shaken. The ballot for president gave Parker 658 votes out of the 667 needed to nominate, and before the result could be announced Idaho, Nevada, Washington and others made changes to the Parker column, giving him the necessary two-thirds vote, or 667, while Mr. Hearst received 200.

Parker on Gold Standard.

When the convention re-convened Saturday afternoon the following telegram was received from Judge Parker:

I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established and shall act accordingly if the action of the convention today shall be ratified by the people. As the platform is silent on the subject, my views should be made known to the convention and if it is proved to be unsatisfactory to the majority, I request you to decline the nomination for me at once so that another may be nominated before adjournment.

A. B. PARKER.

The reception of this telegram caused a delay in nominating speeches for vice-president and another night session. The following reply to the judge was finally adopted by the convention:

The platform adopted by this conventon is silent on the question of the monetary standard, because it is not regarded by us as a possible issue in this campaign, and only campaign issues are mentioned in the platform. Therefore there is nothing in the views expressed by you in the telegram just received which would preclude a man entertaining them from accepting a nomination on said platform.

Nominations for vice president were then made and ex-Senator Henry G. Davis of West Virginia received a two-thirds majority over competitors Williams, Turner and Harris.

Vice Presidential Vote.

The ballot for vice president was as follows:

Alabama, Davis, 22; Arkansas, Davis, 18; California, Davis, 20; Colorado, Turner, 7, Williams, 3; Connecticut, Davis, 14; Delaware, Davis, 3, Turner, 6; Florida, Davis, 10; Georgia, Davis, 26; Idaho, Turner, 6; Illinois, Williams, 54; Indiana, Williams, 30; Iowa, passed; Kansas, Harris, 20; Kentucky, Davis, 26; Louisiana, Davis, 18; Maine, Davis, 9, Maryland, Davis, 16; Massachusetts, Davis, 32; Michigan, Davis, 28; Minnesota, Turner, 22, Mississippi, Williams, 20; Missouri, Harris, 36; Montana, Turner, 6; Nebraska, Davis, 16; Nevada, Turner, 6; New Hampshire, Davis, 8; New Jersey, Davis, 24; New York, Davis, 78; North Carolina, Williams, 34; North Dakota, Davis, 8; Ohio, Davis, 46; Oregon, Turner, 8; Pennsylvania, Davis, 68; Rhode Island, Williams, 8; South Carolina, Williams, 18; South Dakota, Davis, 8; Tennessee, Davis, 24; Texas Davis, 36; Utah, Turner, 6; Vermont, Davis, 8; Virginia, Davis, 24; Washington, Turner, 10; West Virginia, Davis, 14; Wisconsin, Davis, 26; Wyoming, Davis, 6; Alaska, Turner, 6; Arizona, Turner, 6; District of Columbia, Davis, 6; Indian Territory, Williams, 6; Hawaii, Turner, 6; Oklahoma, Turner, 8; Harris, 2; Williams, 2; Porto Rico, Davis, 2.

Chairman Clark's Speech.

Following are extracts from the speech of Permanent Chairman Champ Clark of Missouri:

In his haste King David said all men are liars. Had he been in Chicago while Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was reading the Republican platform he would, no doubt, have pronounced the same opinion more leisurely, for surely there never was more mendacity packed into the same space in any document purporting to be a grave state paper.

Shakespeare says:

"Thrice is he armed, that hath his quarrel just;
"And he but naked, though locked up in steel,
"Whose conscience with injustice is corrupted."

In the impending conflict our quarrel is just and we are in the right beyond all cavil.

To state in a general way, our contention is that the government shall be restored to the Democratic-Republican basis on which the fathers of the republic intended it to rest, and shall be made once more a government of the people, by the people and for the people, instead of a government of the classes, by the classes and for the classes

To state it with more particularity, we insist that exorbitant taxation shall be reduced to just and reasonable rates; that extravagance in appropriations shall cease: that economy shall prevail in all the transactions of the government; that all the departments shall be investigated from top to bottom by all congressional committees; that all evil doers of whatever degree shall be driven from the public service and properly punished.

That the trusts should be proceeded against by indictment as are common and smaller criminals; that the constitution accompanies the American flag into our new possessions.

The proposition that we must support President Roosevelt's Philippine policy—If he has any, right or wrong, is the veriest rot—a tale told by an idiot. I am willing to go as far as any one in patriotism; I will support my country in any emergency, but the president is not the country. The time has not yet arrived—I pray almighty God that it never will arrive—when the American people will accept the arrogant dictum of Louis XIV if repeated by an American president: "I am the state." If President Roosevelt is at all worthy of his high position, he must entertain a supreme contempt for those political supple-jacks, particularly for those claiming to be Democrats, who go about with sanctimonious moan, saying:

"The president is wrong in his Philippine policy, but we must support the president."

Out upon all such cringing idiocy. Suppose a case: Suppose that when George III undertook to force our fathers to pay the stamp tax, Patrick Henry, instead of delivering that great lyric speech before the Virginia house of burgesses had arisen in his place and said gently as a sucking dove: "His most gracious majesty is wrong about this stamp tax business, but we must, as loyal subjects support him, right or wrong."

And suppose Washington, Jefferson, Warren, Adams, Greene, Lee, Hamilton—all that glorious host of warriors and sages, had weakly agreed to that—what would we be today—instead of being the richest, most puissant republic in all the flood of time, we would still be English colonies, ruled by British pro-consuls and governor generals without any voice whatever in the government under which we live.

There were men in the land in 1776. Are there only manikins now? I do not believe such a monstrous libel.

In every state in the Union its a felony to get property of any sort—or to attempt to get it by false pretenses.

If the same rule applied to the getting of offices or to attempts to get them the whole Republican party could be sent to the penitentiary.

One of their false pretenses—the one on which they harp the most this year—is that the Democratic party is in favor of free trade. The charge is utterly false—a lie made of whole cloth.

It never was a free trade party and is not now. Democrats favor the cutting down of exorbitant tariff rates to a reasonable basis

Where tariff rates are so high that they enable the manufacturers to sell their wares abroad cheaper than they do to Americans here at home, we say that they ought to be reduced. Is this anarchy or treason? If so, make the most of it.

In 1860 we had the second largest merchant marine in the world—our sails whitened every harbor and our flag floated in every breeze under the heavens. How sadly all this has changed after 35 years of Republican misrule. Last year of all the merchantmen that went through the Suez canal not a single vessel, great or small, except battleships, bore the American flag at its masthead, and our flag is seen in foreign waters only when flying over a man-of-war. When an American goes abroad he must sail under a foreign flag, on a foreign ship, under a foreign officer.

Why have things come to this shameful, this pitiful complexion in a country that has the finest material, ships and sailors in the world? Because our exorbitant tariff system has made it impossible for an American to build a ship in competition with the British shipbuilders on the River Clyde.

It is said that "Straws show which way the wind blows." Here is a "straw" indicating that the trusts have nothing to fear from Republican trust busters. It is the appointment of Attorney General Philander C. Knox, Republican trust buster par excellence, to succeed the late Matthew Stanley Quay of Pennsylvania in the senate.

Plain people cannot be blamed for being bewildered by all this kaleidoscopic performance.

They cannot be censured because by an old process they figure it out that two and two makes four and that the transfer of Mr. Knox from cabinet to senate at the behest of Messrs. Frick, Cassatt and Cameron, taken in connection with the change of feeling in Wall street in favor of the president, has a sinister meaning.

ALTON BROOKS PARKER.

Nominated by the Democrats For President of the United States.

Alton Brooks Parker, the nominee of the Democratic party for president of the United States, was born at Cortland, N. Y., on May 14, 1852. He was educated in the public schools, the Cortland academy, the Cortland state normal school and was graduated from the Albany law school.

After being admitted to the bar he practiced at Kingston. He was surrogate of Ulster county from 1877 to 1885. Mr. Parker was a delegate to the Democratic national convention which nominated Cleveland in 1884.

In 1885 he was offered the position of first assistant postmaster general, but declined it. In that same year he was chairman of the New York state Democratic executive committee. The year 1885 also saw the election of Judge Parker to the supreme court bench. Four years later he was appointed a member of the second division, court of appeals, where he served for four years.

In 1889 he was made a member of the general term which became the appellate division in 1896. He served in this court until Jan. 1, 1898, when he took his place as chief judge of the court of appeals, to which he had been elected on the preceding November by the enormous majority of 60,000.

It was this striking victory by Judge Parker which attracted the attention of the whole state and ever since that time, virtually, he has been regarded as a possible candidate for the presidential nomination

MR. LITTLETON'S SPEECH.

Placing In Nomination Judge Alton B. Parker.

Martin W. Littleton of New York in moving the nomination of Judge Alton B. Parker spoke in part as follows:

We do not expect here that stupid peace which smells of chloroform.

We do not wish that unctuous unanimity which springs from the unconflicting emotions of a solitary man. We would not have our harmony in a single harness. We, too, love the stir of a strenuous life but we believe in equal strenuousness for all and special strenuousness for none.

We do not derive our power from the seats of the mighty but from the souls of the humble. We do not ask for inane agreements springing from faithless fire but rather outbursts of dissension issuing from robust freedom. We are not in executive session, but rather in the committee of the whole.

We were sent here by the people to select a candidate. We were not sent here by the candidate to notify the people. Our adversaries, by dwelling tenderly on the simplicity of the lamented McKinley, managed to endure for three days the strenuousity of Roosevelt. By recounting in affectionate terms the achievements of the one they evoked an enthusiasm which they immediately credited to the other. Through tears that were shed for the noble dead they saw a larger outline of the living.

Driven by lash and lured by luck they called on all the sacred dust to keep their spirits up. Set to run for three full days the pendulum petered out, the hands stuck fast and only a strenuous shake could make the wheels go round.

There is much talk of twisting tendons in the race of life, of running out of breath toward the open grave. The old and honored way is still the best; be not so strenuous as to strain yourself, nor yet so simple as to fall asleep.

There is much said by those who sit on cushioned chairs about cowards and weaklings in the nation's life. The sunburnt farmer is just as brave as the star crowned soldier. Somehow of late the atmosphere of our national life is filled with a spray of blood; somehow the march of progress sounds of hammered steel; somehow, although the sunlight of peace is all about us, there is now and then the gleam of bayonets in its radiant fire and a flash of swords as in its silver beams; somehow, although the constitution is still in force, there is a sense of failing power and growing disrespect, which makes us feel that the venerable old man—so to speak—is halt and blind with years, and burdened the strenuous household of his grandchildren.

Somehow, at times, there runs a sort of shock right down the foundations of this republic which makes the structure tremble and all the country pauses and listens and then returns to work. Somehow, although the future welcomes us, it does so with a mailed hand; somehow, although you cannot put your finger on the cause, there is a universal fear; the mother watching while her children sleep, now and then she hears the bugle call, the tramp of soldiers, and, staring in the darkness of a dream, she sees the "rigid upturned face.

The toiler turning all his time and sinew to gain which others get, begins to doubt that the government is just. The man of means, who puts it out in the active currents of the tide and sees the peril of this doubt and the government's compromise with both, begins to feel that it is better hoarded than employed.

Gentlemen of the convention, beyond the exciting passions of war and the distracting panics of peace: beyond the reach of disaster's dread appeal and the dead past's dying wail, we meet in the clear and rational calm of seasoned common sense, to reason together for the well being of our country and our party.

No man here can have his exact way. No leader can take us along the narrow ledge of his unquestioned logic. No section should swerve us from the course that leads to union and fellowship. No faction can divide us into weakened parts and leave us on the field of battle in front of the enemy. No man is greater than his party and no party is greater than its principles.

The country called upon New York for the best of its brain and blood, and New York answers with a man who cut his way through poverty and toil until he found the highest peak of power and honor in the state. The country called upon New York for a Democrat and New York answers with a man who learned the simple lessons of Democratic faith in the furrowed field, who took them with increasing strength to the bar and finally honored them by his exalted station on the bench—a man who, throughout his career from poverty to power, never in fair weather or foul forsook the standards of his party faith or deserted the colors of his command.

And nowhere through his active and useful life has aught but honest praise found utterance on the lips of those who know him best.

If you ask why he has been silent, I tell you it is because he does not claim to be the master of the Democratic party, but is content to be its servant. If you ask me why he has not outlined a policy for this convention, I tell you that he does not believe that policies should be dictated, but that the sovereignty of the party is in the untrammeled judgment and wisdom of its members; if you ask me what his policy will be, if elected, I tell you that it will be that policy which finds expression in the pltform of his party.

We appeal to every Democrat from everywhere to forget the bitter warfare of the past; forget the strife and anger of older, other days: abandon all the grudge and rancor of party discontent, and, recalling with ever-increasing pride the triumphs of our 50 years of a constitutional government of liberty and peace—here and now resolve to make the future record that resplendent reach of time in which liberty and peace went up and down the nations of the earth, builded their kingdom in the hearts of men and gathering the harvest of genius and toil: in which reason struck from the hand of force the sword of hate and plucked from the heart of war the germ of greed; in which conscience smote the thoughts of wrong and filled the mind with mercy's sweet restraint; in which power grew in the human brain, but refused the shelter of a glittering crown; in which the people of all lands and tongues, awakened to hope by the inspiration of our example; followed with the march of years the luminous pathway leading to a destiny beyond the reach of vision and within the providence of God. In this spirit New York nominates for president of the United States Alton B. Parker.

A PLATFORM.

Adopted by the Democratic National Convention at St. Louis.

The Dmocratic party of the United States in national convention assembled, declares its devotion to the essential principles of the Democratic faith which brings us together in party communion.

Under them, local self-government and national unity and prosperity were alike established. They underlaid our independence, the structure of our free republic, and every Democratic extension from Louisiana to California and Texas to Oregon, which preserved faithfully in all these states the tie between taxation and representation.

They yet inspire masses of our people, guarding jealously their rights and liberties, and cherishing their fraternity, peace and orderly development. They remind us of our duties and responsibilities as citizens and impress upon us, particularly at this time, the necessity of reform and the rescue of the administration of government from the headstrong, arbitrary and spasmodic methods which distract business by uncertainty, and pervade the public mind with dread, distrust and perturbation.

Fundamental Principles.

1—The application of these fundamental principles to the living issues of the day is the first step toward the assured peace, safety and progress of our nation; freedom of the press, of conscience and of speech; equality before the law of all citezenship; right of a trial by jury — freedom of the person defended by the writ of habeas corpus; liberty of personal contract untrammeled by sumptuary laws; supremacy of the civil over the military authority; a well disciplined militia; the separation of church and state; economy in expenditures, low taxes, that labor may be lightly burdened; prompt and sacred fulfillment of public and private obligations; fidelity to treaties; peace and friendship with all nations; entangling alliances with none; absolute acquiescence in the will of majority, the vital principle of republics—these are doctrines which Democracy has established and are approved by the nation, and they should be constantly invoked and enforced.

We favor enactment and administration of laws, giving labor and capital impartially their just rights. Capital and labor ought not to be enemies. Each is necessary to the other. Each has its rights, but the rights of labor are certainly no less "vested," no less "sacred" and no less "unalienable" than the rights of capital.

Constitutional guarantees are violated whenever any citizen is denied the right to labor, acquire and enjoy property or reside where interests or inclination may determine. Any denial thereof by individuals, organizations or governments should be summarily rebuked and punished.

We deny the right of any executive to disregard or suspend any constitutional privilege or limitation. Obedience to the laws and respect for their requirements are alike the supreme duty of the citizen and the official.

The military should be used only to support and maintain the law. We unqualifiedly condemn its employment for the summary banishment of citizens without trial, or for the control of elections.

We approve the measure which passed the United States senate in 1896, but which a Republican congress has ever since refused to enact, relating to contempts in federal courts, and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

Improvement of Waterways.

We favor liberal appropriations for the improvement of waterways of the country. When any waterway like the Mississippi river is of sufficient importance to demand special aid of the government such aid should be extended with a definite plan of continuous work until permanent improvement is secured.

We oppose the Republican policy of starving home development in order to feed the greed for conquest and the appetite for national "prestige" and display of strength.

1—Large reductions can easily be made in the annual expenditures of the government without impairing the efficiency of any branch of the public service, and we shall insist upon the strictest economy and frugality compatible with vigorous and efficient civil, military and naval administration as a right of the people, too clear to be denied or withheld.

2—We favor honesty in the public service. The enforcement of honesty in the public service, and to that end a thorough legislative investigation of those executive departments of the government already known to teem with corruption as well as other departments suspected of harboring corruption, and the punishment of ascertained corruptionists without fear or favor or regard to persons. The persistent and deliberate refusal of both the senate and house of representatives to permit such investigation to be made demonstrates that only by a change in the executive and in the legislative departments can complete exposures, punishment and correction be obtained.

We condemn the action of the Republican party in congress in refusing to prohibit an executive department from entering into contracts with convicted trusts or unlawful combinations in restraint of interstate trade. We believe that one of the best methods of procuring economy and honesty in the public service is to have public officials, from the one occupant of the White House, down to the lowest of them, returned as nearly as may be, to Jeffersonian simplicity of living.

3—We favor the nomination and election of a president imbued with the principles of the constitution, who will set his face sternly against executive usurpation of legislative and judicial functions whether that usurpation be veiled under the guise of executive construction of existing laws, or whether it take refuge in the tyrant's pleas of necessity or superior wisdom.

Open Door in the Orient.

We favor the preservation, so far as we can, of an open door for the world's commerce in the Orient, without an unnecessary entanglement in Oriental and European affairs, and without arbitrary, unlimited, irresponsible and absolute government anywhere within our jurisdiction. We oppose, as fervently as did George Washington himself, an indefinite, irresponsible, discretionary and vague absolutism and a policy of colonial exploitation, no matter where or by whom invoked or exercised; we believe, with Thomas Jefferson and John Adams, that no government has a right to make one set of laws for those "at home" and another and a different set of laws, absolute in their character, for those "in the colonies." All men under the American flag are entitled to the protection of the institutions whose emblem the flag is; if inherently unfit for those institutions, then they are inherently unfit to be members of the American body politic. Wherever there may exist a people incapable of being governed under American laws, in consonance with the American constitution that people ought not to be part of the American domain.

We insist that we ought to do for the Filipinos what we have done already for the Cubans, and it is our duty to make that promise now, and upon suitable guarantees of protection to citizens of our own and other countries resident there at the time of our withdrawal, set the Filipino people upon their feet, free and independent to work out their own destiny.

The endeavor of the secretary of war, by pledging the government's endorsement for "promoters" in the Philippine islands to make the United States a partner in speculative legislation of the archipelago, which was only temporarily held up by the opposition of the Democratic senators in the last session, will, if successful, lead to entanglements from which it will be difficult to escape.

The Democratic party has been and will continue to be, the consistent opponent of that class of tariff legislation by which certain interests have been permitted, through congressional favor, to draw a heavy tribute from the American people. This monstrous perversion of those equal opportunities which our political institutions were established to secure, has caused what may once have been infant industries to become the greatest combination of capital that the world has ever known.

These especial favorites of the government have, through trust methods, been converted into monopolies, thus bringing to an end domestic competition, which was the only alleged check upon the extravagant profits made possible by the protective system. Thus industrial combinations, by the financial assistance they can give now control the policy of the Republican party.

We denounce protection as a robbery of the many to enrich the few, and we favor a tariff limited to the needs of the government, economically administered, and so levied as not to discriminate against any industry, class or section, to the end that the burdens of taxation shall be distributed as equally as possible.

We favor a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses and for the commonwealth and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate ends of "equality of burdens and equality of opportunities" and the constitutional purpose of raising a revenue by taxation, to wit, the support of the federal government in all its integrity and virility, and in simplicity.

Trusts and Combinations Fostered.

We recognize that the gigantic trusts and combinations designed to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint products of capital and labor, and which have been fostered and promoted under Republican rule, are a menace to beneficial competition and an obstacle to permanent business prosperity. A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable.

Individual equality of opportunity and free competition are essential to a healthy and permanent commercial prosperity and any trust, combination or monopoly tending to destroy these by controlling production, restricting competition or fixing prices, should be prohibited and punished by law. We especially denounce rebates and discrimination by transportation companies as the most potent agency in promoting and strengthening these unlawful conspiracies against trade.

We demand an enlargement of the powers of the interstate commerce commission, to the end that the traveling public and shippers of this country may have prompt and adequate relief from the abuses to which they are subjected in the matter of transportation. We demand a strict enforcement of existing civil and criminal statutes against all such trusts, combinations and monopolies, and we demand the enactment of such further legislation as may be necessary to effectually suppress them.

Any trust or unlawful combination engaged in interstate commerce which is monopolizing any branch of business or production, should not be permitted to transact business outside of the state of its origin. Whenever it shall be established in any court of competent jurisdiction that such monopolization exists, such prohibition should be enforced through comprehensive laws to be enacted on the subject.

Irrigation of Arid Lands.

We congratulate our Western citizens upon the passing of the law known as the Newlands irrigation act for the irrigation and reclamation of the arid lands of the West; a measure framed by a Democrat, passed in the senate by a non-partisan vote and passed in the house against the opposition of almost all the Republican leaders by a vote, the majority of which was Democratic

We call attention to this great Democratic measure, broad and comprehensive as it is, working automatically throughout all time without further action of congress, until the reclamation is accomplished, reserving the lands reclaimed for home seekers in small tracts, and rigidly guarding against land monopoly, as an evidence of the policy of domestic development contemplated by the Democratic party, should it be placed in power.

The Democratic party when entrusted with power will construct the Panama canal speedily, honestly and economically, thereby giving to our people what Democrats have always contended for—a great interoceanic canal, furnishing shorter and cheaper lines of transportation and broader and less trammeled trade relations with the other peoples of the world.

We pledge ourselves to insist upon the just and lawful protection of our citizens at home and abroad and to use all proper measures to secure for them, whether native born or naturalized, and without distinction of race or creed, the equal protection of laws and the enjoyment of all rights and privileges open to them under the covenants of our treaties of friendship and commerce, and, if under existing treaties, the right to travel and sojourn is denied to American citizens, or recognition is withheld from American passports by any countries on the ground of race or creed, we favor the beginning of negotiations with the governments of such countries to secure by treaties the removal of these unjust discriminations.

We demand that all over the world a duly authenticated passport issued by the government of the United States to an American citizen shall be proof of the fact that he is an American citizen, and shall entitle him to the treatment due him as such.

We favor the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people.

Admission of New States.

We favor the admission of the territories of Oklahoma and Indian territory. We also favor the immediate admission of Arizona and New Mexico as separate states and a territorial government for Alaska and Porto Rico.

We hold that the officials appointed to administer the government of any territory as well as the district of Alaska should be bonafide residents, at the time of their appointment, of the territory or district in which their duties are to be performed.

We demand the extermination of polygamy within the jurisdiction of the United States and the complete separation of church and state in political affairs.

We denounce the ship subsidy bill recently passed by the United States senate as an iniquitous appropriation of public funds for private purposes and a wasteful, illogical and useless attempt to overcome by subsidy the obstructions raised by Republican legislation to the growth and development of American commerce on the sea.

We favor the upbuilding of a merchant marine without new or additional burdens upon the people and without bounties from the public treasury.

We favor liberal trade arrangements with Canada and with peoples of other countries where they can be entered into with benefit to American agriculture, manufactures, mining or commerce.

We favor the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine in its full integrity.

We favor the reduction of the army and of army expenditure to the point historically demonstrated to be safe and sufficient.

The Democracy would secure to the surviving soldiers and sailors and their dependents, generous pensions, not by an arbitrary executive order, but by legislation which a grateful people stand ready to enact.

Our soldiers and sailors who defend with their lives the constitution and the laws have a sacred interest in their just administration. They must therefore share with us the humiliation with which we have witnessed the exaltation of court favorites, without distinguished service, over the scarred heroes of many battles, or aggrandized by executive appropriations out of the treasuries of a prostrate people in violation of the act of congress which fixed the compensation or allowances of the military officers.

The Democratic party stands committed to the principles of civil service reform, and we demand their honest, just and impartial enforcement.

We denounce the Republican party for its continuous and sinister encroachments upon the spirit and operation of civil service rules, whereby it has arbitrarily dispensed with examination for office in the interest of favorites and employed all manner of devices to overreach and set aside the principles upon which the civil service was established.

Race and Sectional Animosities.

The race question has brought countless woes to this country. The calm wisdom of the American people should see to it that it brings no more.

To revive the dead and hateful race and sectional animosities in any part of our common country means confusion, distraction of business and the reopening of wounds now happily healed. North, South, East and West have but recently stood together in line of battle from the walls of Pekin to the hills of Santiago and as sharers of a common glory and a common destiny, we should share fraternally the common burdens.

We therefore deprecate and condemn the Bourbonlike, selfish and narrow spirit of the recent Republican convention at Chicago which sought to kindle anew the embers of racial and sectional strife and we appeal from it to the sober common sense and patriotic spirit of the American people.

The existing Republican administration has been spasmodic, erratic, sensational, spectacular and arbitrary. It has made itself a satire upon the congress, the courts and upon the settled practices and usages of national and international law.

It summoned congress into hasty and futile extra session and virtually adjourned it, leaving behind in its flight from Washington uncalled calendars and unaccomplished tasks.

It made war, which is the sole power of congress, without its authority, thereby usurping one of its fundamental prerogatives. It violated a plain statute of the United States as well as plain treaty obligations, international usages and constitutional law; and has done so under pretense of executing a great public policy which could have been more easily effected lawfully, constitutionally and with honor.

It forced strained and unnatural constructions upon statutes, usurping judicial interpretation and substituting congressional enactment decree.

It withdrew from congress their customary duties of investigation which have heretofore made the representatives of the people and the states the terror of evil doers.

It conducted a secretive investigation of its own and boasted of a few sample convictions while it threw a broad coverlet over the bureaus which had been their chosen field of operative abuses, and kept in power the superior officers under whose administration the crimes had been committed

It ordered assault upon some monopolies, but, paralyzed by its first victory, it flung out the flag of truce and cried out that it would not "run amuck," leaving its future purposes beclouded by its vacciliations.

Conducting the campaign upon this declaration of our principles and purposes, we invoke for our candidates the support, not only of our great and time honored organization, but also the active assistance of all of our fellow citizens who, disregarding past differences upon questions no longer in issue, desire the perpetuation of our constitutional government as framed and established by the fathers of the republic.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

For President of the United States,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT
of New York.

For Vice-President,
CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS
of Indiana.

REPUBLICAN DISTRICT AND COUNTY CONVENTIONS.

The Republican County and Second Assembly District conventions will be held in Pulaski next Tuesday, when candidates for county judge, county treasurer, special surrogate, coroner and the Assembly, will be placed in nomination. There will be no contention for the offices, and Judge Stowell, Mr. Thomas Moore, Attorney Clayton I. Miller, Dr. L. F. Hollis will without doubt become the unanimous choice of the convention. The Hon. F. G. Whitney will also become the unanimous choice of the district convention to succeed himself in the Assembly—a well-merited honor. The First Assembly District Convention will be held in Oswego next Wednesday, when the Hon. T. D. Lewis will be renominated for the Assembly, where he has served his constituents so wisely and well.

MR. BRADT'S PROSCRIPTIVE SPIRIT.

The jovous madness with which Mr. Bradt of the Observer assailed the editor of the Times in last week's edition, was probably followed by langor and nausea on the part of his readers. His statements were studiously confused and grossly unjust. The conclusion that he did not write the alleged criticism of an article that had appeared in the Times, was based upon a positive knowledge that not only his editorial page, but his local news also, is boldly taken from the pages of his contemporaries without even the courtesy of credit. This may be attributed to Mr. Bradt's innate modesty; it can not, however, be charged to any lack of reliance on his own genius, which is not only great but extravagant.

The Observer, the proprietor alleges, is an impartial paper. It refuses to take sides with either party unless a stipulated sum per column be paid. It is recalled that during our first city campaign he flatly refused to permit the Republicans to use the columns of his paper unless they paid the price he demanded, solemnly asserting that his interests would not be jeopardized, no matter which party was successful at the polls, because of a provision in the newly-adopted city charter, requiring that an official paper be selected on each side of the river. The editor of the Times, at the solicitation of the Republican committee, wrote the political matter in defence of Republican principles which appeared in the Observer at that time, and Mr Bradt was paid for its publication. This service was gratuitously rendered by the editor of the Times. Mr. Bradt was also paid for publishing matter defending the Democratic nominee for mayor, John N. Sharp. He therefore received money from both sides. These trifling incidents simply show how deeply-imbedded are matters of principle with Mr. Bradt—his consistency, and the narrow and proscriptive spirit in which he conducts his paper.

During the more recent contest for Supreme Court judge in this judicial district, Mr. Bradt received money from the Davies managers and also from those who were conducting the Rogers campaign.

It can not be disputed, therefore, that Mr. Bradt's mental horizon is restricted to the rim of a silver dollar. When to such an assemblage of qualities are added the platitudes of the Prohibition party, coupled with a profession of consistency and piety, the effect becomes overpowering.

In order to make the Times appear inconsistent, extracts from its columns [illegible] seven years ago were quoted in the Observer. The editor of the Times has neither apology nor explanation to offer to Mr. Bradt and his disappointed office-seeking friends, who are inspiring his pen, for any course it pursued at that or any other time.

Again, Mr. Bradt stated that the editor of the Times had been a Tammany Democrat (presumably while living in New York some ten years ago). If [illegible] true there would be no [illegible] for denying it. But it is [illegible] untrue, and it is only men[illegible] on general principles a [illegible] never go unchallenged, es[illegible] it is told for a malicious [illegible] opiate will often change a man's nature—making a scoffer a saint or a saint a scoffer—and that in his drug dreams he will see strange sights and do strange things, but is it not appalling that Mr. Bradt should do the same? His advertised consistency is most amusing, but it is melancholy to know that he is condemned to the ignominious labor—even though it be for a remuneration—of brightening adulation into new splendor for his newly-found friends—the men who have gained control over him and who are now using his columns for personal ends.

[illegible] is a candidate on the Pro[illegible] for county treasurer. [illegible] incidents in his life [illegible] beneficial use of an

THOSE who are rejoicing at the temporary deficit in the United States Treasury, and exclaiming: "I told you so!" may gather a little satisfaction from the fact that during the month of June the public debt decreased $8,069,860. This doesn't look as if the United States was going into bankruptcy right away.

WHILE the President remains at Oyster Bay he will receive but few persons. Even he, with all his youth and wonderful vitality, needs unbending and relaxation. He has been a continually busy man since the assembling of the extra session of Congress, and has had many perplexing problems to contend with. He is well entitled to a rest.

UNDER the stimulus of our reciprocity treaty with Cuba, it is gratifying to know that the island is improving rapidly in its industrial conditions. This is shown by the increase in the customs for the financial year just ended. The collections at Havana show an increase over 1893 of $2,897,919. The United States could afford to be at least just, commercially, with Cuba, after the sacrifice of blood and treasure that was made for her political freedom.

THE present indications are that "the man with the hoe." will be the man with the "dough" this year. While this may be slangy, it is probably eminently truthful, and if the farmer's prosperity this year is a trifle larger than seems entirely equitable, no one will begrudge it to him. When Dame Fortune smiles, and he is comfortably fixed, he is a generous fellow, ready to share his surplus with his brothers in the counting-house, the factory, the shop and all the byways of modern business. The Republican party seeks the vote of the farmer because it has furnished him better markets and better prices for his products than ever before. The Democratic party never expects the farmer's vote except when he has been ravaged by drought and the cinch bug.

Epworth League Convention.

The Epworth League Convention of the Northern New York M. E. Conference, which met last week at Thousand Island Park, selected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, the Rev. C. L. Peck, of Gouverneur; First vice-president, Homer M. Wallace, of Ogdensburg; second vice-president, the Rev. F. L. Knapp, of Carthage; third vice-president, Miss C. Mary Ninde, of Rome; secretary, Miss Grace Abbott, of Frankfort, treasurer, G. L. Birdsey, of Boonville; and Junior Superintendent, Mrs. M. G. Seymour, of Ilion.

The convention was a great success and despite unfavorable weather hundreds of enthusiastic leaguers were in attendance.

Runaway Accident.

Mr. James M. Knight of Pittsfield, Mass., while out driving with his mother, Mrs. Knight, his sister, Mrs. Bert Van Buren and his sister-in-law, Mr. Lester Baldwin, last Thursday afternoon, met with quite a serious accident. While the conveyance was turning the corner of Cayuga and Fourth streets, on the way to Mount Adnah Cemetery, their horse became frightened at a passing motor cycle and ran away, throwing the occupants of the carriage into the street. Mrs. Knight who is 70 years of age, had the misfortune to break her left arm. Her companions received a number of bruises and a severe shaking up; but otherwise they were not injured. It is feared that Mrs. Knight is injured internally.

Amicable Agreement Reached.

The "Storer" contract is now a thing of the past and no longer a menace to the tax-payers of this city. The Fulton Light, Heat & Power Company has accepted the $75 per light for past city lighting, as offered by the Board of Public Works, and no litigation will occur. The Board of Public Works has gained a signal victory and they are entitled to the congratulations of the tax-paying public. It is confidently expected that a ten-year contract with the electric light company, at a rate of $75 per lamp per year, will be signed at a meeting to be held this evening.

A MONSTER LOCOMOTIVE.

Figures and Estimates Furnished for its Construction by Former Fulton Resident.

The figures and estimates for the largest locomotive in the world were all made by Mr. Leon H. Schenck, a graduate of Sibley College, and a former resident of this city. Mr. Schenck is in the employ of the American Locomotive Company at Schenectady. The locomotive was built for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company and is known as No. 2400. It is enormous in its dimensions and capacity, weighing 334,500 pounds. It is 79 feet 6½ inches in length and 15 feet high. The boiler carries 16 tons of water and is so large in its dimensions that a six-foot man with a gun at "carry arms" can stand upright within it and his bayonet not touch the top. It has two steam chests and six driving wheels on each side. This locomotive is designed to haul heavy trains over the mountains without a pusher. The designer of the locomotive is also the inventor of the Richmond compound locomotive, and he built the engines for the United States battleship Texas.

DEMSTER GROVE.

Annual Camp Meeting Service—W. F M. S. and W. C. T. U. Anniversary—Talented Speaker Secured.

The annual camp meeting at Demster Grove begins on Wednesday evening, Aug. 17.

The anniversary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be held on the afternoon of Aug. 18 and the speaker will be Madam Layyah Barakat, a native Syrian woman.

Friday afternoon, Aug 19, is the anniversary of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and Madam Barakat will also address the convention. She is a most attractive and fascinating speaker, with enough of the oriental accent to bind her to her hearers. She was born at the foot of Mount Lebanon in a Mahommedan country, and later came to this country, where she received an English education, and is at present living in Philadelphia, Pa., being a member of the same church that helped to educate her. Whoever fails to hear Madam Barakat will miss a rare treat, as these societies, at great expense, have secured this gifted woman for these services.

50,000 SHARES

Of the Capital Stock of the

International Broom Comp'y,

Now offered at

50 CENTS A SHARE

I would respectfully call your attention to the stock of the International Broom Company of New York, as a safe investment. This company owns and operates the patent for making the Kaptop Brooms, of which the FULTON KAPTOP BROOM CO. is a licensed company.

The International Broom Company makes the metal cap and sells them to the subsidiary companies at a price which gives them a good profit. Besides this the subsidiary companies pay a royalty to the International Broom Company of from 20 to 25 cents on every dozen brooms manufactured and sold by them, the price of royalty depending upon the amount sold.

The following companies are now operated:

THE FULTON KAPTOP BROOM COMPANY, which has only been established about three months, is now making fifty dozen brooms a day, and will shortly increase their output to one hundred dozen per day.

THE ADVANCE BROOM COMPANY of Philadelphia, Pa., is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE NEW ENGLAND BROOM COMPANY of New Haven, Ct., is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE SUPERIOR BROOM COMPANY of Kansas City, is now making one hundred dozen brooms per day.

THE MANHATTAN BROOM COMPANY of Brooklyn, N. Y., is now making over one hundred dozen brooms per day.

The Company is about to establish sub-companies in the cities of Chicago, Ill., Pittsburg, Pa., Detroit, Mich., Baltimore, Md., St. Paul, Minn., and Washington. D. C., and negotiations have been practically closed for a sub-company in the City of Mexico. There are several applications for sub-companies still pending, but not yet acted upon.

The International Broom Company was incorporated under and pursuant to the laws of the District of Columbia in January, 1903. The present officers of the corporation are as follows: President, W. A. Shepard, a Syracuse whisk broom manufacturer; Vice-President, Jas. K. Polk, lawyer, Washington, D. C.; Secretary, Reuben S. Baldwin, Treasurer Empire Securities Corporation, New York; Treasurer, Henry F. Heuchel, retired contractor and builder, Brooklyn, N. Y. Executive Committee, W. A. Shepard, M. L. Shillak, R. S. Baldwin and H. F. Heuchel, all of New York.

I am offering at this time, 50,000 Shares of the capital stock of the company, par value $1.00, fully paid and non-assessable, at 50 CENTS per share. This stock is issued for the sole purpose of enlarging the capacity of the plant in New York, to meet the increased demand that will be made on them in the manufacture of kaptops. The Company believes that much of the stock ought to be disposed of where the sub-companies are situated; where the people are familiar with the undertaking. After this 50,000 shares are sold there will be no more stock offered. This is a splendid opportunity for a good and safe investment.

Some well-known men are interested in the local company in Fulton, which is in itself a guarantee of the standing of the International Broom Company,

It is confidently expected that within the next three months the Company will pay a dividend on the par value of their stock, and I feel sure that this proposition will warrant your investigation. I will be pleased to call upon you in regard to the same, and supply any further information desired.

THIS LABEL ON GARMENTS.

Schloss Bros & Co. Wholesale Drapers. COPYRIGHTED 1891

Guarantees Superiority.

Pictures Do Not Make Clothes

SOME of the highly artistic clothing illustrations done in gilt and otherwise, somehow or other suggest a "can opener." If you had your little hammer and would rap on one of these suits you could hear it rattle.

These fashion plates that look like tin-ware, are meant to simulate hair-cloth stiffness.

Take our honest word for it, these hair-cloth fronts are a glittering deception. They fit like a coat of mail till they break and then they look sad,—just how sad, every man who has actually worn one knows full well.

THE CLOTHING made by Schloss Bros. & Co., doesn't have to rely upon such artifices for good looks or shape-retaining style.

A SCHLOSS COAT is held up by good tailoring and good cloth. Knowing how to do this thing right is their trade secret.

A SCHLOSS COAT has a natural "hang" about it that we like to describe as "draping." It gives the garment a graceful, unforced look, that has an indescribable charm for the particular man with artistic sensibilities.

Everything that enters into this coat is the best that brains can select and money can buy. No detail of construction is to insignificant to be disregarded. The wrong button too frequently spoils an otherwise perfect garment.

THE SCHLOSS COAT has a perfect fitting collar and hollowed out shoulders of broad effect; minus the "little tin soldier" front, so much in evidence in other makes of clothing. There is no stuffed or padded look about the shoulder so common in clothing made by houses that give less attention to artistic details.

If you have never investigated the Art-Tailored Clothing of Schloss Bros. & Co. a revelation awaits you.

IF "SCHLOSS" is on the label you're safe.

SCHLOSS is the kind we sell.

"Drop in and let us talk it over."

THE PEOPLE LIKE IT

Unanimous Republican Approval of the Party National Ticket.

Democrats See Its Strength and Hasten to Warn Their Followers.

The reception of the ticket—Roosevelt and Fairbanks—nominated by the Republican national convention, has been most enthusiastic. As it was named without a dissenting voice and with equal warmth of support from every state there are none of the usual sores to be healed or differences to be patched up. The Republicans of every state, county, city, township and village are ready to begin work for the candidates, and there is in no section a question raised as to whether this or that leader will give to them his enthusiastic support. It was different in 1876, in 1880, in 1884, in 1888 and in 1892.

In every state it is settled that every leader and every one of the rank and file of the party is for Roosevelt and Fairbanks at the outset—a tremendous advantage.

Democrats at St. Louis or in editorial sanctums at home who watch the confusion, the bitterness, the difference of view and the lack of any policy or fixed idea in their party have not been slow to note the conditions in the Republican forces. They have admonished their party that it is against a well organized, enthusiastic and united opposition that it must contend. The Democratic New York World says:

> There should be no misconception in the minds of Democrats as to the strength of the ticket nominated at Chicago.
> President Roosevelt is greatly admired by the young, progressive and aggressive elements of his party. They like his daring, his dash, his contempt for precedents, his masterful way of bending the party bosses to his will, his defiance and subsequent placating of the Wall street magnates. His nomination represents the will of the Republican voters, however distasteful it may be to many of the old "war horses" and government mules of the party.
> The organization of the Republican party for effective campaign work must be accepted as most efficient. Though Hanna and Quay are gone, the party in power is strong in experienced and skillful politicians. Perhaps the ablest of them all sits in the White House and will direct the campaign through his trusted lieutenant, Cortelyou, who is a master of detail. There will be no lack of money. The whole body of officeholders will be auxiliaries in the campaign, each one anxious to retain his place. Taken as a whole, the country is still fairly prosperous, and the appeal to "let well enough alone" will not be without force.

The career of Theodore Roosevelt is wonderfully interesting, even exhilarating. It is like one of Kipling's stories, which may be sometimes absurd or reprehensible, but never flabby and never dull.

No other man ever rose from police commissioner to president of the United States in less than five years. No other so vigorously and so successfully turned stumbling blocks into stepping stones. Theodore Roosevelt entered politics as a reformer as soon as he had left college and made a reputation at the very start for public spirit, honesty, combativeness and unshakable physical and moral courage. He made enemies at every step, and every enemy made him ten friends.

The president of the United States challenged Wall street by forcing a settlement of the anthracite strike and ordering the suit for the dissolution of the Northern Securities merger. He sacrificed his popularity in the south rather than "shut the door of hope" in the face of the negro. He secured the partial fulfillment of our pledge of Cuban reciprocity. He ended the half century period of talk about the Panama canal and brought on a period of action. He insisted on probing the frauds of the postal service in the face of the anger of his party leaders.

All this makes an attractive record, whose popular strength is not to be ignored.

The Brooklyn Eagle, which has been one of the chief advocates of Judge Parker's candidacy, tells its readers that "the Democracy must not depreciate this ticket. It is a strong one. The Democracy will do well to match it or to better it."

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat sums up the situation thus:

> The ticket which the Chicago convention selected will sweep the country. This is a Republican era. There is not the slightest chance for the Democracy in 1904 to shake off the load of discredit from its shoulders which it has been accumulating for many years. Geographically the ticket meets all the demands. It represents the east and the middle west, the sections which have been giving the law to the country for many decades. Each member of the ticket resides in a state which had been doubtful until recently and which some of the politicians on both sides deemed to be doubtful in 1904. In reality, the only doubt regarding the attitude of either this year is as to the dimensions of its Republican majority. New York, for the time at least, has quit its pendulum swing from one party to the other in successive presidential years. In like manner the Republican plurality of 18,000 in 1896 and 26,000 in 1900 in Indiana has broken the sequence of that state's oscillations between the two big organizations.

They Will Stand Pat.

Are the American people ready to abandon the policies of the last two administrations or to intrust their execution to "unknown and perchance feebler hands?" That is the great question which the campaign of 1904 will raise. The indications are that the Democratic party will ask the country to change leaders blindly—to elect a new chief magistrate whose programme and personality are alike "unknown." Against this "unknown" the Republican convention cheerfully stands pat on its nominee and its record.—New York Tribune.

A GLORIOUS RECORD.

Work of Republican Party Summed Up by Ex-Senator Thurston.

The Republican club of New York city was one of the earliest organizations to ratify the nomination of Roosevelt and Fairbanks. At a mass meeting in Cooper Union the demonstration of approval was most hearty. Hon. John M. Thurston of Nebraska was the principal speaker. In his speech he said:

> The Republican party has done tolerably well. It has put armies of labor seekers that traveled hopelessly the highways of the land in the roaring factories, where the wheels are turning, the anvils ringing, the forge fire blazing and the spindles singing.
> It has taken our beggars from the streets and placed them in entirely comfortable homes by quiet firesides, where they sit and look into the faces of their happy wives and listen to the laughter and the song of their contented children. The Republican party has done tolerably well. It has furnished a place of labor for every willing American man. It has put the factory next to the American farm and made the operative in the factory the best purchaser from the farmer. The Republican party has done tolerably well. It has turned the great army of Cleveland beggars into the great army of McKinley kings.
> In the domain of finance the Republican party has done tolerably well. It has crucified the pernicious heresy of depreciated currency and cheap money on a great white silver cross of common sense and has pressed on the uplifted brow of Columbia the golden crown of a nation's honesty and honor. It has satisfied the whole world that American obligations will be kept and that the bankruptcy court will not be the tribunal where we will adjust our differences with our creditors.
> It has satisfied the American people that a cheap dollar is no good as a purchasing price for the products of the land; that it is no good as the payment of the wages of American toil. We have made our dollar the standard of the civilized world, and wherever it goes it is received on an equality with the best dollar that any other nation can produce.
> We have been doing tolerably well in continuing and carrying out the great protective principles of Hamilton and Clay and Lincoln and Blaine and McKinley. We have seen to it that the yellow labor of the orient and the pauper labor of Europe shall not come into competition with American men on equal terms either on this side of the sea or on the other. The Democratic party agrees with us that we should shut out from entry into our land the cheap Chinaman and the contract laborer from Europe, for they say—and in that we agree with them—that every day's job taken by the cheaper man robs some good American of a chance to do that day's work. And yet that same party which agrees with us on that proposition insists that the product of the labor of that same cheap man in his own country shall come in here free and take the place of the manufacture of the American man and rob him of the same day's work every time a day's work is sold here!
> We still stand for the protective tariff, which has made this land resound with the happy music of the turning wheels. Every time I go out into the great valleys of the Ohio and the Mississippi and think of the condition that existed in these valleys and on these hillsides only eight years ago as I went through the same country it seems to me that I can hear in the music of every wheel as it turns, in the music of every spindle as it sings, one great, grand refrain for the modern leader of the protective theory as it cries out to the wide, wide world, William McKinley—for he was the man.
> We have been doing tolerably well with the finances of the United States. We have developed our industries so fast, we have produced so rapidly, that we have changed the great trade balances that seemed about to pauperize us under the Democratic administration, and year by year the increasing wealth of all the world rushed into the American treasury.

TO KNIFE PROSPERITY.

The Democrats Always Ready to Stab the Protective Policy.

For more than sixty years the Democratic party has denounced protection as robbery, and their cry has been sometimes "a tariff for revenue only," sometimes for "progressive free trade throughout the world," but whatever the expression may be they have always been ready, when clothed with power, to run the dagger into the protective policy. And such is still the position of that party. In the closing days of the late session of congress Representative Cockran of New York preached the pure Democratic faith, and there never was in my recollection such a demonstration as came from the Democratic side of the house when, with flaming eyes and wild gesticulations and enthusiastic faces, they sprang as one man, with cheer after cheer interrupting the business of the house, until they could mark their approval of the policy in which they believed.—Speaker Cannon.

THE PROTECTIVE TARIFF.

Protection which guards and develops our industries is a cardinal policy of the Republican party. The measure of protection should always at least equal the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. We insist upon the maintenance of the principles of protection, and therefore rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration. But this work cannot be safely committed to any other hands than those of the Republican party. To intrust it to the Democratic party is to invite disaster.

We have extended widely our foreign markets, and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension, including commercial reciprocity wherever reciprocal arrangements can be effected consistent with the principles of protection and without injury to American agriculture, American labor or any American industry.—Tariff Plank in Republican Platform.

Roosevelt Prestige.

He has achieved what no other man in the history of the country has been able to achieve—gained a nomination to the presidency after succeeding to that office from the vice presidency by the accident of death. What Tyler and Fillmore and Johnson and Arthur each tried and failed to do, he has done, and done with an effectiveness to scatter opposition and make the nomination unanimous and by acclamation.—Springfield Republican.

NATIONAL FINANCES.

A Splendid Showing at the End of Fiscal Year.

Democratic organs and orators will doubtless try to make much of the charge that under an "extravagant" and "reckless" treasury policy the government's expenditures have this year outrun its receipts by "about $45,000,000." As a matter of fact, the actual excess of expenditures over receipts for the fiscal year which ended June 30 will be about $41,000,000, but included in this excess are three extraordinary payments not in any legitimate sense chargeable to the ordinary revenues of the year and never intended to be met out of the treasury's normal and ordinary income. These three payments aggregate $54,600,000.

Of that total $40,000,000 went to the new Panama Canal company in exchange for its title, franchises and property rights on the isthmus of Panama. Ten millions went to the republic of Panama for the cession of a canal strip across the isthmus. Four million six hundred thousand dollars was loaned to the Louisiana Purchase exposition. This last sum is being paid back in monthly or semimonthly installments. It is not properly an expenditure and can be classed as such only by a fiction of bookkeeping. Deduct these three payments from the aggregate of expenditures for the year and there appears, not a deficit of $41,000,000, but a surplus of over $13,000,000. All the ordinary expenses of the government were met out of its daily receipts, and a balance for the year was returned only $750,000 short of the surplus predicted by Secretary Shaw last December. In other words, $12,000,000 in savings was added to $38,000,000 of savings in previous years to pay the initial cost of the nation's great undertaking in Panama. That is a record on which the Republican party is glad to "stand pat." It is a record wholly unapproachable and unimaginable under the fiscal policies pursued by the last Democratic administration.—New York Tribune.

MR. SHAW'S GOOD POINT.

The Secretary on American Goods Sold at Cheap Prices Abroad.

Secretary Shaw has again proved himself an acute observer of economic tendencies and a clear critic of superficial talk on the subject. At a mass meeting in Chicago he paid his attention to those political economists—we use the adjective in the party sense—who are attacking the protective tariff because, as they allege, under it American manufacturers are selling goods cheaper abroad than they are selling them to our own people.

Mr. Shaw has taken the trouble to ascertain what proportion of our manufactured goods are sold abroad cheaper than at home, and finds that it amounts to only 30 cents' worth on every $1,000 of manufactures. Or, as he puts it, "every time $700 is paid to labor employed in shop or factory 30 cents' worth of goods, the product of this labor, is sold abroad for 29 cents."

The process of "dumping" a certain proportion of goods abroad is, generally speaking, due to two things—a desire to extend business and the necessity of relieving stocks at moments of congestion. The process is not in itself welcome either to the manufacturer or the consumer. But in special cases it is good business.

The people can afford the small and extremely infrequent discrimination that it creates for the sake of the enormous advantage which protection gives them. They think more about the $1,000 worth of manufacture that the tariff gives them than they do about the 30 cents that the foreigner gets.

In a word, Mr. Shaw has made the free trade agitation about this cheaper foreign selling look like 30 cents.—New York Evening Mail.

HILL'S DISTRUSTED.

Leading Parker Supporter Makes a Few Timely Remarks.

Events have rehabilitated David B. Hill. They have placed him in the saddle once more, but they have not created confidence. He is doubted, distrusted. His loyalty to Parker, to whom he is indebted for rehabilitation is not questioned, but he has a habit of retreating in the face of fire. With difficulty he was restrained from dickering with the City Democracy in 1883 in violation of an understanding, either tacit or expressed, nor was it easy to prevent him from trimming sails upon the excise question in 1888. He is either too timorous or too autocratic. When his supremacy is unchallenged he is more than likely to be found in eruption; when he has a fight on his hands he will cordially welcome overtures from almost any quarter, to say nothing of his tendency to make them on his own account. A specimen eruption was the notorious anthracite plank of two years ago, and a sample of the autocratic was the nomination of Coler by forced processes.—Brooklyn Eagle (Dem.).

ED. PINAUD'S
EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC

A Positive Dandruff Cure!

is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

Their Hatred of England.

Ferdinand de Lesseps used to tell how a Frenchman came to his aid when he was struggling against Palmerston's opposition to the Suez canal. The man, who was a total stranger, walked into his office one day and drew out of his pocket a wallet stuffed with bank notes.

"Monsieur," said he, "I beg the privilege of being allowed to subscribe toward the railway of the island of Sweden." "But, monsieur," said Lesseps, "it is not a railroad; it's a canal. It's not an island, but an isthmus. It is not in Sweden, but at Suez." "I don't care what it is or where it is," said the capitalist, "so long as it worries England. Put me down, I say."

But Lesseps had little reason to make fun of this episode if the picture his own son draws of him be true. Becoming incensed at some attack made on him in the British parliament and being inadequately provided with means to express his rage, his mind suddenly reverted to his linen collar, which was of English make. He tore it from his neck, dashed it upon the floor and danced on it, all for hatred of the island it came from.

Routed by Puppets.

Toward the close of the reign of Elizabeth, when the Spaniards were frequently hovering about the southwest coast of England, a party from their ships landed in the neighborhood of where Falmouth stands today, with the intention of burning the borough of Penryn. It chanced, however, that that same evening some strollers had set up in Penryn market place a representation by puppets of certain incidents in the life of Samson, including his victory over the Philistines.

At the point of Samson's onset upon these with the jawbone of the ass the strollers beat drums and sounded trumpets indicative of an alarm, and the Spaniards, who were at that moment about to rush the town, believing it to be full of soldiers, bolted for their boats.

This probably occurred in 1595, when there was a Spanish squadron on the coast, which landed troops and burned Penzance.

Safeguard the Children

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Sport on the Kafue River.

A trader in ivory and rubber writes as follows of sport on the Kafue river, in Africa: "Every morning at daybreak we got up and scanned the plains with our glasses for game. Often our boys called us first to say that a herd of water buck or hartbeest was grazing in sight, especially if the camp was out of meat. The river was full of fish—barbel, bream, pike and tiger fish. The bream were by far the best eating, but the tiger fish and big barbel gave the best sport. Spoon bait, with strong pike tackle and a stiff bamboo rod, was all that was required, and, trolling behind a dugout paddled by natives, we could soon make a bag. The tiger fish fight gamely and, breaking water repeatedly, very often succeed in shaking the hook from their mouths. Barbel run up to eighty pounds weight, and a heavy one can tow a canoe along the surface at some speed."

A Great Engineering Feat.

The Oroyo railroad, which runs from Callao to the gold fields of Cerro de Pasco, is considered one of the wonders in the Peruvian world. It is certainly the greatest feat of railroad engineering in either hemisphere. Commencing in Callao, it ascends the narrow valley of the Rimac, rising nearly 5,000 feet in the first fifty-six miles. Thence it goes through the intricate gorges of the Sierras till it tunnels the Andes at an altitude of 15,645 feet, the highest point in the world where a piston rod is moved by steam. The wonder is doubled on remembering that this elevation is reached in seventy-eight miles.—Chicago Journal.

The One Who Wasn't Whipped.

It was in a large school, and one of the boys had committed some grave infraction of discipline. The teacher announced that he would thrash the whole class if some one did not tell him who had committed the offense. All were silent, and he began with the first boy and thrashed every one in the class until finally he reached the last one. Then he said, "Now, if you will tell me who did this I won't thrash you." "All right, sir, I did it," was the reply.

Weak Hearts

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, the stomach expands—swells, and puffs up against the heart. This crowds the heart and shortens the breath. Rapid heart beats and heart disease is the final result. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat, takes the strain off the heart, cures indigestion dyspepsia, sour stomach, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Bridges in Korea.

Some idea of the delights of traveling in Korea is given by the following description by a traveler of the "bridges" in that country: A first class bridge in Korea is simply an assortment of planks nailed together. These are scarce. A second class bridge is a series of isolated stones, from one to another of which the visitor may jump. A third class bridge, much the commonest variety, is invisible, its position being indicated by a couple of posts, one on each side of the river. They mean that you may safely wade across, as the water will—probably—not go much above your chest!

Charles Kean's Afflictions.

Charles Kean, the actor, could no pronounce the consonants "m" and "n." In the first scene with Jarvis in "The Gamester" he began by inquiring, "Well, Jarvis, what says the world of me? I'll tell thee what it says. It calls me a false friend, a faithless husband, a cruel father—in one short word, it calls me Galester!" In Shylock he was wont to say:

"You take by life
When do you take the beans whereby I live."

But his most unfortunate slip occurred in the last line of "Money," where Evelyn says that, in order to enjoy the good things of life, we require "plenty of money." In this situation Kean always brought the curtain down with a roar by sarcastically remarking that the one thing necessary to complete their happiness is "plenty of putty!"

Wealth of Ancient Jews.

A writer in the Jewish magazine, the Menorah, says that there were richer men before the Christian era than there are now. He estimates Korah's fortune at $3,000,000,000, and says that Solomon, after spending $250,000,000 on his temple, was still worth between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000. In Roman times there were three Jews in Jerusalem who between them offered to spend $100,000,000 for twenty-one years in feeding the inhabitants of the city rather than surrender the city. One of these Jews, Nikodemon, gave his daughter a dowry of $425,000,000.

Timely and Valuable Suggestions.

Many people, especially women who lead closely confined domestic lives, suffer from what in general terms is called "nervousness" Among all forms of treatment none has even approached in success the intelligent use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., which promotes an easy and natural action of the digestive organs and imparts tone to the nervous system.

In Spain.

"One meets [illegible] opposites in Spain," said a man who has traveled in that country. "In the Basque provinces the people are alert, up to date, thrifty and industrious. In Barcelona I was agreeably surprised at the evidences of modern progress, and its principal street, the Rambla, is undeniably finer than any boulevard in Paris. In some other sections the natives are about the limit of sloth and evince a don't care spirit in everything that concerns their temporal welfare. They tell a story of a Spanish shoemaker who was approached by a customer with wornout shoes with a request that they be repaired immediately. The cobbler called to his wife to know how much money there was in the house. She answered enough to supply the family wants for another day, whereupon the customer was told that if he was in such a great hurry he had better try some other shop. This is the spirit that prevails in some parts of the kingdom, but must not be taken as a national characteristic."—Washington Post.

DIZZINESS AND WEAK NERVES CURED.

Nothing Helped Until Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, Was Taken.

TWENTY-FIVE PIANOS BELOW COST

The New Piano Firm of Andrew J. Speich Co. Make Wonderfully Low Prices on all High Grade Pianos.

To Make Friends Quickly and Get the People Using Their Pianos and Talking About Them They Offer the First Twenty-Five Pianos at Factory Cost and Less.

A new firm must do something radical to get a foothold in a city where there are old firms in the same line of business.

A newspaper will often give away its entire publication for the first six months to get a start and let people know there is a new paper in town.

It is doing business at a big loss, but in the long run it pays and people continue to buy the paper.

In the ordinary course of business it would take from 3 to 6 months for a new firm to sell its first twenty-five pianos.

Six months' store rent, six months' clerk hire, six months' living expenses, that would cost $1,500 or $2,000 and the whole six months' time gone.

Now we purpose to sell our first 25 pianos in ten days and are willing to spend what it would cost to do it in six months.

That means a dead loss for ten days but it accomplishes results now instead of waiting six months or a year.

We therefore offer our first twenty-five pianos at factory cost to make friends and get established quickly and save six months' time.

First, every piano is brand new and straight from the factory; second, every piano is high grade; third, every piano is warranted exactly as represented or your money refunded.

As an illustration and to show how we shall sell twenty-five pianos in so short a time we offer the following:

A New York make of piano, full size and modern in every respect, seven and one-third octaves, good tone and action, mahogany cases, regular $250 pianos, we shall sell for only $108.

Another piano of an old well known make, full size, full iron frame, repeating action, ivory keys, all improvements, latest design of cases and regularly sold for $275, we offer for $119.

$300 piano, one whose name is almost a household word in Puritan style of case, ivory and ebony keys, genuine San Domingo mahogany cases; all the latest improvements, for only $127.

$350 Haynes piano, one of the old standard makes of the world, used by such artists as Patti and other famous singers and players; the very latest thing as to case, design and workmanship; this piano goes at this sale for only $147.

$450 high grade piano, one of the best known standard makes, the manufacturer requested us not to put the name in cold print at the price we will sell it; it is made up in the very latest styles of case in both mahogany and French burl walnut, best Strauch action; guaranteed for ten years; this make goes for only $198.

Well known Chase piano in beautiful mahogany and walnut cases, all the latest improvments, for only $217.

$500 and $550 pianos used and endorsed by the world's greatest artists and used in Oswego by many of the best families for years, in all the fancy woods will go for only $267, $278, $298, $317, etc.

These pianos are all bran new and guaranteed absolutely by its maker.

They are makes like Wegman, Steck, Lindeman, Chase, Howard, Janssen and many others These pianos may be bought for cash or on easy monthly payments.

The store will be open every evening during this sale.

Put enough money in your pocket to close a deal and come in and get the first pick of these high grade pianos.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTIONS

County and Second Assembly District Republicans Hold a Veritable Love Feast and Renominate Officials.

The Republican County and Second Assembly District conventions were held in Pulaski on Tuesday. It was the occasion of the commingling of not only a large number of delegates, but also of the active and more enthusiastic Republicans of the county and a few of the prominent leaders in the State. There was the utmost harmony, not the slightest note of discord being discernable.

Pulaski Republicans extended a most hearty welcome to the delegates. The Richland band meeting the train on Monday evening and Tuesday morning. A superb Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner across Lake street and the national colors draping the stores and private residences gave the picturesque village a gala appearance.

On Tuesday morning the arrival of the Hon. N. N. Stranahan, Congressman Knapp, Congressman Sereno E. Payne, who with Hon. P. W. Cullinan and Col. John T. Mott, completed a most distinguished gathering.

The County Convention was called to order in Betts' Opera House on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock by Chairman Cooper, who named the Hon. Irving Hubbs of Pulaski as temporary chairman.

Secretary W J. Pentelow called the roll of the delegates.

Mr. Hubbs, in accepting the chairmanship, delivered a most interesting and instructive address, which aroused the enthusiasm of the assemblage.

The secretaries selected were Messrs. W. W. Spencer, Jr., of Oswego, and Frank W. Thorpe of Minetto, and the tellers were Messrs. Oliver Wilder of Sandy Creek and Charles Crow of Redfield.

On motion of Mr. John S. Parsons of Oswego the temporary organization was made permanent.

Messrs. Culkin, F. A. Looker of Volney and Fred Jamison of Amboy were made a committee on resolutions.

The resolutions set forth and reaffirmed the principles of the Republican party in county, State and nation and gave well-deserved credit to the leaders who had achieved such glorious results.

Resolutions presented by E B. Powell, Esq., of Oswego, eulogistic of the late lamented George B. Sloan of Oswego were also presented and were adopted by a rising vote.

District Attorney W. B Baker placed in nomination for County Judge the Hon. Merrick Stowell. He was eloquently described as a wise judge, an able lawyer and an ardent Republican. Every mention of Judge Stowell's name was greeted with applause.

Judge Stowell's nomination was seconded by the Hon. N. B. Smith of Pulaski, and the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for the nominee.

Judge Stowell was presented to the convention and was received with great enthusiasm. He thanked the members for the esteem and confidence they had reposed in him and promised that he would faithfully discharge the duties of the office.

The name of Thomas Moore for county treasurer was presented by E. B. Powell of Oswego, who referred to Mr. Moore's efficiency, honesty and capability in a most complimentary manner.

Surrogate Mead, in seconding the nomination of Mr. Moore, withdrew the name of W. F. Hill of this city, a candidate for the office.

Mr. Moore's nomination was made unanimous.

Clayton I. Miller of Mexico was unanimously renominated for special surrogate and Dr. L. F. Hollis of Lacona for coroner.

The candidates were brought before the convention and thanked the members for the honors conferred.

The new County Committee is as follows:

Albion—James Buckley.
Amboy—Fred Jamison.
Boylston—Robert Tennant.
Constantia—Eugene Dawley.
Fulton City:
First ward—L. E. Taggert.
Second ward—George R. Simons.
Third ward—C. R. Leonard.
Fourth ward—W. J. Pentelow.

Parish—W. C. Richards.
Redfield—Charles Crow.
Richland—J. L. More.
Sandy Creek—H. L. Wallace.
Schroeppel—F. C. Sweet.
Scriba—A. E. Baxter.
Volney—F. A. Looker.
West Monroe—E. M. Wightman.
Williamstown—C. W. Taft.

The committee met at 1:15 p. m. and re-elected James H. Cooper chairman and W. J. Pentelow secretary and treasurer.

SECOND DISTRICT CONVENTION.

The Second Assembly District Convention was held at 1:30 o'clock. The Hon. F. G. Whitney was unanimously renominated to succeed himself as member of Assembly from that district. Delegates to the State, Congressional and Senatorial conventions were also selected and appropriate resolutions were adopted.

At 2 o'clock a monster mass meeting was held in the park and eloquent addresses were delivered by the Hon. Sereno E. Payne, Congressman Knapp, Hon. N. N. Stranahan and Hon. P. W. Cullinan.

As the Times goes to press the First Assembly District is in session, and the Hon. T. D. Lewis will without doubt become the unanimous choice of the convention for the Assembly.

Firemen's Convention.

The annual convention of the Oswego County Volunteer Firemen was held in Minetto on Thursday and Friday of last week. The delegates and visitors are loud in their praise of the hospitality extended them by the residents of Minetto and the cordial manner in which they were entertained. The parade on Friday, despite the rain was most imposing, the firemen in their dress uniforms presenting a splendid appearance. State Engineer Bond who was an honored guest at the convention, spoke very highly of the class of men who comprised the volunteer association.

At the business meeting held on Thursday the following officers were selected for the ensuing year: President, C. W. Taft, Williamstown; vice presidents, William Kellogg of Minetto, S. B. Mead of Fulton; secretary, H. K. Burdick of Fulton; treasurer, M. E. McGovern of Fulton.

Oswego was selected as the place for holding the next convention.

The prize for the tallest firemen in line was awarded to C. H. Hulett, for the shortest fireman, Joseph Dingle, both of Fulton.

Band Concert.

The first in the series of ten band concerts to be given this Summer, will occur in the park on Thursday evening of this week. The following program has been arranged:

March........ ... .Barnhouse
Neel's Fashion Plate
Medley........ ....DeWitt
I've got my eyes on you
Selection............................ Meyrelles
Il' Trovatore
Overture.................................Suppi
Light Cavalry
Waltz ....Comstock
Leading Lady
Selection..................................Clarke
Sultan of Sulu
March......................................Morse
Blue Bell

Undoubtedly there will be a large and appreciative audience present, at least it was the thought of the Common Council in setting aside the appropriation of $200, that the music would furnish pleasure and profit to many of our poorer residents who would otherwise not be able to hear good music and enjoy an hour of social intercourse with friends and neighbors under such pleasant circumstances.

OBITUARY.

The ladies of the Fulton Shakespeare Society met on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. W. Gardner for the purpose of expressing their sorrow at the death of one of the charter members, Miss Elizabeth Coates. Many pleasant remembrances of Miss Coates were spoken of by the different ladies present—the unconscious influence which she exerted upon all about her; her intense interest in the work of the club; and the many friends which her beautiful personality won for her. The following was read and entered upon the records of the Society as the united sentiment of the members regarding their late associate:

It is a wide circle that is saddened by the passing away of Miss Coates. In our public schools, where she was a valued instructor; in the church, of which she was a consistent and devout communicant; and by the many friends who have loved and honored her, she is mourned as one whose place is not easily filled.

While, as individuals, we were wont to meet and value Miss Coates in one or more of the above relations, it has been our privilege to know her in the association of this Society in a manner peculiarly intimate and delightful. One of the founders of the Society and its first president, for fifteen years she has actively participated in its work, delighted in its fellowship, and adorned its membership.

It is not exaggeration to say that her fine taste and scholarly work have been a constant impulse toward the maintenance of a high standard on the part of the Club in general. Everyone calls to memory her excellent reading, the clearness and pertinence of her comments, and especially her careful preparation for each meeting.

But more than the intellectual pleasure which it afforded, Miss Coates prized the friendships brought to her by its association. In speaking of it once her words were: "Among all the pleasant things that have come to me in my life, I shall always count the Shakespeare Club as one of the very pleasantest."

How solicitous she was that in additions to our membership we should study to secure only those who would (in her own phrase) "appreciate and enter into the kindly spirit of the Society!"

We all remember her great desire to gather the members once more under her roof at the opening of the last season; her anxiety lest any should be absent; and we recall the pathos and interest of her figure as she stood at the head of the tea-table and called upon all the charter members of the Society to rise. We realized then that it was a gathering never to be repeated, and was, in a sense, Miss Libbie's good by to the Club; and every member strove to do her part to make the evening a happy memory.

A touching tribute to Miss Libbie as a woman has been the tender consideration called forth in others by her feebleness and suffering in these later years. Her burdens were so bravely borne that we were stimulated, often unconsciously perhaps, to higher performance on our part as we associated with her from year to year. Some of us will recall one evening, in her absence, during the studies in "Paracelsus", the discussion following the reading of the lines:

"Oh, not alone when life flows still, do truth
And power emerge, but also when strange chance
Ruffles its current; in unused conjuncture,
When sickness breaks the body—hunger, watching,
. . . . Oftenest death's approach,
Peril, deep joy, or woe,"

Our thoughts turned to Miss Libbie, and we spoke of how apt an illustration life afforded to the text! Truth and power did indeed irradiate this life although it was grievously fettered by bodily weakness.

And now that the deliverance for which she so longed has been granted; we, her fellow-members, beloved by her even as she was loved by us, rejoice that she has entered into the glories of the world beyond. In a few weeks we shall resume the work of another year, and we shall understand, as perhaps we scarcely appreciate now, the serious loss that our society has sustained. But its study and fellowship may continue to be for us what they truly were to Miss Coates—an impulse toward a stronger womanhood, and a deeper faith in the great realities which though unseen, are eternal. *

DIED.

Mrs. Abbie L. Davis, widow of the late John Davis of Hannibal, died at the home of her son, Mr. Gilman Davis of Oswego, at the age of 87.

Andrew J Penner, aged 65, died at the hospital on Thursday after a long illness. The deceased was a veteran of the Civil war and was an Odd Fellow. The funeral was held from E. P. Cole's undertaking rooms on Friday, the Rev. J. N. Fulford officiating.

Frank Kenney, while in engaged in erecting a barn for his brother, John Kenney, in West First street, on Saturday, was precipitated to the ground by the breaking of the scaffolding on which he was standing, and he was mortally wounded. He was taken to the hospital were it was found that seven of his ribs were crushed and one lung had been perforated. He only survived the injury about two hours. The deceased was 44 years of age and is survived by his widow, a son and daughter. The funeral was held from his home and the Hannibal church on Tuesday.

Mrs. Martha Howe on Wednesday received the news of the sudden death of her brother, John Elliott Harroun of Watertown, as the result of a stroke of apoplexy which he sustained early in the morning, and from the effects of which he died an hour later. The deceased was a native of this city and was 65 years of age. He had been prominently identified with the lumber business for many years in this city, Kalamazoo, Mich., Cincinnatti, Ohio, and since 1888 he had been engaged in the same business in Watertown. The deceased was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him and his death is deeply deplored. He is survived by his widow, one son, Mr. Elliott K. Harroun and one sister, Mrs. Howe. The remains were brought to this city for interment in the family lot at Mt. Adnah.

Elizabeth I. Coates, aged 55, passed to rest at her home in Rochester street on Sunday morning after several years of ill health and during most of the time had been suffering keenly, but through it all she exhibited such unvarying patience and thoughtfulness for others that she has been a beautiful example to all who came in contact with her. She was the youngest daughter born to the late Hon. and Mrs. H. H. Coates and her entire life was spent in Fulton with the exception of a few years when she taught in another State. She was one of the oldest instructors in Fulton High school, and one of the best beloved among the students. Her influence [illegible] immeasurable and her memory will be tenderly revered, not only by those who reside in this vicinity but by numerous friends who are widely scattered. The funeral services were held from the late home on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. A. H. Grant officiating. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah. Two brothers, Messrs. James of Brooklyn and Horatio S., of this city, are the immediate surviving relatives.

Public Library Site.

In order to test public opinion regarding the location for the Carnegie library site, a young lady who would be least liable to have prejudices in the matter was sent to our business men on Monday to secure an expression of their ideas. More than fifty were seen and a lively interest in the matter was manifested and nearly every one showed a willingness to have his opinion quoted. It had been estimated that of the unbiased minds at least three-fourths would favor the triangle in the Park, but this canvas revealed a marvelous unanimity of thought. In fact the desire to have the library located in the Park was practically unanimous—only five—less than one tenth were opposed to the Park. Of these five, four own their homes close to the sites proposed and that in all probability is the cause—consciously or unconsciously—of their opposition. From the fifth no reason was advanced for not locating in the park, except a personal desire. A fair test therefore proves that fifty representative business men, 45 per cent. or 95 per cent. favor the Park location, and of those not living near the sites only one or one one-hundreth per cent. showed opposition and no real reason was advanced as a basis for the opposition except personal desire. This is a startling record but one which can be investigated and verified by a the committee on library sites. Inasmuch as the public purse must maintain the library, and has so agreed—ought not the majority desire to prevail? There seems to be no valid argument against it and every argument in favor of it

CORESPONDENCE.

THE LIBRARY SITE.

EDITOR TIMES:—I don't know how much space you are willing to accord a non-resident in his desire to express his sentiments on the question of where a library edifice in Fulton should be placed. However, I beg an opportunity to attempt a refutation of a few of Mr. Van Wagenen's statements and assumptions.

First,—I will grant that day light is essential to the reader in a library in the day hours, but when artificial sources are called upon, it is of very little consequence. As for landscape gardening around the edifice, that is a matter of externals with which a library has absolutely nothing to do. Massachusetts has a free public library in every town and city, but the making the same centers for floral display seems never to have entered the minds of founders. As for centrality, if the Park site be taken, there are yet in the way an unopened street and a considerable hill, not to mention the crossing of a railroad track. If mid-distance is a real consideration then the location must come off the hill entirely.

Second,—I can see no connection between the vast area of New York's Central Park, and the modicum of space devoted to museum uses, and the large slice which it is proposed to take out of Fulton's most beautiful feature. Mr. Van Wagenen's impugns my reasoning. Let me state that his, followed to its legitimate ending or conclusion, would warrent the placing on the Park of every public edifice that the city may hereafter erect. If a library structure, then an engine house, a schoolhouse and eventually a City Hall. By that time, what has become of the Park itself? In olden times, the village church found a location on the Common but all that is past and many a town has spent thousands in freeing the village green of so called public utilities. The tendency of the day is to remove from the open, public spaces, every edifice whatever, rather than to place upon them anything now. New York City once had a City Hall Park, but in a moment of aberration she gave it as [illegible] the old Park. I can see no difference whatever in the two parts. I remember well, in my Falley Seminary days, when Lawyer Harvey Townsend fenced off a part of the south side of the Park for a cow pasture and that, on the west end of that same south part, the circus ring was raised, but somehow the fence of the pasture and the ring of the circus were both leveled and the space went where it should, into the public play ground. I may be in error, but I shall be very much surprised if, to the acquirement of all this space for park purposes, there is not attached the condition that it be kept free and open, just as long as it remains public property.

Third,—As to the expectations of the last twenty five years concerning the uses and development of the Park. Thus far, I think the eye has been spared the infliction of "Keep off the Grass" signs so characteristic of city enclosures. "Nature unadorned is adorned the most," need not be taken in its extremest application when applied to the beautiful area now posessed by Fulton. If there be weeds, they surely are not obtrusive and if they were, I am wondering if the locating at the S. W. corner, of the library would secure their removal. "A howling mob of boys" with an array of wicked occupations which should, demand, if the charge be well founded, the presence of the entire police force of Fulton. Naturally these boys, thus depraved, must be dwellers in the immediate vicinity and one cannot help asking why the mothers and fathers do not sally forth and restrain their unruly offspring? Their wickedness is not the result of having a place wherein they may play. So then it comes about that the granite monument to the memory of my old friends, playmates, and comrades who gave their lives that the Nation might live is a "Stone Monstrosity." I must confess, I did not expect that any one, in the days of those who gave their services to the country, would thus characterize a tribute to the memory of the fallen. It comes very near the spirit of the mob, which, more than forty years ago, paraded in front of nearby Falley Seminary and with the foulest language assailed the name and character of the patriotic principal. "A big bare pole." What is it? A flag staff? I don't wonder that it is an "abomination" to a man who is so free in his denunciation of a soldier's monument.

Fourth—From the nature of things, I can have no personal interest in the location of a public library building. When the institution itself was contemplated, I was asked to contribute to the earliest collections and I responded as I could. I deemed the public fortunate in securing so excellent and devoted a librarian and as announcements have, from time to time, been made in public print I have followed the development of the library with much interest. I live in a land of books. Massachusetts has more than four million volumes accessible to her teeming thousands in these free libraries. The aim is to get books into the hands of the people in the quickest, most effective manner possible. When Fulton places her structure she should take equal care. The reading public will visit the easily reached edifice more often than the one remote, even though the latter have a flower garden around it. If however, the really central site cannot be had, then place this and all other public buildings where they may look out upon the open space. This is the policy of the day and no community ever yet robbed itself and posterity by cutting into its village green, its common or its park without regret. If boys, young and old, misuse the space, punish or look after them, don't punish yourselves or give up an inch of the heritage which is yours for rest and recreation. Monuments belong in public places. Chicago's Court [illegible] City [illegible] Boston is hard by the [illegible] London's National Museum of [illegible] fronts the square, the Empire City long since ceased to plant her great public edifices on her breathing spots, and Boston's monumental library building, the finest strictly municipal effort in the land, looks out over Copley Square, does not rest upon it.

EIGHT LONG WEEKS.

And Nothing Has Been Seen or Heard of Charles F. Ehle.

(From the Utica Daily Press, July 16.)

Eight weeks ago yesterday Charles F. Ehle of 28 Scott street left his home and since that date no one, as far as is known, has seen or heard of him. The police authorities have done all in their power to find him, and the newspapers have announced his disappearance. Members of his family have tried every means of locating him without result. Yesterday it was announced that they would give a reward of $50 to any person who could give definite information concerning his whereabouts, dead or alive.

Mr. Ehle was about 51 years old, five feet eight inches tall and weighed about 145 pounds. He had blue eyes and a sandy mustache. When he left home he was attired in a black mixed suit of clothes with the mark of the Roberts-Wicks Company, and had on a blue necktie. He wore a black derby hat. His underwear was marked "C. F. E."

He has been described as being slightly lame, but this is not so. His family is very anxious to get some news of him, and anyone who can give any information would confer a great favor and relieve his family of a great care.

Italy and the Evil Eye.

It is hard for us to realize the deadly significance to an Italian of the suggestion that one may have the evil eye. I was walking one day with a young American girl to whom I had been unfolding some of the tragedies I have known connected with the superstition. She took it all lightly and joyously, after the manner of her kind, and later, during our walk, when a saucy, tormenting beggar pursued us, she made the sign of the corni as I had described it to her, shaking the hand slightly, with the first and the fourth finger extended. Then the beggar became convulsed with anger and seemed almost beside herself, shrieking out such a torrent of abuse that we were glad to jump into a cab and fly from the wrath to come. The poor creature was not to be blamed; she knew that once the shadow of suspicion falls it means social excommunication, banishment outside the pale of whatever society one belongs to.—Century.

Whistler's Fine Airs.

Mortimer Menpes, the artist, in his book on Whistler, says: "Sometimes we visited a dealer who owed him money, and Whistler would receive a check. Once the check was not handed to him in what he thought a sufficiently dignified manner, and he said to the dealer: 'This is careless of you. You push this check toward me, and you do not realize what a privilege it is to be able to hand it to the master. You should offer it on a rich old English salver and in a kingly way.' Once a dealer borrowed a gorgeously embossed silver salver for the occasion, and when the master arrived for his check—he was very punctual—presented it on the salver with a carefully worded and elegant little speech that he had taken some pains to rehearse. The master was pleased. 'This,' said he, 'is as it should be.'"

GEORGE B. SLOAN'S WILL.

Charitable Institutions in Oswego Remembered; Also Employes and Friends—Widow Receives Greater Part of the Estate.

The will of Ex-Senator George B. Sloan of Oswego has not been made public and while it does not show the value of the estate, it provides that after certain bequests have been made, the real estate and most of the personal property is left to the widow and the remainder is divided in equal parts among the direct heirs. The estate will remain undivided during the lifetime of Mrs. Sloan. The widow and the three children are named as executors. In addition to a bequest to his only surviving brother, there are the following legacies of public interest:

Henry Latimer Wright, $5,000; Samuel Hobart Wright, $5,000; to the widow of his nephew, James Frederick Wright, $10,000; to the widow of his brother-in-law, Arza Crane, $10,000; to the parish of Christ church, $10,000, to be invested and the income devoted to relieving the wants of such poor people as the rector of the parish shall deem within the scope of the bequest; to the Rev. Lewis G. Morris, rector of Christ church, $5,000.

To trustees who shall be choosen by the residents of Oswego and the County of Oswego, $5,000 toward the erection of a soldiers' monument; the bequest to be withheld until sufficient funds have been subscribed to insure the completion of the undertaking within eighteen months of the time of payment of legacy.

To the Home for the Homeless, $5,000; to the Oswego Orphan asylum, $5,000; to the Oswego City hospital, $5,000.

To Elisha B. Powell, $5,000; F. E. Sweetland, $5,000; Frank B. Treadwell, $2,500; Isaac E. Pool, $2,500; John W. Leverick, $1,000; Daniel Crowley, gardener, $1,000; Jesse Schentzow, coachman, $1,000; Maria Shannon, $500; Bridget Cassidy, $500.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last Summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by H. C. Giesler.

A Great Heat-Producer.

The Syracuse Heater Company of South Clinton street, Syracuse, manufacturers of warm-air furnaces and combination heaters, have just placed a No. 6 furnace in Mr. Ira E. Morrison's Park street residence; also, one in Mr. Robert Hunter's residence on Fourth street. Mr. Frank H. Rumsey of Fifth street, is the sole agent for Fulton.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This remedy is certain to be needed in almost every home before the summer is over. It can always be depended upon even in the most severe and dangerous cases. It is especially valuable for summer disorders in children. It is pleasant to take and never fails to give prompt relief. Why not buy it now? It may save life. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

THE SCENE OF WAR.

LEADING FIGURES IN THE STRUGGLE IN THE FAR EAST.

The Ill Luck of a Russian General and a Japanese Admiral—Bravery of Russian Army Chaplains—Religion on the Battlefield.

Manchuria, like South Africa, is proving to be the graveyard of military reputations. The experience of General Zassoulitch, the stubborn commander of the Russian forces routed by General Kuroki at the passage of the Yalu river, illustrates this. He was superseded because he disobeyed orders in giving battle to the enemy. The command of the Second Siberian army division, which was taken from him, has been given to Lieutenant General Count Keller. The latter recently resigned the post of governor of Ekaterinoslav in order that he might be able to go to the front. General Kuropatkin held General Zassoulitch responsible for the defeat of the Russians on the Yalu river, maintaining that he should not have undertaken to fight such superior numbers, but military experts point out that Zassoulitch is not the only officer in the Russian army who has underestimated the strength and the numbers of the Japanese.

GENERAL ZASSOULITCH.

Religion plays a leading part in the warfare of the soldiers of the czar. The Russian soldier is strict in the observance of the rites of his church, even when on a campaign against the enemy. Priests go with the regiments into battle, sometimes carrying the cross in the firing line. The elaborate rites of the Greek church are performed in camp, and one of the institutions of the army is a chapel car which may be moved from point to point on the Siberian railway and used in the celebration of the sacraments and other ceremonies. In the battle of Chiulien cheng a charge of infantry was preceded by a Russian "pope" bearing a cross. Bravery on the part of priests is a common thing in the warfare between the Russians and Japanese, and religion oftentimes breaks down the barriers between the nations at war, as when a Japanese Christian dying from a Russian bullet receives the sacrament from the hands of a member of the priesthood of the Russian state church.

The Japanese are ardent admirers of their heroes, but they are also quick to blame a naval or military officer who is unsuccessful. Vice Admiral Kamimura, who is Vice Admiral Togo's second in command, and who was placed on guard upon the wide stretch of water known as the Japan sea, seems to have had the worst luck of any of the Japanese commanders, military or naval. Vladivostok, the headquarters of the Russian squadron which Admiral Skrydloff commands, is located on the western side of the Japan sea and the Russians have done more injury to the Japanese through the agency of this fleet than in any other way. Admiral Kamimura has been unlucky in his game of hide and seek with the Russian admiral and the latter has been able to get at the Japanese transports and sink them on several occasions, the Japanese loss in the aggregate being considerable. The impatient Japs have been loud in their criticism of the unfortunate admiral, and some have urged that he either resign his command or commit suicide. Admiral Kamimura is a brave officer, however, and on previous occasions has given ample proof of his ability as a naval commander. He was in command of the Akitsushima in the battle of the Yalu during the Chino-Japan war and distinguished himself on that occasion, as he did also at the opening of the present war during the first assault of the Japanese on Port Arthur.

VICE ADMIRAL KAMIMURA.

Admiral Kamimura was ordered to England a few years ago to supervise the construction of Japanese war vessels then building there. He was recalled about three years since.

A Famous Quarry.

The entire mass of the Monte Sagro, 5,000 feet high, which dominates Carrara, is solid marble. One of the most famous quarries is in the valley of the Polraccio. From this were extracted in Roman times the 1,700 tons of marble that served for the construction of Trajan's column at Rome. Here Donatello got the block which he carved into his St. George, and Michael Angelo the one for his Moses. From here also came the huge block mentioned in the memoirs of Benvenuto Cellini, which served for the colossal Neptune of Ammanati in the middle of the fountain of the Piazza della Signoria at Florence

One Exception.

It used to be told of General Logan, who was a member of congress at the breaking out of the war, that when he saw there was really going to be a fight he seized a musket, slipped out of Washington and walked all the way to Bull Run, where he arrived just in time to have a hand in the fray.

He wore a dress coat, but he stood his ground as long as any one. The rout was complete, and the next morning, a good deal out of breath, he was back at the capitol, telling some of his fellow congressmen what he had seen.

"Who gave you this account of the fight?" asked a member from northern New York as he joined the group.

"Why, I was there myself," said Logan.

The New Yorker was mystified. Apparently he had not heard the news.

"You were there!" he exclaimed. "Are the cars running?"

"No," said Logan; "the cars ain't running, but every other thing in the state of Virginia is, as near as I could make out."

An Anecdote of Handel.

On one occasion Handel was caught in a shower of rain and being unprovided with an umbrella was obliged to seek shelter in a blacksmith's forge. Either Handel was in a silent mood or else the blacksmith showed no conversational symptoms, for in a little while the latter began hammering away at his anvil, accompanying his work with a song. He little thought the use his visitor was making of him and his anvil, for it is said that Handel was listening all the time to the strokes of the hammering on the anvil, which, by producing two harmonic sounds, according in time and tune with the tune the man sang, formed a bass accompaniment. Handel, on reaching home, remembered the air and the hammer accompaniment. He wrote down both, and so we owe to a shower of rain the composition known as "The Harmonious Blacksmith."

When He Killed His First Man.

The killing of a brother man, even in battle, is a painful thing to remember. A soldier of the war thus vividly described his first experience:

"My first man I saw but twenty seconds, but I shall remember him forever. I was standing by my gun when a Confederate infantry soldier rushed up. I whipped out my revolver and took him through the breast. He tossed up his arms, gave me the strangest look in the world and fell forward upon his face. He had blue eyes, brown curling hair, a dark mustache and a handsome face. I thought the instant I fired that I should have loved that man if I had known him. I tell you war is terrible business."—Youth's Companion

The Borrowed Days.

According to a Scottish fireside rhyme, alluded to by Sir Thomas Brown in his "Vulgar Errors," three days were borrowed by March from April, with a view to the destruction of some sheep, but the popular fiction of the borrowed days is really of older date.

In the "Complaynt of Scotland," printed in 1548, we find: "There eftir I entrit in ane grene forest, to contempill the tender yong frutes, becaus the borial blastis of the three borouing dais of Marche hed chaissit fragrant flureise of evyrie frut-tree far athourt the fieldis."

The origin and meaning of the expression are obscure. It may probably be founded upon that relapse into wintry weather which is often noticed at the close of March and which seems to snatch a few days from the promise of opening spring. A similar fancy has prevailed in the highlands of Scotland in connection with the first two months of the year.—London Answers.

A Quaint Introduction.

It is told of the late Clarence King, the ethnologist, that he met John Ruskin in a picture shop, and his comments were so delightfully phrased that Ruskin took him to his heart, inviting him to Coniston and offering him one of his two greatest water colors by Turner. "One good Turner," said King, "deserves another," and took both.

King once wrote from San Francisco to John Hay the following letter of introduction: "My Dear John—My friend, Horace F. Cutter, in the next geological period will go east. It would be a catastrophe if he did not know you. You will 'swarm in,' as the Germans say, when you meet. Lest I should not be there to expose Mr. Cutter's alias I take this opportunity to divulge to you that the police are divided in opinion as to whether he is Socrates or Don Quixote. I know better; he is both."

A Japanese Gardener.

Sir Edwin Arnold had a great many stories in illustration of Japanese traits.

"The Japanese gardeners," he once said, "have carried their art further than we have carried ours. A landscape gardener in Japan is esteemed highly. He is looked on quite as we look on a poet or a painter. And these Japanese gardeners are truly remarkable men. I was riding with one of them near Kioto on an August afternoon, and we came to a steep hillside.

"'Tell me,' I said, 'how would you plan a road to the top of that difficult hill?'

"The gardener smiled humorously.

"'I think,' he said, 'that I would first turn some cows loose and see how they got up.'"—Collier's Weekly.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

WEDNESDAY, JULY, 20 1904.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

For President of the United States,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT
of New York.

For Vice-President,
CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS
of Indiana.

IF Wm. J. Bvran would not "stand for a gold plank," how can he stand for a candidate who comes out flat-footed for gold?

THE American of Baltimore announces that as a result of the St. Louis convention Maryland can now be regarded as a sure enough State for the Republican column and Roosevelt. There is much dissatisfaction, even among Democrats, at the peculiar methods of Senator Gorman.

NEW ideas begin to come from Europe to America. At Belfast, new Atlantic steamships are being built, which will be fitted with restaurants where meals can be ordered when wished for by passengers paying separately for their passage and meals.

IT has been decided by the appellate division of the New York Supreme court that a man may not refuse to give the court needed facts on the ground that he is bound by a lodge oath not to give them. In this country a man's first duty as a citizen is to be loyal, and to both uphold and obey the laws. The very gist of the charge against the Mormons is that they must obey their church rather than be loyal to the Constitution of the United States, if the pinch should come Whether this is so the congressional investigation committee is trying to discover.

THE Republicans believe in new blood and young men for action. With a young and very much alive President they wanted a comparatively young man for Vice President. This is why Mr. Hitt, over 70 years of age, was not nominated. The Democrats take quite another view. They think the times demand wisdom and caution. With a young President they would couple an elderly Vice President ripe with years, aged 81! It remains for the voters to choose between the two.

DURING the progress of the Democratic Convention at St. Louis it was telegraphed all over the country: "The gold plank goes out." This was considered a triumph for Bryan. That old Democratic politician from New York, Hill smiled when he agreed to let the gold plank slide. He knew his nominee. After the nomination was made, Judge Parker coolly informed the delegates at the Convention that he was a gold man. They could take him with that plank, or they could go without him. After all, Mr. Bryan was outwitted. It is at least amusing politics.

IF the growth and prosperity o America continues but for one short generation more, nothing can hinder its becoming the controlling power of the earth. Capt. A. T. Mahan, the authority on naval affairs, in a recent speech in London gave voice to the sentiment that all English-speaking people should be so far united as to act together. With a federal British Empire and a United States of America, both pulling in the same direction, the peace of the world could be easily maintained. And ultimately one flag will symbolize the Anglo-Saxon race.

IT has remained for the able Congressman from Mississippi, John Sharp Williams, to point out the effects of good crops upon a Presidential campaign. He frankly says that the rise of wheat elected McKinley. The farmers, he says, flocked to McKinley in shoals, because higher prices and a larger volume of trade promised to their minds prosperity without free silver. If this proposition is true the present high prices of cotton, to say nothing about beef, should have a great influence in the present campaign. Undoubtedly agricultural prosperity is at the basis of happiness and contentment in this country, as in all others, and incidentally depends largely upon good government as well as upon climatic

IT is announced that there will be a reorganization of the Inspector's office in New York City. There ought not to be any doubt about it. The present inefficient inspectors should be sent to jail at hard work, and new men of integrity and veracity put in their places. The whole inspection system is antiquated and needs overhauling with new laws, and the discarding of life-preservers made of granulated cork and glue. Mr. Metcalf, the new Secretary of Commerce, has a chance to distinguish himself.

ALREADY 200 Porto Rican teachers have reached Nrw York on their way to Ithaca to attend a summer school opened by Cornell University. The few hours they were in the world's metropolis they penetrated the city as far as Wall street. Four hundred other teachers from the same Island have reached Boston. Many of them made great sacrifices to come to the United States, and they will return inspired with new ideas and a patriotism for America which will be most beneficial for the Porto Ricans at home.

ACCORDING to a recent bulletin of the Census Bureau, there are three first-class cities in the United States having a population of over one million of inhabitants; three second-class cities with a population of over half a million; ten third class cities with a population of over two hundred thousand; twenty-three fourth-class cities with a population of over one hundred thousand; and forty three cities of the fifth class with a population of over fifty thousand; New York now has 3,718,159; Chicago, 1,873,880; and Philadelphia, 1,367,716. The cities of America show a steady and remarkable growth.

The two-year old daughter of Mr and Mrs. A. Kempston while playing with a dog belonging to Mr. William Sylvester on Saturday evening, was painfully bitten in the face. It was necessary to give the little girl an anaesthetic and take five stitches in the wound on her head. Her nose was also quite badly torn. The dog is a noble animal and has never shown the least disposition before to bite any one and why he should have injured the little girl is a mystery.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hollingsworth are in Herkimer.

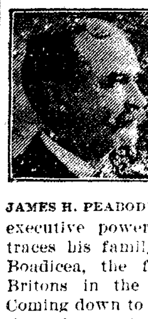
Six Governors Who Are In The Public Eye

A STATE executive very much in the public eye at present is James H. Peabody, governor of Colorado. He has been both highly praised and severely criticised for his course in connection with the troubles in the mining districts of that state. The controversy between the striking miners and the mine operators has been a very bitter one, and to preserve order Governor Peabody called out the national guard of the state, under command of Adjutant General Sherman Bell, and declared certain districts under martial law. His admirers praise him for displaying nerve in the course he has pursued, while his opponents charge him with abuse of the executive power. Governor Peabody traces his family back to the time of Boadicea, the famous queen of the Britons in the Emperor Nero's era. Coming down to comparatively modern times, he counts among his progenitors John and Priscilla Alden, whom Longfellow immortalized in "The Courtship of Miles Standish." The governor was quite an athlete in his younger days and was reputed to be a very fast runner. He was born in Vermont in 1852. He went west as a young man and rose in a short time from fireman to banker. He is a thirty-third degree Mason.



JAMES H. PEABODY

The contest between the La Follette and anti-La Follette Republicans of Wisconsin, known respectively as "half breeds" and "stalwarts," was one of the notable incidents of the Republican national convention at Chicago. The convention declared in favor of the regularity of the "stalwart" delegation, but the followers of Governor La Follette, whose personality, platform and policy form the issue between the factions, propose to carry their fight before the people of the state at the coming election.

Robert M. La Follette has been described as "a short, stocky man with a French name, but the looks of a Teuton." Both friends and enemies say of him that he would rather fight than eat. He has been in politics twenty years and has had a fight on his hands most of the time. The governor is a strong advocate of the direct primary plan of nominating candidates for public office. He was born in a log cabin in Primrose township, twenty miles from Madison, Wis., June 14, 1855. As the family were poor and he was the chief support of a widowed mother, young La Follette had a hard struggle in obtaining an education, but he succeeded in working his way through the University of Wisconsin, a college paper which he published providing him with part of his means of support. He was admitted to the bar in 1880, and in 1887 was elected to congress, being re-elected in 1889 and taking a prominent part in the framing of the McKinley bill. In 1896 and again in 1898 he ran for governor and was defeated, but in 1900 he won his first election as governor and two years later was re-elected. He is now a candidate for a third term.

ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE.

A commanding figure in the Republican convention was Governor Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., of the state of New York. Governor Odell naturally wielded no small influence as leader of the delegation from President Roosevelt's own state, and his prompt and decisive way of doing things impressed the leaders from other parts of the country and caused them to seek his judgment on important questions. Admirers of the governor predict that he will succeed to the position as a leader in party councils which the late Senator Hanna occupied. Governor Odell is now serving his second term, and as he is not a candidate for another nomination speculation is rife as to the Republican upon whom he will cast his mantle.

Mr. Odell was a congressman before he became the chief executive of the Empire State, and he has been in politics almost from babyhood. His home is at Newburg, N. Y. His father was mayor of that city for many years and an influential factor in its politics. The Odells dealt in ice, and at one time when competition was severe and new business had to be dug out by the roots it is related that young Ben Odell got on the end of his father's ice wagon and delivered ice to customers. Some doubt has been thrown on the "iceman" story by political enemies, but, at any rate, the governor as a younger man knew what it was to do severe manual labor and has never shrunk from hard work.

BENJAMIN B. ODELL, JR.

Governor John H. Mickey of Nebraska, who was boomed by Republicans of the state for nomination as President Roosevelt's running mate, is a farmer who finds tilling the soil a pleasure in comparison with the arduous duties of public office. One day last autumn he arrived at the executive office restless and nervous. After a few attempts at discharge of his official tasks he arose from his chair, remarking: "What I need is a day in the old fields. I believe I'll work with the boys at the asylum." He then went to the grounds of the insane asylum near by, got a pair of overalls and went to work tabling bundles for a thrashing machine so rapidly that two feeders were kept busy.

Governor Mickey is a Methodist and very strict in his views. At the time of his inauguration he created some talk by withholding his approval of an inaugural ball. He declared flatly that he would not attend any function where dancing was to be a part of the programme. He disapproves dancing, card playing and the theater and is much opposed to the liquor traffic. Another institution that incurs his hostility is the "spike tailed coat," and he has never worn such a costume.

JOHN H. MICKEY.

Governor Mickey was born in 1843 near Burlington, Ia. He was raised on a farm and when the civil war broke out enlisted in the Eighth Iowa cavalry. After the war he returned to Iowa and spent two years at Wesleyan college, at Mount Pleasant. In 1867 he married Miss Marinda McCray of Des Moines and a year later moved to Polk county, Neb., in a "prairie schooner." His ideas on the subject of "race suicide" are similar to those of the leader of his party, President Roosevelt, as shown in the fact that he has nine children, five sons and four daughters.

Governor Charles N. Herreid of South Dakota claims that his state during the past six years has produced annually more wealth than any other state in the Union. Rosebud Indian reservation lands, covering 416,000 acres, are soon to be opened up to settlement, and this will add measurably to the population and wealth of the state. Governor Herreid is an enthusiastic believer in the future of South Dakota. He is a thoroughgoing westerner. He was born and educated in Wisconsin, but in 1882 removed to the state of which he is now the executive and established himself in the practice of law. He has held the offices of state's attorney, judge of the county court, member of the board of trustees of the state university, regent of education and lieutenant governor. In the latter capacity he made an able presiding officer of the state senate, and his promotion to the governorship followed. He comes from the people, is a self made man and is a close student of public questions.

CHARLES N. HERREID.

The Hon. William J. Bryan suggested some time ago that the Democrats might go further and fare worse than in taking as their presidential candidate Dr. Lucius F. C. Garvin, governor of Rhode Island. Dr. Garvin occupies a rather unique position as an executive. He is the Democratic governor of a state that always goes Republican in presidential years. He was first elected in 1902, being the only Democratic executive chosen that year east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio. He was re-elected in 1903. Rhode Island is normally Republican by several thousand majority, but he was elected in 1902 by a plurality of 7,500 on the strength of local reforms for which he stood.

DR. L. F. C. GARVIN.

Dr. Garvin is known as a New Englander, but his native state is Tennessee. He served during the civil war in the Fifty-first Massachusetts regiment of volunteers. He graduated from Amherst college in 1862 and from the Harvard Medical school in 1867. Two years later he married Miss Lucy W. Southmayd. Governor Garvin served his state in the assembly of the little commonwealth for many successive terms, and during that period of his career he fought persistently for reforms such as better factory inspection, free text books, weekly payments, arbitration of labor disputes, extension of the suffrage and various changes in the state constitution. He is a believer in the single tax and writes a great deal in exploitation of his ideas. He has always been athletic and, though now about sixty-two years of age, plays golf and rides a bicycle. The governor still goes about visiting the sick despite his executive duties, and on his card advertises "10 per cent discount for cash." He dislikes to be advertised in the old fashioned way as an attraction at county fairs and says he draws the line at "pitching the first ball at the opening game."

Useless Prayers.

There is a well known story told by Dean Ramsay years ago of two old ladies of his church. "Was it no' a wonderful thing," said one of them, "that the Breetish were aye victorious over the French in battle?" "Not a bit," said the other. "Dinna ye ken the Breetish say their prayers before gaen into battle?" "Aye," returned the first, "but canna' the Frenchmen say their prayers as weel?" The reply was: "Hoot! Jabberin' bodies! Wha could understan' them?"

BORN IN LOG CABIN.

CANDIDATE C. W. FAIRBANKS AND HIS INTERESTING CAREER.

Republican Nominee For Vice President as a Boy at School and College—A Thrashing From a Schoolmaster—His Wooing.

When Senator Charles Warren Fairbanks, Republican candidate for vice president of the United States, was studying reading, writing and arithmetic at the district school near his father's farm in Union county, O., he was very fond of going in swimming in a certain deep and shady pool not far from the schoolhouse, and upon one occasion he and several schoolmates overstayed the noon hour in their enjoyment of the cool waters of the creek. The damp state of their hair indicated to the schoolmaster the cause of their tardiness. The educators of those days believed in the principle of "spare the rod, spoil the child," and young Fairbanks and his fellow culprits were severely trounced.

Candidate Fairbanks was born May 11, 1852, on his father's farm in a log cabin in which the family was living at the time. But when Charles was about four years of age his father built a more pretentious dwelling, and the old log cabin was put to use as a workshop and storehouse for provisions. One day young Charles got a broom and set to work cleaning up the old cabin. He threw the rubbish into the old fashioned fireplace, where a brisk fire was soon blazing. Somehow the fire caught in some shavings which lay on the floor, and soon the interior of the cabin was in a blaze. The four-year-old boy tried to escape by the door, but he could not reach up to the latch. Snatching a board from a carpenter's bench, he braced it against the door, climbed up and unfastened the latch. He escaped death, but all the winter's stock of provisions was burned.

As a student at Ohio Wesleyan college, Delaware, O., he was editor, during the latter part of his course, of the college paper. He was a hard worked student, for he had to earn as much money as possible to add to what his father supplied him in order to meet his college expenses. But this paper was a source of much pleasure and profit, and perhaps the pleasure was in part due to the fact that one of his assistants was a girl student, Miss Cornelia Cole. The fair assistant editor was a daughter of Judge P. B. Cole of Marysville, O., and a young lady of rare culture and many accomplishments. The intimacy thus begun continued, and after he had graduated from college, studied law and been admitted to the bar the young attorney asked Miss Cole to be his wife, and they began married life in Indianapolis, where Mr. Fairbanks had decided to establish himself in his profession. They now have an ideal home in that city, and four sons and a daughter have been born to them. Their Washington home is also a popular social center, and Mrs. Fairbanks, as president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, takes a prominent part in movements of a patriotic character.

Senator Fairbanks is regarded as one of the ablest members of the United States senate. He is now serving his second term in that body. He was a warm admirer of President McKinley and supported him vigorously in the critical period connected with the outbreak of the Spanish war.

ED. PINAUD'S
EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC
A Positive Dandruff Cure!

is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

MARQUIS YAMAGATA.

Field Marshal of Japan, Who Is Chief of the General Staff.

Field Marshal Marquis Yamagata, who is now chief of the general staff which directs the Japanese army, is said to be responsible more than any other Japanese statesman or warrior for the step taken by the nation in going to war with Russia. He is both soldier and statesman and is one of the most influential of the circle of unofficial advisers of the emperor, which is really more powerful than the cabinet, especially in a crisis like the present.

General Nelson A. Miles regards Yamagata as a military commander of exceptional ability, and he once characterized him as a great organizer of men. The marquis is perhaps best known to the world as one of the three field marshals of the Japanese army during the Chino-Japan war and as the hero of Pingyang, the decisive battle of that war. He has held many civil as well as military offices.

It is a coincidence that Marshal Yamagata, whose advice was so strongly in favor of war with Russia, should have been the representative of the Japanese emperor at the coronation of the present czar. On his way to the coronation ceremonies the field marshal visited the United States and received many attentions. The modesty of the warrior and statesman was happily exemplified at a dinner which took place in Buffalo when, in reply to speeches laudatory of his achievements, he said, "I have only done my duty toward my emperor and my country, and I am convinced that every one of you here present would have done the same thing under the same circumstances."

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

No Love Lost Between the Arnolds.

John Denison Champlin told an amusing story of Matthew Arnold and Sir Edwin Arnold. "Some years ago," he said, "when walking with Matthew Arnold on the banks of the little river Test, near Romsey abbey, conversation turned on Sir Edwin Arnold and 'The Light of Asia,' published four or five years previously. It is not necessary to enter into Mr. Arnold's opinion of the poem. During the conversation I took occasion to ask him if he were related to Sir Edwin. He paused a moment, as if shocked at the suggestion, and then said: 'No, we are not of kin. Indeed, I doubt if he had any right to the name of Arnold. I have been told that he is of Jewish descent.' A few weeks later I happened to meet Sir Edwin at a dinner in London and prompted by, I hope, a not unpardonable curiosity, propounded a similar query to him. 'No,' he replied quickly with what seemed a shade of asperity in his tone, 'I am not related to Matthew Arnold. We are of wholly different families.' Then, his face breaking into his peculiar smile, he added 'Matthew Arnold is an intellectual dyspeptic. His brain does not digest properly.'"

A Deep Sea Vampire.

An exquisite sea flower, something like an aster, grows at great depths in the ocean. It looks innocent enough, but it is charged with such a deadly poison that a small fish touching one of the beautiful petals is instantly killed, and its body is then drawn down by the waving leaves to the plant's mouth and is literally eaten.

H. C. Giesler,

ask the readers of this paper who are suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia to call on them at once and get a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. If you knew the value of this remedy as we know it, you would not suffer another day. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a thorough digestant and tissue-building tonic as well. It is endorsed personally by hundreds of people whom it has cured of indigestion, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart and stomach troubles generally. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. It is pleasant, palatable and strengthening.

Peculiar Time Regulations.

Chatham island, lying off the coast of New Zealand, in the south Pacific ocean, is peculiarly situated, as it is one of the few habitable points of the globe where the day of the week changes. It is just on the line of the demarcation between dates. There at 12 noon on Sunday, Sunday ceases, and instantly Monday meridian begins. Sunday comes into a man's house on the east side and becomes Monday by the time it passes out of the western door. A man sits down to his noonday dinner on Sunday, and it is Monday noon before he finishes it.—London Globe.

A Jealous Ape.

Sir Harry Johnston, the English explorer, once traveled on a ship with a pet ape. It was a great favorite with all the passengers until there came aboard at Madeira a lady with an infant. The latter received a good deal of attention and the ape in consequence became neglected and jealous. Sir Harry Johnston followed it on deck one day just in time to prevent a tragedy. The child had been left unguarded for a moment in its cradle. The ape had made for it, pulled it from the cradle and was in the act of throwing it overboard when the traveler pounced upon it. Says Sir Harry, "It would certainly have hurled it into the sea had not my arrival caused the guilty ape to drop the child on the deck and scramble away." The ape was relegated to a strong iron cage for the rest of that voyage.

Weak Hearts

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, the stomach expands—swells, and puffs up against the heart. This crowds the heart and shortens the breath. Rapid heart beats and heart disease is the final result. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat, takes the strain off the heart, cures indigestion dyspepsia, sour stomach, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

"Maarifsh" River.

Maxwell Sommerville of the University of Pennsylvania spent nearly forty years of his life in oriental travel and study.

Professor Sommerville used sometimes to narrate the strange error that was once made by a French explorer he had known. This explorer had made a journey to Kairwan and had drawn a map of the country he passed through. The singular thing about this map was that the name "Maarifsh" appeared so many times on it. A river would be the Maarifsh river; a mountain would be Mount Maarifsh; a village, a lake, a valley, each would be called Maarifsh.

When Professor Sommerville saw this map he laughed.

"Don't you know," he said to the traveler, "what 'maarifsh' means in Arabic?"

"No," said the other. "What does it mean?"

"It means 'Don't know.'"

Paternal Pride.

"When I have occasion to punish my son," said the austere man, "I always tell him that it hurts me more than it does him."

"I don't," replied the plain, practical citizen. "Johnny may be a little headstrong and disobedient, but he has too much sense to believe anything like that."—Washington Star.

Medical Use of Whisky.

Whisky as an alternative to wine may undoubtedly be employed medicinally with advantage in certain cases, both for men and for women. But this is very different from the constant recommendation which is suggested, as if, indeed, doctors regard whisky as a sort of panacea for every disease under the sun, and take a perfect delight in urging its consumption upon their patients. As a matter of fact, there never was a time when medical men were more slow to prescribe the use of alcohol in any form than they are in the present day, nor a time when so many refrained from advising its use at all.—Hospital.

A TRINITY OF EVILS.

Cured by Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine After Other Treatment Had Failed.

Mr. Martin Montgomery, of Silvara, Penn., formerly of Roxbury, N.Y., writing to Dr. David Kennedy, of Kennedy Row, said:

"Your new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, is immense. It cured me of liver and kidney troubles, and rheumatism, after a lot of weary dosing with things that did no good. It is a record breaker and no mistake."

As in Mr. Montgomery's case, rheumatism is often, indeed almost always, complicated with kidney and liver trouble. It is because Cal-cura Solvent acts on the kidneys and liver and at the same time expels uric acid from the blood, that it is such a reliable remedy for rheumatism and the attendant disorders. It cures by removing the cause, [illegible]

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

For those who could not spend time and money in extensive travel, the world's fairs of recent years have afforded excellent opportunity for studying the progress of the nations. Such an opportunity is being offered the people of this country just now in the fifty-million dollar Louisiana Purchase Exposition in the city of St. Louis, Mo.

It was my privilege recently, in connection with attendance upon the tenth National Prohibition Convention, held in Indianapolis, Ind., to visit this great exposition and spend several days viewing its exhibits. In point of size it exceeds any world's fair yet held, covering nearly twice the area of the Columbian Exposition in Chicago, and four times that of the Pan-American at Buffalo. Indeed, its average 1,240, is almost equal to that of the Columbian, Pan-American and Paris Expositions combined and its cost is more than that of the three. The buildings are proportionately large. The agricultural building—the largest on the ground and the largest ever erected for a single exhibit—covers 20 acres and is hardly adequate to display the products of those who applied for space. The Transportation, Manufactures, Liberal Arts, and other main exposition buildings are immense structures. In fact, everything is on a magnificent scale, and the exhibits are most complete and satisfactorily arranged.

At this Exposition not only the products of our modern education, industries, etc. are displayed, but a definite attempt is made to show the processes of the same. Thus you will find an Indian school in session, and in the Education Building daily classes of the deaf and dumb, blind, etc. In the Mining Building is shown a miniature Colorado gold mind in full operation, also the surface machinery of a coal mine. In other buildings may be seen the manufacture of shoes, of rope, the weaving of silk cloth, the demonstration of the wireless telegraph and telephone, the process of making incandescent bulbs, the working of the X-ray machine, etc. There is a mint running in the U. S. Government Building, showing how twenty-dollar gold pieces are made.

Among the foreign exhibits one of the most interesting is the Philippine Encampment costing, it is said, $1,000,000. This is furnished by the U. S. Government, and affords one a fair idea of what is being accomplished in our island possessions in the Orient. The Filipino band, numbering more than eighty players, gives daily concerts which are as fine as any heard on the grounds. A tribe of uncivilized Igorrottes from the mountainous districts of the Philippines, attracts considerable attention. They are living together in a village in native huts of bamboo and straw, from which they come forth in scant attire to dance and perform for the amusement of the spectators. Although savage in appearance they have bright eyes and fairly well formed heads, which would indicate that they are capable of being civilized. Already some of the younger ones have picked up bits of English and are beginning to adopt American ways.

The foreign buildings are grouped together with pleasing landscape effect near the Skinker entrance. They represent the principal countries of Europe, Central and South America, Japan, China, India, Ceylon and Siam also have buildings.

Nearly all of the State buildings (of which there are forty-six, including those of the territories) are in the southeast corner of the grounds. They present a great variety of architectural design. The Missouri pavilion is perhaps the most elaborate, situated directly back of the Government building on the summit of a hill. Next to it in beauty comes the New York and Pennsylvania buildings.

The pike, corresponding to the midway at Chicago and Buffalo, occupies a street half a mile long on either side near the main entrance. It includes such attractions as the Tyrolean Alps, Irish Village, Hagenbeck's Wild Animals, Japanese village, Old St. Louis, Creation, Over and Under the Sea, Cliff dwellers, Mysterious Asia, Water Chutes, Naval Exhibit, Battle Abbey, Galveston Flood, New York to the North Pole, Hale Fire Fighters, Infant Incubators, Palace of Mirth, Deep Sea Divers, Streets of Cairo, and many others. I was glad to find that many of the objectionable exhibits had been eliminated from the Pike, making it a more wholesome and educative exhibition. The Hale Fire Fighters, Naval Exhibit, Galveston Flood, and Deep Sea Divers are particularly fine. Although not located on the Pike, the Boer war and Jerusalem belong to this department of the Exposition. The latter is a reproduction of the Holy City, including Solomon's temple, Church of the Holy Sepulchre, Mosque of Omar, etc covering several acres.

A comprehensive view of the grounds may be obtained from the Buffalo tower, the Ferris wheel or the captive balloon. Perhaps the finest surface outlook is to be had from the Plaza of St. Louis, looking across the Grand Basin, toward the Cascades and Festival Hall. At night this view is simply entrancing, and almost if not quite equals that of the famous Electric tower at the Pan-American. The cascades are illuminated by 20,000 electric lamps so arranged as to produce variations in color. Over 200,000 lamps are used in lighting the entire Exposition.

Altogether it is a great Exposition—properly called a World's fair, for it includes exhibits from all parts of the globe. You may read about it and get something of an idea of its grandeur, but to be fully appreciated it must be seen. Even though one cannot spend more than four or five days at the exposition, he can in that time get a pretty good idea of it, though it is desirable to stay a much longer period in order to study it in detail.

The gates of the Exposition are closed on Sunday, and that is commendable. But there is one serious blemish on the great fair, that is, the presence of some fifty-four saloons on the ground, dispensing beer, wines, etc., and so located as to confront the visitor at almost every turn. May the time speedily come when such a display will have no part in our world's fairs.

C. J. TAFT.

CONTINENTAL DRILL CORPS.

An adjourned Meeting Will Be Held this Wednesday Evening in the City Hall—Officers Will Be Elected.

A meeting of the Continental Drill Corps was held last Wednesday evening in the City Hall. Capt. S. B. Mead called the assemblage to order, stating that under the by-laws of the corps the officers held over until their successors were elected. He then requested Mr. Charles R. Bennett, the secretary, to read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved.

Nominations were in order, and Mr. B. W. Bennett moved that Mr. S. B. Mead become the unanimous choice of the corps, to succeed himself as captain. Mr. Charles R. Bennett was asked to put the question, but before doing so, Mr. Mead asked the privilege of the floor, and stated that while he appreciated the honor conferred he was sensible of the fact that he was getting along in years and did not feel physically able to endure the hardship of a campaign. He would prefer that a younger and more active man be selected for the position, assuring the members that he would heartily co-operate and do all in his power to make the corps proficient in drill and a credit to the Republican party of the city.

The motion, however, was put to a vote, and Mr. Mead was unanimously re-elected.

On motion of Mr. B. W. Bennett, the following committee was selected to place in nomination, candidates for subordinate officers: Messrs. S. B. Mead, W. J. Watson, William Ellis, C. R. Bennett and W. S. Hillick.

The meeting adjourned until this Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, when the committee will report and an election of officers will follow. About twenty recruits were enrolled and it is hoped that more will join this evening.

The committee in the matter of securing and raising a Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner will also report this evening and a drill will follow the business meeting.

A Reception.

On Thursday of last week a local event, very pleasing to a goodly number, occurred at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Vincent, 113 Rochester street. It was an assembly of ladies interested in the work of the Universalist church of this city, and its prime object was to have those who were experienced and at home in the furtherance of its interests meet and become acquainted with others who had but lately come among them. This opportunity for further acquaintance had special relation to the family of James W. Washburne, and took the form of a cordial welcome to the city, and to the church of their faith.

The rooms had been tastefully decorated. The restful air of home was unmistakable and the charm of good cheer which prevailed was proof that the object sought had been attained.

Refreshments were served, the hours of social converse sped quickly by, and those who had met comparitive strangers found that they were members of a happy family, and, departing to their homes planned other reunions of a similar kind to be enjoyed together at no distant day.

STEPHENS OPERA HOUSE.

The simple announcement that the Fordham Stock Company is booked for another week at the Stephens Opera House, is a safe guarantee that the house will be crowded. The citizens of Fulton know what a remarkably strong company this is, as they played here all last week. The general verdict is "that it is the best repertoire attraction that ever appeared at this city at the prices." Besides presenting a first class play each evening, an entire change of specialties are given. Remember, the price, 10 cents. A special matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon.

"As You Like It."

The Phil A. Kilfoil company of Woodland players which presented Shakespeares beautiful comedy, "As you like it," in the City park on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday evenings and will present it for the last time tonight, have given the keenest delight to all who have witnessed the presentations. Fulton has never before enjoyed the privilege of entertaining so talented a company and any one who did not witness the play may well count the opportunity sadly lost. The company will present "As you like it" this evening in the Park, and tomorrow evening in Oswego. The universal verdict has been that should the company decide to come to Fulton again this year or at any other time they will be greeted with large houses. The percentage which will be applied to the library fund will be considerable as the seating accomodations have been taxed so far this week.

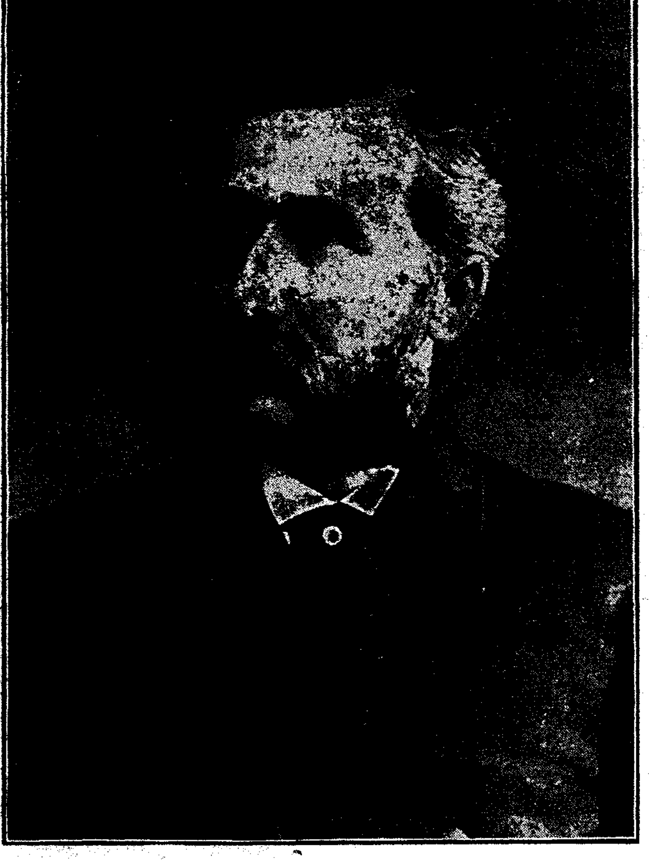
CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION



HON. CHARLES L. KNAPP,

Renominated for Congress in the 28th District.

At the Republican Congressional Convention, held last Saturday at Watertown, the Hon. Charles L. Knapp was unanimously renominated for member of Congress from the Twenty-eighth District.

The convention was called to order by the Hon. P. W. Cullinan, the District chairman. Hon. Elon R. Brown of Watertown became chairman; Mr. M. C. Worts of Oswego, secretary, and Mr. J. Edgar Jones of Lewis county, teller.

The Hon. H. A. Phillips of Lewis county, in an excellent address, placed Mr. Knapp in nomination. His remarks were greeted with applause.

In seconding the nomination, Hon. P. W. Cullinan of Oswego, emphasized all that Mr Phillips had said in commendation of Mr. Knapp. His indefatigable zeal in the interests of his constituents embraced the entire district, and Oswego City was especially fortunate in having such a representative in Congress. His honesty and hearty co-operation when his services were required, his untiring industry, his well-ordered mind and his oratorical accomplishments made him an ideal representative. Mr. Knapp will certainly receive the largest majority ever cast for a member of Congress in Oswego county.

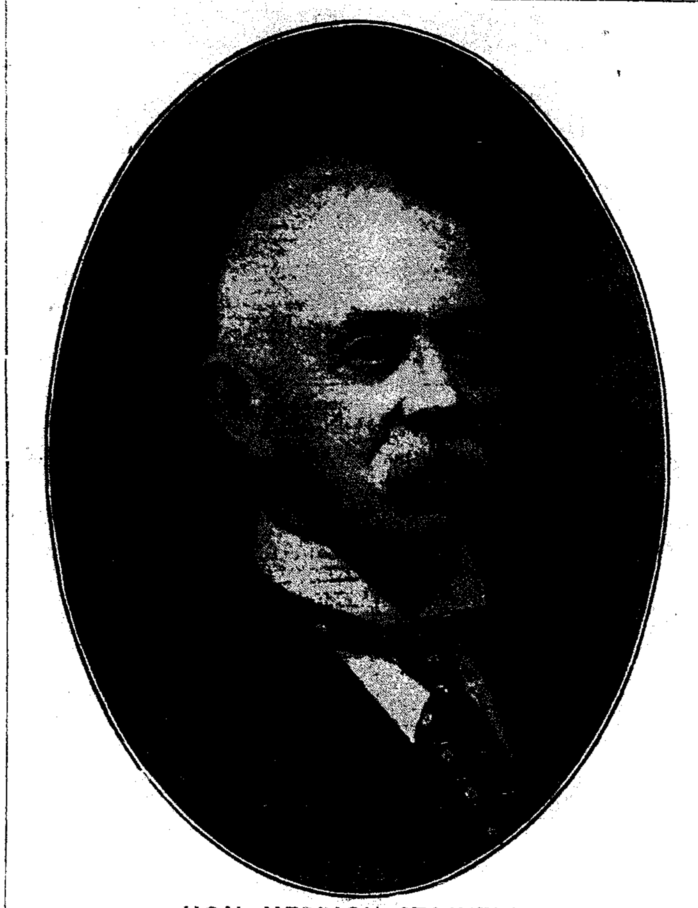
J. Frank Larne, Esq., of Watertown, also seconded Mr. Knapp's nomination, and the following committee was selected to present Mr. Knapp to the convention: Messrs. J. R. Cooper of Oswego, Jere E. Coughlin of Jefferson county and Henry E. Chickering of Lewis county.

Congressman Knapp's appearance was greeted with applause. In accepting the nomination he set forth in an eloquent manner the duties and responsibilities of a representative in Congress, which was described as the forum of the American people, where they voiced their wish and will through their accredited representatives. The commission was a command to obey that will. The magnificent achievements of the present Republican administration were also eloquently set forth and the nomination was accepted with an earnest avowal to serve and truly represent the entire district should the action of the convention be ratified at the polls.

Appropriate resolutions were presented and adopted.

Resolutions expressive of regret on the death of Ex-Senator George B. Sloan of Oswego were presented by Hon. P. W. Cullinan. These were seconded by Congress Knapp and Hon. Elon R Brown and were adopted by a rising vote.

The District Committee selected was H. A. Phillips and A. L. Clark of Lewis county, Frank M. Kenyon and W. B. Allen of Jefferson county and P. W. Cullinan and T. M. Costello of Oswego county. At a subsequent meeting of the committee Mr. Cullinan was selected as chairman and Mr. Van Allen, secretary.



HON. MERRICK STOWELL,

Unanimously Renominated at Republican County Convention for County Judge.

Continental Drill Corps.

The members of the Continental Drill Corps met in the City Hall on Wednesday evening for the purpose of electing officers, planning for the campaign and drilling. Captain S. B. Mead insisted upon resigning the proffered honor of re-election to succeed himself, but the organization over which he has so proficiently presided for so many campaigns, refused to accept his resignation and Mr. Mead was reluctantly compelled to become captain, but under the condition that the younger men would learn the drills and take up the more arduous work of the campaign.

The following officers were selected for the season: Captain, S. B Mead; First Lieutenant, W. J. Watson; Second Lieutenant, W. S. Hillick; Third Lieutenant, H. K. Burdick; Orderly Sergeant, L E. Taggert; Quartermaster Sergeant, William Ellis

A drill of the Corps will be held in the City Hall each Wednesday evening until September 1, after when a drill will be held every evening. New members are enrolled at each meeting and more are urged to join until all active Republican are enlisted.

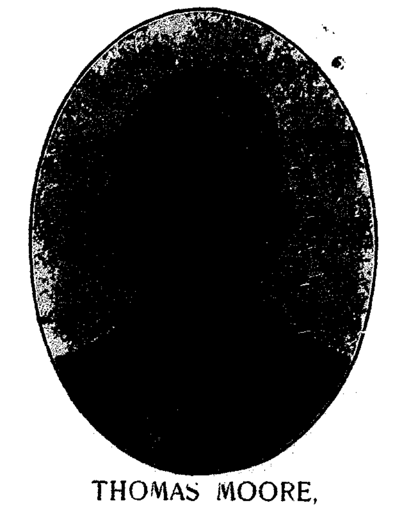
The Watch trade is booming at G. B. Farley's—21 First street.

Sad Accident.

Thursday afternoon the relatives of William Johnston of Canandaigua, a former well known resident of this city, were notified that he had been drowned in Canandaigua Lake. Later information was to the effect that while instructing one of his little sons how to swim he was seized with cramps and went down before assistance could reach him. The little son became alarmed when his father remained under water so long and going home told his mother that, "Papa was in the water and could not get out". A search was at once instituted and the body recovered. The deceased was 42 years of age and is survived by his widow and six children; also three sisters, Mrs. Barney Burns, and the Misses Maggie and Nellie Johnston and one brother, George Johnston, all of this city.

Republican Banner.

At a meeting of the Continental club held on Thursday evening, Messrs. T. D. Lewis, E. P. Cole, H. P. Allen and N. H. Gilbert were appointed a committee to select a location for the Republican banner to be raised in this city and to secure a permit to place it. The location secured is on Oneida street and the banner will be suspended from the DeBarber block to the Foster block Prominent speakers will be secured for the event and a royal time is being planned.



THOMAS MOORE,

Chosen Unanimously to Succeed Himself as County Treasurer

REPUBLICAN FIRST ASSEMBLY DISTRICT CONVENTION

HON. T. D. LEWIS,

Renominated Unanimously for Assembly—First District.

The First Assembly District Convention, held last Wednesday in the City Hall, Oswego, was distinguished by the orderly and dignified manner of its proceedings and the unanimity on the part of all present to place in office the best men and win for the ticket the largest majority that has ever been given to the national, State, and county nominees. The convention was honored by the presence of State Excise Commissioner Cullinan and Collector of the Port of New York, Nevada N. Stranahan.

Colonel John T. Mott, chairman of the District Committee, called the assemblage to order, and presented the name of the Hon. P. W. Cullinan for chairman. Mr. Cullinan was unanimously elected.

Messrs. Henry R. Carrier of Oswego, B. W. Bennett of Fulton and Dennis Mullen of Schroeppel were selected as secretaries, and Messrs. William A. Reid of Oswego and W. M. Kellogg, tellers.

Mr. Cullinan, in accepting the position of chairman, thanked the convention for the honor conferred, which he more fully appreciated because of the fact that this was on the eve of a Presidential election. He did not think it necessary to deliver an address owing to the fact that most of the delegates had just returned from the county convention, where the issues of the campaign were so ably set forth by such distinguished speakers as the Hon. Sereno E. Payne, Congressman Knapp and the Hon. N. N. Stranahan.

The rules of the Assembly became the rules of the convention, on motion of Mr. John Parsons of Oswego.

On motion of Mr. E. C. Scott of Schroeppel the following committee on resolutions was appointed: Messrs. Scott, Robert Simpson, Sr., of Volney and Frank A. Place of Oswego Town.

The temporary organization of the convention was made permanent on motion of Mr. J. W. Rigley of Fulton.

Mr. Benjamin Baker of Oswego presented the following list of delegates to the State Convention, which were accepted:

J. T. Mott, Oswego; P. W. Cullinan, Oswego; T. D. Lewis, Fulton; C. B. Benson, Oswego Town; D. S. Burleigh, Schroeppel; J. W. Burt, Hannibal; M. F. Tooley. Palermo.

Alternates—G. C. Webb, Fulton; H. A. Wilcox, Oswego; I. L. Jones, Oswego Town; Fred Bache, Fulton; W. O. Thompson, Oswego; J. W. Distin, Volney; J. W. Rigley, Fulton.

The following Congressional Delegates were named by Mr. J. A. Perkins of Oswego Town:

M. C. Worts, Oswego; B. W. Bennett, Fulton; Peter O'Neil, Oswego; E. M. Wightman, West Monroe; [illegible] Coville, Hastings; L. D. [illegible], Granby.

Alternates—V. V. Vant, Volney; W. E. Hughes, Fulton; L W. Baker, Oswego; W H. Brackett, Hannibal; W. H. Merriam, Schroeppel; Carl Chiller, West Monroe.

Instructed for Hon. Charles L. Knapp.

On motion of Thomas Hunter of Fulton, the following Senatorial Delegates were named:

Henry R. Carrier, Oswego; John S. Parsons, Oswego; A. D. Merry, Schroeppel; E. P. Cole, Fulton; W. J. Acker, Hannibal; George R. Simons, Fulton.

Alternates—Smith Stranahan, Granby; S. C. Forsythe, Oswego; E. Waugh, Fulton; N. L. Whitaker, Fulton; E. A. Howard, Palermo; B. P. Shutts, Oswego Town.

Instructed for Hon. Francis H. Gates.

The officers were sworn in by L. W. Baker.

Surrogate S. B. Mead, in placing the Hon. T. D. Lewis in nomination for the Assembly, reverted to the serious error the American people had made in 1892, when they elected Grover Cleveland, president. Preceeding that time the country had been prosperous, labor had been well employed and financial and commercial interests were not depressed. What followed? Business became stagnant and free soup-houses had to be provided in the cities for unemployed labor. These were potent facts and should not be forgotten. The Republican party was responsible for the present prosperous condition of the country, and in order to make that condition permanent, it was necessary to nominate strong men for office. It had been Mr. Mead's privilege to place the name of the Hon. T. D. Lewis in nomination for the Assembly for the seventh time. Mr. Lewis had shown himself to be a capable member of the Legislature and deserved the highest praise for his successful fight to have the Oswego Canal included in the Barge Canal improvement. He concluded by placing Mr. Lewis in nomination.

Mr. Cullinan seconded Mr. Lewis' nomination. He stated that he could add nothing to what had already been said to make the people appreciate the services of the Hon. T. D. Lewis. He had been in close contact with Mr. Lewis during his legislative career, and had this district not had a man of his experience in the Assembly, Oswego County would not have shared in the benefits of the proposed canal improvement. The people of this county should therefore feel under many obligations to Mr. Lewis, who had always been a faithful, energetic and courteous servant. He took great pleasure in seconding his nomination.

Mr. Lewis became the unanimous choice of the convention. Captain John Parson and Mr. Cadwell B Benson were appointed by the chairman to bring Mr. Lewis before the convention.

When the applause which greeted Mr. Lewis' appearance had subsided, that gentleman said he was conscious of the distinguished honor conferred and if elected he would continue to faithfully discharge the duties of the office. His ambition had always been to serve his constituents faithfully in the past and he would continue to do so in the future.

On behalf of the committee on resolutions, Mr. Frank A. Place presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted;

We, the Republicans of the First Assembly District of Oswego County, in convention assembled, deem it fitting and proper at this time to place on record our views on the questions which now confront us.

History affords no parallel to the vast and increasing prosperity which this country has enjoyed under Republican rule and we rejoice and are proud of our opportunity of again affirming our allegiance to the principals and doctrines of that great party which has given us these magnificent results. We share the national pride in the results of another year of Republican rule. An overflowing share of the world's trade has come to us. Peace rules in the American domains at home and abroad. And wherever the American flag is seen, it floats with honor and without a stain. After many years of agitation and endeavor, the desire of our people for a canal between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans is being gratified and the canal will soon be an actuality. We commend the administration for the wise and prudent course taken in regard to the matter, which has resulted in starting that work of national and world-wide importance and we earnestly hope that the continuance of the work will be under the guidance of the same strong courageous hands which began it.

The Republican party, by its national convention, obeying the unanimous sentiment of party, has placed in nomination for President, Theodore Roosevelt. We recognize him to be a good citizen, a good soldier, a good man in all personal relations. He is a man of intelligence, education and experience. He is a zealous student of law, history and politics, not only of this country and time, but of the world and of all times. In his wonderful career he has had many opportunities to learn and has improved them all. He is sound and strong in body, mind and soul. He is accessible and friendly to all men. He has the courage and the candor and the God-given ability to speak to the people and tell them what he thinks. We solemnly and earnestly pledge ourselves to do everythink in our power to bring about his triumphant election.

We heartily approve of the administration of State affairs by Governor Odell, aided by a Republican Legislature We cordially commend his prudent management of this commonwealth, his watchful care of the public interests, and the ability and wisdom exhibited in so conducting the government, that while economy has prevailed in every department, yet the affairs of the State have been so well and completely administered that no public interests have suffered, while the burdens of the taxpayers have been most materially lightened and the direct State tax has been reduced to a minimum.

We earnestly hope for a continuance of Republican rule in the State so that these blessings may continue to flow upon us and we urge our delegates to the State Convention to use all efforts possible to secure the nomination of a candidate for Governor who will carry out these policies.

In Senators Platt and Depew, the Empire State is represented by two statesmen of eminent ability, whose devotion to the public duty and the best interests of the people is generally recognized; while in Congressman Charles L. Knapp, the people of this Congressional District have secured the services of one whose ability to serve them is only equalled by his unwearied efforts to promote their interests in every proper way. The magnificent military post now being erected at Oswego is an illustration of his power and efficiency as a public servant in accomplishing needed results. We ask our delegates to the Congressional Convention to use all honorable means to secure his renomination.

Since his appointment by the President to the great office of Collector of the Port of New York, Hon. N. N. Stranahan has again demonstrated his splendid talent for the administration of public affairs by his masterly conduct of that office, and we heartily rejoice in his successful career in that position.

We thoroughly commend the administration of the State Excise Department by Hon. P. W. Cullinan, the State Commissioner in charge of that department. He has conducted the affairs of that great department upon lines of prudential policy and his enforcement of the Liquor Tax Law is in the interest of law and order and good morals, and at the same time produces an increasing annual revenue whereby taxation is reduced and its burden removed from the shoulders of the people.

We deem it altogether fitting and just that we give expression to our appreciation of the faithful and multifold services performed by our able, respected and influential State Committeeman, Col. John T. Mott, not only in behalf of the Republican party in this Congressional District, but in many other ways whereby this community at large has reaped the benefits, regardless of party distinction.

We point with pride and satisfaction to the services of the Hon. Thomas D. Lewis in the Assembly of the State. His position upon important committees, his sound judgment concerning matters of legislation, his loyalty and devotion to the wants of his constituents, his vote upon the right side of every question pertaining to the best interests of the State, are matters of especial pride and are sufficient to warrant this convention in again placing him in nomination.

Oswego's other representatives in the Legislature, Senator Francis H Gates, and Hon. Frederick G. Whitney, of the Second District of this County, have been worthy representatives of their districts, and worthy successors of the eminent men who have preceded them. We trust their districts will endorse their course by re-electing them.

Our County Convention has done well its work and has placed splendid men in nomination for County offices. We take pride and pleasure in recommending to the people those brave veterans of the great Civil War, and efficient public servants in times of peace, Hon. Merrick Stowell and Captain Thomas Moore. In every sphere of life they have played well their part and the people appreciate and will reward their faithfulness.

L. W. Baker, Esq., pathetically referred to the death of George B. Sloan, whom he fittingly desc ibed as the exponent of all that was highest and best in political life. He was wise in council, rich in experience, superior of judgment, prompt to make a decision and ready in action, which made him an ideal leader, inspiring his followers with enthusiasm and confidence. He was indeed our great leader and we sincerely mourn his loss.

Resolved, That the Republicans of the First Assembly District of Oswego county, in convention assembled, make public acknowledgment of the high esteem in which they held Mr. Sloan as a leader, a counselor and a friend; that as a mark of our appreciation and a tribute to his memory these expressions of our regard be made a part of the proceedings of this convention and that a copy be transmitted to the family by the chairman, with assurances that as a body and individually we feel a deep sympathy for them in their great bereavement.

Mr. Cullinan emphasized all that had been said, and although differences of opinion had existed at times, the deceased had led a model life, was an active, sincere member of the Republican party, and was a grand and useful citizen. Mr. Cullinan praised Mr. Sloan for his loyalty to party principles and for his honesty and capability. He was a man of the people and adorned every public position he had ever held.

The resolutions were adopted by a rising vote.

After empowering the District Committee to fill all vacancies, the following District Committee was announced:

Fulton:
- First Ward—Walter Drury.
- Second Ward—J. W. Rigley.
- Third Ward—A. A. Carr.
- Fourth Ward—G. C. Webb.
- Fifth Ward—N. L. Whitaker.
- Sixth Ward—C. H. Gardner.
- Granby—Smith N. Stranahan.
- Hannibal—J. W Burt.
- Hastings—George L. Webb.

Oswego City:
- First Ward—John T. Mott.
- Third Ward—H. R. Carrier.
- Fifth Ward—Benjamin Baker.
- Seventh Ward—Curtis A. Cooper.
- Oswego Town—J. A. Perkins.
- Palermo—M. F. Tooley.
- Schroeppel—E. C. Scott.
- Volney—C. F. Taft.
- West Monroe—Lester Claxton.

The Chairman and Secretaries were instructed to furnish a certified copy of the proceedings of the Convention to the District Chairman.

In response to an invitation by Chairman Cullinan, the Hon. N. N. Stranahan addressed the assemblage. He said in part that when he scanned the list of delegates he found thereon the name of the late lamented George B. Sloan. His heart was saddened as a citizen and a Republican when he realized that so noble a man had forever passed from earth's scenes. He was a man of keen perception and kindly heart and none came within the circle of his acquaintance but to be charmed. All men admire a man who speaks out his conviction and does not hide behind silence. There was no commission of a public kind that was not given him by the people with acclaim.

The important issues of the forthcoming campaign were briefly outlined by Mr. Stranahan, who said that the personality of the candidates for the presidency were not to be confused with the issues to be decided.

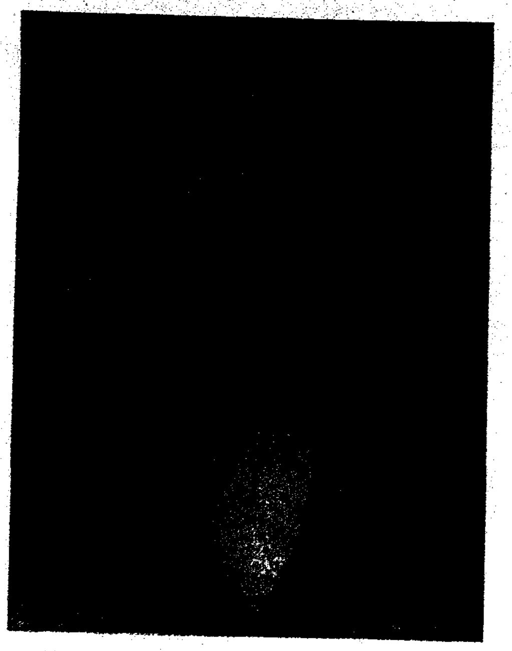
The great Republican party has not abated one iota of its principles since its birth. Judge Parker, though a man of fine personal character, stands for the policy of Pierce, Buchanan and Cleveland. He said he had often found men who asked if President Roosevelt was a safe man and found with little argument they readily agreed that he was a safe man. Mr. Stranahan spoke of the President's brave action in demanding the enforcement of the anti-trust law at whatever cost. If you want a man that was brave enough to demand that the great railroads pay their share of public taxation, then President Roosevelt is entirely safe, the speaker said.

Governor Black said at Chicago "If you want to wait to do things until it is too late, then President Roosevelt is unavailable. When another emergency arises demanding the presence of our ships, the President will be found ready to send our ships to guard the interests of Americans everywhere."

Speaking of the race question, Mr. Stranahan said it will be a live question when the youngest of those present are laid away. We are unworthy of citizenship if we do not say emphatically that a man, no matter what his color, shall have equal political rights before the law. The question for us to decide is whether the white man in the South is to vote, with five times more power than in New York State. The representation in congress is based on the population and yet in many Southern States the black man is not allowed to vote. He said he was proud to think that there was absolute harmony in Oswego County, and he was also highly gratified that his townsman, Mr. Lewis, was to be continued in the Legislature.

Chairman Cooper of the County Committee addressed the convention regarding the necessity of putting the same intelligent effort into the campaign that is put in ordinary business enterprises. Politics has become a science, and one should engage in it with all the energy possible. The man who went into a campaign intending to accomplish something would crown his efforts with success.

After a motion to adjourn had prevailed, the District committee met and re-elected Colonel John T. Mott, chairman, and Henry R. Carrier, secretary.



HON. FREDERICK G. WHITNEY,

Renominated for Member of Assembly—Second District.

The Hon. Frederick G. Whitney, who was renominated for the Assembly by the Second District Convention last Wednesday at Pulaski has proven an ideal candidate—one who has faithfully and zealously discharged the duties of the office and won the esteem and confidence of all, regardless of party affiliations.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last Summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by H. C Giesler.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

The Gallery Gods' Applause.

Lawrence Barrett once told of a conversation he had with Edwin Booth. The latter had been congratulated upon an ovation given him by a crowded house on the opening night of an engagement. "The sweetest music to my ears," said the great tragedian, "is the shouting of the boys in the gallery. I know they are not applauding because I have a reputation or because they wish to make a display. They simply give vent to their natural enthusiasm. When they shout I know that I am giving a good performance. As for the parquet, it may clap its hands out of politeness. A dramatic critic who had certain notions as to how a line should be read will applaud if I read it his way; otherwise he will remain quiet. I can never analyze the applause of the front rows, but the gallery is sincere in its likes or dislikes."

Being asked the name of the world's greatest composer, a smart university young man said "Chloroform."

Disraeli's Gorgeous Costume.

When Disraeli was a young man he once went on a vacation trip to Corfu in this extraordinary costume: "A blood red shirt with silver buttons as big as shillings, an immense scarf for girdle, full of pistols and daggers, red cap, red slippers, broad blue striped jacket and trousers. His servant, engaged for the occasion, wore a Mameluke dress of crimson and gold, with a white turban thirty yards long and a saber glittering like a rainbow."

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

A Pioneer Patentee.

It is rather remarkable that the first patent taken out in America should have been secured by an Englishman. It was in the middle of the seventeenth century that an Englishman named Jenk secured a monopoly in America for the sale of a hand machine for extinguishing fires which he had invented in England some years previously, but did not test its practical working until he migrated to America. The monopoly only lasted for fourteen years, but Jenk made a very ample fortune out of his sales of the apparatus.—London Tatler.

A Costly Ton of Coal.

On Jan. 10, 1789, thirteen men brought a wagon with a ton of coal from Loughborough, in Leicestershire, to London as a present to the then Prince of Wales. When the coal was emptied into the cellar the clerk of the cellars gave them 4 guineas, and as soon as the prince was informed of it his highness sent them 20 guineas and ordered them a pot of beer each man. They performed their journey, which is 111 miles, in eleven days and drew the coal all the way without any relief.—London Tit-Bits.

The Work of the Heart.

Whether it be true or not that the Egyptians 4,000 years B. C. discovered the true functions of the heart and thus anticipated Harvey, it certainly is true that Michael Servitus, whom John Calvin burned to death at Geneva in 1553, in his treatise, "De Trinitatis Erroribus," published in 1553, first maintained the imperviousness of the septum and the "transition of blood from the right ventricle by the pulmonary artery to the lungs, thence by the pulmonary vein and left auricle and ventricle and the aorta to all parts of the body."

More than eighty years later Harvey, taking up the work of that great physiologist, completed it, and in his work, "Exercitatis de Motu Cordis et Sanguinis" (1628), promulgated to the world his discovery of the true functions of the heart and of the regular and periodic circulation of the blood, and it in nowise derogates from his fame or the merit of his discovery to say that it was Michael Servitus who pointed the way to this discovery for him.—New York Times.

Horseflesh and Beef.

"Here are some means of distinguishing between horseflesh and beef," said a meat inspector.

"Raw horseflesh is a brownish red in color, whereas in raw beef there is no brown. Raw horseflesh is soft and tenacious. Touch it, and the finger sinks in, while as you withdraw the finger the tissues rise with it and cling to it, as though intermixed with glue. But raw beef is not soft nor tenacious in this way. Raw horseflesh, furthermore, has an odd, metallic smell.

"Cooked horseflesh is denser than beef. It is as dense as a lump of cheese. In taste it is sweet—a sweetness sickening, to my mind.

"The best test for horseflesh is to take a piece of the fat and melt it. Horse fat will melt to a clear oil at so low a temperature as 70 degrees F., but beef fat won't melt to a clear oil under a temperature of 112 degrees."—New York Telegram.

SENATOR DAVIS' DAUGHTER.

She Is Wife of Senator Elkins and a Charming Hostess.

The nomination of ex-Senator Henry G. Davis of West Virginia as the Democratic candidate for vice president recalls a romance of politics. ing, accomplished and intellectual. Among her admirers was the young delegate in congress from New Mexico, Stephen B. Elkins, a widower, rich, popular and ambitious. He fell ardently in love with Miss Davis, and his suit was successful. The marriage resulted in his leaving the west and in his identifying his fortunes with those of his father-in-law. He applied his energies to the development of West Virginia, became many times a millionaire, a coal baron, served as secretary of war and is now United States senator. Mrs. Elkins has been the inspiration of his life. Their magnificent home at Elkins, W. Va., is named Halliehurst in her honor.

Cameo Cutting.

Before the discovery of onyx as the material specially adapted for cameo cutting the ancients cut them on soft stones, eggshells and other materials. The Greco-Roman, and especially the Augustan, period was rich in cameos, and almost every great Roman wished to have his portrait cut in onyx. One of these, an exquisite portrait of Emperor Augustus Caesar himself, is perhaps the finest existing cameo. Such portrait cameos were practically indestructible, except by accident. Some large cameos—the "Triumph of Bacchus" at the Vatican, the "Agate de Tibere" at Paris and the "Gemma Augesten" at Vienna—are splendid works of art.

There was a change from the classical and mythological designs of Greco-Roman times to Christian themes in the fourth century, when Constantine the Great became a Christian.

At the renaissance classical art recovered its lost position. Renaissance cameo cutters were very skilled workmen, but in spite of their general high level they did not succeed in making any very important cameo, although the "Hymeneal Procession of Eros and Psyche" realized a high price.

Fact and Poetry.

An English fox hunter of celebrity had been asked by a publisher for a book of reminiscences. "But I've never written a word for publication," he said deprecatingly. "Of course, I've had adventures in the field in plenty, but"—

"Have you never had any connection with literature?" asked the publisher.

The master of the hunt shook his head.

"By Jove, yes, I have!" he exclaimed, his face lighting up. "Years ago Whyte-Melville came to me with a hunting poem he had written. For my criticism, he said. I read it through, and told him it was good, only there was one place where he was a little off. 'Hounds have broth, not soup,' said I."

"Well?" said the publisher hopefully.

The master of hounds looked grave again. "I don't think that counts," he said reluctantly. "The next line ended in 'whoop,' and Whyte-Melville rejected my suggestion."

Saved by a Bullet Wound.

A soldier who served under General Wolfe in the campaign resulting in the fall of Quebec was dying of an abscess in one of his lungs. "Well," said he, "as I am to die, I will die in battle," and he insisted on joining the firing line. Very soon he got a bullet through the lungs. The bullet pierced the abscess at the psychological moment, and drained it. The surgeons were able easily to cure the bullet wound, and that soldier lived for many a year afterwards.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

REPUBLICAN NOMINEES.

The Republican County, District and Congressional conventions have been held and an excellent ticket has been placed in nomination. The candidates are well known and are held in the highest esteem by the electors. It now remains for them to exercise the highest prerogatives of citizenship and elect to office the nominees of the party which has deservedly won the confidence of all who are mindful of the phenomenal prosperity this country has enjoyed during the fifty years of the existence of the party of Lincoln and McKinley. These years have been the eventful history of the United States during the greatest period of its existence and prosperity.

Congressman Charles L. Knapp has filled the office to which he has been renominated, to the credit and honor of his district and country. He is a candidate of proven competency and patriotism. With such men in office no fears can be entertained regarding the fruits of enterprise and industry—they are secure.

The Hon. Merrick Stowell has been nominated to succeed himself as county judge. He has been fittingly described as a "wise judge, an able lawyer and an ardent Republican."

Hon. T. D. Lewis has served his constituents so well that they desire to retain him in his present position until an opportune time arrives for his political advancement to a more exalted office.

Hon. F. G. Whitney has deservedly won the approbation of the electors in the Second Assembly District by his zeal and intelligent efforts in their behalf.

Honest Tom Moore has so wisely administered the affairs in the county treasurer's department that a renomination came as a matter of course—the electors evidently not yet being willing to entrust the responsibility to other hands.

Clayton I. Miller, Esq., for special surrogate, and Dr. L F. Hollis, for coroner, complete a ticket for county and district offices well worthy the acceptance of the electors, who no doubt will show their approval by giving increased majorities.

Mayor Foster Vetoes Expert Accountant.

It will be recalled that several weeks ago, the Common Council passed a resolution which was introduced by Alderman Brannan, that an expert accountant should be engaged to go over the books of the city and report to the Council. Alderman Dilts voted against the adoption of the resolution.

Mayor Foster last week filed his veto of the resolution in the City Clerk's office as follows:

Mayor's Office.
Fulton, N. Y., July 15, 1904.

City Clerk, Fulton, N. Y.,

Dear Sir—Referring to the resolution passed by the Common Council at the meeting on the 12th inst., namely, permitting the finance committee to procure the services of an expert accountant to make examinations of all the books of the several city departments of the city, I hereby respectfully decline to approve of the same and do veto it.

My reasons for so doing are:

First—It is an unusual and unwarrantable proceeding, inasmuch as there are no conditions for such an unusual act, as far as I am able to learn.

Second—The several departments are ever willing to make such reports to your honorable body as are required by law, and submit to such investigation as it is your privilege to make.

Third—That the unusual proceeding you propose would incur an expense to the city of perhaps hundreds of dollars, that in my judgment is not justified.

Fourth—The city finances are fully protected by bonds under unquestionable securities, and the city is therefore under no jeopardy from irregularities.

J. A. FOSTER, Mayor.

The Common Council at its meeting held on Tuesday evening, July 26, passed the resolution over Mayor Foster's veto. Mayor Foster and Alderman Brown were absent and Alderman Diltz voted against the adoption of the resolution.

Timely Gift to Hospital.

Kayendatsyona Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, desirous of presenting something which would be both useful and beautiful to the new hospital of this city, bought a Colonial clock, which, marked with the insignia of the D. A. R., will be placed in position before many days. The clock will be on exhibition during this week in M. Katz & Co's dry good store, First street.

REGARDING PUBLIC LIBRARY SITE.

EDITOR TIMES: The question of a site for the new Carnegie Public Library was supposed to have been settled, and all the machinery was working in good order towards carrying out the plans agreed upon, of placing it on Mrs. Thayer's property, corner Third and Cayuga streets, of which an option had been secured, committees appointed, subscription lists being circulated and quite a number of subscriptions already made, when all of a sudden Mr. F. D. Van Wagenen sees a great light and comes out in a letter to the Times ostensibly criticising Mr. A. S. Roe's letter for urging that the new library building be kept out of the park, but really portraying about as black a picture as I have ever read about our park, and then urging that the most inferior spot of all that much-neglected and unlovely piece of ground be selected as the proper place for the library. Not only that, but he, or some one back of him, has had a young lady, said to be his private secretary, circulate a petition urging that that is the proper thing to do. Many people sign petitions without much thought, or just to please somebody, and unless public sentiment is thoroughly aroused, which is largely my purpose in writing this letter, such petitions count for very little.

Without discussing the good taste or propriety of such a proceeding at this particular stage of the question, or the aims and purposes of Mr. Van Wagenen and those he represents, of springing this matter on the public three weeks after the movement has been started and under fair headway of being carried to completion, let me repeat some of the language he uses in describing this plot of ground, "this big open field of weeds—cut sometimes, trees untrimmed, no place to sit, and all through the season a howling mob of boys using the foulest language known to young America," this place of "monstrosities and abominations" and "a great breeding-ground for card-playing, cigarette smoking and foul language." Now, Mr. Van Wagenen, you have lived near and on the borders of that park for a good many years and you ought to know its true condition if anybody does, and I will take your word for it, and not as long as I have got any sense to discriminate between what is proper and what is not proper to do in regard to the library will I vote or do a single thing to put the new public library building in such a howling, uncivilized wilderness as you declare the park to be and has been for the past "quarter of a century."

In closing his letter to the public he discloses the real motives he has in advocating the park as the proper place for the library. His anxieties for the tax-paying public have vanished, and he would have the people subscribe money to buy an athletic field in order to keep the rude, uncivilized boys who visit the park, out of it. He is going to be liberal and have the tax-payers subscribe for a public park on the west side of the river. He would have the trustees of the library give their time to landscape gardening and police duty so as to make the park beautiful to the eye, and keep those who would venture into that elysian field in proper order.

For myself and myself only—as my associates on the Board of Trustees know nothing about this communication—I will say that I do not believe that such duties properly belong to a trustee of a public library, and you will therefore have to excuse me from such an onerous task. But if I was going to build the library in the park I would place it on the best and highest part of it—say between Third and Fourth on Buffalo street, where it would be at least conspicuous, and do some credit to the city, and not down in the lowest spot in it, where it would receive the drainage of the largest part of that parcel of ground, and where every one—most everyone—would not ask the question, why in the name of common sense did you not put your library upon the higher ground where it would look sightly and be conspicuous, instead of down in that low, unsightly place?

The public park is not the proper place to put the library for the very reasons enumerated in Mr. Van Wagenen's letter. There is no good reason to believe that the conditions will be any better in the future than they have in the past. Furthermore, the park is small and should not be encroached upon to make it smaller. It was not designed to furnish sites for public buildings, and a lone building stuck down in an insignificant corner of it would be out of harmony with its surroundings. It would destroy the natural beauty of the park.

It would not be as accessible to a large part of its patrons, as it would be if located nearer the business center of the city, where more people would pass it on their errands of business or pleasure.

Mr. Roe well says that in the State of Massachusetts, where public libraries are as numerous as there are cities and villages in the State, and furnishing a model for all other States to follow, the library buildings are not being built in public parks. Those places, as they should be, are being kept sacred for the purposes they were intended.

Mr. Van Wagenen alludes to public buildings in the Central Park in New York city, and it happens at this very time that city is building a new public library which is destined to be one of the greatest libraries in the world, and is she placing it in Central Park where she has hundreds of acres of land so that the ground it would occupy would not be missed in that great estate of over a thousand acres? No. She is spending millions building a library right down in the business center of the city—within almost a stones throw of the Grand Central Station, where teeming thousands pass it every day and can easily visit it if they so desire.

Syracuse, too, is just completing a fine new public library, and she has placed it just as near the business part of the city as she could possibly locate it, and she paid a high price for the site, although she has a public park, if I remember aright, not more than two squares from it.

Why should not the city of Fulton place its new library building just as near the business center of the city as it can get an available site? In that case it will be more accessible to the great majority who will make use of it than any other spot that can be selected.

For weeks the library trustees advertised for proposals to sell sites for the library, and among others Mrs. Thayer offered her property for that purpose. All of them were thoroughly and carefully considered, including the public park, by the full Board of Library trustees, and as was very fully and frankly stated by the president of the Board, Mr. E. R. Redhead, in his letter to the public, and signed by all the trustees, it was unanimously voted that Mrs. Thayer's proposition be accepted and an option be secured for a certain length of time on her property.

Will anyone have the hardihood to say that Mr. Redhead was actuated by personal and selfish motives when he passed by the park and voted for the Thayer property? Will any one say that of Mr. Arvin Rice, or Mr. Thomas Hunter or Prof. B. G. Clapp? Your humble servant is the only one on that Board against whom such a charge can possibly be made, and it would be giving him altogether too much credit to say that they were swerved in their judgement from acting for the best interests of the people of this city when they selected the site offered by Mrs. Thayer. I have honestly and squarely stated my objections to the library being located in the park. Can those who advocate the park give as strong evidence of their unselfish motives?

A. J. SNOW.

Post Schenck Displeased.

The attention of the members of Post Schenck, G. A. R., having been called to an article in the Fulton Times of recent date, regarding the site for the Carnegie Library, in which the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument is designated as a "stone monstrosity", a committee was appointed to reply thereto. The committee report is as follows:

The article in the Times characterizing the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument as a "stone monstrosity," which tends to disfigure the public park, calls for the indignant protest of all who bore any part in its erection. This Post, under the auspices of the citizens of the towns of Volney and Granby, caused to be erected, on the advice and approval of the citizens of the above-named towns and their vicinity: the town of Volney appropriated $1500 00. and the remainder was raised by popular subscriptions A committee of the most prominent citizens of Fulton selected the design and site, and the day of its dedication was celebrated in a manner seldom seen in our (then) village.

While it was doubtless a misfortune that the public were deprived of the wisdom of Mr Van Wagenen at the time, we can but feel that the memorial erected to the memory of those who gave their lives for the preservation of their country, in order that, among other things, Mr. Van Wagenen might, from the porch of his beautiful residence, behold the Park with its various deficiencies, deserves from him some better appellation than a "stone monstrosity".

Mr. Van Wagenen has an eye for the beautiful, and a soul for peace. He loves the sight of flower beds and the sparkle of silvery fountains. He longs for the time to come when he may behold fond mothers reclining on the benches of the park, while their innocent offspring disport themselves upon its velvet lawns, and the euphonious music of childish voices delight his senses, but he detests the "howling mob" of boys, though largely composed of the denizens of that most select and refined portion of our city which his residence adorns.

Who knows but these considerations may have some influence in the selection of a site for the Library? Why does he wish it on the southwest instead of the northwest corner, where it could face the rising sun and be both fronted and flanked by the homes of refinement and erudition? Or in the center of the park, where the cooling shade of the maples would protect it from the solar heat and shelter it from Winter's blast, where as all roads in time past led to Rome, every path could lead to the abode of knowledge?

It would seem as though Mr. Van Wagenen assumed oracular airs in designating the special corner on which the Library should stand.

The fountains and the flower beds will come when the same interest is taken and exertion put forth in their behalf, as was done in the case of the "stone monstrosity," and the language of the "howling mob" will be reformed when the parents of the boys adopt the proper measures in that respect.

DIED.

James Hurd, father of Mr. A. M. Hurd of this city and one of the most highly respected residents of Scriba, died suddenly at his home on Monday, July 18, from a stroke of apoplexy brought on by the extreme heat.

Surrogate S. B. Mead on Monday morning received the tidings of the death of his mother, Mrs. Adelia A. Mead, which occured at the home of her son in Chicago. Mrs Mead was 72 years of age and was a long-time resident of this city, leaving here in 1872. The surviving children are Messrs. Sheldon B., of this city, Danie W., of Chicago and Mrs. T. A. Rose of Sioux City, Iowa. The body will be taken to Rockford, Ills., for interment.

Mary A. Phillips, aged 86, widow of the late Asa Phillips, died at her home in Toledo, O., on Sunday, July 24. The deceased was a former resident of this city and will be recalled by many of our residents Nearly 75 years ago she with her parents occupied the property on the West side now known as the Willard property. Fifteen years ago Mrs. Phillips left this city to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Davis, in Ohio. The remains were brought to Fulton on Tuesday morning and placed in the family lot in Mt. Adnah. The surviving children are Mrs. Davis of Toledo, Ohio; Mrs Carscallen and Mrs. Thomas R. Wilde of North Dakota; Mr R. E. Phillips of this city, and Mr. W. H. H. Phillips of South Dakota.

Adeline Oman Sharp, aged 81, passed to rest on Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Blodgett in Cayuga street, after several years of ill health and a long period of suffering. The deceased was the widow of the late John D. Sharp and had been a resident of this city for a long time, where she was well known to the older residents and greatly beloved and respected. The funeral services will be held from her late home this Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, the Rev. A. H. Grant officiating. Interment will be made in the family plot at Mt. Adnah. Those who survive to mourn the loss of a devoted parent are Mrs. Blodgett, and Messrs. George F., and John L. Sharp of this city, Mrs. Lillian Foster of Canandaigua and Mr. Percy Sharp of Denver, Col.

Martha B., wife of Mr. Oscar Hannis, died at her home in Fourth street on Monday, at the age of 50. The deceased was a beautiful christian character and no one came within her presence without a feeling that it was a pleasure to know her. She was a home-lover and found her keenest delight in the society of her family, and to this circle the loss comes with unspeakable force. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to them in their great grief. Mrs. Hannis had been ill for nearly a year and it was not thought for several week that she could ever recover. The funeral services will be held from the late home this Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the Rev. W. L. Sawtelle officiating. Interment will be made in Mt. Adnah. Beside her husband, the deceased is survived by two sons, Messrs Harry and Frank, and four daughters, the Misses Myrtis, Josephine, Susan and Helen, all of this city.

MARRIED.

THE SEMI-ANNUAL EVENT OF CENTRAL NEW YORK MERCHANDIZING

Larger, Better, More Advantageous To the Buyer Than Ever Before....

SALINA AND JEFFERSON STREETS — Deys — SYRACUSE, NEW YORK

INVENTORY SALE

To those unfamiliar with stock-taking in an establishment of this kind, the magnitude of the undertaking is hard to appreciate, for it means counting every single article and measuring every yard of goods in all sections of the store.

At such time the odd lines, broken sizes or discontinued patterns of goods come to light and you can readily appreciate our desire not to carry them over for another season's selling. Everything in this store must be kept new and up-to-date, and while the disposal of these assortments seems impossible in so short a time, liberal and radical price reductions, experience has taught us, will accomplish our purpose.

PROGRAMME OF THE SALE IN DIFFERENT SECTIONS

Thursday, July 28—Entire Third Floor.

Carpets, rugs, draperies, curtains, hammocks, art goods, etc. Sale opens at 9 a. m.

Friday, July 29—Entire Second Floor.

Corsets, books, millinery, boy's clothing, shoes, waists, coats, suits, skirts, yarns, muslin underwear, etc., combined with Thursday's offerings on third floor. Sale on second floor opens at 8 a. m. Store closes at 12:30, noon.

Saturday, July 30—Entire First and Lower Floors,

Combined with the offerings on the second and third floors. Wash goods, dress goods, silks, women's, men's and children's underwear, umbrellas, laces, embroideries, ladies' neckwear, men's furnishings, gloves, ribbons, notions, jewelry, stationery, toilet goods, house furnishings, crockery, etc.

STORE CLOSES FRIDAY NOON FOR HALF HOLIDAY.

August 15th.

Don't Wait Until the Last Moment.

We wish again to notify you that if you buy a gas range, and have it set BEFORE AUGUST 15th, you will get the range at cost price and will have all piping from street main to range done free. Furthermore, if you wish, we will sell you the range on easy weekly or monthly payments. The fact that you will save fully $20 by taking advantage of this offer should be a sufficiently good business reason for you to see us at once. Some people let a good chance pass simply because they have not the ready money to pay "spot" cash, but that's not good business. It will certainly pay you to go into debt for a gas range, if by so doing you know you can save $20. Remember, if you are living in a rented house, and should buy a range before August 15th, we will again pipe for you free, whenever you may move.

PARK AS A LIBRARY SITE

EDITOR TIMES: Regarding the library site. As stated in your last issue, a careful effort to know the public thought showed that of those not owning property contiguous to the sites proposed, 99 per cent. were strongly in favor of the park. Fully one hundred have expressed themselves to me. Of this number I can recall only four who did not favor the park. Here is the crux of the whole matter. The library must be maintained by the taxpayers, therefore the majority opinion of the taxpayers should prevail. It is quite probable that the committee on a library site is an excellent one. The names of three of the members of that committee are known to me, and they are gentlemen in whom we can all have great confidence. It seems certain, however, that the committee was acting upon its committee judgment and did not try to discover and act upon public thought. The situation now is clear and so are the facts The library committee, the Board of Public Works or the Common Council can verify all the facts stated. With the taxpayers' opinion so unanimous, it is up to those in authority to take proper action regarding the matter.

Careful thought must convince one that the park is the better sight for the library. We should consider conditions rather than theories. Is it not about time that we should be relieved of the necessity of using Mount Adnah Cemetery as a park? We expect to be there a long time later on, but why not let us have a real park now? The greatest move in that direction would be to put the library on it. The use of the small plot of ground necessary for the building is an imaginary, not a real objection. This is not New York, with 3,000 people huddled in one building. We can all go to the river bank in five minutes, pass the city line and be in the country in about that time. For a few hundred dollars a beautiful recreation ground can be made on the west side of First street. West Fulton could have an unusually attractive park overlooking the river for half the money necessary for a library site. It is good business to do a wise act when opportunity presents itself.

I note that Mr. Roe pleads to be saved from an imaginary harrowing of his feelings. The main argument is that he lives in Massachusetts; that the Boston Public Library is practically part of Copley Square. (That agrees with our contention that the library will be a splendid decorative feature for the park); and finally, that those of us whose thoughts are different from his thoughts "have the spirit of the mob." He likes weeds; would rather sit on the ground. Mothers and babies do not count. Let them roll in the weeds and stop their ears in some corner where they will be out of the way. Does not care for seats and fountains and flowers and beautiful places. The best of all is his estimate of Fulton's judgment: If with wisdom the library is put in the park, then must follow the jail, another standpipe for water, a rock-pile for street use, the hay market, the dump-ground for garbage, etc. We thought that something better would come from Massachusetts.

The band concert given in the Park on Thursday evening was enjoyed by a large gathering of people. Porch parties were made up at many homes around the park and were most enjoyable. The Citizen's band plays well and their proficiency is a source of gratification to our residents in general.

Coroner Christopher Vowinkle of Oswego stopped a runaway horse while in Pulaski attending the convention on Tuesday, according to the Palladium, and saved a small boy from death or serious injury. Mr. Vowinkle saw the horse and carriage dashing down the hill toward the river bridge and leaping from the hotel piazza on which he was seated he caught the bridle of the infuriated animal and brought it to a standstill. He received a badly lacerated thumb as a result of his bravery.

WHY PARKER WAITED

He Knew What Was Going on at St. Louis and Kept Silent.

The Famous Telegram Delayed Until He Had Nomination.

Then He Sent It as the Price For Newspaper Support.

Judge Parker's telegram to William F. Sheehan at St. Louis, in which he made his first declaration on the question of sound money since his letter to Elliot Danforth, in which he said he had supported free silver at 16 to 1, was sent only when he saw that a nomination as a silver man would not be worth having. It was the price of support by newspapers of his party.

There is testimony from his warmest supporters that he sent it as a political expedient. And it is worth while going into the details so that one may arrive at a proper estimate of the value of the act.

Judge Parker's supporters have fully revealed the facts.

Judge Parker Knew.

The fact that Judge Parker knew of the situation was published by the New York Times, the New York World and the New York Herald. The truth was told before the judge sent his message.

Bryan forced the gold plank out of the platform on Friday morning, July 8, and that he had done so was published all over the country. Judge Parker knew it without waiting for the newspaper reports. On July 9 the World published this dispatch, telling how fully the proceedings at St. Louis were known to the judge:

"Esopus, N. Y., July 8.—Bulletins were received by Judge Parker over the telephone. Beginning early in the evening, a wire was used direct from the telegraph office at Kingston to the judge's library at Rosemount. An operator received the bulletins and messages at Kingston and repeated them at once over the telephone. Judge Parker did not appear at all anxious or disturbed about the result."

More Details.

The New York Times showed in detail that Judge Parker knew that the platform would have no gold plank at least twelve hours before he sent his telegram. On Saturday morning, July 9, it published the fact under these headlines:

PARKER UNMOVED BY NEWS OF PLATFORM.

Hears of Gold Plank's Omission Without Change of Expression.

The dispatch was as follows:

"Esopus, N. Y., July 8.—Judge Alton B. Parker took a telegram with which a newspaper reporter had rushed to his house just as the convention was entering on the night session in St. Louis, looked at it leisurely in the presence of a crowd of reporters and without a change of expression. The telegram said that the committee on resolutions would report a platform with the gold plank left out.

"'I thank you, gentlemen, for the opportunity to make a comment,' said Judge Parker. He would say nothing further. Before a question could be asked the judge had called their attention to a small sailboat just discernible out on the river.

"'It's a pretty sight, isn't it?' he queried presently. It was within ten minutes of the time when the convention was to take a vote on his name for the proudest place in the party. His secretary, Arthur McCausland, had kept him in touch with the situation all during the day. It was not blissful ignorance which allowed Judge Parker to maintain absolute silence in the face of news which must have affected him as a man is seldom affected. His perfect self control was never put to a harder test."

Yet More Details.

The New York Herald corroborated the fact that Judge Parker knew what was going on. It had this dispatch:

"Esopus, N. Y., Friday.—Not even the statement that no financial plank would be included in the declaration of principles at St. Louis and that he is expected to make a specific declaration on the money question stirred Judge Parker from his political silence.

"When shown a dispatch to this effect today he read it slowly and, passing it back, said, 'Thank you for the opportunity to comment.' Then he resumed his comment on the beautiful view of the Hudson river from the veranda.

"Although all Esopus was anxious to learn whether or not Judge Parker would be nominated tonight, the central figure in the excitement said he thought he would go to bed about the usual hour, and he did. The bulletin, telling of Mr. Bryan's successful effort to keep a gold plank out of the platform, as reported by the committee, did not alter Judge Parker's determination not to express an opinion as to the wisdom or propriety of such an omission. Deftly he turned the subject, and when it was further intimated that it seemed extraordinary to leave the settlement of such a vexed question to the prospective nominee he merely smiled."

Price of Support.

But while Judge Parker was quiet his supporters, the World, Times, Post and Brooklyn Eagle, were getting ready to bolt his nomination. They were all the New York city newspaper support he had worth mentioning. The World wrote an editorial practically predicting his defeat if he did not declare himself. And it served notice on him that Roosevelt would have a walkover unless he sent a gold message to St. Louis. The Times did the same thing, and it was not until after receiving this information that Judge Parker grasped at the chance to win support of these papers which spoke for the sound money Democrats.

The World itself, in a burst of frankness, explains that it sent information of its proposed attitude to Judge Parker. It contained the following on Tuesday, July 12, in an article in which it pointed out explicitly that it was not until Judge Parker saw what was going to happen to him that he sent the telegram:

"Parker Reads World Editorial."

A bulletin of the action of the convention and the main points of the World's editorial headed "Shall Roosevelt Have a Walkover?" and calling on Judge Parker to send ten words to the chairman of the New York delegation to insure the adoption of a resolution that would make the platform safe and sane had been telegraphed Friday night to the World's correspondent at Esopus.

At the time the telegram was received Judge Parker was in bed. The reporter sat on Judge Parker's porch until the judge appeared after his swim in the morning and was first informed by the reporter of his nomination. Judge Parker then went in the house to dress. He reappeared in riding clothes. In the meantime his saddle horse had been brought around to the door.

The reporters for the Associated Press, Publishers' Press, Evening Journal, Evening Sun and Press were present and saw the representative of the World hand the telegram covering several sheets to Judge Parker.

Judge Parker read it and reread it without comment, except to ask about one indistinct word. Then he put it into the right hand inside pocket of his coat and, mounting his horse, rode away alone. This was three hours before the Sheehan telegram was filed at Esopus.

J. J. HILL CAN NOW SLEEP.

The Merger Man Puts His Approval Upon Judge Parker.

James J. Hill, the president of the Great Northern railroad, who fought for the merger until, at the president's direction, the suit was carried through the courts and the combination declared unlawful, is for Judge Parker. The New York Times contains this information:

"Mr. Hill was asked what he thought of the probable attitude of the candidate toward corporation questions. He said: 'With Judge Parker as president the country can sleep safely at night and without worry.'"

WHY DAVIS GOT IT.

He Is Rich and Has Promised to Give Up Half a Million Dollars.

Former Senator Davis is a very rich man. He is worth as much as $20,000,000. He has promised to make a liberal contribution to the Democratic campaign fund—all the way from $200,000 to $500,000. In addition he has promised to help swell the campaign fund to mammoth proportions through his influence with other rich men and with corporations. He has also promised that West Virginia and Maryland shall be Democratic.

JEFFERSONIAN SIMPLICITY.

We believe that one of the best methods of procuring economy and honesty in the public service is to have public officials from the occupant of the White House down to the lowest of them, return, nearly as may be, to Jeffersonian simplicity of living.—Democratic Platform.

Will this return to Jeffersonian simplicity apply to Senator Clark, who is building a several million dollar palace on Fifth avenue? Will it limit the amount August Belmont may spend on race horses? Will it cause Senator Pat McCarren to keep down his bets at the track to a Jeffersonian figure?

PARKER'S MANAGERS.

If the Democratic campaign can be maintained and conducted on the high plane to which it was raised by Judge Parker's gold standard telegram, a Democratic president will sit in the White House during the next four years.—New York Times.

Who are the men who are "maintaining and conducting" the campaign for Judge Parker?

First.—David B. Hill, whose methods brought about the stealing of the senate and the reward of the chief criminal, Maynard, by appointment to the court of appeals bench.

Second.—William F. Sheehan, who as lieutenant governor helped along the Huckleberry railroad franchise, the Queen City gas bill of Buffalo and under whose "maintaining and conducting" the notorious Buffalo police bill was sneaked through.

Third.—Patrick H. McCarren, who spends much of his time at the track betting on race horses; who stood for the sugar trust in a signed report in the senate. Judge Parker's warm supporters charged only last winter that, although a senator, he was the agent of the gas company in pushing through the notorious Remsen bill.

Fourth.—August Belmont, whom the New York World, now shouting for Parker, says was one of the Wall street crowd that got the benefit of the midnight bond deal, put through in Cleveland's administration.

Fifth.—Elliot Danforth, who was fined for contempt of court in proceedings growing out of the canvass by Danforth and others of the fraudulent Dutchess county election return, a part of the Maynard business.

Sixth.—Edward Murphy, Jr., whose political methods in Troy resulted in murder by Bat Shea at a polling place. (The Times' files bear witness to this.)

And there are others. Many people in this state remember Parker's managers.

THE DIFFERENCE AN EARLIER DISPATCH WOULD HAVE MADE.

[St. Louis Correspondence New York Evening Post.]

While this was a gold convention, and had its leaders been forceful and resolute its majority would have stood for a clean cut gold plank in the first place, there was obviously some difference between Parker's sending a declaration before the nomination and its coming after that event. The Massachusetts delegates, for example, were anti-Parker and before the nomination were looking for anti-Parker combinations in the hope that out of one of them they might find a way to promote the candidacy of their own favorite son. But when Parker had been nominated and this controversy arose they were on the gold standard side, and so were not anti-Parker. It was the same with other delegations and interests.

"REGULAR" OR "RIGHT."

In 1896 and in 1900 Judge Parker voted for Bryan and the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

In that year thousands of Democrats knew that the success of that doctrine would commit this nation to dishonor. They voted for Palmer and Buckner or for McKinley.

Did Judge Parker know what the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 meant?

Did he think it was right?

His friends are now holding him up as an example of one who would "rather be right than be president."

In 1896 and 1900 he was one who would rather be regular than be right.

"Sane and Safe."

Ex-Senator Davis, the Democratic candidate for vice president, is said to be worth from ten to twenty millions. His check book is supposed to be both "sane and safe."

Moonshine Haying.

Judge Parker makes hay in the glare of the noonday sun. His supporters at St. Louis made hay for him by moonshine.—Batavia News.

PROPER TIME TO SPEAK.

Judge Parker Should Have Declared Himself Before He Was Nominated.

[Springfield Republican.]

It may be a bitter thought, yet candor compels the statement that the one American whose course in a similar exigency had furnished Judge Parker with a model of conduct was none other than William Jennings Bryan. At Kansas City, four years ago, Mr. Bryan confronted this situation: The resolutions committee was sharply divided upon the question of ignoring the money question, and there was a prospect that its report would be silent on that issue. Instead of waiting until after the platform had been adopted and the nomination of himself had been made, Mr. Bryan promptly sent word to the convention, before any action whatever had been taken, that he must not be considered a candidate for the nomination in case the money question were ignored in the resolutions. That was straightforward and it was dealing fairly with all wings and members of the Democratic party.

It is very far from our desire to criticise Judge Parker's course too harshly or to impute to him motives at all dishonorable. Yet the cutting, stinging truth of Mr. Bryan's statement in the convention Saturday night cannot be laughed away. "It is a manly thing," said Mr. Bryan, "for a man to express his opinion before the convention adjourns. It would have been manlier to have expressed it before the convention met."

The ridiculous, yet very wearing, episode of the convention's closing hours was the fruit of that policy of silence which was so conspicuous a feature of the Parker movement.

The southern delegations, which really brought about Parker's nomination, balked at the critical moment over the gold plank which the New Yorkers sought to have incorporated in the platform. They had been in the past silverites almost to a man, and they did not dare to precipitate in the convention itself the struggle which would have followed the presentation of a minority report. Senator Bailey of Texas admits this in an authorized statement, which says: "Mr. Hill was not only informed by Mr. Bryan's followers, but by more conservative interests in the convention, that it would be useless for him to contend for the gold plank, and that if he did he would throw the convention into an uproar and would be likely to fatally divide the party. It was only after he had been fully impressed with the seriousness of the situation that he refused to demand a record vote by the convention itself."

This development was well known to Judge Parker Friday afternoon, for the Friday evening papers contained the definite news that the platform would ignore the money question entirely.

Telephone Shocks.

She—Is it possible to receive a shock through the telephone? He—Sure. But the shock usually depends upon who is at the other end of the line.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Drop In Values.

An odd story of Emerson was told the other day by a Cambridge man.

"A New York woman," he said, "called on Emerson one morning. The philosopher was reading in his study, and near him on a plate there lay a little heap of cherry stones. The visitor slipped one of the cherry stones into her glove. Some months later she met Emerson at a reception in Boston. She recalled her visit to him, and then she pointed to the brooch she wore—a brooch of gold and brilliants with the cherry stone set in the center.

"'I took this stone from the plate at your elbow on the morning of my call,' she said.

"'Ah!' said Emerson. 'I'll tell my amanuensis of that. He will be pleased. The young man loves cherries, but I never touch them myself.'"

ED. PINAUD'S
EAU DE QUININE
HAIR TONIC
A Positive Dandruff Cure!
is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.
For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

THE TARIFF THE ISSUE.

The Democratic Party Stands For What It Did In 1892.

The Democratic tariff plank in the national platform of 1892 contained these words:

"We denounce Republican protection as a fraud, a robbery of the American people for the benefit of the few."

Grover Cleveland was elected on that platform. During his term of office $262,330,692 worth of bonds had to be sold to meet the lack of revenue. Under the operations of the McKinley act there had been no lack of funds in the treasury. The embarrassment began with the enactment of the Democratic tariff legislation, the Wilson bill. Revenues began to fall off soon after the triumph of the Democrats when it became known that the new house, controlled by the Democrats, would lower the duties on imports. Importers began to hold back in anticipation of a reduced tariff. Business stood still.

During the years the McKinley bill was in force the customs revenues were as follows:

Year ending Sept. 30, 1891	$196,794,357.89
Year ending Sept. 30, 1892	185,838,859.19
Year ending Sept. 30, 1893	189,182,905.46
Total	$571,816,122.54

The Wilson bill took effect on the 28th day of August, 1894, and was in force until its repeal July 24, 1898, by the Dingley tariff. The receipts from customs for the three years it was in force were as follows:

Year ending Aug. 31, 1895	$161,201,169.35
Year ending Aug. 31, 1896	154,218,813.94
Eleven months ending July 31, 1897	168,858,654.11
Total	$484,308,637.40

The difference between these years and the three years of the McKinley act was $87,507,485.14.

During the three years of the Wilson bill business of the country was almost in a condition of stagnation. Factories were closed, hundreds of thousands of men were idle and soup houses were established to feed the poor in all the large cities. Conditions bordered on panic. With the election of McKinley and the enactment of the Dingley law prosperity returned.

The Democratic party this year has chosen for its policy on the tariff essentially its position of 1892. In the tariff plank adopted at St. Louis occur the following words:

"We denounce protection as a robbery of the many to enrich the few."

The platform of 1892 is the model for 1904. Some of the expressions are word for word.

The simple question is, Does the country want another Wilson bill and its disastrous consequences?

Safeguard the Children

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Bumps on the Head.

The lump raised by a blow on the head is due to the resistance offered by the hard skull and its close connection with the movable elastic scalp by many circumscribed bands of connective tissue.

The result of a blow, when the scalp is not cut, is the bruising and laceration of many of the smalll blood vessels or capillaries. Blood or its fluid constituent, serum, is poured into the meshes of the surrounding connective tissue, which is delicate, spongy, distensible and cellular, and the well known bump or lump is quickly formed. This cannot push inward at all and naturally takes the line of least resistance. Similar lumps may be formed on the shin in exactly the same way, for the shin bone also is covered only by skin and subcutaneous connective tissue.

Weak Hearts
Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.
Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.
Kodol Digests What You Eat

Made His Own Jail.

Among the early Comstockers, the makers of Virginia City, Nev., were some of the toughest specimens of humanity loose in the world in those days, and perhaps the most primitive one in the lot was "Red Mike." The fellow appeared to be equipped only with brute instincts, but there was human intelligence of a sort in the back of his head, and he gave an exhibition of prudential forethought that would have been creditable to a wiser man.

"Red Mike" was employed as bricklayer in the building of a jail, which was one of Virginia City's first and most imperative needs, and he thoughtfully omitted the mortar and laid a number of bricks dry and loose at several places in the wall.

In the natural order of things "Red Mike" committed a serious offense and was thrown into jail to await trial; for even in the early days the Comstock usually tried a man before hanging him. The next morning the jail was empty. "Red Mike" had made a hole in the wall by taking out some of his own handiwork, and when he went out he took all the other prisoners with him.

Nine Points of the Law.

Success in law requires, first, a good deal of money; second, a good deal of patience; third, a good cause; fourth, a good lawyer; fifth, a good counsel; sixth, good witnesses; seventh, a good jury; eighth, a good judge, and, ninth, good luck.—Exchange.

H. C. Giesler.

ask the readers of this paper who are suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia to call on them at once and get a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. If you knew the value of this remedy as we know it, you would not suffer another day. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a thorough digestant and tissue-building tonic as well. It is endorsed personally by hundreds of people whom it has cured of indigestion, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart and stomach troubles generally. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. It is pleasant, palatable and strengthening.

The Largest Cities of Antiquity.

The greatest cities of ancient times were Babylon and Rome. The former is said to have had an area of 100 to 200 square miles. Its houses were three or four stories high, but palaces and gardens occupied much of the vast area, so that the population was not what these figures would seem to indicate. In fact, it is said by one historian that nine-tenths of this area was taken up by gardens and orcherds. The total population of the city under Nebuchadnezzar and his son Evil Merodach is estimated at upward of 2,000,000. Rome reached its greatest size during the fourth century of our era, and its population was then about 2,500,000.

Weak Hearts

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, the stomach expands--swells, and puffs up against the heart. This crowds the heart and shortens the breath. Rapid heart beats and heart disease is the final result. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat, takes the strain off the heart, cures indigestion dyspepsia, sour stomach, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Memory of Sleepwalkers.

The memory of sleepwalkers is extraordinary, not to say phenomenal, especially when under the peculiar impulse of the disease which prompts their movements. Moritz gives an instance of a poor basket maker who was unable to either read or write, yet, strange as it may appear, when in one of his somnambulistic vigils he would preach fluent sermons, some of which were recognized as having formed parts of discourses which he was accustomed to hear when he was a child attending his parish church forty years before.

Curious Contest For a Bride In Tibet.

Among some of the wilder Tibetan tribes in the Koko-nor there is a curious marriage ceremonial function. This consists in placing the girl, on her wedding morn, in the upper part of a tree, while her male relatives remain on the lower limbs, or else in the back part of her father's tent or hut, while these same relatives guard the entrance, in each case the latter being armed with lolo thorn sticks.

The groom, when these preparations have been completed, rides up and announces his intention of seizing the bride. This requires fortitude, for the relatives beat him unmercifully when he attempts to reach the woman. If he manages to elude his assailants and touch the toe of the woman she is his, he is welcomed into the family and complimented on his ardor. Should he fail he suffers not only the inconvenience of being wifeless, but the loss of cattle and other presents given during the negotiations. By the sale of a girl to one man, however, the father does not relinquish his claims upon her, but may sell her to other suitors who come afterward, until she may have half a dozen husbands.—Booklovers' Magazine.

Which Eye Is Stronger?

Here is a little test for your eyes that will soon show you which of them is the stronger. Place an object about two inches in diameter on a level with your eyes and move back from it about ten feet. Then point to it and take sight along the top of your pointing finger until the object and the tip of your finger are exactly in a line with the eye from which you are sighting. Next open the other eye and see if the object seems to have moved from the straight line. If it has not moved to one side apparently, the eye with which you first looked is the stronger, as the addition of the other's vision does not change the focus. If the object seems to have moved, it proves that the other eye is the stronger, the difference being measured by the distance that the object appears to have moved.

Try sighting with both eyes open first. Then look with first one eye and then the other and see how far out of line each makes the object appear. The one that is farthest out of line is the weaker eye.—Chicago Journal.

A Chapter of Accidents.

Mrs. Henry Shaver of Dexterville fell from her wagon in front of True Bros. mill on Wednesday morning and fractured her collar bone.

Frank Siler ran a large splinter in his foot while at work in the Victoria paper mill on Saturday and it was necessary to call medical assistance before it could be removed.

George Miller, while engaged at his duties in the Battle Island Pulp mill on Friday caught his arm between rollers and tore the skin from the wrist to the upper arm.

Mrs. Augusta Luke was painfully injured by falling through the stairs at her home in Academy street on Friday.

While teasing a large shepard dog belonging to Mr. C. D. Gibson, Arthur Marden of Albany was badly bitten by the beast. Dr. Hall was called and cauterized the wounds.

Charles Barry received a painfully cut arm while working in the Foster Bros. knife works on Saturday. He unthinkingly laid his arm on an open case of knives and medical aid was required to repair the injury.

Georgia Coates had her hand drawn into a machine fitted up with porcupine needles in the American woolen company's mill on Tuesday, and it was necessary to call Dr. Wells to remove the needles which remained imbedded in the flesh.

James Jerolmann while employed in the Battle Island mill on Monday, was struck on the head by a heavy chisel and received a severe scalp wound.

Edward Cavanaugh fell from an apple tree at his home in Utica street on Saturday and dislocated his shoulder. The drop was 14 feet and it is a marvel that he escaped with so little injuries.

Mr. W. D. A. Brown fell from a hay loft at his home four miles south of this city on Sunday, striking on his head and receiving quite painful injury.

CHOICE GROCERIES—USEFUL PREMIUMS.

A Corning Concern Has Arranged to Supply Every Household With Both—Novel and Economic Plan Explained.

Every household in the land uses more or less groceries every week. The housewife's constant aim is to get the best edibles for the least money. This effort is closely connected with the practical side of life. It is a ruinous practice in domestic matters, to pay 75 cents for an article that might be bought for 50 cents. The difference between buying right and careless purchasing, may be turned into a competency for a "rainy day," or old age. A little saved on each item of groceries bought will amount to a considerable sum each year. Now, when is this saving to be accomplished?

The C. R. Maltby Co. of Corning, N. Y., is one of the oldest and most successful business houses in the country. It has been dealing in groceries for more than forty years. Possessing larger capital, goods are bought in enormous quantities from producers, at the lowest possible price. Selling direct to retail grocers no extra charges are incurred for brokers, jobbers, or middlemen. Only by doing business in this way can any concern actually sell choicest goods for a price attractively less than any and all competitors. The Maltby Co. has arranged to sell its entire list of "Signature Brands" of choice family groceries, in sealed packages of various sizes. Included in this list are: Teas, coffees, spices, fancy fruits, cocoa and chocolate, rice, sliced beef, tapioca, rolled oats, mincemeat, popcorn, saleratus, condensed milk, crackers, flour, flavoring extracts, soap, matches—in fact, all kinds of groceries.

All articles are prepared and packed by the company or under its supervision. This means always highest quality and uniform, full quantity, also perfect and pure groceries. You can buy these goods in the smallest grocery and be equally assured of cleanliness and quality. The price is fixed at less than goods of the same quality and weight are sold for by any other firm. In addition the Maltby Co. facsimile signature is on every package. These are valuable. Here's where this concern shares additional profits with its patrons. These signatures are redeemed by a list of their hundreds of useful and valuable articles for wear and household purposes. Among these are: Corning cut-glass, all kinds of silverware, cutlery, watches and chains, toilet articles, razors, carving-sets, furniture, desks, rocking-chairs, electric novelties, pipes, purses, suspenders, umbrellas, sadirons, all kinds of crockery and chinaware, dinner and tea sets, sausage-mills, talking-machines, food-choppers, etc. The value of each signature is based on the price paid for the package on which it is written. Its worth is counted and applied on any article desired, in the entire list. For the purpose of giving each signature a specific value, what is called the point system has been adopted. Each signature is worth a certain number of points. The entire premium list is valued at "points" instead of dollars. So it is that so many signatures, representing so many points will purchase a premium valued at an equal number of points.

These "Signature Brands" of choice groceries are for sale at all grocers. A free illustrated catalogue of premiums can be had for the asking. Remember the C. R. Maltby Co. is a wealthy concern of the highest business standing. It can and will keep its word to the letter. As long as you have to buy groceries why not serve yourself and purse the best? Buy "Signature Brands" and you will use no other.

PRESIDENTIAL AGE.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT THE YOUNGEST MAN HONORED.

He Succeeded Mr. McKinley at the Age of Forty-two—President Grant Was Forty-six—William Henry Harrison President at Sixty-eight.

When Theodore Roosevelt took the oath of office as president of the United States in the Wilcox mansion, Buffalo, Sept. 14, 1901, he lacked forty-three days of being forty-three years of age. The death of William McKinley thrust the responsibilities of the nation upon young shoulders. Since the foundation of the republic no man had assumed the office of president at so early an age. If Mr. Roosevelt should be elected as the result of the presidential contest next November, he would be, when inaugurated on March 4, 1905, but forty-six years and four months old.

Ulysses S. Grant approached nearest to Theodore Roosevelt in the matter of comparative youth on attaining the presidency. General Grant was born April 27, 1822, and was therefore forty-six years and about ten months old when inaugurated.

William Henry Harrison was the oldest of any of the presidents on taking the oath of office, being sixty-eight when he was inaugurated on March 4, 1841. He died one month after his inauguration and was the first president of the United States to pass away while the occupant of the executive mansion. James Buchanan came next to President William H. Harrison in respect to age on taking the chair of chief executive. He was sixty-six lacking only about a month at the time of his inauguration. General Zachary Taylor was sixty-five when he took the reins of power. Washington was only fifty-seven, though even at that time regarded as the Father of His Country. His successor, John Adams, was sixty-two. Curiously enough, the next four presidents were just about the same age on taking office, Jefferson, Madison and John Quincy Adams being fifty-eight and Monroe fifty-nine.

Theodore Roosevelt is the twenty-sixth president of the United States, and he belongs to the number of those who saw military service before occupying the White House. Of the twenty-six presidents, fourteen, or more than one-half, have had military records. It is now 115 years since the inauguration of the first president of the republic. During the first half of that period the country had four soldier presidents, Washington, Monroe, Jackson and William Henry Harrison, while during the latter half it has had ten such chief magistrates, Zachary Taylor, Franklin Pierce, Abraham Lincoln, who was in the Black Hawk war Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes James A. Garfield, Chester A. Arthur Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt is a graduate of Harvard university. William and Mary's college and Harvard have been nurseries of presidents. The second president, John Adams, studied at Harvard and his grandson, John Quincy Adams sixth president of the United States, was an alumnus of the institution, while Hayes went there to study law after graduating from Kenyon college, in Ohio. John Quincy Adams was a man of no small attainments in literature, as well as a political leader, and at one time was professor of rhetoric and belles lettres at Harvard. A surprisingly large number of the presidents have been graduates of so called higher institutions of learning, and a great many were also graduates of what President John Adams used to call the "school of affliction," meaning that they taught school. Education had a great deal to do with the making of presidents, whether education obtained within the halls of a college or education obtained, as Lincoln got most of his, studying in a log cabin by the flickering light of blazing logs. President George Washington did not have a college training, though he studied engineering, trigonometry and surveying. Jefferson studied at William and Mary's college, as did James Monroe and John Tyler; James Madison graduated from Princeton college. William Henry Harrison from Hampden-Sidney college, Virginia, and his grandson, Benjamin Harrison, from Miami university, Ohio. Franklin Pierce was a graduate of Bowdoin college, Maine, and Ulysses S. Grant was a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point. Garfield was at Williams college, in Massachusetts; Arthur at Union college, Schenectady, N. Y., and William McKinley studied at Allegheny college, Meadville, Pa., and the Albany Law school.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

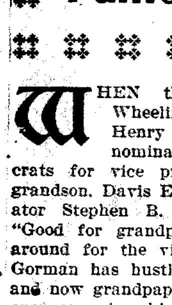
Good Stories Told About Famous Folk

Young Elkins and Grandpop—Henry Van Dyke and the Clam. Sulzer and Henry Clay — Premier Balfour's Gallantry—Irving and the Thunder

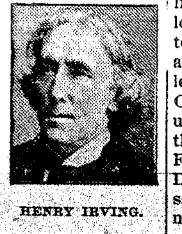
WHEN the news reached Wheeling, W. Va., that Henry G. Davis had been nominated by the Democrats for vice president his young grandson, Davis Elkins, a son of Senator Stephen B. Elkins, exclaimed: "Good for grandpap! Father edged around for the vice presidency, and Gorman has hustled to be president, and now grandpap is honored without even wagging his head for it. It's all in the family, and it's funny to think grandpap beat them all."

Senator Davis made his start as a brakeman on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, one of the oldest railroads in the United States, and the railroad business was in its infancy when he engaged in it. He ran as a freight brakeman between Baltimore and Cumberland. After he had been working for a time as brakeman a wreck occurred. The road had to be cleared up. He rallied the men and went at it with energy and soul. While thus engaged the president of the road noticed him and promptly remarked to the young brakeman, "We have use for you in more important work." He was promoted to be a conductor, and other promotions steadily followed. Work is his motto.



HENRY G. DAVIS.

Miss Ethel Barrymore relates a story of Sir Henry Irving, England's foremost actor, in whose support she appeared when he produced "Peter the Great." As told in Lippincott's Magazine it appears that at a rehearsal of the play in question at the Lyceum theater, in London, a wonderful climax had been reached, which was to be heightened by the effective use of the usual thunder and lightning. The stage carpenter was given the order, the words were spoken, and instantly a noise which resembled a succession of pistol shots was heard off the wings. "What on earth are you doing, men?" shouted Sir Henry, rushing behind the scenes. "Do you call that thunder? It's not a bit like it."



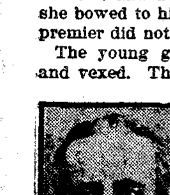
HENRY IRVING.

"Awfully sorry, sir," responded the carpenter, "but the fact is, sir, I couldn't hear you because of the storm. That was real thunder, sir!"

Arthur J. Balfour, premier of Great Britain, has a gallant way of paying pretty compliments to ladies. Driving through Kingston one day, he passed a huge red motor car that stood before an imposing mansion of graystone.

A young girl in a white gown sat in the car, and as the premier glided by she bowed to him and smiled. But the premier did not appear to see her.

The young girl looked embarrassed and vexed. Then she took hold of the wheel of her machine, pressed with her small foot the bulb that made the horn toot gruffly, and swiftly she shot after Mr. Balfour.



A. J. BALFOUR.

Soon the great car overtook the carriage and halted. The young girl, an old friend of Mr. Balfour's, extended her hand, and as he took it she said reproachfully:

"You passed me awhile ago without looking at me."

With a gallant smile and inclination of the head, the premier answered:

"If I had looked at you I couldn't have passed you."

Congressman William Sulzer, who represents the Tenth New York district in the house of representatives and who is often heard in championship of Democratic policies in the popular branch of the national legislature, is said to bear some resemblance to Henry Clay. He wears his hair much as the silver tongued statesman of fifty years ago did and is clean shaven and square jawed. Mr. Sulzer naturally feels complimented when he is compared with the great Kentucky orator, and his friends have encouraged him to believe in the fancied resemblance. A New York man relates that Mr. Sulzer once heard that in his youth an aged negro barber in Washington had shaved Clay. Sulzer went to the barber for a shave. Much to his surprise the barber made no mention of his resemblance to Clay, and after the shave was over Sulzer referred to the subject.

WILLIAM SULZER.

"Sam," said he, "do I remind you in any way of Henry Clay?"

Sam put the razor back in the case with much deliberation and hesitated for some time. Sulzer waited patiently.

"Well, sah," answered Sam at last, "I think yo' does, sah. Yo' breff, sah, is powerful like Mr. Clay's."

Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin, who is at odds with Governor La Follette, delights in conversational tilts. One day Senator Tillman and Senator Spooner were having one of their spats. They are excellent friends, but badger each other every time they get a chance. Tillman had been quoting precedents in his argument against the now celebrated constructive recess—between the time congress adjourned the special session and met in regular session. He referred to statements made by Charles Sumner and John Sherman, and remarked that these were both great men. Senator Spooner arose as if to interrupt.

JOHN C. SPOONER.

"I don't suppose," said Senator Tillman, "that the senator objects to my eulogizing members of his party."

"No," said Senator Spooner, "but I can't understand why you should wait until they are dead."

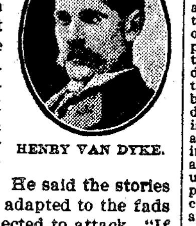
"I was green enough," said Senator Bailey of Texas in a speech, "if I may use that word in this chamber"—

"Go on and use it," broke in Senator Spooner. "We know how well it fits."

At the dinner of the Periodical Publishers' association in Washington not long ago the toastmaster established a ten minute rule for some speakers and a five minute rule for others. Dr. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York, was allotted five minutes, but he spread his speech out very thin over about fifty minutes. When Finley had finished, the toastmaster, Dr. Hamilton Wright Mabie, arose and said with much meaning, "We will now have another five minute speech."

And everybody but Dr. Finley laughed and applauded.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke's speech at this dinner was the hit of the evening. He was giving advice to young and aspiring authors on how to get their work accepted by various magazines. He said the stories and poems must be adapted to the fads of the magazine selected to attack. "If I were writing on the clam for the Outlook (the toastmaster's magazine) I would send 'A Quatrain to a Recreant Clam,'" said Dr. Van Dyke. He quoted:



HENRY VAN DYKE.

Low dust thou lie amid the languid ooze
Because thy slothful spirit doth refuse
The bliss of battle and the strain of strife.
Rise, craven clam, and lead the strenuous life!

President Roosevelt laughed so much at this quatrain that he almost fell out of his chair.

J. T. Trowbridge, whose name for fifty years has been a household word and whose writings have attained an exceptional popularity among the younger readers, tells a good story on himself in his recent book of literary reminiscences, entitled "My Own Story." He writes:

"After I had been so far prospered as to be able to place a small deposit in a savings bank the father of a family once besought me for a loan of $60. When I told him, to my sincere regret, that I had no such sum at my command, he made answer that his quarter's rent was due, that he had been unable to collect some bills he had relied on to make up the needful sum and he didn't know which way to turn if I couldn't help him. 'I haven't it,' I repeated, 'but'—I thought of my poor little savings bank deposit and of a family man's natural distress at being unable to pay his rent—'I might possibly raise it for you.' Although I knew there would be a loss of accumulated and prospective interest if I withdrew my money from the bank, and I could not think of taking interest from a friend, his expressions of gratitude paid me in advance for any such sacrifice. I went at once and drew the $60, which I handed him without saying how I had come by it. He paid me in a week or two, thanked me warmly and added this naive remark: 'If you hadn't lent me the money, I should have had to take it out of the savings bank and have lost the interest.' I smiled and held my peace."

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; or to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 9, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to revoke such designation. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within said department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

CUPID AND THE CLARKS.

Romance of the Montana Senator and His Beautiful Ward.

Cupid has been playing pranks in the family of the multimillionaire Senator William A. Clark of Montana. A few years ago Senator Clark's son Charles fell in love with a fair Butte young lady, Miss Amelia La Chapelle. The son's desire to marry Miss La Chapelle was strenuously opposed by the senator, with the result that the affair was broken off. Now it transpires that the elder Clark has married Miss Anna La Chapelle, the sister of the girl his son wished so ardently to make his wife. The ceremony occurred in Marseilles, France, May 25, 1901, but it was only a few days ago that the senator's grownup sons and daughters learned that their father, now sixty-five, was no longer a widower, but had a charming wife, twenty-four years of age, and a baby daughter, now two years of age. Senator Clark gives as the reason for the secret marriage the fact that Mrs. Clark desired to remain abroad and finish her education.

Miss La Chapelle was the ward of Senator Clark. It is related that one day when she was a girl of fourteen or fifteen she came into the senator's office in Butte to plead the cause of her father, a French Canadian physician who had no license to practice in Montana and hence was having trouble with the local medical society. The senator was induced to aid the unfortunate doctor and gave him money to obtain a course of study at an American medical college. Not long afterward the father died, and the family being left in financial straits he gave them further aid, sending both Anna and her sister Amelia to school. In Anna he took especial interest, and as she proved to have unusual talents he determined that she should have every opportunity for their development. She was sent abroad to study music and the languages, and as her accomplishments grew the senator's admiration for her increased, and this led to their marriage three years ago. Mrs. Clark is now in Europe. Her husband has several costly homes, that on Fifth avenue, New York, being most palatial.

Easy Stairs.

The very acme of ease is reached in stairs that have treads twelve to fifteen inches broad and risers five to seven inches high. The run or distance in most houses is too short to allow of this, but they should come as near it as the architect of the house will permit. It is so easy to climb such stairs that one hardly is aware of any effort. Numbers of incurably broken down women owe their bad health to the steep stairs which they have been obliged to climb daily.

The Crucial Moment.

One of the favorite maxims of General Grant and one certainly in accord with human nature was that in every closely contested battle there comes a time when both sides are exhausted. When this condition arises, he said, the army that first breaks the lull and puts itself in motion is likely to win. A blow then is worth a dozen previous ones.

Duty Before Pleasure.

Hostess (to new curate)—We seem to be talking of nothing but horses, Mr. Soothem. Are you much of a sportsman? Curate—Really, Lady Betty, I don't think I ought to say that I am. I used to collect butterflies, but I have given up even that now.—London Tit-Bits.

VOTERS WANT RESULTS, NOT THEORIES

The electors are asked to permit the Democratic party to handle the difficult problems of government and to support Judge Parker for the presidency on the plea that he is better than his party—this is practically all that can be said to the voters in commendation of the candidate. The Democratic party seems to be as much as ever in a panic, and the Republican party must be looked to in order that the country may be saved from impending disaster—from the reign of diverse elements in the Democratic party, such as free-silverites, gold-bugs, free-traders and protectionists, socialists and trust magnates, States-right's men and those who bitterly cry out against the alleged centralization of government.

The Republican party is proud of the record it has made since it was fairly launched on its great career, some fifty years ago. Results, not theories, are what the voter wants—be he farmer, toiler in the factory, manufacturer or business man. The present administration has made an enviable record, which is evidenced by the progressive condition of the country. The Republican party has fulfilled the pledges of the platform upon which it successfully appealed to the people of this country. The farmer shared with the business man, the manufacturer with his workman, and the various classes of our citizens, in the general prosperity following the advent of the Republican party to power, and this prosperity has been continued through the wise and patriotic administration of Theodore Roosevelt, who, with the late lamented McKinley, is deserving of credit for the development of a constructive policy by which the nation has been welded together and the Republic expanded to take its place as one of the great powers of the civilized world.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE.

Our country has been peculiarly fortunate in the orderly development of its political history. Certainly under Republican rule financial and commercial conditions and the system of local and internal government have more nearly approached perfection than under any regime which has yet been provided. President Roosevelt's speech in acceptance of his nomination will be recognized as being both wise and patriotic, containing not a single word that his political adversaries can resent. It was a speech fit for the President of the United States to make, and its dignity and courtesy will appeal to the American people ... form is indulged in for the purpose of giving additional emphasis to its meaning. President Roosevelt states: "Our opponents, either openly or secretly, according to their several temperaments, now ask the people to trust their promises in consideration of the fact that they intend to treat their past promises as null and void."

These are impregnable facts and can not be controverted. Again, in reference to the monetary plank, which almost split the camp of our adversaries in twain, the President says: "So long as the Republican party is in power the gold standard is settled, not as a matter of temporary political expediency, not because of shifting conditions in the production of gold in certain mining centres, but in accordance with what we regard as the fundamental principles of national morality and wisdom."

The Democratic party has injected into the campaign the insidious question, "Is the President a safe man," this is reiterated from time to time by some conservative men, who, if they stopped to give the question some thought, would not be misled. It has never been the policy of President Roosevelt to oscillate backward and forward with every political wind that blows. There is a definiteness in this statement which should forever settle this question: "We seek international amity for the same reasons that make us believe in peace within our own borders; and we seek this peace not because we are afraid or unready, but because we think that peace is right as well as advantageous."

The tariff question will receive the same "safe and sane" treatment as has always been accorded by the Republican party. President Roosevelt states: "That whenever the need arises there should be a readjustment of the tariff schedules, but the readjustment when made must maintain and not destroy the protective principle, and must therefore be made by those who hold protection in honor, not by those who denounce it as robbery." The recollection that the President has served the country with fidelity and wisdom for three years should convince thinking men that the interests of the nation are absolutely safe in his hands. Throughout his administration there has been "no variableness or shadow of turning." He has been an ideal chief executive of the United States.

An Appreciative Reader.

LINTON, N. D., July 27, 1904.

EDITOR TIMES: Enclosed find payment for two years' subscription to your valuable paper. I have taken the Times every year since it was published and we would feel lost without it. We are having a fine Summer in this section and the prospects never looked better for grain, hay and fat cattle. The farmers are harvesting their grain now, and they will be cutting hay here until the snow stops them.

Sincerely,
FRED A. PETRIE.

Pleasant Letter.

Dr. R. R. McCully of Union Springs in remitting his subscription to the Times, says in part, "I still have quite an interest in the "baby city" with its infantile trials and tribulations, its political indigestion and wind colic. I hope it won't try to do too much in its infancy and thus get the name of being precocious or it may find itself in the same position as the man with a "champagne thirst" and "a beer pocket book."

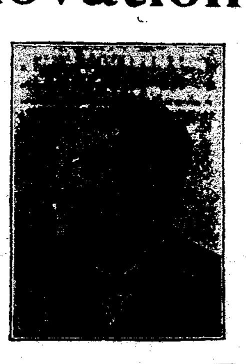
A Modern Innovation

IN OUR WINDOW

See the Sculptor Carving the Statue of the

Hon. T. D. Lewis

Out of a Solid Block of Soap.



Commencing Friday morning, August 5, and to be continued daily 'till Saturday night, August 6.

In our large window will be presented a most novel and instructive window display, the making of the statue of the Hon. T. D. Lewis.

The material used in the construction of this statue is "Disinfectine," the modern Toilet Soap. The Disinfectine Co., of Canton, Ohio, sole proprietors of this renowned brand, has furnished us with a large block of soap, weighing five hundred pounds, and all day Friday and Saturday a sculptor employed in this work may be seen carving and modeling this immense block of soap into form.

The statue will be in plain view of the public and will make a most interesting spectacle. This will be an instructive as well as an interesting sight.

This statue, reproduced with "Disinfectine," the modern medicated toilet soap, is well worth a special trip to the store, besides we will have it on sale at a special price of only 25c per box of three cakes. The former price was 25c per cake. Therefore do not miss this double opportunity of seeing the most interesting window display that has ever been produced.

Sale Begins Friday, August 5.

$1.00 a Week

Buys a Gas Range.

Free Piping Goes With Each Range.

Save $20.00.

Should You Move, We Will Again Pipe For You Free.

READ THE CONDITIONS

There are now hundreds of gas ranges in use in Fulton, but in order that any family may be able to own one, we wish it known that we are willing to sell ranges on the installment plan to all who may find it more convenient to buy in that way—$1.00 a week until range is paid for will be satisfactory to us—choose what range you like and we will do all necessary piping to connect it with the street main, free. We will do even more, we will go so far as to give you free service piping each time you may move, if you buy a range now and have it set before August 15th. This does not mean that you can wait until August 15th before ordering a range, it means that you should see us at once, secure your range, and give us a chance to have the work done by that date. There will be a great rush for ranges and we must give each customer attention in turn.

Are the Pipes on Your Street?

If Not, don't delay a day, call on us and make application for the gas. This is the only way we have of finding out who wants it. Don't hang back, don't wait for your neighbors to act or the street will never be piped, attend to the matter promptly for yourself, and the fact that you have made application will influence others and there will be some chance of the main being laid. If we get enough applications we will pipe the street, if not, we will have to drop the idea. Unfortunately we will not have the opportunity to call and talk the matter over, we cannot possibly call on everybody. Remember this is the second and last construction year. Prompt action now may mean a great deal; may result in the pipes being laid, in which event you would be in a position to take advantage of our offer, thereby saving fully $20.00.

Greatest Household Comfort

FOR YOUNG AND OLD.

Gas is the cheapest, the quickest and in every way the best fuel for cooking and baking—a breakfast in 15 minutes from the time you light it. No wood or coal to bother with or carry. His son, Owen, is the pastor of a large and prosperous church in Indianapolis.

The family of President Roosevelt has other literary talent besides his own. Maude Roosevelt, his cousin, contributes a novelette, called "Social Logic," to the August Number of Lippincott's Magazine which substantiates the talent of her race. It is a tale of the somewhat sordid life well-bred women have to lead in New York boaring-houses, but the heroine of Miss Roosevelt's story emerges through many thrilling social adventures to the lot for which Nature planned her—a happy marriage.

As the season progresses, field day on Pathfinder Island is becoming more popular and enjoyable, Baseball and tennis are indulged in and spirited contests are the result. A number of ladies are usually in attendance to witness the games, at the conclusion of which an excellent supper is provided at a nominal cost. It is to be regretted that more of our citizens do not avail themselves of the opportunity of spending an enjoyable Friday afternoon on one of the most picturesque spots of our historic river.

A GREAT INDUSTRY.

VAST EXTENT OF BUSINESS AFFECTED BY BUTCHERS' STRIKE.

Figures of Meat Packers' Product Reveal Remarkable Increase in Consumption of Meat by American Public—Refrigeration.

When there is any interruption to the operation of transferring beef and pork and veal and lamb from the pasture land and the stockyard to the table the facts begin to come out as to what an enormous industry that of providing the people of the United States with meat has grown to be. A few days ago it was estimated that the number of butchers and other workers in packing industries on strike was 50,000. It was also estimated that the strike would affect 2,000,000 farmers and stockmen engaged in the business of raising animals to supply meat for the tables of the American public.

The center of the meat packing industry is Chicago, and it is there that the most wonderful organization has been effected for the handling of vast quantities of animals and the preparation of their flesh for consumption as food. Tall figures have to be used in description of this industry. It is estimated that about one-half of all the beef slaughtered in the United States is killed in the packing houses of the Chicago stockyards. It is almost forty years since these stockyards were established, and in that time over 400,000,000 head of live stock have been marketed there, aggregating in value the stupendous sum of $6,000,000,000, and this sum represents only the value of the raw material that has come there to be manufactured into meat. It would of course take a longer row of figures to express the value of the manufactured or finished product. Over 500 acres of land in Chicago are devoted to this industry.

A recent estimate puts the value of the annual product of the packing industries of the United States at $800,000,000. To produce this output a yearly expenditure of over $700,000,000 is said to be required, while about 80,000 persons are engaged in the employment of handling the meat.

To be sure, all of this output is not for domestic consumption. The American packing companies now ship a great deal of meat abroad. The English especially use much American refrigerator beef.

J. OGDEN ARMOUR.

It is estimated that the per capita consumption of meats has increased 25 per cent in the United States in the past fifteen years owing to the improved condition of the people. This increased consumption has come along with increased facilities for handling meat and supplying it in various forms that are attractive for use. A writer in the Century Magazine says the value of the products of the meat packing industry in this country has increased in fifty years from a little over $10,000,000 annually to over $800,000,000. The invention of the refrigerator car in 1868 caused the meat packing business to take an enormous stride, and the western cities, especially Chicago, got the benefit of this invention. When the first car of fresh beef was shipped from Chicago to Boston in 1869 it was an object of curiosity. The refrigerator car soon made it possible for the west to slaughter the animals and ship them to the east in good condition. The refrigeration process also enables the packer to slaughter and ship the year round instead of during cold months only. Meat expresses now run on fastest schedules from Chicago to the Atlantic seaboard. The cattle travel to Chicago in "palace stock cars," and they travel out of it, after they have been slaughtered and "dressed," in refrigerator cars of the most expensive type of construction. These cars are usually built by the packing houses themselves, and more than 20,000 are said to be in use carrying meat products from Chicago. The Armour company, of which J. Ogden Armour is the head, alone owns over 10,000 such cars.

The profits of this industry have resulted in building up big fortunes. There was an interesting spectacle in Omaha a few days ago when the strike among the meat cutters and handlers caused interruption of business in the packing houses of that city. A half dozen millionaires turned in and worked at cutting meat in order to help in keeping the plants going. The sons of Richard Cudahy cut hogs and trimmed hams all day, while Mark Morton, son of the late J. Sterling Morton and brother of Paul Morton, secretary of the navy, worked as a stoker in the boiler room of a packing company.

Men From Both Wings of the Party Quitting It In Disgust.

Judge Parker's votes for Bryan in 1896 and 1900, when a victory for Bryan meant national dishonor, have not been forgotten even by members of his own party who are most anxious to come back to the old time Democracy.

Many of the most highly respected men in the Democratic party have refused to support him, and the number who feel it their patriotic duty to protest is increasing.

For Judge Parker's personality they profess admiration, but they question the methods by which he secured the nomination, and they abhor the elements so long dominant in the party, which have not been eradicated, they say, by the belated telegram Judge Parker sent after the nomination had been secured.

Oscar S. Straus, a Cleveland Democrat and Mr. Cleveland's minister to Turkey, has declared that he will support President Roosevelt. He said:

"A party which cannot unite or has not the wisdom or the courage to unite in putting a sound money plank in its platform is not sufficiently reconstructed to be intrusted with power."

Nominated by Trickery.

Theodore M. Banta, cashier of the New York Life Insurance company and a lifelong Democrat, has bolted. He says:

"I cannot support a nomination made by trickery. I am disgusted with Judge Parker, whom I had hoped to support, even on a platform silent on the money question. Not only did he not show courage in his gold standard telegram, but he displayed the calculating cunning of Hill. This is the same sort of politics we have had so long in the Democratic organization. Judge Parker was in the Maynard campaign and not only did not denounce Hill and Maynard, but actually supported them."

The Party a Menace.

The Chronicle, the only Democratic newspaper in Chicago outside of the Hearst papers, was one of the earliest bolters. It was always a sound money paper and cannot go with its party on the St. Louis platform. It said:

"As at present constituted and led, the Democratic party is a menace to the peace, the prosperity and the integrity of the United States and their people."

There Are Others.

J. P. Timberlake of Steubenville, O., nominated for congress by the Democrats of the Sixteenth district, has declined to run on the ticket with Parker. His reason is that the trusts, as represented by Parker's managers, are too strongly supporting the judge.

John S. Beard, one of the Florida delegates at large to the St. Louis convention, has bolted. He says:

"I think that the nomination of Judge Parker was secured by fraud and deception."

The Western Laborer, described as "the oldest and most influential labor paper in the west," has bolted because it "cannot remain in a party which we have seen pledged to turn the government over to a man who dare not state where he stands on public policy until after David B. Hill and other managers for Wall street had duped the party and stolen the nomination for him."

A. W. Maxwell, who had been chosen chairman of the Iowa Democratic state committee in May, declined to serve and bolted the ticket.

Both Factions Bolting.

The character of the bolters, or, rather, the particular political tenets of the bolters show precisely and most emphatically the exact feeling over Judge Parker's attitude. Gold Democrats do not like it. Bryan Democrats are even more indignant.

The sound money men know that the judge's telegram would have defeated his nomination if it had reached the convention before the roll call. They know that the majority of the party opposed any gold standard plank.

The Bryan men are angry because, having won on the platform and selected a candidate whose record was with them, such men as Cleveland, Hill, Belmont and others now claim Parker as a gold man.

PANICS AND TARIFFS.

Protection Has Always Brought Prosperity; Free Trade, Disaster.

All our worst panic periods have come not after a free trade tariff actually adopted, but after Democratic success and free trade agitation. What has been worse in the memory of men now living than the terrible grinding years from 1875 to 1878, with the strike summer of 1877 between? These years followed a Democratic house, elected by a tidal wave in 1874. No turn of the tide came until the political tide turned.

It was the Democratic tidal wave of 1882 and all the wide agitation of Democratic free trade which brought the smash of 1884 and its lean years. They changed with Republican success in 1888.

Democratic success and the election of an avowed free trader, Grover Cleveland, in 1892, were followed by the panic of 1893. Four years as lean as those from 1874 to 1878 followed this Democratic success.

In 1896 Republican victory and the Dingley tariff were followed by prosperity. So it has always been. The devastating panics of 1837 and of 1857 followed Democratic success and the acceptance of free trade. Protection has brought prosperity. This is history. It is common sense and common knowledge.

Flaws may be picked in the details of this tariff plank, but its broad, basic facts are unquestionable and unquestioned.—Philadelphia Press.

LO, THE POOR INDIAN.

He Is Much In Evidence at St. Louis. Chief Geronimo.

Whether the red man is dying out or not, interest in him continues and perhaps is even on the increase. Books continue to be written about him, lectures on Indians and their ways continue to enjoy popularity, and at expositions the exhibits illustrating aboriginal life and primitive customs always attract their share of attention. Ernest Thompson Seton's books and lectures on Indians and animals have done much to interest the young in the ways of life of the aborigines.

The Indian boy's training was once such as to inure him to hardship at an early age. He was taught not to be afraid of a great many things that scare white children now and to withhold expression of suffering, like the brave of larger growth who scorned to give his enemies the satisfaction of seeing him shrink from torture. Evidently the small Indian youth of the picture, a lusty member of the Indian colony at the world's fair, has not as yet learned the lesson of courage, for it is apparent he is very much afraid of the camera. This is in contrast to another member of the colony, the famous Apache chief Geronimo, who is not afraid of anything. Geronimo was once renowned as the fiercest chief of a fierce tribe, but captivity has made him more docile than of yore.

Sauce.

"The impudence of that young brother of mine!" exclaimed Mrs. Nagger. "He just told me I was no chicken when I married you."

"Well," replied her unsympathetic husband, "that's true enough. You weren't a chicken, were you?"

"No, I was a goose."—Philadelphia Press.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the State of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 158 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1838, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

KUROKI'S SUCCESS.

The Secret of It Is His Coolness and Courage In Action.

The repeated successes of General Kuroki in the campaign of the Japanese against the Russians in Manchuria have made him a hero in the eyes of his countrymen and a character of great interest to the world at large. With the Japanese cordon tightening more and more about General Kuropatkin and the forces of the czar in Manchuria, the military situation becomes every moment more exciting. Since his great victory at the passage of the Yalu General Kuroki has pressed forward continually, winning almost every engagement.

The invincibility of General Kuroki is due in part to his imperturbability, his perfect command of himself and his men under all circumstances. During a sharp engagement with the enemy, when the air quivers with the drumming of the machine guns and the bark of the quick firers, and the advance of his columns, under heavy punishment from the Russians, requires his constant attention, he is as cool as if he were merely witnessing a drill and no blood were being shed. This wonderful coolness is due in part to his absolute contempt of personal danger and in part to his long experience in warfare, for he is a veteran of several wars. He is a Kagoshima samurai, which is the same thing as saying that he is a born fighter, for the samurai were trained to deeds of daring like the European knights of the middle ages.

General Kuroki is a fine example of the teachings of the samurai. He commanded the right column of the Japanese army that advanced on Weihaiwei in the war against China ten years ago. He is now fifty-nine years of age, but is still in vigorous health. He is a little under the average Japanese height and is bronzed to almost a mahogany hue.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years; tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worst. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like. Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

WILL PAY THE PENALTY.

Judge Parker Cannot Escape From His Bryanized Record.

No one will ever hear from the Times a word of excuse or palliation of Judge Parker's two votes for W. J. Bryan. Any reasoning by which a defense of his going with his party in 1896 and 1900 might be attempted would pretty certainly be false and dangerous. From the point of view of sound money Democrats Judge Parker was guilty either of a fault in political morals or of a serious error in judgment in the Bryan campaigns. Whichever it was he will in some measure suffer the penalty this year, since it cannot be doubted that his support of Bryan will alienate some Democratic support from him.—New York Times, July 21.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50c.

The Real Unicorn.

Early in the last century the unicorn of ancient myth came within the realm of scientific knowledge in the form of the white rhinoceros, the largest, next to the elephant, of modern quadrupeds. For long years the unicorn's only known habitat was on a coat of arms. Ancient writers who had told of it were discredited until a one horned rhinoceros, found by Marco Polo in Sumatra, received this name. And early in the last century Burchell also discovered in South Africa, between the Orange and Zambezi rivers, the huge white pachyderm. It had, in truth, two horns, but one was so small as to be scarcely perceptible, while the other, tufted with bristles at the base, was so many as four feet long, curving and tapering to a hard, sharp point.

It Is Good to Laugh.

Health, an English publication, says: "It is good to laugh. There is probably not the remotest corner or little inlet of the minute blood vessels of the body that does not feel some wavelet from the great convulsion produced by hearty laughter shaking the central man. The blood moves more rapidly. Probably its chemical, electric or vital condition is distinctly modified. It conveys a different impression to all the organs of the body as it visits them on that particular mystic journey when the man is laughing from what it does at other times. The time may come when physicians shall prescribe to a torpid patient so many peals of laughter to be undergone at such and such a time."

De Witt's Is the Name.

When you go to buy Witch Hazel Salve look for the name De Witt on every box. The pure, unadulterated Witch Hazel is used in making De-Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, which is the best salve in the world for cuts, burns, bruises, boils, eczema and piles. The popularity of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, due to its many cures, has caused numerous worthless counterfeits to be placed on the market. The genuine bears the name E. C. De Witt & Co., Chicago. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

Curious Advertisements.

Some of the Japanese tradesmen in the smaller towns of Nippon have a curious way of advertising their business. On their right forearms they tattoo figures—the shoemaker a shoe, the woodcutter an ax, the butcher a cleaver. Underneath these emblems are such inscriptions as "I do my work modestly and cheaply," and "I am as good at my trade as most of my fellows." When they are looking for work they bare their arms and walk about the streets.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and to-day weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

I find nothing better for liver derangement and constipation than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.—L. F. ANDREWS, Des Moines, Iowa. For Sale by H. C. Geisler.

Quaint Cures of Old.

For epilepsy wear a ring made from a coffin ring and take seven drops of blood from the tail of a cat. These remedies are equally efficacious either separately or in conjunction. For toothache carry in the pocket the tooth of a soldier killed in battle or eat mouse nibbled bread or trim your nails on a Friday. To cure warts, rub a potato and give the potato to a pig, or rub them with a piece of chalk, then put it in a little bag and throw it across cross roads. Holding the affected finger in the ear of a cat for half an hour was reckoned an excellent remedy for a felon.

French and English.

The celebrated Mrs. Ticknesse undertook to construct a letter every word of which should be French, yet no Frenchman should be able to read it, while an illiterate Englishman should decipher it with ease, and wrote the following:

"Pre, dire sistre, comme & se us, & passe the de here if yeux canne, & chat tu mi dame; dine here, & yeux mai go to the faire if yeux plaise; yeux mai have fiche, mutin, porc, buter, foule, hair, fruit, pigeon, olives, sallette for ure dinner, & excellent te, cafe, port vin, & liqueurs; & tel ure bette & poli tu comme; Ile go tu the faire & visite the baron. Reflected Light.

A dead white surface has decided advantages for reflecting light over a looking glass or a bright surface. Good white blotting paper reflects back 82 per cent of the light cast upon it. Many persons are under the impression that a looking glass must be a better reflector than paper or whitewashed surface because with looking glass a strong shadow can be cast, while from a dead surface no heavy shadow is obtained. The reason is not so much that the reflected light is less from the dead surface, but that the reflection is concentrated in the case of the looking glass. With paper or whitewash it proceeds from a vast number of points.—New York News.

The Ruby as a Fruit.

The people of Burma believe that the ruby is a kind of fruit which will ripen if you give it time. They say that most rubies do not ripen simply because they are not allowed to do so. If you want to "ripen" the ruby in your ring, according to the Burmese idea, you must take your ring and lay it in the sun for one month without disturbing it at all, and at the end of that time it will be "ripe" and good to eat.

Taken With Cramps.

William Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines—Elkader (Iowa) Argus.

This Cat Bathes.

Time was when I felt that the cat was an animal which civilization had no power to corrupt. The dog, I knew, does his best to be human, but the cat has always seemed to me above any such shallow pretense. I thought I could count on the cat, but now I find that even the cat can be perverted and humanized. I went to see a friend of mine the other day who has recently adopted a plain, valueless alley cat of no particular breed. She told me she was about to give the animal its daily bath.

I felt sorry for the creature, because I had seen cats bathed before. The bathtub was half full of warm water. The cat was lifted in its mistress' arms. The intelligent animal gave a mew of delight and hopped down into the water. It swam two or three times around the tub with every indication of enjoyment, and then looked up and mewed to be taken out. The perverted creature seemed to enjoy even the rubbing which followed. After that, I have no faith in anything. I have no doubt that hens enjoy a daily plunge, and as for the gentleman who has always been represented as disliking holy water, I haven't the slightest doubt in the world that he drinks it iced three times a day.—Washington Post.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

How the Mussel Travels.

Of all the absurd forms of locomotion practiced by the creatures of the deep the most preposterous is that of the mussel. Squids will startle you by darting backward, crabs bustle off sideways at a lively gait, but nothing save the dull brain of "some kind of clam critter," pondering over the transportation problem in those remote epochs when time was no object, could have evolved so slow and cumbersome a method.

You may often see mussels climb up the pile of a wharf toward the high water mark. Notice the black threads attached to the clam. They do the business. The mussel shoots out a spray of gelatinous stuff in the direction he wants to go and this hardens into those black threads. He lets go the old ones and climbs up by the new. You can trace his progress up the pile by the bunches of old threads, which he leaves behind at intervals. It has never been figured out whether he could go a mile in less than a year, but it would be safe to back the mussel in the animals' "slow race."—Country Life In America.

Merry Divorce.

Recently a worthy couple of Zurich, who had been married for several years, decided to get a divorce, and no sooner had the court annulled their marriage than they proceeded to show their friends how rejoiced they were at the news. The two principals went arm in arm to a leading hotel, where they ordered a supper for several guests, and a few hours later a merry party assembled there and did not break up until after midnight.

Those present say that the gentleman who had just been freed from his wife and who, by the way, paid for the supper was wonderfully gallant to her during the entire evening, paying her more attention than any other woman, and that she, too, seemed just as happy as though she had just been married.

DISEASED KIDNEYS MADE WELL AGAIN.

Mr. Tompkins Troubled for Years, but Cal-cura Solvent Cured Him.

From one of the pleasant villages in the Catskill Mountains comes a letter from Nathaniel Tompkins, Windham Centre, N. Y. He says: "To-day you can ask what has made me feel ten years younger and I will tell you. It was the new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, discovered by the well-known Dr. David Kennedy. For years I was troubled with my kidneys, but I am all right now."

Dr. Kennedy said he regarded his new medicine as the culminating achievement of his life, and he was right, for Cal-cura Solvent cures where all else fails. It enriches the blood, aids digestion, regulates the bowels and sets the liver at work. It is mild, but thorough. Its effects are lasting. All druggists, $1.00.

..ON IN TWO ACTIONS

Kuroki Defeats Russian East Flank at Liao Yang.

ATTACK MADE AT TWO POINTS.

Action Began at Dawn Sunday and Was Renewed Monday Morning. Japanese Dislodged the Enemy From Strong Positions — Kuroki Reports Capture of Some Field Guns.

Tokio, Aug. 3.—General Kuroki has administered a severe defeat to the Russian forces which defended the Russian east flank at Liao Yang, winning separate actions at Yushulikzu and Yangse pass. These two places are 26 miles apart, but the two actions were fought at the same time. The Russians held strong positions. The thermometer registered over 110 degrees Fahrenheit and the soldiers suffered cruelly from heat exhaustion.

At Yushulikzu the Russians had two divisions of infantry and some artillery, and they resisted the Japanese assaults vigorously.

Both attacks were begun at dawn Sunday, July 31. At Yushulikzu the Japanese carried the Russian right and left wings, but on account of the strength of the main Russian position they were unable to press the attack. The two armies rested Sunday night facing each other.

At dawn on Monday the Japanese resumed the attack and by noon they had dislodged the enemy and driven him four miles to Laoholing.

At Yangse pass also the Japanese were successful.

The artillery opened on the enemy and the infantry moved forward from Makumeza. The attack on this place was made at 1 o'clock on Sunday and by nightfall the Japanese were in possession of a majority of the Russian positions, although the enemy had resisted with determination.

The Japanese force passed the night in battle formation and another assault was made on Monday at dawn. By 8 o'clock Monday morning Yangse pass and the surrounding heights had been captured.

General Kuroki explains the slowness of these actions by saying that the difficult topography of the battlefields made it impossible to secure good artillery positions, and that the great heat fatigued his troops.

The Russian force at Yangse pass was estimated at two and one-half divisions and four batteries of artillery. The enemy retreated toward Tanghoyen.

General Kuroki reports the capture of some field guns but the number is not given. The Japanese casualties are being investigated.

CAPTURED SHANTAIKOW.

Japanese Have Taken One of the Important Defenses of Port Arthur.

Tokio, Aug. 3.—It is reported here that after three days of desperate fighting the Japanese have captured Shantaikow, one of the important defenses of Port Arthur.

GENERAL COUNT KELLER.
[Killed by Japanese Shell at Yanza Pass.]

In the Japanese-Chinese war when the Japanese besieged Port Arthur, Shwangtaikow, probably identical with the Shantaikow referred to in the above dispatch from Tokio, was used by the Japanese as the mustering place of the various battalions of the First division, who gathered together on the south side of Shantaikow, or Taikow mountain, situated north of Port Arthur, previous to the assault on the fortress.

Shantaikow is situated on the railroad leading from Port Arthur to Kinchou and is between Ingentzi bay and Victoria bay, but closer to the former than the latter. Roughly speaking Shantaikow is about 10 miles from the actual fortress of Port Arthur. It is a position of great natural strength, commanding a broad plain leading to Wuchiatun, another strong position on hills about four miles from the fortress.

Doings of Vladivostok Fleet.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—In a lengthy telegram to the emperor Vice Admiral Skrydloff relates the doings of the Vladivostok squadron under Rear Admiral Jessen.

With the cruisers Rossia, Gromboi and Rurik, Admiral Jessen left Vladivostok July 20. After sinking a small Japanese vessel the cruisers held up the British steamer Camara, but let her go.

A Japanese coasting steamer was next met but "as most of her 50 passengers were women we determined to release her."

Two Japanese schooners were sunk

Then Admiral Jessen fell in in quick succesion with the British steamers Arabia and Knight Commander. "The Knight Commander only stopped after the fourth shot," the admiral reports "Her cargo being railroad material, undoubtedly contraband for the belligerent party, and not being able to bring her to the nearest Russian port owing to her not having enough coal without manifest danger to the squadron, we sank the Knight Commander after taking off all her crew and removing her papers."

Two more Japanese schooners laden with salt were then sunk.

The steamer Schinau, from Australia for Yokohama, was inspected and released.

July 24 the Thea (a German vessel of 934 tons register) "with a full cargo of fish from America to Yokohama, was stopped. She was regarded as a legal prize and her crew was taken off and the vessel sunk owing to the impossibility of bringing her to a Russian port."

On July 30 near the northern coast a Japanese third-class cruiser and seven torpedo boats taking the same course as the Russians were sighted, while on the western coast near the Tsugaru straits a coast defense battleship hove in sight. "All these ships," Admiral Jessen says, "kept far astern of our cruisers and after two hours they turned back. The Russian squadron suffered no loss in men and no damage and there was no loss of life on board the vessels sunk or taken."

Russian Official Report.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3. — The emperor has received the following dispatch from General Kuropatkin dated Aug. 1:

"According to the reports of the officer commanding the eastern portion of our army his troops, after abandoning advanced positions in the Yangse pass, retired in the direction of Liandianslan towards Saimatsze and Liao Yang.

"Yesterday our troops after a stubborn fight, retired from their advanced posts to their principal position, but although our troops held their advanced positions they sustained heavy losses. I hope that in their main positions they will maintain a successful struggle, even against the numerically superior enemy.

"According to reports received during the last few days General Kuroki has effected a concentration of his forces in order to strike in the direction of Saimatsze and Liao Yang.

"All the Japanese troops which were posted in the direction of Bensikhon and near Sassyr, seemed to be intended to operate on the right bank of the Taitse river.

"Today the enemy is acting undecidedly on the southern front, but a reconnaissance has ascertained the beginning of a turning movement of the left wing of our troops posted at Haicheng by at least three Japanese divisions.

"Our eastern detachment was engaged until noon today in the direction of Samaitsze and Liao Yang. It was seen that the enemy was advancing, apparently in small bodies, against the right flank of our rearguard."

Decisive Struggle Aug. 2.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—The Japanese and Russian reports seem to agree on the main points of the military developments up to Aug. 1, but both stop short at the interesting point, namely, regarding what happened on Aug. 2, when it is possible that a decisive struggle was going on east and south of Liao Yang.

It is evident that the Russians abandoned Yangze pass, falling back on Liandiansian, a strong defensive position in the hills 24 miles southeast of Liao Yang.

STRIKE ORDER DELAYED.

Miners' Executive Board Adjourned Subject to Call of Chair.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 3. — When the meeting of the united miners' executive board of District No. 1 adjourned, District President Nicholls gave out a statement that he had approved of the position taken by the miners' representatives on the board of conciliation. The statement continues:

"The instructions of the Pittston convention wil be complied with. The board adjourned subject to the call of the chair in order to allow the officers to investigate and report back the names of such companies and collieries at which collections for check weighmen and check docking bosses are not being made in accordance with Umpire Wright's decision."

There is much speculation as to the purpose of the board in delaying calling of strikes.

Butchers' Sympathetic Strike.

St Louis, Aug. 3.—Members of the meat drivers' union of East St. Louis stopped work in sympathy with the butchers and meat cutters who struck some time ago. Managers of the packing houses say that the strike of the teamsters will inconvenience them but not affect the outcome of the strike. They say that the butchers of East St. Louis have consented to go to the packing houses for their supplies of meat.

Patrick Moran, business agent of the packing trades council, said that there would be an appeal from the decision of Judge Holder of Belleville, Ills., denying the application for dissolution of the injunction against the strikers.

MONSTER LOCOMOTIVE

L. H. Schenck Contributes an Interesting Article on Modern Locomotive Building.

EDITOR TIMES: Your article in the Times of July 13, entitled, "A monster locomotive," has attracted my attention, and thinking the readers of your paper may be interested in a wider view of modern locomotive engineering, I beg to submit the following description of some of the later types:

The "monster" referred to is a monster indeed, for the weight quoted of 334,500 pounds is for the engine alone, the tender having been weighed separately. The next largest engine built at Schenectady was for the Atchinson, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad and weighed 250,000 pounds, exclusive of the tender.

This large engine, built for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, is of a type known in Germany and Switzerland as the "Mallett" compound, but it is the first of its class to be built in America, and is, by far, heavier than any foreign locomotive.

It is, in reality, two engines under one boiler, with its cylinders, wheels and rods complete. The high-pressure cylinders are located about midway of the boiler and the low-pressure at the front end at the usual position. The steam valves are operated by what is known as the "Walschaert" valve gear, which is placed outside the wheels, there being no room inside for the usual "Stevenson link." The frames are jointed in front of the low-pressure cylinder to facilitate the rounding of sharp curves.

The steam passes from the dome at the top of the boiler through two eight inch pipes which encircle the waist of the boiler, to the high pressure steam-chest. After passing through this cylinder it exhausts into a 12-inch receiver-pipe which lays between the frames and extends from the high to the low-pressure cylinder. After passing through this cylinder it exhausts up the smoke stack at about 30 pounds pressure per square inch.

The weight of the engine is evenly distributed over six pairs of driving wheels, thereby using its total weight for active effort. It is capable of pulling 100 loaded coal cars, each weighing 120,000 pounds, over a level track at 10 miles per hour, and when tested on the New York Central tracks near Schenectady it proved to be slightly over its rated capacity. It is a very radical departure from the general lines of modern locomotives, but has proved to be a very successful experiment. It is to be used on the mountain grades of the B. & O. near Cumberland, Md., and is now on exhibition at St. Louis. A few figures will be of interest:

Diameter of boiler at front end, inside, 84 inches.

Thickness of boiler shell, 1 inch.

Boiler pressure, 235 per square inch.

Grate area, 72 square feet.

Cylinders, high pressure 20 inch; low pressure, 32 inch.

Stroke of piston, 32 inch.

Wheel diameter, 56 inches.

Height, 15 feet.

Length, 79 feet 6½ inches.

Weight of engine, 334,500 pounds.

Weight of tender, 143,000 pounds.

Total weight of engine and tender, 477,500 pounds.

Tender capacity: Coal, 13 tons; water, 7,000 gallons.

Another very radical engine was built and delivered to the New York Central Railroad during the month of May, 1904. This is a fast passenger engine for very heavy trains, and is known as engine No. 3000, or in engineering circles, as Cole's balanced compound.

A few years ago the railroads of France and Germany were drawing faster and heavier trains than any road in the United States, but America has advanced so rapidly that today we are, on many roads, drawing heavier and faster trains than in any foreign country. The new balanced compound is a means of even increasing the speed of such trains as the heavy Lake Shore Limited, the Twentieth Century Limited or the Northern New York Express, each weighing over 500 tons, exclusive of the engine.

This machine is in appearance very similar to the "Empire State Express," a casual observer having hard work to

MARRIED.

Miss Ida Stacy of Pulaski and Mr. William Scoville of this city were united in marriage, July 28, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stacy, in Pulaski.

Mr. William C. Morrison and Miss Lillian E. Walters of this city were united in marriage on Thursday evening by the Rev. A H. Grant, at the Episcopal church parsonage.

On Sunday afternoon, Aug. 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ryder on Lyon street, by the Rev. S. D. Robinson of the State Street M. E. Church, Mr. Reuben E. Tillapaugh was united in marriage to Miss M. H. Belonge, both residents of Syracuse.

DIED.

Mabel H., aged 1 year and 2 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Anson, died at their residence, No. 211 oneida street, on Monday. Funeral services were held this Wednesday afternoon. Burial in Mount Adnah Cemetery.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

Law Regarding Qualifications Is Explicit and Should Be Obeyed.

Extreme care should be exercised in the selection of election officials. The law is very explicit in regard to the matter and should be obeyed to the letter.

The following is a list which has been placed on file with Mayor Foster and which we published about five weeks ago:

First Ward.

Inspectors—J. D. McIntyre and F. A. Lamson.

Ballot clerk—James Stevens.

Poll clerk—Ward Eastman.

Second Ward.

Inspectors—William Thompson and George Cook.

Ballot clerk—Edward Van Amburg.

Poll clerk—Frank Betts.

Third Ward.

Inspectors—F. K. Jennings and H. L. Gilman.

Ballot clerk—A. M. Hurd.

Poll clerk—Chauncey Wilson.

Fourth Ward.

Inspectors—C. M. Allen and F. P. Keeler.

Poll clerk—C. E. Foster.

Ballot clerk—Harry Youmans.

Fifth Ward.

Inspectors—F. M. Darrow and C. B. Gilbert.

Poll clerk—N. R. Cole.

Ballot clerk—George F. Fuller.

Sixth Ward.

Inspectors—S. F. Hill and Charles Johnson.

Poll clerk—Guy A. Waugh.

Ballot clerk—Benjamin Ingersoll.

It will be noticed that the name of a post office employe appears among the inspectors for the First Ward. This seems to be a violation of section 11 of the Election Law, which states in substance:

"No person shall be appointed an inspector of election, poll or ballot clerk who is not a resident of the election district in which he is to serve. He must be of good character, able to write legibly and who does not possess a general knowledge of the duties of the office. * * * Who holds any public office, except notary public or commissioner of deeds, town or village assessor, justice of the peace, village trustee, water commissioner, officers of a school district, overseer of highway, whether elected or appointed, or who is employed in any public office or by any public officer whose services are paid for out of the public money, other than is excepted herein. * * *"

Mr. Warren M. Carrier, miscellaneous clerk at the County Clerk's office, and who has charge of the election ballots and the books connected with the election, states that an examination to determine the character and qualifications of the appointees is necessary.

The election this Fall is too important to permit any risk, and the city officials should see to it that nothing is done which might in any way nullify a vote.

OSWEGO COUNTY'S CLAIM.

Court of Claims Asked to Award This County $63,141,61.

Attorney S. B. Mead has been engaged in presenting before the Court of Claims, which recently convened at Saratoga Springs, Oswego county's claim for $63,141.61 against the State of New York. The matter will come up for final adjudication during the September term.

It appears that the laws of 1869 gave the several towns in the Counties the power to issue bonds to aid in the construction of the railroads which passed through the towns, and the State taxes which were paid by the railroads to the County Treasurer, to be used by the County Treasurer as a sinking fund to pay on the bonds issued. Instead of so doing the County Treasurer paid the taxes thus collected to the State. In 1899 the Legislature passed a law permitting the counties to put in a claim against the State for the taxes which by right should have been theirs but which had been appropriated to the use of the State.

The town of Volney issued bonds to the amount of $300,000 to aid in the construction of the New York & Oswego Midland, now the N. Y. O. W. The amount of taxes to which the town of Volney is entitled is over $7,000.

COUNTY FAIR CIRCUIT.

$4,100 Will Be Distributed in Purses to the Winners.

The program for the Central New York County Fair Circuit has been issued. This embraces Fulton, Sept. 14, 15 and 16, H. L. Platt, secretary, Phoenix, Sept. 21, 22 and 23, C. K. Williams, secretary, and Waterloo, Sept. 27 and 29, Edward Nugent, secretary. The purses aggregate, $4,100.

The conditions are:

National Association Rules (of which all societies are members) to govern, with exceptions.

Mile heats, best three in five.

Entrance fee: Five per cent., with additional five per cent. from winners. Entrance fee must accompany the entry.

Horses distancing the field or any part thereof will receive but one premium.

Purses divided fifty, twenty-five, fifteen and ten per cent.

Four entries at least required to start.

Trotters allowed two seconds in all races.

Hopples allowed.

If, for any reason, the association shall be unable to start one or more of its races on or before 3 p. m. of the last day of the fair as advertised, such race or races shall be declared off and entrance money refunded.

Right reserved to change order of program.

OUR LATEST OFFER.

Free Piping

TO BOTH

Gas Ranges and Gas Plates.

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS A GAS RANGE. All Piping Free.

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS A GAS PLATE All Piping Free.

TIME HAS BEEN EXTENDED.

An Important Announcement.

READ CAREFULLY. SEE US PROMPTLY.

After having gone carefully over the city, making from house to house calls in the interest of gas, the following conclusions have been arrived at:

1st—That irrespective of the fact that there are hundreds of gas ranges in Fulton, there is still a large number of people who wish to use gas for cooking and for light.

2d—That many will find it impossible to make arrangements to buy ranges before August 15.

3d—That in many instances small or crowded kitchens have rendered the use of anything as large as a gas range inconvenient or impossible.

4th—That owing to the fact that free piping did not go with gas-plates, people so situated had to give up the idea of using gas for cooking and baking.

5th—That there is a desire on the part of many to use gas-plates with portable ovens.

6th—That were the free-piping offer extended, and more favorable opportunity for the use of gas-plates given, many would appreciate the fact and would without delay arrange to use gas.

Being convinced that the above represents actual conditions, we consider it but fair to extend the time during which people may take advantage of our offer of free piping and ranges at cost, and are therefore very pleased to announce the fact that an extension has been granted.

So strong is our desire to suit the convenience and circumstances of every would-[illegible] we have, regardless of the great cost it means for us, decided [illegible] in the past—something of a very unusual character—we have decided to [illegible] burner gas-plates where ovens of an approved size accompany them—the cost of [illegible] gas-plate and oven being $5.50. In doing this we feel that we will be doing more than has at any time been expected, but we believe in a broad, liberal policy, and are doing our best to serve the public in a manner that will be appreciated.

It gives us pleasure to announce that we have secured the services of Mr. Henry B. Richman of Detroit, Mich., a gentleman of wide experience and thorough knowledge of the gas-range and gas-lighting business. Mr. Richman will call on residents of the east side and impart such information as prospective customers may desire. Should you not see him soon, please call at our office.

INFORMATION FOR EXHIBITORS.

Announcements Relative to Entries for State Fair.

The New York State Fair, to be held at Syracuse Sept. 5-10, will be all that its name implies, a gathering of the State's best products, and will beyond question surpass all previous exhibitions held within the State. Parties intending to make exhibits will be interested in the following announcements:

Entries must be made by letter addressed to the Secretary, New York State Fair, Albany, N. Y., or personally at Agricultural Hall, at Albany N. Y.

Books of entry not previously closed will positively close as follows: Implements and machines, on Monday, September 5, 9 a. m.; dairy, domestics, farm produce, flowers and fruits, on Monday, August 29.

All exhibits must be on the grounds and in place by 9 a. m. on Monday, September 5, with entry card attached. No exhibits will be removed from the grounds until Saturday, September 10, at 2 p. m.

All exhibitors will be charged an entrance fee equal to 10 per cent of the first premium on each article competed for, but in no case shall the entrance fee amount to less than $2. Exceptions are made, however, in the departments of implements and machinery and dairy products, the 10 per cent being omitted. An entrance fee of $2, or $2 for each joint owner is charged in the former and $1, or $2 with an exhibitor's ticket, in the latter.

No charge will be made for stalls or pens for animals actually entered and on which the entry fee has been paid. Additional stalls and pens will be at the rate of $2 each. Hay, straw and grain will be furnished at the market price.

New York Central's Fleet on Lakes.

The Western Transit Company, which is the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad's freight connection on the Great Lakes, has recently put into commission their new steamer Duluth, which is the largest and most modern package freight vessel on the Great Lakes. She is 401 feet long, 50 feet beam and 30 feet depth, with a carrying capacity of 6,000 tons.

This makes seven modern steel steamers in the Western Transit Company's fleet, six of which have been added since 1898, it being the company's policy to add a new steamer each year. In addition to these steel steamers, the company has nine iron and wooden steamers, which, while not quite so modern as the steel boats, are still admirably adapted for lake freight transportation. This fleet of sixteen steamers enables the New York Central to give a daily freight service from Buffalo to Milwaukee, Chicago, Duluth and Portage Lake.—N. Y. Evening Mail, July 27, 1904.

Camera Club.

A Camera Club was recently organized in this city by devotees of the fascinating pastime, and at a meeting held last week the following officers were selected: President, Mr. J. J. Morrill; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. R B. Hubbard. The charter members of the club are Mrs. F. M. Darrow, Mrs. W. H. Patterson, Mrs. R. B. Hubbard, and Messrs. J. J. Morrill F. M. Darrow, J H. Laugdon, E. A. Putnam and W. H. Patterson. Fulton and surrounding country will furnish many beautiful views for the cameras to render transferable.

CIRCUS EXCURSION.

Unusual Opportunity for our Citizens to see Forepaugh and Sells' Great Show.

From present indications this city and community will be practically depopulated on Wednesday, Aug. 24, the date when the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' enormous shows united, will exhibit at Oswego. Scores of local people have expressed their intention of grasping this unusual opportunity to see the greatest of all American circuses, and they will see many acts never before presented. Just a partial list includes Porthos, who on his bicycle leaps a chasm 50 feet wide; Diavolo, who loops the loop on a bicycle; Cyclone, ascending perpendicularly the "Devil's Chimney;" the Le Cussons, the famous French family of wonderful equestrians; the Hungarian Magyars in singular emotional dances and wildly strenuous acrobatic performances; the renowned Aurora Zouaves, most marvelously drilled soldiers in the world. Then there are over a half hundred celebrated clowns, three great herds of trained elephants, the greatest number of polar bears ever seen in one collection, fourteen full-grown Arctic beauties. All lines of travel will offer specially low rates, and the day will prove the biggest holiday of the year. The agent of these lines of travel will furnish all necessary information as to time of trains and rates of fare. There is one thing certain, and that is, that these excursion arrangements will enable people who live here to see identically the the same show as seen by those who live in the metropolitan cities.

War Situation in the Far East.

The Japanese forces have captured Wolf Hill, which is six miles from Port Arthur, and they are renewing the attack on the remaining outer positions. The present indications are that the Russians will not be able much longer to hold out against the assaults and that the fortress will be taken. General Stoessel, the Russian commander at Port Arthur, estimates that the Japanese have a force of at least 70,000 men engaged in the assault.

PATRIOTIC UTTERANCES.

Excerpts from President Roosevelt's Speech of Acceptance and Speaker Cannon's Notification Address.

Three years ago I became President because of the death of my lamented predecessor. I then stated that it was my purpose to carry out his principles and policies for the honor and interest of the country. To the best of my ability I have kept the promise thus made. If next November my countrymen confirm at the polls the action of the convention you represent, I shall, under Providence, continue to work with an eye single to the welfare of all our people.—From President Roosevelt's speech accepting nomination.

The Republican party, under your leadership, keeps its record from the begining under Lincoln of doing things—the right thing at the right time and in the right way, notwithstanding the opposition of those who oppose the right policies from the selfish or partisan standpoint. They dare not tell the truth about your official action or the record of the party and then condemn it—From Speaker Cannon's notification address.

We who have been intrusted with power as public servants during the past seven years of administration and legislation now come before the people content to be judged by our record of achievement. In the years that have gone by we have made the deed square with the word; and if we are continued in power we shall unswervingly follow out the great lines of public policy which the Republican party has already laid down; a public policy to which we are giving and shall give, a united and therefore an efficient support.—From President Roosevelt's speech accepting nomination.

The Republican party for you and under your leadership appeals to the great body of the people who live in the sweat of their faces, make the civilization, control the republic, fight its battles and determine its policies, for approval and continuance in power.—From Speaker Cannon's notification address.

We earnestly desire friendship with all the nations of the new and old worlds, and we endeavor to place our relations with them upon a basis of reciprocal advantage instead of hostility. We hold that the prosperity of each nation is an aid and not a hindrance to the prosperity of other nations. We seek international amity for the same reasons that make us believe in peace within our own borders; and we seek this peace not because we are afraid and unready, but because we think that peace is right as well as advantageous.—From President Roosevelt's speech accepting nomination.

Under the lead of the Republican party for over forty years the United States from being a third-class power among the nations, has become in every respect first. We have sometimes made mistakes from a false sense of security or from a desire to change policies instead of letting well enough alone, merely to see what would happen, but we have always paid the penalty of unwise action at the ballot box and endured the suffering until under the law through the ballot box, we have returned to correct policies.—From Speaker Cannon's notification address.

In the fiscal year that has just closed the excess of income over the ordinary expenditures was nine millions of dollars. This does not take account of the fifty millions expended out of the accumulated surplus for the purchase of the Isthmian Canal. It is an extraordinary proof of the sound financial condition of the nation that instead of following the usual course in such matters and throwing the burden upon posterity by an issue of bonds, we were able to make the payment outright and yet after it to have in the Treasury a surplus of one hundred and sixty-one millions. Moreover, we were able to pay this fifty millions of dollars out of hand without causing the slightest disturbance to business conditions.—From President Roosevelt's speech accepting nomination.

The Republican party stands for protection. It stands for the gold standard and our currency system. All these dwell in legislation enacted under the lead of the Republican party and against the most determined opposition of the Democratic party, including its leader and candidate. These being our policies, and having been most useful to the country, we have confidence in and love them. If it be necessary from time to time that they should be strengthened here and controlled there, the Republican party stands ready, with loving competent hands, to apply the proper remedy. I say "remedy." Being our policies, we will not willingly subject them to their enemies for slow starvation on the one hand or to sudden destruction on the other. —From Speaker Cannon's notification speech.

Daughters of the American Revolution.

The Daughters of the American Revolution are to take an important part at the exercises of the sixth annual meeting of the New York State Historical Association, to be held at Lake George, August 16 and 17. The Daughters will conduct the last of the four sessions arranged by the association. Mrs. Charles A. Terry, State Regent, will give the principal address of the afternoon. Ten-minute addresses will be given by the Regents of the D. A. R. Chapters in the Lake George district.

Fortunate Father and Son.

I am as certain as I now live, says Mr. C. E. Bartholomew, Kalkaska, Mich., that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. World's Fair Special.

Wednesday, September 21, 1904, the New York, Ontario & Western Railway Company will run a special train of Pullman sleepers and reclining chair cars (seats free and reserved for those first applying) to St. Louis, Mo. Rates never lower. Wait for it, and ask nearest agent for detailed information, or address J. C. Anderson, General Passenger Agent, 56 Beaver street, New York City.

MONSTER LOCOMOTIVE

L. H. Schenck Contributes an Interesting Article on Modern Locomotive Building.

detect the difference, but in construction and working capacity it is quite different.

In addition to the two cylinders outside the frames there are two smaller cylinders inside, connected with the larger ones by a piston valve. The connecting rods from the low pressure cylinders, which are outside of the frames are fastened to the second pair of driving wheels, while the rods from the high pressure cylinders inside the frames, are fastened to the first pair of driving wheels by means of a cranked axle. The reciprocating parts are so designed that the weight and inertia of one part is neutralized by the weight and inertia of a second part thus permitting the wheel to roll along the track with a more nearly uniform pressure on the rail.

It is this valuable construction which permits the engine to travel at a greater rate of speed without injury to the track or liability to wreck a bridge. This engine although new when tested, and not in first-class condition, has a remarkable record. It was tested on the "Fast Mail," and between Utica and Syracuse attained a maximum speed of 84 miles per hour, with a train of eleven Pullman cars, each weighing 120,000 pounds or a total of 1,320,000 pounds behind the tender. At 78.8 miles per hour it developed its maximum horsepower which was not far from 1,988, this being nearly 400 horse-power greater than any other engine on the New York Central. It also is at the World's Fair.

It's principal dimensions are as follows:

Diameter of boiler at front end, 75½ inches.

Thickness of boiler plate, 13-16 inch.

Boiler pressure, 220 pounds.

Grate area, 50.3 square feet.

Cylinders, high-pressure, 15½ pounds; low-pressure, 26 pounds.

Stroke of piston, 26 inches.

Wheel diameter, 79 inches.

Height, 14 feet, 8 3-16 inches.

Length, 64 feet (approx.)

Weight of water in boiler, 18,000 pounds.

Weight of engine (no tender) 201,000 pounds.

Weight of tender, 120,600 pounds.

Total weight of engine and tender, 321,600 pounds.

Tender capacity: Coal, 10 tons; water, 6,000 gallons.

There is now in process of design at Schenectady a locomotive which is almost a duplicate of the one above described, its difference being that there is to be only one cylinder between the frames and this is to be a low-pressure, while the two outside the frames are to be high-pressure. The object in this is not only to obtain the balancing effect but by arranging the cranks all on one axle at 1200 apart to produce a more uniform rotative crank effort.

In order to show the immensity of these engines a comparison with the general dimensions of the engines which now pull the New York Central trains through Fulton will be of interest. The greatest difference being in the total weight of engine and capacity of the tender.

Diameter of boiler at front end, 53 inches.

Thickness of boiler plate ½ inch.

Boiler pressure (about), 165 pounds.

Grate area, 30 square feet.

Cylinders, 18 inches.

Stroke of piston, 24 inches.

Wheel diameter, 64 inches.

Height, 13 feet 1½ inches.

Length, 52 feet (approx)

Weight of water in boiler, 1,100 pounds.

Weight of engine, 102,000 pounds.

Weight of tender, 83,000 pounds.

Total weight of engine and tender, 185,000 pounds.

Tender capacity: Coal, 6 tons; Water, 3,500 gallons.

In the design of the Cole compound a notable thing occurred which will show the accuracy of figures in combination with geometry and experience. The "cranked axle" mentioned above is a very crooked and irregular piece of steel, and in order to estimate the cost of its transportation, its weight had to be figured from a drawing. This was done last November and the drawing sent to the Krupp steel works at Essen, Germany, where the axle was to be made. The estimated weight was made by two men working jointly and they concluded it would weigh 3,223 pounds. About March 1st the axle appeared and was immediately put on the scales to satisfy curiosity, and was found to tip the scales at 3,226 pounds. At the time it was weighed the axle was heavily coated with an oily mixture to prevent it from rusting and of course the two estimators claimed the oil weighed exactly three pounds.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

FORMER Governor Frank S. Black of New York, who made the principal speech in nomination of Mr. Roosevelt at the recent Chicago convention, was the victim of a playful trick on the occasion of the notification ceremonies at Oyster Bay. William Barnes of Albany pinned a button on his coat just before the members of the committee left the special train. He wore it during all the exercises, and just before stepping on the special to return to New York Governor Odell walked up to him.

FRANK S. BLACK.

"Black, when did you desert?" he asked.

"Desert? I don't know what you are talking about," Mr. Black answered.

"Nothing, except that you have been wearing that Parker button during all the exercises," Governor Odell told him.

"That shows the confiding and trusting nature of us up state countrymen," Mr. Black answered. "When Barnes pinned that button on I naturally supposed it was the proper kind of a button."

If that favorite in the "younger set" at Washington, Miss Katherine Elkins, were a voter she would have a hard time trying to decide how to cast her ballot. Her father is United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins, the Republican leader in the state of West Virginia. Her grandfather is ex-Senator Henry G. Davis, the Democratic candidate for vice president. Owing to Mr. Elkins being prominent as a Republican and his wife being the daughter of a prominent Democrat, politics has always been a little confused in the Elkins family. Miss Elkins is very fond of her grandfather, and her emotions will doubtless be somewhat mixed whichever way the election goes the coming fall. This will apply to the Elkins boys, too, who in spite of their father's strong Republicanism would naturally like to see "grandpap," as they call him, honored. When General Harrison was running for the presidency and Mr. Elkins, who was then secretary of war, was aiding in the canvass, the boys astonished their father by marching past the Elkins home at the head of a juvenile torchlight procession, with banners and transparencies bearing the portrait of the opposition candidate. "Why, what's this?" exclaimed Senator Elkins in tones of surprise. "Don't you boys know what General Harrison looks like?" "That's not Harrison's picture," answered one of the youngsters. "This is the Grover Cleveland Junior Campaign club and that's the portrait of our peerless leader."

KATHERINE ELKINS.

"See here," roared the irate parent, "this will never do. Don't you know I'm a Republican?"

"You are, but we're not," chorused the boys. "We're Democrats, like grandpa. He gives us a dollar whenever we ask him and we're going in for a Democratic administration and good times."

The coroner of the borough of Richmond, New York city, had the novel experience the other day of issuing a warrant for the arrest of a man whose wealth is estimated at upward of $100,000,000. A lineman had been killed while stringing a wire, and the coroner's jury found that the electric shock which caused death was due to alleged defective insulation. Charges of negligence were in consequence brought against the lighting company and its president, who is the well known Standard Oil multimillionaire, Henry H. Rogers.

Mr. Rogers, who is one of the monarchs of the copper mining industry as well as one of the biggest men in the Standard Oil trust, takes a great deal of pleasure in using his money for the benefit of his native town of Fairhaven, Mass., which has received gifts from him aggregating in value several million dollars. These include a library, town hall, Masonic building, memorial church, and a fine high school building. Mr. Rogers was a tall, lanky youth when he attended the Fairhaven high school over fifty years ago, and one of his complaints was that the desks were so low he could not find a place for his legs under his seat. He declared if he ever had money enough he would give the town a school that would have desks to fit all sizes of scholars. The time came when he was able to keep his promise, and he gave the town a fine school building—in fact, two of them. In the high school he takes a special interest, and a few years ago, when the fiftieth anniversary of its establishment was observed, he gave a big dinner to all its living graduates and their wives and husbands. The party numbered about 500. During these same exercises there was a mock session of the school, and Mr. Rogers, who was determined to be a boy again, read an essay on "The Hen Roasted; or, Truth Fricasseed," which was brimming over with dry humor. The schoolmaster at this mock session asked the question, "What is a syndicate?" and Mr. Rogers' reply to the question was, "It is a handful of value dissolved in water."

H. H. ROGERS.

Senator John W. Daniel of Virginia, who was one of the leading advocates of the nomination of Judge Parker at the Democratic national convention and a member of the resolutions committee, and who is to make a stumping tour in behalf of the ticket during the coming canvass, is a statesman of the old school. The senator has only one leg, having lost the other at the battle of Manassas, fighting for the Confederacy. He is quite keen witted, but upon one occasion, it seems, his wits were not sharp enough. The senator is the author of a standard law book on negotiable instruments. In one of his law school lectures, explaining how he came to write the book, he enlightened and dumfounded his hearers.

SENATOR DANIEL.

He said he was in his office some years ago when a man came in and asked him if sight drafts carry three days of grace. He didn't know. None of the other lawyers knew, and it took a visit to a bank to find out. He then determined to write a comprehensive work on all negotiable instruments, and he did so.

As the senator was finishing, a young man in the class said, "Senator, do sight drafts carry three days of grace?"

Daniel hemmed and hawed, looked confused, and finally said, "Upon my soul, young man, I have forgotten."

Colonel John Hay, the brilliant secretary of state under both McKinley and Roosevelt, who is to receive from President Loubet of France the grand cross of the Legion of Honor, is a born diplomat. His tact served him in good stead several times during the discussion over the revolution in Panama and the establishment of the new isthmian republic. On one occasion when correspondents were plying him with questions on the situation he was asked: "Mr. Secretary, the presence of our vessels in that particular spot at the right moment, with numerous other coincidences, looks rather suspicious. Now, did these things happen by accident or by design? Was the United States forewarned?"

JOHN HAY.

There was a twinkle in the eye of the premier of two administrations. His manner bore a frankness out of keeping with the customary reserve of the strategist in affairs of state.

"The United States government," he answered, in a low voice, "was not forewarned, but it exercised an intelligent anticipation of probable events."

Some time ago Secretary Shaw appointed two widows to temporary clerkships in his department. The time allowed for temporary clerkships expired, but the secretary insisted on keeping the two widows on the payroll.

The civil service commission raged impotently at this decision. It quoted precedents to the secretary showing how it was against all kinds of statutes for him to keep the two women on the payroll and offered to certify other clerks for the places. But the secretary calmly refused to remove the women.

SECRETARY SHAW.

"They have four or five children each," he said to the commissioners, "and you can protest until you are black in the face—they will still hold on. These are the only cases in which I have violated those sacred rules of yours, but with these little clerkships those women can manage to support their children, and they will stay there as long as I am in office."

"But," said the civil service commissioners, "what are we to do about it? It is clearly a violation of the statute."

"Oh," replied the secretary, "make your protest to me in writing, and make it as strong as you can; then you will have done your duty and eased your consciences. And after that these poor women will continue to hold their jobs."

Reed Smoot, the Mormon senator, has a friend who is a vegetarian and who lectures Smoot for his meat eating habits on all occasions. He met Smoot the other day and began:

"You should not eat meat. Indeed, I go further and say you should not eat eggs."

REED SMOOT.

"Pshaw!" said Smoot. "You are getting foolish. What's the harm in eating eggs?"

"Why, man," exclaimed the vegetarian, "eggs hatch into meat and therefore are meat."

"Not the kind of eggs I eat," asserted Smoot.

"Why not?" asked the vegetarian.

"Because," said Smoot, as he moved away, "I eat them cooked, not raw."

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; or to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 9, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to sections one and seven of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of, the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to revoke such designation. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within said department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 15, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

GENERAL COUNT KELLER.

Famous Russian General Who Was Killed at Haicheng.

Lieutenant General Count Keller, the first army officer of note killed during the Russo-Japanese war, was one of General Kuropatkin's most trusted commanders. He was struck by a fragment of shell near Haicheng recently, while opposing the advance by the Japanese. At the opening of the war Lieutenant General Keller was in command of the Second Siberian army division. He was fifty-four years of age and a veteran of three campaigns of the Russo-Turkish war and had won distinction in many a hard fought battle.

THE LATE GENERAL KELLER.

In 1887 he commanded the imperial rifle regiment and later was director of the corps of imperial pages. He thus came in contact with the members of the imperial family, with whom he was a favorite. When General Sassulitch was relieved because he disobeyed orders at the Yalu river, Lieutenant General Keller was named as his successor. He was a strict disciplinarian, a strategist of merit and one of Kuropatkin's bravest fighting men.

Two Effects.

Mr. C.—What are you crying about, my dear? Mrs. C.—I have just been reading the old love letters you sent me before we were married. Mr. C.—That's funny. I was reading them myself the other day and they made me laugh.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

Farmers who are enjoying the conveniences and practical benefits of the free rural delivery mail service will hardly fail to make an application of it by reflecting upon the possibilities to the general government for doing something of immediate and practical usefulness to the individual citizen. Here we have a work going on daily that ten years ago was not even thought of. President Cleveland's postmaster general declared it to be impracticable and would hardly give it a trial even in the smallest way. But Republican desire to accommodate the public found a way where Democratic inertia had failed to try. The development proceeded, of course, experimentally and in the first two years only 200 routes had been put in operation. The number has been increased since 1899 until it is now over 25,000, and more than twelve million people now have their mail brought daily to their very doors, where, under the old practice, they had to go without it or drive to the postoffice to obtain it. Besides, the old star route mail carriers are required now to deliver letters and papers to people living on their routes if the people provide boxes to receive them. The consequence is a greater enjoyment of life by the people so advantaged, with an increasing popular intelligence and therefore a better citizenship. Franklin county is getting its full share of this service, and our local agricultural population knows how desirable it is.

The fact should not be forgotten when men come to deliberate this fall as to which party it is desirable shall be in power, having regard merely to their own personal welfare, that this service is wholly of Republican initiative and creation, against a Democratic administration's determination that it should not be undertaken; and that the course of the two parties in this matter is fairly illustrative of their respective underlying convictions and practices. Democracy inveighs against paternalism and insists that the government should do absolutely nothing for the individual that he can perform for himself. Republicanism aims not merely to conduct the large and impersonal affairs of government upon the highest plane of dignity and general usefulness, but to make the public service helpful in every possible way to every interest and every citizen.—Malone Palladium.

WHAT an unmitigated nuisance the Republican party has been to the Democracy for 42 years, but what a boon to the Nation in comparison with the eight years of Democratic rule during the past 50 years!

THE laboring man has not forgotten the taste of the penny soup with which he was forced to regale himself during the regime of President Cleveland. He has made his own soup under Republican government, and has also been able to afford roast for the next course. Does he want a change?

WITH a shortage abroad of possibly 150,000,000 bushels of wheat from last year's foreign crop, it is predicted that Europe will require all of the American surplus for the next twelve months. This will keep the price steady in the home market, and afford the Western farmer a ready supply of money.

IT is estimated that under Republican policies the sum of $680,000,000 of the increase of gold for the last decade has come to the United States. The total amount of the increase was $1,233,000,000. No wonder the country has had an unexampled era of prosperity, and that the old world realizes that America has to be reckoned with.

THE first election of importance since the nominations will take place in Maine in September. It is a State election and to a certain extent is thought to indicate the drift of politics. Republican pluralities in that State have run from 41,645 to 27,490. Both parties will put forth the largest vote which can be drummed up. All the Democrats can hope to do in that State is to reduce the Republican plurality and they may not be able to accomplish that.

IT should not be forgotten in the coming campaign that there is no longer an ignorant rural voter. The country has been consolidated since the last election. What with the universal trolley, the whizzing automobile, the rural delivery, the telephone, the omnipresent daily paper, the vast volume of travel all over the country, the Summer schools, lecturers Chautauquas, and a thousand other agencies, everybody is in the political university and there are no back districts to be heard from. The farmer is alive to the issues of the day, and he will decide the contest in an honest and conservative manner.

THE people of Indiana are so sure of the election of Senator Fairbanks to the Vice Presidency that they are trying to decide who they will send to the Senate to take his seat when it becomes vacant. Congressman Hemenway is in the race, also Harry S. New, who is to have charge of the Republican headquarters in Chicago. At present Mr. Hemenway is chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, perhaps the most coveted committee place in the House. His election to the Senate would be an interesting event.

"GOLDEN AGE" OF THE REPUBLIC. [illegible] living in the Roosevelt era, [illegible] which more than any [illegible] honesty and preparedness. Every man, every project, is viewed in the search-light of honesty of purpose before it is counted worthy a place in our governmental life. The man who does, rather than the man who can do, receives the plaudits of his fellow-men. There is neither time nor niche for the dreamer.

Never in the history of any nation has labor been so respected and enjoyed so many privileges, and never has capital been forced to so unwaveringly obey the law as in our own country at the present day. We hear the loss of "Jeffersonian simplicity" bewailed by the Democrats. In reality the Golden Rule was never so strictly applied in national affairs as at present. It requires great men to guide our young nation which holds so vital a place among the nations of the world, and Theodore Roosevelt has been proven worthy of all confidence. If he appears to think and act simultaneously appearances deceive. He surrounds himself with the brightest minds of today and they discuss possibilities, and measures to be adopted, until when the crisis dawns intelligent action can be immediately taken. His opponents call upon high heaven to protect them from the results of such precipitate haste and end by endorsing the man and his method. Instance, the Panama question, the Cuban question, the limiting of the zone of hostilities in the far east, the prosecuting of those implicated in the postal frauds, etc. There is a crying demand for the election of this exponent of honesty, sobriety and humanity and his application of business principles to national questions. It would almost seem that he might be returned to his position as the head of our nation by acclamation, without the formality of a campaign and the ballot. There does not seem to be any sustained argument against him.

REPUBLICANS ARE EXPECTED TO DO THEIR DUTY.

The political situation in this county seems most promising for the Republican nominees. There is not a cloud as large as a man's hand on the political horizon, but because of this fact the Republican electors should not allow themselves to be lulled into complacency and simply perform, in a perfunctory manner, their duty at the polls.

The nominees on the National, State and County tickets should receive rousing majorities, and it is hoped every Republican will do his utmost to convince his neighbor of the righteousness of his cause. The salvation of the State depends on the rural voter, and there should be no hesitancy on his part to do his duty this Fall.

The issues of the campaign have been presented by both parties. The Republican platform for 1904 is the logical result of a consistent record of fifty years of enlightened thought, but its general course of development has been no more rapid than the highest needs of the country has made it imperative. The Democratic platform is one of peevish pessimism, with nothing to spur endeavor, inspiré hope or encourage loyalty.

Republicans should turn a deaf ear to random recriminations, which at one time in the history of our country formed the politician's stock in trade. Remember there are great interests at stake. Do not permit sentiment to touch the freezing-point. The great streams of political force flow silently but steadily on to their destination. Let us do our part to clear the channels of every obstruction and place the destinies of our country in the hands of the party that has fulfilled every promise made—guiding the nation wisely and safely through every danger that menaced it. On such a record the party is content to stand. It can not fall.

It was an impossibility for the Times to publish the two page advertisement for M. Katz & Co. this week. They have started the largest sale in their store's history and everything will be marked at move-quickly prices to make room for their Fall goods, which will soon arrive. Read their prices on dry goods and be assured that the same liberal price cuts will be found in the furniture, house furnishing and other departments.

We are closing out our entire stock of footwear as our store is sold and we must give possession on Sept. 1. No reasonable offer will be refused for goods in the stock and they are all desirable. We are retiring from the retail business and do not wish to have one article left at the close of business, Aug. 31. You will readily see what a money saving opportunity this will be for you if you will ever need shoes, boots, slippers, rubbers, etc.

We request all who are owing us money to call and settle at once as we wish to close out all accounts by Sept. 1.

Stephens Opera House.

In "Happy Jack", Manager U. D. Newell presents a character hero who will win for E. E. Kidder's play, "A Jolly American Tramp," an enviable reputation when that comedy success is presented at Stephens Opera House on Tuesday, August 16. No more quaint conception or ludicrous conceit has been offered the play-going public, yet underlying all the bombastic pretentions that are made by the tramp, there will be found a heart that is in its right place. Flashes of wit fall from the lips as gently as do the rain drops in a Summer shower, and touches of pathos illumine the pathway to duty of this hero in rags that simply appeal to that well-spring of emotion, the heart, in every one of his beholders. In "A Jolly American Tramp" the author has given us a new character creation, one that will live aa long as will that other creation of his, Sol Smith Russell's "A Poor Relation". Manager Newell has staged this play in a commendable manner and promises thrilling effects as well as novel situations. The cast is said to be an admirable one and will do justice to the piece. Seats for theatre or box parties can now be reserved.

While Mr. G. A. Rappole was in church on Sunday, Edward La Rock, aged 9 years, took his horse and carriage from the church sheds and drove away. About 3 o'clock the policeman who was searching for the horse, saw the boy driving slowly toward Fulton with three companions about his own age in the carriage with him. The three boys fled as soon as they saw the officer. The La Rock boy was arrested and brought before Judge Rice, who gave him some fatherly advice and allowed him to go home after the horse had been returned to its owner.

The patrons of the Clark Hotel in this city may recall a small negro boy, a native of the Danish West Indies, named Cassius Phillips, who was employed around the hotel some two years ago. He was industrious and accommodating. He afterwards went to Oswego and secured employment in some one of the hotels in that city. The rigorous northern climate, especially in Winter, played havoc with the young man's delicate constitution, and he became an inmate of the Oswego Hospital, suffering from tuberculosis. The Oswego Palladium started a subscription to enable Cassius to return to his home in the West Indies and succeeded in raising $180 for him. It is necessary to secure at least $200 before the relief sought for by the patient can be obtained. Messrs. E. H. Powers, the genial manager of the Hotel Lewis of this city, and I. C. Garr, also of Fulton, are listed among the contributors to the fund. The purpose is a most laudable one, and the Palladium is to be commended for championing the young man's cause.

Charles E. Hammond while working in a barn about two miles west of this city on Friday was struck by lightning and rendered unconscious for half an hour. After regaining consciousness he was unable to move either limb and the members did not feel any sensation even from a pin prick. Dr. Hall, who was called to attend the injured man, considers the case a most singular one.

The Gerritt Smith Library in Oswego, which has been conducted in a most farcical manner for years, is at last to be conducted along modern lines and the valuable books it contains will perhaps prove of some benefit. Many people from Oswego have visited the Fulton library frequently for books of reference, &c, and have been most gratified with the method employed here. Miss Regan of Jamestown has been engaged to catalogue the books and it is expected that it will take about six months, as the collection is quite extensive. The Dewey system will be used.

Mr. Lehman Babcock has been visiting his son, Mr. E. V. Babcock, at Ashtola, Pa. An enjoyable reception was given in his honor at Hemlock Lodge, which was attended by a large number of representative citizens of Johnstown, an adjacent city. This week Mr. Babcock is being entertained by Messrs. F. K. and O. H. Babcock at Pittsburg. He will include Lakewood, N. J., in his itinerary before returning home. Mr. Babcock was in Johnstown at the time the paymaster and driver of a mining company were robbed and murdered by highwaymen. This incident has caused considerable uneasiness on the part of the Babcock Brothers, who are compelled to send about $20,000 by driver through the same district to meet salary obligations on pay day.

NEW YORK'S SUBWAY

COMPLETION OF WORLD'S GREATEST UNDERGROUND RAILWAY.

A Remarkable Engineering Feat. The Tunnel Is Over Twenty Miles Long and Cost $40,000,000—How the Work Was Done.

The New York subway is the greatest underground railroad in the world, and its construction has proved one of the most remarkable engineering achievements of the time. The Manhattan division of the subway is now completed and it is expected that in a few weeks trains will be running and the public in general will have an opportunity to inspect the wonderful work.

The New York subway is much longer than any other underground road in existence. In that respect alone it constitutes an exceptional achievement. But as an engineering feat it is most interesting from the fact that it was necessary to tunnel under a populous and busy city whose daily operations of commerce and traffic could not be interrupted in order to allow the work of creating this system of rapid transit to go on. The complexity of the problem was further increased by the fact that underneath the surface of the city was a network of sewers, of water pipes and electric wires, all forming a source of vexation unless the difficulties imposed in this way were carefully studied out. The Manhattan borough of the Greater New York is built, so to speak, upon one great rock, and in the construction of the subway the engineers had to drill their way through rock along a considerable proportion of the route. Nearly 3,000,000 cubic yards of earth and rock have been dug or blasted out from beneath the streets and buildings of a crowded city, and about 900,000 pounds of dynamite have been exploded in the task.

The system soon to be opened extends from the Battery, at the southern extremity of Manhattan Island, to Two Hundred and Thirtieth street on the west side of the city, in a long sweep of thirteen and one-half miles of four, three and two tracks. It also reaches from One Hundredth street under Central park to the east under Harlem river to Bronx park and One Hundred and Eighty-second street, a distance of seven miles. These lines constitute the Manhattan division of the subway which is about to be turned over to the operating company. The line which extends under the East river to Brooklyn and runs to the outskirts of that borough is being pushed to completion.

The estimated capacity of the Manhattan division for carrying passengers is over 42,000 per hour. The operating company expects to carry about 115,000,000 passengers per year on the Manhattan division and about 200,000,000 over the whole system when the Brooklyn lines are completed.

The total cost of the division soon to be opened will approximate $55,000,000, including equipment. The city originally appropriated $35,000,000 for the construction and later added $5,000,000. The equipment will cost the operating company about $15,000,000. Four years and a half ago, when the city of New York invited bids for the building of this road, there was no eagerness on the part of contractors and financiers to undertake the work. Two contractors, however, submitted bids, John B. McDonald receiving the award of the contract at his bid of $35,000,000. Up to last June the work had cost him something over $32,000,000. The financier who had the courage to back the contractor in this then doubtful project was August Belmont. He is now at the head of the company which is to operate the road under lease from the city.

In equipment the subway will represent the latest achievements of engineers and inventors in safety appliances, convenience, efficiency and beauty. There will be no dirt, no smoke, no cinders, no rain, no snow, no trucks or wagons to get in the way of trains, and the power by which the latter will be run will be electricity. The third rail system is to be used, but the rail containing the current is to be covered with a hood so that there will be no danger to life from persons coming in contact with it. The tunnel seems like a splendid arcade with its width of fifty-four feet, its white painted walls and arched roof. The cars, of which 800 will be in use, are noncombustible and, so far as human genius can devise, indestructible, various contriv-

ETHEL ROOSEVELT.

She Is Still a Great Romp—Mrs. Roosevelt's Summer Study.

At the ceremonies incident to notifying Theodore Roosevelt of his nomination for president at Oyster Bay, N. Y., one of the interesting sights was Miss Ethel Roosevelt darting around among the guests with her camera and securing snapshots. The speeches of notification and acceptance had been made and the politicians and other guests were enjoying the freedom of the president's extensive grounds at Sagamore Hill. While they were regaling themselves with salad and sandwiches and lemonade and ice cream Miss Ethel and her brother Archie seized the opportunity to secure souvenirs of the memorable day in the form of photographs, and Miss Ethel made a special target of her father, using up several rolls of films on him in different positions.

Miss Ethel Roosevelt is now twelve years old, but she continues to be a great romp, full of life and often bent on mischief. Though so fond of a camera herself, she used to consider it the best of fun to dodge the photographers who often lie in wait near the White House to get snapshots of the president or his family. She gave these artists considerable trouble if they tried to get her picture and called it "running the gantlet." Ethel is Mrs. Roosevelt's only daughter, Miss Alice being the president's daughter by his first wife. She is now at an age where she naturally requires a great deal of her mother's attention. Mrs. Roosevelt, despite the responsibilities she has as the first lady of the land and as the mother of a large family of growing children whose training and education require no little thoughtful care, finds time this summer to do considerable reading and study. German is receiving especial attention in the plan of work which Mrs. Roosevelt has adopted for the summer.

DR. MARY E. WALKER.

The Veteran "New Woman" Still Active In Urging "Dress Reform."

A striking and rather pathetic figure at the Democratic convention at St. Louis was the well known advocate of dress reform and woman's rights, Dr. Mary E. Walker. She claimed to represent the women Democrats of the state of New York, and sought an audience with the committee on resolutions in order that she might make an argument in favor of the insertion of a woman suffrage plank in the platform. Dr. Walker always attracts attention because she wears male attire. She is often spoken of as the original "new woman." For more than twoscore years she has dressed like a man and in a number of cities has been arrested and imprisoned. Although she has not succeeded in abolishing skirts and corsets she claims credit for the fact that some change has taken place in public sentiment so that women may now wear short skirts in riding a bicycle without being criticised. A few years ago Dr. Walker attended a reception at the White House, where she met Wu Ting Fang, then Chinese minister to the United States. With his customary directness in seeking information, the eminent Chinaman, when she had presented herself as "Mrs." Walker, inquired:

"Why do you wear pants?"

"Why do you wear that gown?" was the retort.

"Because it is the custom of my countrymen," replied Mr. Wu.

"Well, Mr. Minister," answered Dr. Walker, "this is a free country and [illegible] what we please."

SELF GOVERNMENT.

TIME MAY SOON BE RIPE FOR IT IN PHILIPPINES.

Secretary's Taft's Views as Expressed to Filipino Visitors—Mr. Roosevelt's Policy and That of Democrats—The St. Louis Commission.

Much significance is attached to the remarks of the Hon. William H. Taft, secretary of war, to the members of the Philippine commission to the Louisiana Purchase exposition. "You will remember," said the secretary during the visit of the commissioners to the war department, "that in the law which provides for the election of a popular assembly in the Philippines it is left to the president to say when the condition of the islands is such as to warrant the election of such an assembly, and of course it is necessary for his representative, the secretary of war, to go there to see that the conditions are as they ought to be."

The president of the commission, in replying to the remarks of the secretary of war, said the people of the Philippines were confident that when he made his promised visit he would find the time ripe for the establishment of the popular assembly.

The fact that President Roosevelt has taken much counsel of late of Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook and an exponent of the policy of "the Philippines for the Filipinos," is given significance in view of the visit of the commissioners from these islands. The inference has been made that he purposes, if continued in office, to take a step in advance of his predecessor's policy and inaugurate measures looking to home rule in the Philippines.

The Democratic platform promises that if placed in power that party will "set the Filipino people upon their feet, free and independent, to work out their own destiny." Thus it is pointed out that the Filipinos are likely soon to have a greater degree of control of their own affairs, whichever party is successful in the approaching presidential election. The visit of the Philippine commission to the world's fair is being made the occasion for bringing about a closer acquaintance between the people of the United States and those of the Philippines, and it is predicted that this better acquaintance will result in better understanding of the problems to be solved in the islands. The commission has been entertained in many of the leading cities of the country, and its members have had an opportunity to acquire a closer knowledge than they possessed before of the institutions of the United States and of the sentiments entertained here toward the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands. It includes jurists, physicians, university professors, lawyers, journalists, merchants and farmers. Some of these held positions in Aguinaldo's government and at one time fought in his army against the troops of the United States. The president is Dr. T. H. Pardo de Tavera, a scholarly scientist. He was educated in Paris, France, and practiced as a physician in Manila, where he was professor of the medical faculty of the university during the Spanish regime. He was a representative in the Malolos congress and director of foreign relations in Aguinaldo's government. In 1899 he founded La Democracia, the first pro-American daily in the Philippines. He was the first president of the Federal party. He has published several works on scientific subjects.

Among the forty or more members of the commission are men who have traveled in many parts of the world, studied in Europe, acquired fame in letters or art or scientific research and experienced adventures out of which thrilling tales could easily be woven. Tomas G. del Rosario, for example, studied eight years in Europe, received the degree of LL. B. from the University of Madrid, was a judge under the Spanish regime and was deported to Africa as an accomplice in the Philippine revolutionary movement. He was assistant attorney general of the supreme court under American military rule. Manuel de Iriarte is an art connoisseur and has a fine collection of paintings. He was educated in Europe, held several offices under the Spanish regime and is now chief of the bureau of archives, patents and copyrights. Another prominent member of the commission, Juan Araneta, was a [illegible]

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the state of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 158 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

The Skylark.

Skylarks are rather prolific birds having two broods in the year, and often laying as many as five eggs, though four is the usual number. The nest is so difficult to find that it is practically never discovered except by accident, as when, for instance, the hayfields are mown, or what is being hoed. The bird very seldom nests near the margin of a field, where it might be put off its nest by passersby. On the shores of the North sea skylarks will nest in the "bents" and "marram" close to the edge of the sand hills, though they have to fetch food to their young from a considerable distance. There is always something very pleasing in the sight of a lark's nest. It is usually sunk in a hollow, and, unlike the nests of many ground building birds, is most carefully made, the cup being deep and perfectly circular, and lined with very fine grasses, though the outer part is made of rough, dead bents, and often of a most irregular shape in order to fill up the hole in which it is made.—London Spectator.

Night Blossoms.

Many flowers, natives most of them of regions where the day is intensely hot, expand their blossoms at night. Notable among them is the Victoria Regia, which opens its splendid calyx near the Amazon at nightfall and closes it at dawn.

The queen of the night blooms for one night only, and has its home on the islands of the Caribbean sea. The triangular cactus, whose flowers are a foot in length and width, follows the same habit.

From Virginia comes the biennial oenothera, or "night light," which was brought to England in 1614 because its twisted red root could be eaten as salad.

Among British night flowers are the rocket, or night violet, the evening primrose and the campion. The white or yellow color and the fragrance of these flowers of nocturnal habit attract roving moths, which carry the pollen and so fertilize the plants.—London Standard.

The Bloody Hand.

The noted English family of the Holtes has for its badge a bloody hand, and this sinister badge commemorates a wager that ended in a crime. Sir Thomas Holte, one day in 1612, was hunting. He invited his comrades home with him to dinner, and as he rode along he made a heavy bet on his cook's punctuality. But the cook failed him for once; when he got home dinner was not ready. The jeers of his companions at this failure, together with his huge loss in the matter of the wager, enraged him so that he ran into the kitchen, seized a cleaver and split the cook's head open with it. Afterward his family, to keep this crime alive, adopted for its crest the bloody hand of the cook killer.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years; tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worse. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like." Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

The Rod of Aaron.

The "divining rod," also known as "wand of Mercury," or "rod of Aaron," is a forked branch, usually of hazel, sometimes of iron or brass and copper, by which minerals and water are supposed to be discovered beneath the surface of the earth. Suspended by the two prongs or between the balls of the thumbs it is thought to show by a clear inclination the spot where a mine or spring is hidden under ground.

Fooling Baby.

Mrs. Noopop—My baby cries all night. I don't know what to do with it. Mrs. Knowitt—I'll tell you what I did. As soon as our baby commenced to cry I used to turn on all the gas. That fooled him. He thought it was broad daylight and went to sleep.—Trained Motherhood.

His Whiskers.

Mrs. Vernon Greene—Why on earth don't you get your husband to cut off his whiskers? Mrs. Smiffian Perle—I wouldn't have him do it for the world. I want him to let them grow and get them [illegible] of his system.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

The First Newspaper.

The Acta Diurna of ancient Rome is the earliest approach to the newspaper of which we have any authentic record. The Acta appeared daily until the downfall of the empire, A. D. 476. It was published under the auspices of the government and posted in some public place, the contents consisting of a digest of public dockets, a summary of daily occurrences and all news of a general character.

An Extenuating Circumstance.

Rector—Ah, my dear Mr. Cumming, glad to see you—glad to see you! But why are you so rare a worshiper with us? Cumming—Well, there's one thing I can honestly say, doctor—yours is the only church I ever go to.—Brooklyn Life.

He's Probably Alive.

"I don't know whether I killed Cholly or not."

"What do you mean?"

"He proposed to me a little while ago and said he couldn't live without me—and I refused him."—Chicago Journal.

His Chance Coming.

Young Mother—Harry, dear, you mustn't go near the baby. Young Father—Mayn't I just look at him a minute? Young Mother—No, dear; he's asleep. I'll let you take him when he wakes up in the night.

Blinds Sometimes.

"Do you think," said Willie, "that it actually hurts a man to be hit with one of Cupid's arrows?"

"No," replied Bell. "As a rule, he merely [illegible] for a time."

De Witt Is the Name.

When you go to buy Witch Hazel Salve look for the name De Witt on every box. The pure, unadulterated Witch Hazel is used in making DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which is the best salve in the world for cuts, burns, bruises, boils, eczema and piles. The popularity of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, due to its many cures, has caused numerous worthless counterfeits to be placed on the market. The genuine bears the name E. C. De Witt & Co., Chicago. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

Humoring a Lunatic.

Some years ago a very wealthy man in England got it into his head that he had lost all his money. To pacify him his sons told him that they had saved the remnants of the estate and were able to offer him employment as a clerk. At $1.50 a week he worked as happy as a prince for the last twenty years of his life. When he died his estate amounted to nearly $15,000,000.

A Summer Cold.

A Summer cold is not only annoying but if not relieved pneumonia will be the probable result by Fall. One Minute Cough Cure clears the phlegm, draws out the inflammation, heals, soothes and strengthens the lungs and bronchial tubes. One Minute Cough Cure is an ideal remedy for the children. It is pleasant to the taste and perfectly harmless. A certain cure for Croup, Cough and Cold. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

The Daisy.

In French the daisy is called la Marguerite. It was the device of Marguerite of Anjou, and also of Marguerite of Valois, a much more appropriate emblem of the latter princess, who withdrew from the glitter of courts to become a recluse, than of the ambitious Lancastrian queen of England. The daisy is the national flower of Italy, chosen in honor of Queen Marguerite. In the language of flowers it signifies innocence, peace, hope. In the age of chivalry it was the emblem of fidelity and worn by knights at tournaments in honor of their ladyloves.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and to-day weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

I find nothing better for liver derangement and constipation than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.—L. F. ANDREWS, Des Moines, Iowa. For Sale by H. C. Geisler.

Two Missouri Towns.

When the presidential struggle between Clay and Jackson was at its height it is related that a band of emigrants from Kentucky and the then other western states commenced to settle on the north side of the Missouri river and called their county Clay and the county seat Liberty.

At the same time another lot of emigrants from Virginia and other southern states pitched their tents on the south side of the Big Muddy and called their county Jackson and the capital Independence. And so it remains to this day, Clay stood for liberty and Jackson for independence.—Oak Grove (Mo.) Banner.

Pumice Stone.

Pumice stone is a porous feldspathic scoria from volcanoes. The pores are linear and so fine as often to be barely visible except by means of a magnifying glass. Its specific gravity is 2.2 to 2.4—water being the unit—but by reason of its spongy texture pieces are often buoyant enough to float on water. It consists chiefly of silica, with sometimes 17 per cent of lumina, 6 per cent of soda and 4 per cent of potash. It is of grayish shades of color, passing into yellow and brown. The chief source from which it is obtained for commercial purposes is Campo Bianco, one of the Lipari islands, where it forms a hill nearly 1,000 feet high. In the arts pumice is largely employed, mostly in a pulverized state, as a polishing material for ivory, wood, glass, marbles, etc. It is also used in lump for grinding and smoothing metallic surfaces, leather, etc., and in the preparation of parchments, etc. Quantities of the pulverized pumice are used in making fancy soaps.

Meerschaum Pipes.

"A meerschaum pipe that would have brought $25 ten years ago wouldn't bring more than $10 now," said a tobacconist. "Meerschaum pipes used to be fashionable and popular in America, but they are not much sought for today.

"It isn't strange that the liking for them should have waned. The meerschaum is an unsatisfactory pipe at the best. Drop it and it is irretrievably broken. Try to color it, and for a month it tastes like soap.

"It isn't the meerschaum in one of these pipes that colors anyway. It is a mixture of beeswax and oil that the carvers rub into the block before they carve it. You could smoke a pipe of pure meerschaum all your life, and at your death it would be as white as it had been at your birth. It is the oil and beeswax—only that—which colors." —Washington Post.

Faults In Conversation.

Dean Swift once said: "There are two faults in conversation which appear very different, yet arise from the same root and are equally blamable. I mean an impatience to interrupt others and the uneasiness of being interrupted ourselves. The two chief ends of conversation are to entertain and improve those we are among, or to receive those benefits ourselves, which whoever will consider cannot possibly run into either of those two errors, because when any man speaketh in company it is to be supposed he doth it for his hearers' sake and not his own, so that common discretion will teach us not to force their attention if they are not willing to lend it, nor, on the other side, to interrupt him who is in possession, because that is in the grossest manner to give the preference to our own good sense."

If there is any person to whom you feel dislike, that is the person of whom you ought never to speak.—Cecil.

Taken With Cramps.

William Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader (Iowa) Argus

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Black Snakes.

It is true that the rattlesnake and the black snake are mortal enemies, and the black snake is the victor in their battles, breaking the neck of his adversary before the rattler has time to strike. The black snakes of this country are as harmless as frogs. On many of the large plantations in the south they are tamed and kept as a protection from their enemy, as the warm climate prevents keeping the houses closed so as to keep them out.

Cholera Infantum.

This disease has lost its terrors since Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy came into general use. The uniform success which attends the use of this remedy in all cases of bowel complaints in children has made it a favorite wherever its value has become known. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

Something In Danger.

"Does the captain say whether we shall break the record or not?"

"Yes. He says either the record or the boiler must go."

"How lovely!"

God hath yoked to guilt her pale tormentor, misery.—Bryant.

Place and Price In New York.

Prices on Broadway and on Nassau street are notoriously at variance, but the value sometimes placed on a well known business name is even more pretentious. Jones has a watch that was carried by his father—a costly gold timepiece that in its prime was one to be proud of. The other day he decided to have it "restored," and naturally took it to a well known Broadway store.

"I'll have to look it over," the clerk told Jones when the latter modestly asked the cost of putting the watch in good running order. "Leave it and come back tomorrow."

Jones did so, and caught his breath as the clerk remarked that it would cost exactly $28.50 for repairs. Then he took his watch and fled. At noon on the same day he took his watch to a little shop on Nassau street.

"It just needs a new mainspring and a cleaning," he was told. "That'll cost you $2.50."—New York Post.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Origin of Vaudeville.

The word "vaudeville," which now means a play in which songs are introduced, is a corruption of Vaux de Vire, the names of two valleys in Normandy. A fuller in Vire, in the fifteenth century, composed some humorous and satirical drinking songs, which were very popular throughout France, under the name of their native place, "Vaux de Vire." The terms seem to have been corrupted into voix de ville. A collection of songs was published at Lyons in 1561 entitled "Chansons Voix de Ville," and another at Paris in 1576 called "Recueil des Plus Belles Chansons en Forme des Voix de Ville." Both these publications were probably reprints of the original songs. At any rate, the name "vaudeville" has in some way grown out of them.—Boston Globe.

What Our Eyes Do Not See.

Suppose that our eyes were attuned to the vibrations revealed to us by the bolometer. Instead of seeing the stars that we now see we should perceive those whose light has long been extinguished, whose existence the methods of modern physics have enabled us to prove. The sun would appear surrounded by its corona, changing in form and position every instant, and we should no longer be obliged to wait for total eclipses to study this phenomenon. Currents of hot air would become visible like snow squalls, and the science of [illegible] would have no more secrets.

A Perfect Painless Pill

is the one that will cleanse the system, set the liver to action, remove the bile, clear the complexion, cure headache and leave a good taste in the mouth. The famous little pills for doing such work pleasantly and effectually are De Witt's Little Early Risers. Bob Moore of Lafayette, Ind., says: "All other pills I have used gripe and sicken, while De Witt's Little Early Risers are simply perfect." Sold by H. C. Geisler.

The Guillotine.

The striking thing about the execution was the appalling quickness of it all. Action was so rapid from the instant the condemned appeared in the doorway of the prison to the moment the knife fell that it was almost impossible to distinguish the slight chain of incidents. He flung himself eagerly against the plank, was strapped to it and in the flash of a glance the plank was pushed forward on the platform of the guillotine. An instant's vision of a recumbent figure, face downward. In the same moment a head, with two staring, wide open eyes, whirled almost defiantly, as it seemed, and with a slight zigzag movement, to the rightward, while simultaneously the pinioned body rolled, inert, convulsive, into the capacious basket, also at the right hand side of the guillotine. The swiftness, the mechanical promptness of the business, fairly stupefied the spectator. It was impossible to realize that a human life had ended in less time than it would take to draw a full breath. The guillotine had done its work well. There was scarcely a sense of horror in the sight.—London Standard.

A Sarcastic Rejoinder.

Mrs. Goode—See here, why did you throw away that bread I just gave you? Tramp—Because, mum, I never eat between meals.

SPECIALISTS FAILED; CAL-CURA SUCCEEDED.

One Bottle of Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, Cured Mr. Faller of Bladder Trouble.

"My case is so remarkable that I want to tell you all about it. I suffered from bladder trouble for about 25 years, and had tried all the doctors about here, and also two specialists in New York, without getting any help. Last August I bought a bottle of Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's new medicine. I had not been able to work at my trade (boiler making) for some time, but after taking one bottle of Cal-cura Solvent, I began work and have been working ever since. Cal-cura Solvent has done more for me in a month than all the doctors did in 20 years, and I [illegible] of the doctors." [illegible]

Public Library

LIBRARY SITE.

Trustees at a Public Meeting Determine to Secure Stone House on West Side of First Street from Mr. Willis Nelson.

A public meeting was held last Friday evening in the library rooms for the purpose of discussing informally an available site for the proposed Carnegie Library building.

Mr. E. R. Redhead, in calling the meeting to order, stated that he assumed all present were interested in the question, and that a disposition was shared by public-spirited citizens to select the most available site. There had been considerable discussion, he said, regarding the project, and the library trustees had had the matter under consideration for several months, resulting practically in a decision to locate the building on the Thayer property, corner of Cayuga and Third streets. Soliciting committees were appointed and some money was raised, but not sufficient to secure the property, largely because of an agitation which sprang up to place the library in the public park. In the meanwhile the option on the Thayer property expired.

At a meeting of the library trustees on Wednesday evening it was practically decided to make an effort to secure the lot on which stands the stone house on the west side of South First street, owned by Mr. Willis Nelson. The lot is 125x65 feet. A committee composed of Messrs. Redhead, True and Lovejoy, was appointed to interview Mr. Nelson and ascertain the value he placed on the lot. A survey was made by Engineer O. C. Breed The lot was found to be 65 feet deep at [illegible] point, between the curb [illegible] around it. Mr. [illegible] offered the lot for $1,500 which included the stone in the building structure. He also would enter into an agreement that nothing would be built on the north side of the lot within fifty feet of the library.

It was further stated by the chairman that the library trustees were unanimously in favor of accepting the Nelson property because the site was most convenient for residents on both sides of the river.

Mr. Darwin Stiles questioned the advisability of placing a public building on the banks of the canal, naming among other objections, that the men who were employed on the canal were in the habit of using language more forcible than elegant, and that such an experience would neither be pleasant nor agreeable for the ladies and young people who were in the habit of frequenting the library rooms.

Mr. B. W. Bennett considered the proposed site ideal. It meant the permanent improvement of that section of First street, and he thought the selection would be much more desirable than the park.

Mr. George B. Fairman, on behalf of the residents of the west side, stated that he believed the site would be most satisfactory to the residents of his section of the city.

Mr. Redhead said it would be necessary to secure subscriptions to the amount of at least $3,000. This sum would be sufficient to purchase the site and provide $1,000 for furnishing the building and $500 for contingent expenses, before the money from the city would be available.

Mr. Redhead was of the opinion that immediate action was necessary because of the delay which had attended the acceptance of Mr Carnegie's proposition, and he asked the members of the soliciting committee to remain after the meeting adjourned.

The question being put to a vote as to whether the library trustees should proceed to acquire the Nelson property, was carried unanimously, and the meeting adjourned.

Prohibition Rally.

The Prohibitionists will open the campaign in this city next Friday evening, Aug. 19, with a Swallow and Carroll rally at the Free Methodist church on State street. Prof. John A. Nichols, the "Little Giant" Prohibition orator, of Newton, Mass., will give the address. He comes recommended as a speaker of exceptional ability. Doubtless many will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear an intelligent discussion of the issues of the campaign from the Prohibition standpoint. Meeting begins at 7:45 p. m.

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

Admiral Togo's defeat of the Russian squadron at Port Arthur and Admiral Kamimura's defeat of the Vladivostock squadron off the Korean coast during the past week, has aroused intense eagerness among naval authorities, who are anxious to obtain a full and impartial account of the greatest naval battle since the fight at Santiago.

The fleet attempted to escape from Port Arthur through Admiral Togo's line, and the result was the putting out of action of most of the Russian vessels, the death of the Russian admiral, Withoff, and the loss of about 300 men, while the Vladivostock vessels were scattered, a battleship sunk, and at least 300 men killed or drowned. The Japanese casualties were very light and their ships escaped with little or no damage.

The flags on the Russian battleship Czarewitch and three Russian torpedo boat destroyers, which put into Chee Foo in a disabled condition after the battle with Togo's squadron, have been hauled down by order of the German governor.

Whether the vessels belonging to the Vladivostock squadron which escaped from the Japanese fleet, have returned to their destination or not, is a matter of doubt with admiralty officials.

A general land attack by the Japanese forces on Port Arthur is imminent, and the expectation in military circles is that it may fall at any moment.

Proposed Historical Society.

Next week Friday evening, Aug. 19, will be the 250th anniversary of the passing of Father Le Moyne, the first white man to traverse the Oswego river.

Of the historic interest of Fulton and the vicinity much has been written, but the gathering of papers and data which some day will be of no small importance, has up to the present [illegible] The citizens [illegible] are no more. Today only a very few of its business men of the first half century are among us. Many papers which would tell us of the city's early history have been lost or destroyed, thus blotting out many facts which should have been preserved, both for the interests of our business men and of future historians.

Let us commemorate that day by organizing a society which shall meet for the purpose of preserving all this data and information before it is too late.

With this in view I invite you to my office next Friday evening, Aug. 19. All are cordially invited.

G. F. SCHENCK,
Office over McNamara Bros'. store.

STEPHENS OPERA HOUSE.

"A Daughter of the People."

The Bennett-Moulton Dramatic Company will appear in the opera house every evening next week, and will present on the opening night, Monday, "A Daughter of the People." Justin Adams, who wrote the play, spent several years in continental countries and gleaned in his travels an immense store of knowledge of the lives of European folk. This information he has clearly drafted into the lines of "A daughter of the people," and the action of the play brings it even more vividly before the audience. The play is a strong drama with a deal of heart interest and comedy to break the tension caused by the seriousness of its plot.

Sale of School Bonds.

Notice is hereby given that I will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, New York, on the 27th day of Aug. 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m., at not less than par, ten (10) bonds of two hundred (200) dollars each amounting to two thousand (2,000) dollars, against School District No. 9 of the town of Volney, County of Oswego, New York, each to be dated August 27th, 1904, numbered consecutively from one to ten inclusive, one payable each year for ten years, each bearing annual interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum until paid. Said bonds will be issued for the purpose of borrowing money with which to build a new school house in said district, a tax having been duly voted therefor to be collected in installments. I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated August 16th, 1904.

GEORGE O. DUMAS,
Sole Trustee of School District Number Nine, Town of Volney, N. Y.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

For Furnishing and Laying Ten-inch Water Main in South Fourth Street, from End of Present Water Main to First Street.

CITY OF FULTON, N. Y., BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

Sealed proposals for the above-mentioned work, endorsed "Proposals for water main," will be received at the office of the City Clerk, Fulton, N. Y., until 7.30 o'clock p. m., of the 1st day of September, 1904.

The following estimate of quantities is to be considered only as approximate, and bidders are required to form their own judgment of the quantities and character of the work by personal examination of the specifications and drawings relating to it, or such other means as they may prefer. Bidders must not assert any misunderstanding in regard to anything relating to the work.

The contractors shall have no claim against the city by reasons of any variation between the quantities of the approximate estimate and the quantities of the work as done, nor on account of any misunderstanding or misconception of the nature and character of the work.

The several bids will be computed, tested and canvassed by the quantities and qualities mentioned in the following estimate:

CLASS A—Furnishing free on board cars, Fulton, N. Y.:
56 Tons 10-inch cast-iron water-pipe.
500 Pounds special castings.

CLASS B—
57 Tons unloading, hauling and distributing 10-inch pipe and specials.
2,000 Lineal feet trenching and refilling for 10-inch pipe.
2,000 Lineal feet placing, laying, jointing and calking in place complete, 10-inch cast-iron pipe.

Each bid must be made out on the forms of proposal furnished by the City Clerk or Board of Public Works, and must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, addressed to the City Clerk of Fulton, [illegible] will agree to execute and perform each class of work must be written in ink in both words and figures in the form of bid, and all bids will be considered informal which do not contain prices set opposite each and all of the items which are called for in printed forms for bids, except as provided or which are otherwise not in conformity with this notice. No bid will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever, after it has been deposited with the Clerk of the Board.

Bidders are required to state in their bids, under oath, their names and places of residence, the names of all persons interested with them in said bids, also that the bid is made without any connection with any person making another bid for the same contract, and that the bid is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud.

Contractors will be paid monthly, approximate estimates, 85 per cent. of the amount due for work at that time done.

Within thirty days after the fulfilling of the contract, the final estimate will be paid in full to the contractor, less amounts previously advanced, except on class B, on which 10 per cent. of the contract price will be retained three months after the pipe has been in service, not including December, January and February, for the purpose of keeping the work in good repair. The unexpended balance will be paid to the contractor.

The person, or persons, whose bid shall be accepted, will be required to attend at the office of the Board of Public Works with the sureties offered by him, or them, and execute the contract and bond within ten days from the date of the service of a notice to that effect, delivered to him in person, or mailed to the address given in the bid. In case of failure or neglect to do so, he, or they, will be deemed to have abandoned the contract.

The sum of $100.00 for each class (currency or a certified check), payable to the order of the Chamberlain of the City of Fulton, N. Y., will be required to accompany each bid. All such deposits except that of the bidder whose bid shall have been accepted, will be returned to the person or persons making the same, within three days after the contract is awarded. It the successful bidder, whose bid shall have been accepted, shall refuse or neglect to execute the contract within ten days after the notice that it has been awarded to him, or them, the amount of deposit made by him or them will be forfeited to and be retained by the City of Fulton, N. Y., as liquidated damages for such neglect or refusal; but if he or they shall execute the contract and bond within the time aforesaid, the amount of his or their deposit will be returned to him or them.

A bond in the sum of $500.00 for each class conditioned for the faithful performance of this contract, with sureties to be approved by the Board of Public Works, will be required.

Bids may be submitted for either Class A or Class B, or both, but the Board of Public Works reserves the right to award separate contracts therefore and also reject any or all bids not deemed for the interest of the city.

Plans may be seen at the office of the Board of Public Works, and specifications, forms of proposal, etc., obtained from the City Clerk or Superintendent of Public Works.

By order of Board of Public Works of the City of Fulton, N. Y

W. M. HINSDALE,
August 15, 1904 City Clerk.

Good Racing Calendar.

A good racing calendar was presented last Friday and Saturday at the County Fair race track. There was a good attendance and the races were run off in excellent time.

John A King was starter, and the first race brought together Wood B., Victor Hal, Barney and Rosencroft in the 2:20 class, trotting or pacing. Wood B. and Victor Hal were the favorites, the former taking first heat and Victor Hal taking the last two, with Wood B. third. Barney took third money from Ravenscroft.

A named race was the next event, and was competed for by Bessie C, Dick Hare, Veto, Buckskin and Piano, Bessie B. won the three straight heats, with Veto second in two. Philena, owned and driven by S. C. Dean of Phoenix, captured first money in the 2:35 class, winning three straight heats. Sir Arthur won second money.

Common Council Proceedings.

A meeting of the Common Council was held last evening. Those present were Mayor Foster and Aldermen Bogardus, Prince, Dilts, Russell and Brannan.

Alderman Dilts acted as clerk.

Bills were ordered paid as follows: Attorney Arvin Rice, $30.77, for acting as City Judge; R. D. Witt Mann, expert accountant, $196.15. Alderman Dilts voted No.

The report of the Board of Public Works regarding the improvements on Third and Fourth streets, was referred to the Finance Committee. The Council adjourned.

John Francis and Mother of Chicago in Automobile Accident.

Chicago Examiner, Aug. 9: An automobile driven by John Francis, the nineteen-year-old son of Ex-Alderman J. H. Francis, 5710 Ontario avenue, Austin, and a bicycle ridden by Arthur Smith, 586 Austin avenue, collided with terrific force at the corner of Washington boulevard and Western avenue yesterday afternoon and badly injured young Smith.

Witnesses declare the automobile was going at high speed, and that in the effort to avoid striking Smith, young Francis checked the machine so suddenly that he and his mother, who was riding with him, were thrown out of their seats.

The collision knocked the young man unconscious and it was some time before he could be revived. He was taken to his home in the Francis automobile and was given medical attention.

DIED.

Dr. William S. Huntington, aged 50, a prominent promotor, business man and dentist of Watertown, died Aug. 13, at the home of his mother, Mrs. Adelaide Huntington in that city. He was born in Watertown and was a son of the late Dr. John D. and Mrs. Adelaide Huntington. The deceased was well-known in Fulton, being for some time the president of the Composite Board Company when that corporation was located in Fulton.

On Sunday evening, just at sunset Gilbert W. Guile, aged 75, died in the City Hospital after two weeks of illness, followed by an operation for appendicitis performed in the hospital on Thursday. Owing to his advanced age it was not thought possible that he could survive the operation, but as it was his only chance for life, it was taken. He gradually sank after the operation and death came at 5:35 o'clock on Sunday. The deceased had been an almost life-long resident of this city and was highly respected. He is survived by his widow and five children, Mrs. John Wilson of Fulton, and Messrs. William H. of La Crosse, Wis., Walter A., and Frank B., of Providence, R. I., Charles B., of this city and G. Frederick of Chicago, Ill. The funeral services were held from his late home in Fourth street on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. Nelson Reynolds officiating. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

House and Lot for Sale.

I will sell to the right party the house and lot on west Fifth street, formerly occupied by Oscar E. Clark, cheap, upon the installment plan, viz: $25 down and $10 per month, with privilege of paying more, if desired. The house is nearly new, in good repair and has city water.

Here is a chance for a man earning fair wages to pay for a home. Inquire of Sewing Machine Driven by Electric Motor.

Bogue Brothers of 106 Oneida street, have on exhibition an electrically driven sewing machine. The motor is only 1-30th of a horse-power and is ample for the service required. The cost of running this machine will not exceed one cent an hour, owing to the extremely low price charged by the Fulton Light, Heat and Power Company for electric power. Such motors are extensively used in tailoring and dressmaking establishments in the cities, but they are so simple and easy of adjustment that private residences are having them installed with which to do the family sewing. The motor is now attached to a White sewing machine, but can be used to equal advantage on any machine. Bogue Brothers will take great pleasure in demonstrating the practicability of the motor to any one who may be interested; in fact they most earnestly request the public to visit their store and examine the motor and machine in operation, being assured that they can demonstrate to the entire satisfaction of all that more and better work can be accomplished on the machine through using the motor. The cost of the motor is so low that it is within the reach of all.

Pathfinder Lodge K. of P.

This (Wednesday) evening Pathfinder Lodge, K. of P., will work the Rank of Esquire on one candidate, a young business man of our city.

Much interest is being manifested in the working of this rank on this particular candidate, and an interesting session is looked forward to.

The second rank team has been rehearsing for several weeks and a new paraphenalia will be used so that this will doubtless be the most successful second rank ever put on by Pathfinder Lodge.

The rooms will be cool and all Knights are urged to attend

...Building at State Fair Equipped ...New Wire Coops—Increased ...ums Offered—Exhibit Will be ...

...Commissioner Charles A. Wieting, ...ger of the poultry exhibit at the ... Fair, is determined to make this ...ment one of the big features of ... Fair. Those familiar with the ...spicuous success of the poultry ... at the Fair of 1903, will anticipate the exhibit this year.

That the large display may be shown ...vantageously, the building will be thoroughly renovated and equipped throughout with new wire coops from the Empire Coop company of Johnstown, N. Y. New classes have been added, bringing the exhibit up to the American standard and the premiums have been increased from $2,832 to $3,000. There are now some twenty-one classes and liberal offerings are made that should, and doubtless will attract all the poultry fanciers of the State. The pigeons will be judged under the rules of the American Pigeon Club.

SUMMER SICKNESS

May be Prevented by Proper Care of the Stomach.

PROTECT YOUR DIGESTION.

The heated term is withstood with out a whimper by these persons who have a healthy stomach. Hot weather cannot hurt the man or woman whose stomach and digestive organs are perfectly healthy. But you go into the heated term with a disordered stomach and see what the result will be. Sunstroke attacks only the man or woman whose stomach and digestive organs are too feeble to protect the strength and maintain one's physical power to resist the depressing effect of the Summer's sun. Summer diet, with all its vegetables and unripe fruits, adds its unstable influence to the depressing effects of hot weather, causing a still greater decline in one's strength and vitality.

Ninety-nine of every one hundred people whose health and strength runs down in Summer, allow their stomach or digestive organs to get out of order. This is easy enough—in fact, it is hard to prevent without the use of some thoroughly reliable digestant.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure after meals is not only a thoroughly reliable digestant, but it contains great tonic and reconstructive properties as well. This ... remedy enables the stomach ... digestive organs to thoroughly digest, assimilate and contribute to the ... all of the nourishment that is contained in such food as may be eaten. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure clears the way and makes sure the journey from sickness to health and weakness to strength. If the stomach is disordered Kodol will correct it. If diseased Kodol will cure it.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure lays the foundation for health, and the upbuilding of strength by cleansing, purifying and sweetening the glands and membranes of the stomach and by supplying natural juices necessary to perfect digestion, assimilation and nutrition. Kodol digests what you eat, prevents colic, cholera, diarrhoea, flux, dysentery and Summer complaints generally and its use will cure indigestion and chronic dyspepsia permanently. Kodol is good alike for young and old. Your druggist sells it.

County Grange Picnic.

There will be a picnic by the combined Granges of Oswego County at the Oswego Falls Fair Ground, Thursday, August 18. A number of speakers are expected, among them Secretary of the State Grange W. N. Giles and ex-Lecturer Mrs. B. B. Lord. Music will be furnished by the Oswego Falls and Bowens Corners Granges.

I Give Honor to Whom It Is Due.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., cured me of Bright's disease and Gravel. Four of the best physicians had failed to relieve me. I have recommended it to scores of people with like success, and know it will cure all who try it.—Mrs. E. P. Misner, Burg Hill, O. Price $1.00, all druggists; 6 bottles $5.00.

SIG. SAUTELL'S CIRCUS.

Will Exhibit in Pulaski on Wednesday, Aug. 24.

Few circus aerialists, no matter how daring, work without first minimizing their danger by the erection of a safety net directly under them and ten or a dozen feet above the ground. More fearless and death defying than all others, the aerial performers with Sig. Sautell's nine consolidated railroad shows, which will exhibit in Pulaski, Wednesday, Aug. 24, use neither net or life belts, depending entirely upon their own courage, confidence and powers. There are more amazing, stupendous, terrifically startling and exceedingly sensational midair champions with the Sautelle circus than are to be found in all others combined. The hair-raising, thrilling feats these conceded meteoric kings and queens perform high above the heads of the fear gasping spectators are such as few persons dare risk. The members of one troupe particularly appear to be without nerves or fear. They pass and repass from bar to bar, from ring to ring, and subsequently from bar to landing place with a cleverness, certainty and precision, showing the loftiest possible training coupled with the most fearful astonishing skill and judgment. They fly through space, their bodies revolving like swiftly moving balls, toss and catch each other with as much unconcern as the average person exhibits when sitting down to an uncommonly good dinner. The other performers upon Mr. Sautell's pay-rolls are likewise post graduates of their profession, having been called from the topmost circles of American and European artists. The clowns are more ludicrous than ever and are the monarchs of fun and frolic. They cause the children to go into paroxysms of laughter and elicit smiles from even savants, philosophers and scientists. They cause spinsters, bachelors and nurses ecstasies of merriment. The clowns in themselves are a whole show. Lack of space prevents the naming of all other mighty features in the big shows, historical wild west and menagerie, suffice to say they are the best wealth can obtain.

Lady Exhibitors at State Fair.

Lady visitors to the State Fair at Syracuse in September will find the Domestic department exceptionally interesting and the display elaborate. The premiums aggregate $2,000, as against $500 two years ago, and ladies will find it profitable to enter meritorious articles in the various classes. The number of the latter has been increased by the addition of sections devoted to pyrography and wood carving Maderia embroidery, Hardanger embroidery, cut work, basketry, bead work, etc. A prize list showing the premiums offered can be had by addressing Stanton C. Shaver, Secretary State Fair Commission, Albany, N. Y. Commissioner Norris, in charge of this department, cordially invites the co-operation of all the ladies of the State.

"Le Roy Plows Turn the Earth."

Horses and men grow fat, their labor is pleasant and easy; and the results of the labor are highly satisfactory, all because the farmer profited by the experience of his well satisfied neighbors and purchased a "Le Roy Plow." The draft is just right. The turn of the moldboard is found only on the "Le Roy" and is just right. If the "Le Roy Plows" are not all right they will not cost you a cent. Sold by E. Quirk, Fulton.

The August American Boy.

The August American Boy, published by the Sprague Publishing Company, Detroit, Mich., is noteworthy especially for its account of American Boy Day at the St. Louis Exposition, July 5, which was planned and carried out by the publishers of that periodical. Nearly five thousand people participated in parts of a five-hour program on that day under the chairmanship of the editor of The American Boy. The participants in the program were mainly talented boys from various sections of the country. Half a dozen pages of The American Boy are given to a detailed account of the proceedings, splendidly illustrated. No boy, and indeed no adult, can read this account without feeling something of the inspiration of the occasion. The publishers of The American Boy also announce in this number that they propose to try to make American Boy Day a permanent American institution in every city and country town in the country.

This number also contains further chapters of "The Blue Dragon," Kirk Monroe's thousand dollar story; a story by W. Edgar Simpson entitled "Skipper Dawson's Peril;" and one by the celebrated English writer for boys, William Murry Graydon, entitled "A Piratical Tramp." John Dicks Howe presents an interesting article entitled "Six months in the Ute Country," in which boys who like Indian stories will be interested. The titles of the leading articles in this number will indicate the interesting and instructive character of its contents. They are as follows: "The death plant of Guatemala;" "The boy mechanic and artisan;" "What inventors are doing for boys;" The boy photographer;" "A young Texas genius;" "Camps and campaigns of Washington;" "How wild animals earn their keep;" "Two boys who mean business;" "An up-to-date biographical story;" Boys and animals;" "Dangers of overtraining," by Doctor Shrady, editor of The Medical Record; "Nothing to do but eat;" "Scientific running," by Phillip Everett Curtiss, a member of Trinity Track team; "Pages at the U. S. capitol;" "A dinner that the coyotes didn't get;" "Railroad watches to tick in unison;" "Half mile run," by H. V. Valentine, 1903 champion runner; "Stamps, coins and curios;" "How four boys earned their college money;" "How to use common tools;" "The drawing-room magician" and "puzzles;" 117 illustrations. Published by The Sprague Publishing Company, Detroit, Mich., $1 per year; single copies 10 cents.

Shakespeare's Greatness.

"The more I read Shakespeare," said Keats, "the more I find in him all that I need." It has been said of Wagner that his greatness was due to the fact that he knew no Latin. Perhaps Shakespeare's "little Latin and small Greek" also saved him from a sterilizing bondage to dead classics. However that may be, his genius transcended all schools and all the limitations of coteries. He is our supreme national asset. If we were asked the question whether we would be without India or Shakespeare, is there one true Englishman who would not say, with Carlyle, "India or no India, we cannot give up our Shakes...?"—London News.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

"SPIRIT WRESTLERS"

DOUKHOBORS OF THE CANADIAN NORTHWEST GOOD FARMERS.

They Are Forgetting Their Extreme Ideas and Working to Build Up Their Colony—Quaint Customs Remain.

It is now about five years since the peculiar religious sect known as the Doukhobors left Russia owing to the persecution received there and settled in the Canadian northwest. For three years the Doukhobors made progress in the establishment of their communities, and then the fanatical character of their belief led many of them to abandon work, and the colony received a setback. Recently conditions among the immigrants have been improving. Last year the Doukhobors at Yorkton, N. W. T., raised 100,000 bushels of wheat. They have purchased large quantities of farm machinery, including eight steam plows, which are moved about from place to place as needed by different members of the commune. The extensive railway construction which is going on in that part of the Canadian northwest has given opportunity for the employment of many members of the sect, and those for whom they have worked speak well of their character and capacity as laborers. The men employed on railroad work are said to have earned last year about $110,000, which they turned into the general treasury of the commune.

The pilgrimage of the Doukhobors two years ago in search of Jesus Christ, whom they believed to be alive again upon the earth, was attended by incidents strange and grotesque as well as pathetic. The propensity of the pilgrims for discarding their clothing when they went on the search for the returned Redeemer subjected them to suffering and hardship of extreme character, for the climate of Manitoba and its vicinity in the fall and early winter is not adapted to pilgrimages in which warm clothing is cast aside and the body exposed to the tender mercies of the elements. The Canadian authorities at that time were compelled to resort to force in suppressing the demonstrations of the Doukhobors, and the northwest mounted police arrested many of the leaders, who in some cases were treated by the courts as lunatics. But the Doukhobor men who go among their Canadian neighbors have through contact with them gradually come to drop the more fanatical of the practices of the sect.

The members of the sect are, as a rule, very ignorant, though the extent of this illiteracy will diminish now that their home is in the new world instead of the old. Some of their ideas are harmless and some quite praiseworthy, while their communal life is in many respects unique. The Doukhobors are all vegetarians, but are capable of the hardest kind of labor. The villages of the sect contain from 100 and 125 families each, and each village is a commune by itself. At first a common purse existed, village storehouses and granaries and bathhouses were provided, and other communal features were adhered to, but these conditions have changed.

The immigrants brought with them from faraway Russia many of the ways of living which are common in the most downtrodden portions of the czar's empire. The women, even after reaching Canada, worked in the field and were sometimes harnessed to the plow. The houses were thatched with straw or turf, and the floors were of clay. All lived and slept in one room. These conditions are changing, for with their habits of frugality, their industry and their simple vegetarian diet these former European peasants are becoming well off as a class and are gradually adopting many American ideas. They never taste strong drink. They go about their work with songs of praise and before they eat always ask a blessing on their food. A quaint custom still kept up is that of arousing the villagers in the early morning by the singing of a choir which patrols the streets and which sings again in the evening to lull the toilers to sleep.

Many of the changes which have been introduced recently in the colony have been due to the influence of Peter Veregin, a Doukhobor leader, who seems possessed of much shrewdness and good sense. He has discarded his native costume, has cut off the long, sweeping beard he formerly wore and in place of Russian blouse and trousers now wears clothes of the ordinary American type, including starched linen and neat cravat. He uses his influence to introduce among the farmers the improvements of an up to date American agricultural community.

EARL GREY'S CAREER.

Interesting Facts About Canada's Next Governor General.

Earl Albert Henry George Grey, lord lieutenant of Northumberland, whose appointment as governor general of Canada was recently announced, is popular in the Dominion and is a personage of especial interest in the United States for several reasons. He is the executor of the late Cecil Rhodes and as such has an influential voice in all that concerns the American Rhodes scholars at Oxford university. He has also been interested in companies organized for tunneling the North and East rivers at New York. One of the officers commanding the British forces in the American war for independence was Sir Charles Grey, upon whom the earldom was conferred. It was the second Earl Grey, the Whig prime minister, who carried the great reform bill of 1831. The present earl is a grandson of the distinguished reform statesman and a nephew of the third Earl Grey, whose title he inherited on the death of the latter in 1894.

The next governor general of Canada was born in 1851 and is the son of the late General Charles Grey, for many years private secretary to the prince consort and afterward to Queen Victoria. General Grey accompanied King Edward on his tour of America forty years ago. He sent his son to Harrow and afterward to Cambridge university, where he took high degrees in law and history. As a member of parliament from Northumberland, from 1880 to 1886, Earl Grey made a creditable record, but he won his spurs as administrator of Rhodesia in 1896 and 1897, after it had been taken over by the crown from the South Africa Chartered company. The earl has written books and was the organizer of the Public House Trust company, established to manage public houses in England in the interest of a greater degree of temperance. Earl Grey married in 1877 Miss Alice Holford, daughter of the millionaire owner of the palace known as Dorchester House, in Park lane, London. Lady Grey is very wealthy in her own right. The earl is a brother of the Countess of Minto and therefore brother-in-law of the present governor general, the Earl of Minto, whom he will succeed in October.

Sundial Maxims.

It is quite an interesting thing to learn that some of our best known proverbs and mottoes were originally used in connection with sundials. Before the days of watches and clocks, when dials and sun marks were among the rude means of reckoning time, it was a prevailing custom to inscribe them.

Among the maxims traceable to this source are, "Make hay while the sun shines," "The longest day must end" and "All things do wax and wane."

Sundials spoke the truth, as may be inferred from a historic one which was placed on St. Paul's cross, in London, and which proclaimed, "I number none but sunny hours." This no one will doubt who has had occasion to consult a dial on an overcast day.

A famous dial in Sussex, England, bore four famous mottoes applicable to the flight of time and the brevity of life. They were as follows: "After darkness, light." "Alas, how swift!" "I warn whilst I move" and "So passes life."

Another old sundial spoke petulantly about the same subject in the words, "Sirrah, be gone about your business."

A Sensitive Horse.

Harsh treatment, though it stop short of inflicting physical pain, keeps a nervous horse in a state of misery. On the other hand, it is perfectly true, as a besotted but intelligent stable keeper once observed to me, "A kind word for a hoss is as good sometimes as a feed of oats."

A single blow may be enough to spoil a racer. Daniel Lambert, founder of the Lambert branch of the Morgan family, was thought as a three-year-old to be the fastest trotting stallion of his day. He was a very handsome, stylish, intelligent horse, and also extremely sensitive.

His driver, Dan Mace, though one of the best reinsmen in America, once made the mistake, through ill temper or bad judgment, of giving Daniel Lambert a severe cut with the whip, and that single blow put an end to his usefulness as a trotter. He became wild and ungovernable in harness and remained so for the rest of his life.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town and the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the interest accruing on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, in which case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city court of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; or to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands, outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section one of article two, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to sections one and seven of article six, of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

WON'T SUPPORT PARKER.

A Procession of Democrats Away From the Party Candidate.

Democrats are still bolting the nomination of Judge Parker. The procession has become a long one. It includes members of the judge's party of all shades of belief—a thing regarded as significant because it shows that the Parker telegram, while intended as an excuse for gold Democrats' support, does not win their confidence.

Bryan Democrats believe Judge Parker should stand squarely on his record of having supported Bryan and 16 to 1 in two national campaigns or else give reasons for his change of faith.

Gordon L. St. John of Spencerport, a Brynnite, is one of the bolters.

Jabez C. Peirce of Rochester, a lifelong Democrat, says:

"Every reader of an evening or morning paper knew on Friday that the resolutions committee had voted to eliminate the gold plank. Judge Parker says he did not find it out till Saturday noon. That sort of a president won't do for me. If he were elected, congress might pass a 16 to 1 law and Parker would never wake up until it had become a law by lapse of the ten days' limitation."

George W. Crossman of New York city, a lifelong Democrat, says:

"It must be remembered that Judge Parker voted twice for Bryan and allied himself to the branch of the party he admits he believed to have been wrong. For my part, I want a man who will not ally himself with such a dangerous element."

Dr. J. T. Parker of New York, another Democrat, says:

"The present conditions are good, and there is no reason why there should be a change, especially when it is an experiment with a party such as is now the prevailing force in Democratic strongholds."

H. P. Blodgett, a Bryan Democrat of Rochester, says he proposes to vote for Roosevelt.

Mayor Charles H. Leeds of Stamford, Conn., elected as a Democrat by a large majority, has caused consternation in his party by declaring he will support Roosevelt.

L. B. Seibert, chairman of the Potter county (Pa.) Democratic committee, has resigned his position and bolted Parker on the ground that the trusts controlled the Democratic convention.

Michael Bannin of New York, of the firm of Converse, Stanton & Co., has declared for Roosevelt.

V. P. Travers, also of New York, a lifelong Democrat, has also declared for Roosevelt.

The Kentucky Gazette, for seventy-five years a Democratic paper, now edited by Edmond S. Kinkead, at Lexington, has bolted and will support Roosevelt. The editor believes the Parker telegram "was a trick played by the Hill-Belmont-Sheehan combination."

The Daily Bee, the leading Democratic paper of Sacramento, has announced that it will not support Parker. It has come out for Roosevelt.

PARKER AND 16 TO 1.

When Judge Parker voted for Bryan and 16 to 1 he did so under these circumstances:

First.—Because he thought he was doing right and was an honest Bryanite, or Second.—Although he knew he was voting for national dishonor, he did it because he would rather be "regular" than be right.

Is this the kind of man to be president?

CONCERNING TRUSTS.

Please notice when making war on the trusts that suit has been brought in the United States court on behalf of the state of Texas against the J. M. Guffey Petroleum company and the Beaumont Confederated Oil and Pipe Line company for penalties amounting to $2,250,000 for alleged violation of the antitrust law. Mr. Guffey is the Pennsylvania boss who gave the delegates of that state to Parker in the St. Louis convention.—Buffalo News.

Ancient Preservation of the Dead.

Herodotus gives a good description of the manner in which the early Ethiopians preserved their dead. Having thoroughly dried the corpse, they plastered it over with a paste made of gypsum and then painted the face and exposed parts so as to make them look as natural as possible. Dead bodies served in this manner remained intact for hundreds of years.

DO THE ELECTORS WANT A CHANGE?

A very little ballot in the hands of the majority in the rural districts will make this State either Democratic or Republican—will send our industrial and commercial interests either above par or below it. A victory for the Republican party means hope and plenty. If this State is permitted to go into the Democratic column, if we are to judge from past experience, there will undoubtedly be a reaction—a lifting up of strange voices on the curb and in the deserted market and manufacturing places.

For seven years, under the administrations of William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt, labor and capital have been prosperous, with practically no interruptions except the interruptions of their mutual differences.

The Republican party marshaled its hosts eight years ago in the shadow of industrial depression—in the shadow of closed factories and suspended banks. With every tick of the clock the nation was running into debt. The doctrine of discontent was sown broadcast. Out of the ruins of that time the Republican party has built up a shining edifice of prosperity and "scattered good times with a spendthrift hand." It is a matter of history that we always have a reaction of hard times to good times when the Republican party goes into power.

Some say, however, that our prosperity is only "apparent prosperty." If this be true, then our average annual balance of trade for the last three years of $513,000,000 is only an apparent balance of trade, and the deposit of $2,935,204,845 in the savings banks of our country, for the most part deposited by labor—an increase of $185,027,555 over a year ago—is only an apparent savings deposit, and the $3,000,000,000 pay roll of 6,000,000 people employed in 513,000 factories, having an annual output of $13,000,000,000 is the "insubstantial pageant" of an optimistic dream.

It is a new deal in American politics for a party to ask the voters to support a Western Union telegram.

The country will not be slow in making its choice between Roosevelt and a Record and Parker and a Promise.

The Democratic plank on the Philippine question is an expression of regret that the American policy there has not met with disaster.

The Republican motto, according to Speaker Cannon, is "We Move On" The best the Democrats can do is to inscribe their banners with "Safe, Sane and Scared."

The Democrats demand a prosecution of the unlawful trusts, and show how to do it by pointing to the trail already blazed by a Republican Attorney-General, under a Republican administration.

Having denounced the adoption of the gold standard as the crime of the century the Democratic party now ... and asks the privilege of being ... as an accessory after

A pleasant family party was entertained on Thursday afternoon by Miss Grace J. Tucker in honor of the 80th natal anniversary of her mother and Mrs. Cordelia Breed of Phoenix. Among the out-of-town guests who were present at the dinner were Mr. William Tucker of New York City, Mrs. Switz Conde and Miss Belle Tucker of Oswego.

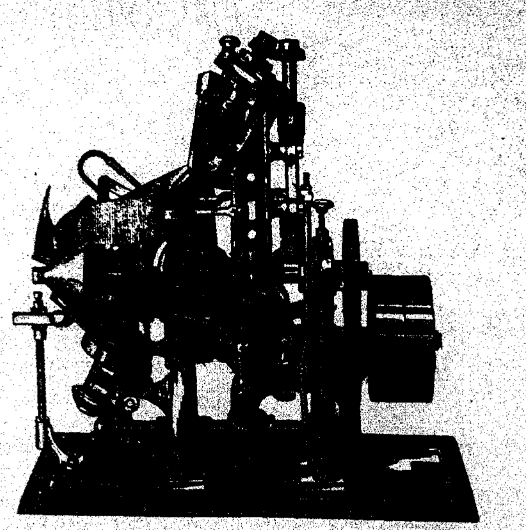
The Secret Service Bureau has given notice of a new counterfeit two-dollar bill. It is described as one of the series of 1899, check letter A, plate No. 240; J. W. Lyons, Register, and Ellis H. Roberts, Treasurer; portrait of Washington. The note is a zinc etching, poorly executed. The face of the note is heavy and blurred. The counterfeit made its appearance in Boston.

Thomas Cole, Jr., while en route to Pathfinder Island on Friday evening about 11 o'clock, for the purpose of bringing the members of the Webb Orchestra to this city, was painfully injured by his horse becoming frightened at something and running away. The wagon was over-turned and Mr. Cole was thrown out, sustaining a fractured left arm and a badly bruised head and face. He was removed to Dr. Fox's office, where his injuries were attended to, and he was then taken to his home.

Once a year for the past twenty-five years the famous Bennett-Moulton Company have visited our city, always giving the best satisfaction. Next Monday they commence their annual engagement for the entire week, having an entirely new repertoire, special scenery for each and every play, and strong vaudeville specialties between the acts. No attraction that visits our city is more welcome. Prices remain the same as usual 10, 20 and 30 cents. For full particulars see advertisement in another column. Ladies' tickets will be issued for Monday evening.

The field day of the Pathfinder Boat Club on Friday was largely attended and proved one of the most enjoyable outings yet given by the club. One of the special features of the afternoon was the tennis game played between Mr. I. C. Gary and Dr. Gladman, representing the Pathfinder Club, and Messrs. Pritchard and Green representing the Fourth Street Tennis Club. The Pathfinders won, and in the near future they will play the Messrs. Bert Mooney and Harold Keeler, who represent the Deuce Club, for the championship of the city. Nearly a hundred partook of the splendid dinner served at 6 o'clock, and during the evening the young people enjoyed dancing to music furnished by the Webb Orchestra.

COLLAR TURNING AND SHAPING MACHINE.



The foregoing is an illustration of what is called a collar-turner and shaping machine, now in use in the Fulton Steam Laundry, of which L. N. Goman & Co. are the proprietors. The machine is guaranteed not to break the collars, and is the only one known that will iron them perfectly without causing any damage. This is simply one of the many improvements added by the present enterprising firm to take care of their constantly increasing business, the specific purpose being to give the residents of this city the best service possible. The public is invited to call at the laundry on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons or on Friday evenings and witness the operation or process through which the laundry passes. They are assured of courteous treatment and a hearty welcome.

UNDER PARKER'S ROBE

"Goings on at Esopus" Reveal His Work to Restore Hill and Sheehan to Power.

Discredited Before the People, They Have First Place In Parker's Heart.

Esopus, Aug. 9.—Judge Parker selected William F. Sheehan of New York to be his personal representative in this campaign, and his choice has been indorsed by Mr. Taggart, the national chairman, who made Sheehan chairman of the national executive committee.

Judge Parker has held numerous conferences with Pat McCarren of Brooklyn, David B. Hill, Charles F. Murphy, the boss of Tammany, and Elliot Danforth and has invited ex-Chief of Police Devery to visit him at his home at Rosemount.

Judge Parker also took a hand in the selection of other members of the national executive committee, with the result that De Lancey Nicoll is to be vice chairman, and August Belmont will be a member of it.

Under the cover of the judicial robe which he wears as the head of the court of appeals, the candidate refrained for three weeks from discussing any of the vital issues of the campaign, and for this was held up as a model of propriety and high mindedness. But the robe has been torn apart and underneath it has been revealed the politician returning to the point whence he departed when last he was mixed up with the Hill-Sheehan-Murphy machine years ago.

A Revelation.

Judge Parker's selection of Sheehan as his personal representative and his dickering to give Tammany control of the state government in return for its support of his own candidacy have come as a revelation to the state.

It had almost been forgotten that he was once simply an important cog in the Hill-Sheehan machine, and in all corners of the state Parker's deliberate and constant association with these discredited leaders has caused amazement.

The people of the state, who have admired Judge Parker as a jurist and universally commended him as a model of dignity and propriety, have begun to awake to just what it would mean if, through Judge Parker's candidacy, the old unscrupulous crowd were to be restored to power.

For the people remember Sheehan. It was he who juggled through the legislature the notorious Buffalo police bill in 1893.

Under Sheehan's manipulation this bill was substituted for a school bond bill, and passed and signed before one-tenth of the members knew that the change was made. It resulted in such a flood of indignation in Buffalo that Sheehan was driven from the town.

The people remember Sheehan's pushing through of the Queen City gas bill, which the New York Times said was a gigantic grab second only to the Huckleberry railroad steal.

The people remember that Sheehan, now Judge Parker's personal representative, was one of the chief lieutenants of Hill when the scandal which put the miserable Maynard on the bench and buried the Democratic party under a storm of indignant ballots was consummated.

Parker Knows His Crowd.

Judge Parker knows all the facts of Sheehan's record, all the iniquity of Hill's record, all the miserable part that Elliot Danforth played in the same dirty Maynard business, and in wonder the people have watched of late while the judge has lent the dignity of his position and exercised his power as the national candidate to bring into prominence these once notorious men.

With equal amazement they have seen Judge Parker listening to Charlie Murphy's demand that in return for the Wigwam's support Tammany Hall be allowed to name the candidate for governor, a dream that Richard Croker held so long as he could face a tolerant people on this side the Atlantic.

Tammany's Demands.

Control of the governorship was made, according to Parker's warmest advocates, the price of Tammany's fealty, and Judge Parker listened to the demand without show of indignation or sign of annoyance. Even now it is in the wind that he proposes to accede to the Tammany request unless the indignant protest from his own party up the state compels him to seek Tammany's support in some other way.

Judge Parker has further revealed what is beneath the judge's sober robe by hobnobbing with Pat McCarren, whom the judge's supporters call "a race track gambler," and who has become one of the favored guests at Esopus. He has been scheduled to be chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, and Judge Parker, instead of making no protest, has acquiesced, if he has not insisted on it, and will see the thing consummated unless it becomes necessary to buy Tammany favor by keeping McCarren in the background.

The protests which are going up against putting this state and even the affairs of the nation into the hands of such men come from the warmest advocates of Parker, but these protests find no response at Esopus. The New York Times voiced this protest the other day in these words:

> Current goings on at Esopus are not altogether of a nature to put heart and hope into Democratic bosoms. In the daily chronicle of arrivals and departures we miss some names that would adorn the list and give ground for encouragement. So far the candidate's time has been taken up with one class of counselors. There are other Democrats of a quite different class with whom, let us hope, Judge Parker will presently seek occasion to have an exchange of views.

Devery Invited.

Judge Parker forthwith began to dicker with Murphy as to the support of Croker's old organization, to hold converse with Tom Taggart, the national chairman, whom Parker's supporters say "goes into a campaign to win without bothering about the ethics of the game," and he invited the notorious Devery to come up and see him.

The "goings on at Esopus" have revealed many things that lay beneath the judicial robe which has shielded the wearer from any explanation of whether he believed he was right when he twice voted for Bryan, 16 to 1 and national dishonor.

MURPHY IN A RAGE.

The Tammany Boss Says McCarren Is In Bill Devery's Class.

The war between Murphy and McCarren in Greater New York is bitterer than ever, and is working injury to the entire Democratic outfit.

Murphy, the boss of Tammany Hall, is angry because Judge Parker, Hill, Sheehan and the others insist on putting McCarren in charge of the Democratic campaign in this state. Murphy wants to name the candidate for governor and has so informed Judge Parker.

McCarren wants to handle the funds, which the committee will have in considerable quantity if current reports are true.

His choice for governor is Grout, whom Murphy does not like.

When it was unofficially announced that McCarren was to be in charge of the campaign in this state, as head of the executive committee, Murphy was in a rage. Mr. Sheehan, who is Judge Parker's personal representative, spoke of McCarren as the coming chairman, whereupon Mr. Murphy was asked what he had to say about it.

"I've got this to say in answer to Mr. Sheehan," said Leader Murphy, with determination. "If McCarren is recognized as chairman of the executive committee of the state committee, then Devery ought to be made treasurer. They would make a good team. They're two of a kind."

JUDGE PARKER'S REWARD.

A Judgeship In Return For His Campaign Services to Hill.

[From the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.]

The New York Times is seriously and, no doubt, sincerely doing what it can to promote the presidential aspiration of Judge Parker. It is not entirely satisfied with the company he keeps, but that is a point upon which the friends of Democratic candidates must not be too fastidious.

The present interest of the Times in the sage of Esopus may make a little news dispatch from Albany which appeared in its columns after the election of 1885 of special concern to it now. The following is the dispatch:

> Albany, Nov. 11.—The work of rewarding the faithful Democrats and carrying out the deals made in the late campaign has begun. Today Governor Hill appointed Surrogate Alton B. Parker of Kingston justice of the supreme court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Westbrook. Mr. Parker is the chairman of the present Democratic state executive committee, and it is generally understood that his present promotion is a reward for his services in successfully managing the Democratic machine this fall.

The successful management of the Democratic machine that year resulted in the election of David B. Hill to the governorship. On three subsequent occasions prior to this year Governor Hill placed Judge Parker under obligation to him, and now, chiefly through Hill's devotion to the fortune of his Esopus friend, the judge is the Democratic candidate for the presidency.

DAVIS IS TOO OLD.

Mr. Davis may help the party in West Virginia, but he will hurt it wherever thoughtful men weigh the dignity and impressive possibilities in the office of vice president. If he should be elected, and if he should live, he would be eighty-five years old and more before the time would elapse during which he would have to be ready to assume the duties of the presidency. Even a somnambulistic convention ought not to suppose that the American people will look with favor upon burdening old age with such responsibility. Instead of adding strength to the ticket the selection of Mr. Davis will hurt it everywhere. Thousands who might vote for Judge Parker will not do so since a vote for him must mean a vote for his venerable running mate. A sorrier, more stupid blunder was never made by a national convention. Roosevelt and Fairbanks are much more likely to be victorious than they were when that weary gathering attempted the task of making the aged West Virginia railroad president the vice president of the United States.—Providence Journal (Ind.).

It turns out that the Republican plurality in Oregon was about 24,000—the largest ever given in the state.

THE RIVAL WEAPONS

GUNS OF THE JAPANESE AND RUSSIANS COMPARED.

The Arisaka Rifle of the Japanese of Smaller Caliber and Longer Range. The Russian Gun Not Quite So Up to Date.

The victories of the Japanese in Manchuria make it interesting to compare their methods of fighting and their weapons with those of the Russians. The repeated successes of the Japanese naturally raise the query whether their superiority over their foes on land as well as at sea is due wholly to greater strategy and courage or in part to the character of their arms. Certainly much of the success of the Japanese is due to their ability to go in light marching order and outstrip the enemy in all kinds of maneuvers. During the Boxer insurrection in China in 1900 the Japanese soldiers were notable for their ability in this respect. They pack their supplies and ammunition so that they can be moved with facility, and their ammunition is lighter than that of the enemy. As the average Japanese has a smaller physique than the average Russian soldier the fact that his ammunition is lighter is an important item. Owing to this fact he can probably carry an amount equal in efficiency, though not in weight, to that of the opposing soldier in spite of his inferiority in physique.

The rifles of the opposing armies are about equal in weight, though they are quite different in construction and carrying power. The enterprise and the capacity for being up to date which the Japanese have shown of late years in matters of industry they have also displayed in the equipment of their army and navy, and this is now proving a fortunate thing for them in their contest with a great power like Russia, which, despite its enormous resources, is slow to think and move and therefore at a disadvantage in many respects when contending with a people so agile in movement and fertile in resource as the men from the mikado's country. The best authorities on warfare now favor the manufacture of rifles of smaller caliber and longer range. The Japanese rifle has a caliber of 6.5 millimeters and carries a cartridge weighing twenty-two grams, while the weight of the Russian cartridge is twenty-six grams. The Japanese rifle, called the Arisaka because it was invented in 1897 by Colonel Arisaka of the Japanese army, carries a projectile for 2,200 feet at an elevation equal to the height of a man. The Russian rifle carries its bullet at this height for 1,700 feet. The initial velocity of the Arisaka rifle is 2,356 feet per second, which is 300 feet faster than that of the Russian rifle.

Japanese. Russian.
THE GUNS AND BAYONETS OF JAPANESE AND RUSSIAN SOLDIERS.

So far the comparison of equipment seems to favor the Japanese. But it is to be remembered that at a certain range the rifles used by the Japanese have the capacity of making very clean holes in the soldiers hit, and this is not an advantage in warfare, as a man may be wounded without being stopped from fighting unless the bullet pierces a vital spot. A bullet moving slower is apt to do more damage provided the range is right. However, at short range the Japanese bullets are able to do plenty of damage to those hit. A high velocity rifle has greater penetration and therefore makes cleaner holes at long than short range. Much of the fighting between the Japanese and the Russians has been at short range.

Individually the Japanese are very good fighters at short range, the old samurai traditions being to some extent responsible for this. Then, too, they do not seem to care how many men are lost so long as the victory is on their side. In the battle fought for the possession of the mountain chain north of Port Arthur the Japanese infantry took a chain of five hills held by Russian artillery, losing 100 men in the first assault. But this assault enabled them to carry the two northerly slopes, and then after a furious artillery fight, in which the Japanese are notable for marksmanship, they scaled the remaining slopes and drove the Russians back to Kinchow.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the State of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 156 of mortgages at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

ED. PINAUD'S
EAU DE QUININE HAIR TONIC

A Positive Dandruff Cure!

Is the only Hair Tonic I have in my shop. It's the best! I have used one hundred other sorts on a thousand different heads, but never with the wonderful results that Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine has given. At first sight you would think it to my advantage to use a cheap tonic, but when I tell you that one bottle of Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine goes as far as three bottles of any other preparation, you can see that after all this is the best value I can get for the money.

For women, men and children. It cleanses the roots—feeds the cells and strengthens the hair—holds its color and gives a beautiful gloss.

DEAL WITH TAMMANY

Efforts by Parker to Give the Wigwam the Governorship.

In Return Tammany Will Be Good to the Presidential Candidate.

Tammany Hall at the start was not happy over the nomination of Parker.

Charles F. Murphy, the boss of the Wigwam, sent no message of congratulation. His braves allowed the usual early ratification of the ticket to go by default. Murphy was not consulted over the organization of the national committee. Pat McCarren, who is Murphy's "hated rival," became the "fair haired boy."

The friends of Parker began to get frightened, and so it was put up to the judge to make peace. He showed that he had been trained in political maneuvering. It is said that Judge Parker will do the best he can to turn over the state government to Tammany Hall in return for a guarantee that Tammany will support him.

Charlie Murphy, according to the dispatches, will have the privilege of selecting the candidate for governor and then throw his support to Parker.

John B. McDonald, the Tammany contractor who built the subway, is said to be making the negotiations.

Hill may object when the state convention is held, and there is much speculation as to Parker's ability to control him if he really wants an up state man for the candidate.

Parker's alliance with Tammany, if it should prove to be ironclad and result in overriding Hill and putting Murphy in line to control the state government, would bring a result long contended for by Croker before he turned the management of the Wigwam over to Murphy.

It would remain to be seen if it added to Parker's strength in the up state counties.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years; tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worst. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like." Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

Quaint Story of Victor Hugo.

In the diary of Sir Montstuart Grant Duff the following story is told regarding Victor Hugo: An ardent admirer once said to Hugo: "The nation has never treated you quite properly; no street has been called after you; there ought to be a Rue Victor Hugo." "That will come, my children; that will come," said the master. Then another disciple took up the running and said: "A street! That indeed would be nothing, a whole quarter of the city should be called after you." "That will come, my children; that will come," said the master. Thereupon a third disciple joined in: "Paris should cease to be Paris, and be renamed City of Victor Hugo." "That will come, my children; that will come," said Hugo serenely.

His Experience With Love.

"Do you think that love is a disease?"

"Well, it makes me feel far from well at times."

"You? Why, I didn't know you were in love."

"I'm not. But I sit opposite it at a boarding house table three times a day."—Kansas City Journal.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.

Long Winded Orators.

Edmund Burke's greatest speech is generally considered to have been the one on "Conciliation with America." The report of the speech, supplied by Burke himself, runs to as many as thirty-two pages. It contains over 30,000 words. It, therefore, could not have been delivered under less than five hours. It is curious, by the way, how long winded all the great British orators were in Burke's time. The older Pitt was the first to indulge in long speeches in the house of commons. After he had delivered one of these famous orations he was hailed by crowds outside the house with enthusiastic cries of "Three hours and a half! Three hours and a half!" "Just as if a man can talk sense for three hours and a half," remarked the cynical Chesterfield, who happened to pass by.

A Railroad of Curves.

The first railroad west of the Alleghanies was built from Lexington to Frankfort, Ky., in 1831. The road was laid out with as many curves as possible, the engineers declaring that this was an advantage. The cars were in two stories, the lower for women and children, the upper for men, four persons being seated in each compartment. The cars were at first drawn by mules, but after a time a locomotive was made by a Lexington mechanic. The tender was a big box for wood, and a hogshead was provided for water which was drawn in buckets from convenient wells. In place of a cowcatcher there were two poles in front fitted with hickory brooms for sweeping the track.

De Witt is the Name.

When you go to buy Witch Hazel Salve look for the name De Witt on every box. The pure, unadulterated Witch Hazel is used in making DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which is the best salve in the world for cuts, burns, bruises, boils, eczema and piles. The popularity of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, due to its many cures, has caused numerous worthless counterfeits to be placed on the market. The genuine bears the name E. C. De Witt & Co., Chicago. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

His Explanation.

"All men," said Mr. Meekton, who was preparing a speech, "are created equal."

"What did you observe?" asked his wife.

"I said all men are created equal. That is to say, that they are equal to one another. This, of course, is not meant to imply that they are the equal of their wives."—Washington Star.

A Summer Cold.

A Summer cold is not only annoying but if not relieved pneumonia will be the probable result by Fall. One Minute Cough Cure clears the phlegm, draws out the inflammation, heals, soothes and strengthens the lungs and bronchial tubes. One Minute Cough Cure is an ideal remedy for the children. It is pleasant to the taste and perfectly harmless. A certain cure for Croup, Cough and Cold. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

Cut Rates.

Patient (regarding his lacerated face in the mirror)—You surely are not going to charge me full price for that shave? Barber—Ain't I? Why not? Patient—I think you ought to give me cut rates!

Unsuitable Business.

Doctor—What are you by profession? Patient—Oh, I'm—er—er—a gentleman. Doctor—I should try something else then. It doesn't agree with you.—New Yorker.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and to-day weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

I find nothing better for liver derangement and constipation than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.—L. F. ANDREWS, Des Moines, Iowa. For Sale by H. C. Geisler.

Testing a Razor.

The economical young man took his razor to one of the best barbers in town to be honed. Returning to get it, he found it ready for him.

"I'll warrant that edge," said the barber.

"It does look pretty sharp," said the man, and he began to feel of the edge with his thumb.

"But I won't warrant it if you do that," declared the barber. "It's the worst thing you could possibly do. You might better cut your nails with it than run your finger across the edge once, or shave with it for a month. There's nothing like knowing a thing or two," the barber added.—Exchange.

The Voice of the Turtle Dove.

One of the most complete misapprehensions with regard to the voices of birddom occurs when we listen to the monosyllabic coo of the restful turtle dove. By no means a musical sound in itself, yet it is so bound up in our minds with the sleepy glamour of summer afternoons that we imagine the sitting dove as crooning to herself from sheer contentment with her lot. Very different is the reality. That drowsy monosyllable is the voice of the male dove, not of the hen upon the nest, and while he utters it his antics are ludicrous to observe. Usually he is giving peremptory orders to his wife to get off the nest, in order that he may take her place, and if she hesitates to obey he enforces his commands with sharp pecks upon the head. At other times he seems merely to order her off the nest for the pleasure of witnessing her devotion to his person, after which he will suddenly become abstracted in manner and presently go off to the feeding place.—London Graphic.

The Tyrant Prima Donna.

It is the rarest thing to find that any famous prima donna ever "created" a new role of any artistic importance or associated herself with the interpretation of the music of any young composer, no matter how gifted. Her choice of songs in the concert room alternates between hackneyed favorites and absolutely worthless novelties. Alone among the great executants, the prima donna has been conspicuous for her abstinence from any efforts to achieve distinction as a composer.

Handel had a short way with the prima donna, and threatened to throw her out of the window if she would not sing what he had written for her. Wagner went further, and refused to write for the prima donna at all. And Verdi, in "Falstaff," did throw her out of the window and gave the leading part to a baritone. To the music lover the prima donna is a nuisance, and a very expensive one.—"Diversions of a Music Lover."

Millepeds.

The little creature which possesses the distinction of having more legs than any other animal is that which belongs to the family of insects known as millepeds, or thousand footed. There are several different species of these but they all possess the common characteristic of having segmented bodies, each segment of which is provided with its own pair of feet. These are set so closely along the body as to resemble hairs, and when they move one after another with perfect regularity the effect is precisely the same on a small scale as that of a field of oats undulating under the influence of the wind. Some species of millepeds have as many as 350 separate and distinct legs. They are all perfectly harmless unlike the centipeds, which frequently have the power of inflicting poisonous wounds.

Taken With Cramps.

William Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines—Elkader (Iowa) Argus.

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

The First Phenix.

Legend tells us that the first phenix was born in the garden of Eden and had its nest in a great red rose—the first rose that ever bloomed. When the angel drove Adam and Eve out of paradise a spark of fire fell from the angel's fiery sword and burned up the phenix and his nest. Out of the ashes sprang a glorious bird, which also lived 500 years before mysteriously burning itself, at every recurrence of which a new phenix is said to arise.

Cholera Infantum.

This disease has lost its terrors since Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy came into general use. The uniform success which attends the use of this remedy in all cases of bowel complaints in children has made it a favorite wherever its value has become known. For sale by H. C. Giesler.

A Compromise.

"Your account has been standing a long time, Mr. Dukey."

"Then give it a seat, my dear Shears."

"Very glad to, sir; shall we make it a receipt?"—London Tit-Bits.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Disraeli's Devoted Wife.

On the way down to Hatfield Mrs. Disraeli had a fall on the premises of a dealer in marble and cut her face most severely. When she reached her destination she took her hostess aside and said: "My husband is preparing a great speech. If he finds out that I have had this accident he will be quite upset. I want you take me straight up to my room and say I've a headache. He has lost his eyeglass, and if you put me a long way from him at dinner he will never see what condition I am in." The plan answered admirably, and Disraeli did not find out what had happened for two days.—Diary of Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

The Passion For Giving.

"Giving becomes a disease in time," remarked a West Philadelphia woman who had had some experience in very practical forms of charitable work. "It is delightful to most of us to be assured that some deed of ours has given great pleasure or done much good. Indeed, it gives more satisfaction than many deeds acted out from the most purely selfish motives and will appeal to us after these more selfish pleasures cease to please. It takes a terrific hold on many people. Women who have been able to give liberally have continued after they had nothing of value, sending silly, wornout finery that could not possibly be of use to anybody. But they have tasted the joy of conferring benefits, of receiving gratitude, and they simply can't deny themselves. Why, people have stolen that they might not have to give up the pleasure of bestowing gifts! Nothing can exceed the lengths to which this passion for giving will carry its victims."—Philadelphia Record.

A Perfect Painless Pill

is the one that will cleanse the system, set the liver to action, remove the bile, clear the complexion, cure headache and leave a good taste in the mouth. The famous little pills for doing such work pleasantly and effectually are De Witt's Little Early Risers. Bob Moore of Lafayette, Ind. says: "All other pills I have used gripe and sicken, while De Witt's Little Early Risers are simply perfect." Sold by H. C. Geisler.

Force of Habit.

Speaking of force of habit, some years ago there was an iron railing around the capitol grounds at Washington. The appropriation bill provided for a watchman to close and lock the gates every night at a certain hour and open them at a certain hour every morning. In the course of time the railing or fence was removed, but the gates swung between their Egyptian pillars for a long time, and all that time the watchman came and went regularly, closing and opening the gates according to law and drawing his salary.

Monkey Puzzle Tree.

One of the most remarkable trees in the world grows in California and in place of leaves has spiky scales. The trunk and all of the branches are entirely covered with these scales, which are so sharp that even a monkey would find it out of the question to climb such a tree. Hence its name, "monkey puzzle tree," which is admirably descriptive.

What She Played, Merely.

PREVENT APPENDICITIS

What Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine, did for Mr. George A. Owen.

Appendicitis is prevented by the prompt use of Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. Kennedy's new medicine. When the bowels are not performing their functions regularly and constipation results then there is danger of an attack of appendicitis. The proper treatment is to strengthen and at the same time cleanse the bowels. For this purpose Cal-cura Solvent has been found extremely certain and thorough.

Mr. George H. Owen, of Hardenburgh, N. Y., was advised by four physicians to enter a hospital and have an operation for appendicitis performed, but he heard of Cal-cura Solvent and used it with the most gratifying results. All symptoms of appendicitis were removed and he has been in perfect health ever since. Mr. Owen's attack was unusually severe and dangerous, and he is confident Cal-cura Solvent saved his life. $1.00; all druggists.

Lackawanna Summer Resorts Described.

"Mountain and Lake Resorts" is the title of an attractive publication issued by the passenger depatment of the Lackawanna Railroad. The book is intended to give readable and reliable information about vacation places along that road, and its 128 pages are filled with suggestions for those seeking Summer homes.

The various hotels and boarding places, their location, rates and facilities are accurately described, and in addition there are two large maps of the territory reached by the Lackawanna, showing the principal roads, streams, lakes and other topographical features on a large scale. These maps are in colors and were especially designed for this edition. More than 100 half-tones add to the interest of the book, and a brightly written love story, entitled "A Chance Courtship," completes its contents.

The book may be had by sending the necessary postage of 10 cents to T. W. Lee, general passenger agent, Lackawanna Railroad, New York.

SIOUX CITY.

It Has Passed Through the "Boom" Period and Is Now Enjoying Unprecedented Prosperity.

EDITOR TIMES: Sioux City today does not look much as it did the day I first saw it in 1889. Then the streets were unpaved and mules were drawing the dinkey little street cars. Three-story buildings were the exception and barnlike structures passed for hotels. That was before "the boom" did its worst. In 1893 the boom bubble burst, and everything went flat. The city dwindled from 75,000 to less than 30,000 inhabitants; great buildings that would do honor to a much larger place remained unfinished, and everything stood still. The boom days were great days, and big scars in the hills at the outskirts of the city and miles beyond indicate the site of "somebody's addition" to Sioux City. Mere dreams! for the city lots have long since reverted to farm land, and nothing remains among the numberless additions except some cuts and fills in what would have been streets, to show that people some times dream fairy stories that are never finished. Gradually time and the law have untied some of the knots that the boomers fastened upon the town, and Sioux City began to recover, and to search for a solid footing. Today 50,000 people are claimed as citizens and Sioux City is again known as a conservative town. It is true that the effects of the boom have not entirely disappeared, but they are fast leaving. Last month, a club house (the finest west of Chicago) that twelve years ago cost $125,000 to build and furnish was sold for $25,000 to satisfy a mortgage.

To fully understand the spirit and the men who brought Sioux City to the notice of the world at large (and [illegible] popular novels, and demonstrates the rise and fall of booms and get rich-quick schemes. Mr. Quick is a Sioux City lawyer, has been its Mayor, and came here long before the boom. He is a close observer and a pleasant writer.

Today Sioux City is prosperous, the streets are paved, clean and well lighted. It has a fine consolidated traction system, owns its water supply, and is growing steadily and quickly. Larger and better buildings are now being built, and the city has "grown up" to some of the advanced ideas of the boomers.

Under a Democratic administration open gambling houses are again in existence, after having been closed for ten years, and soon the city will reap the off-sets for the revenues received in increased expenses in the courts, jails and prisons, to say nothing of the lives blighted by small and large defalcations. I would like to see an accurate ledger kept, showing the credits and debits in the accounts of the gamblers of a city, for just one year. Some taxpayers would open their eyes.

One hundred and six thousand people from all over the land registered in Uncle Sam's land lottery in the drawing for the 2,400 quarter sections of Rosebud land that our uncle had to give away.

The crowds that went through Sioux City to Yankton and Bonesteel to register appeared to be crazy in some ways. Could not get there fast enough. After the first choice quarters are gone the acres will be of unknown value, and it is indeed, strange that so many would be willing to stand the expenses of registration and five years of homesteading, in order to pay $4 per acre for land that can be bought outright at a less figure in other parts of the Dakotas. Men and women must all be gamblers at heart. Bonesteel during the registration, went into partnership with the gamblers and grafters, and reaped a harvest of riot, bloodshed and money loss. The gamblers took out $75,000 in two weeks' time, and this represents money taken from farmers and strangers who came to register. No one will ever know just how many were killed and injured, for until the better element of citizens drove the thugs all out at the end of their shot guns, no one's life was safe.

Sioux City's baby show for the benefit of a local charity was held "at the sign of the president and the stork" which clearly demonstrated that our president sometimes gets into queer company. Prizes were given to the baby with the reddest hair; the ones that looked most like mamma and papa, and the most amiable one was fined 50 cents. The best looking baby was not in it at all, and so this made the lives of the judges secure and their decisions were impartial.

Iowa and Nebraska are looking for what is called "a bumper crop" this Fall and most of the farmers will be riding in automobiles, for with the great demand for hogs and cattle that will surely come when this present packing house strike is over. With [illegible] large crop of corn that they will have to harvest, the horny handed sons of toil will surely have the money world at their feet. This has been an exceptional Summer, for the showers and sunshine have been so well placed that every thing that was intended to grow has increased ten fold.

Yesterday I saw a lot of the once dreaded Russian thistles. What a scare this really harmless plant gave the farmers a few years ago. Every one thought it would drive the people off the farms and into bankruptcy. State legislatures united with the farmers to exterminate the pest and after the scare subsided, people went about their other business and the Russian thistle attended to its own. No one pays any attention to it now, but the sheep and the goats eat it greedily, and cows sometimes try it when the grass gets short. The fad is dead and something else is exciting the people.

BALDWINSVILLE'S WATER CARNIVAL.

Members of Pathfinder Boat Club of This City Will Attend—Fulton Will be Well Represented.

The water carnival which is to be held on the Seneca River at Baldwinsville next Friday evening promises to be one of the events of the season. Invitations have been extended to owners of launches in Syracuse and nearby towns and it is expected a large num- [illegible] will cover the river for nearly a mile above the dam with an ever changing kaleidoscope of color. With puffing launches aglow with rainbow-hued lights, and gayly decorated small boats gliding over the surface of the Seneca with music and mirth, all presided over by a large full August moon, the scene will be one of life and animation that will charm and delight the eye of the most critical.

The manufacturing plants and other buildings along the river are to be decorated and illuminated Prior to the opening of the carnival the Morris Hose company will give an exhibition drill in Canal street.

A special invitation has been extended to the members of Pathfinder Boat Club of this city to attend with their launches and to participate in the festivities. The invitation has been accepted and Fulton promises to be well represented.

School Work Begins September 6.

The public schools of the city open for regular work on Tuesday, Sept. 6.

MARRIED.

Last Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock, Mr. Bernard J. O'Grady and Miss Marguerite D. Blount were united in marriage by the Rev. P. J. Kearney at the parochial residence, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride, who was most exquisitely gowned in white silk batiste, with waist garniture of gauze point, carried a boquet of bride's roses and was attended by Miss Katherine O'Grady, sister of the groom. Miss O'Grady's gown was of white lace and she carried pink roses. Mr. George Pomphret was groomsman. A wedding reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pilch, to which two hundred guests had been invited.

The reception rooms were elaborately decorated with palms, Boston ferns, hydrangea blooms and other cut flowers and presented a charming appearance. The guests were cordially greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. Pilch and then were conducted into the back parlor where the bride and groom received hearty congratulations; the bridesmaid and groomsman receiving with them. Buell's full orchestra was stationed in the reception room and rendered delightful music during the reception and luncheon hours.

The dining room was most beautiful, the predominating colors being pink and white, and smilax was used in profusion. Pink-shaded candelabras were used at the corners and in the center of the table. Mrs. George E Mason and Mrs. C. C. Harrison of Brooklyn, presided at the table and the guests were served by the Misses Cornelia Harrison of Brooklyn, Myrtis Gilbert, Cora LaLonde and Goldie Parks of this city. The ribbons were held by Mrs. J. R. Church of Springfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Grady left on the evening train for Big Moose Lake, where they will spend two weeks. They will also visit relatives in Greene before returning to this city, where [illegible] friends who are camping at Old Forge met them at the train at that place and greeted them with a rice shower.

The gifts are rich and numerous, nearly all the necessaries for housekeeping being presented; many from relatives and friends miles removed from Fulton. The bride has resided in this city nearly all of her life and is very popular with her friends for her cordial manner and happy disposition. The groom is the popular proprietor of "The Toggery" and is one of our progressing business men. The young couple start their married life under auspicious circumstances and with the best wishes of a large circle of acquaintances.

HUNTER GUN CLUB'S VICTORY.

Messrs. MacMurchy, Lewis and Chapman of this City Win a $1,800 Cup.

The State shoot, held under the auspices of the Buffalo Audubon Gun Club closed last Friday. The card was made up of features, chief among them being the race for the Dean Richmond cup, a solid silver trophy worth $1,800, which was formerly shot for at live birds, targets now being used. It was won by the Hunter Gun Club of this City, the team of three being composed of Harvey MacMurchy, George Lewis and Captain I. K. Chapman. Their combined total was 66 out of 75.

The second team was the Baldwinsville Gun Club of Baldwinsville, made up of Charles Marvin, C. J. Dailey and Windsor Morris. The team was but one target back of the winners, 65 out of 75. Three other Buffalo teams competed and ran in the order named: Infallible, Audubon and Jefferson.

The high man in the State event was Harvey MacMurchy, with 457 out of 485, with which figures he captured a loving cup donated by the shooters of New York city. The second man was C. W. Hart, with 446; third, F. D. Kelsey, with 444; fourth, C. W. Floyd, with 441. The Canadian trophy was captured by Thomas Upton of Hamilton, Ont.

HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION.

Informal Meeting and Inspection of Articles and Papers Connected with the Early Settlement of This Section.

Although there was not a large attendance at the meeting held in the office of Mr. G. F. Schenck, last Friday evening, for the purpose of organizing a historical society, yet considerable interest was manifested and the result was an informal talk and an inspection of many articles of historic value which Mr. Schenck has collected from time to time, some of which are heirlooms, and are identified with the early settlement of this section. Mr. Schenck's idea in the formation of the society is to turn the articles and papers over to some responsible association which would assume care of them.

Mr. Ovid Taft was present and he expressed the opinion that if such an association were formed it should embrace in its membership the towns of Volney, Granby and Schroeppel. The ranks of the Old Settlers' Association, he stated, were being depleted by death and incidents connected with the early settlement of this section should be preserved for future generations and would prove a valuable acquisition.

Without any specific plan being formulated, it was decided to adjourn the meeting until a future date.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Effort to Secure Manufacturing Industries in Fulton Handicapped by Scarcity of Local Capital Seeking Investment.

The Chamber of Commerce is most active in its endeavor to secure the location of manufacturing industries in Fulton. The scarcity of capital seeking investment in this city is often a serious hindrance—a condition difficult to surmount. The following letter is published for the purpose of illustrating the fact that every reasonable effort is made by the officers of the Chamber, including Secretary B. W. Bennett, to interest manufacturing concerns in this [illegible] ted $25,000 from investors, the same to be secured by first-mortgage bonds on the plant to be erected therewith. This sum could not be raised by the Chamber at the time, although an earnest effort was made to do so. As considerable interest was manifested in the proposition, Secretary Bennett has requested The Times to publish the following letter:

"Your favor of last week was received just as I was leaving town for a trip into Connecticut. I had an invitation to a town where they want industries. I met with a good reception and after I had stated what we needed, they appointed a committee to go to Boston and started in to take up a subscription. They raised $15,000 while I was there. I took the committee to the factory and gave them a 12-mile ride in one of our latest vehicles. They were so delighted that they assured me they would see us through. They also deed to us two acres of land with a switch to railroad, so I presume we shall be able to close with them. I thank you very much for the interest you took in our matter and hope some day to renew our acquaintance. We would have liked to locate in Fulton if it could have been brought about. Again thanking you for your good wishes, I am,

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. HUGHES,
President United Motor & Vehicle Co.

Explosion of Gasoline.

On Friday evening Mr. J. J. Parker, accompanied by Herbert Keyes, went to his boat house to investigate some trouble with his gasoline launch. They carried a lighted lantern with them and Mr. Parker stepped into the boat taking the lantern with him. He had just reached the engine when a terrific explosion took place, throwing Mr. Parker into the water. Mr. Keyes who stood in the door of the boathouse, was thrown down by the force of the concussion. Gasoline had escaped from a defective union in the gasoline pipe and ignited from the flame in the lantern. Mr. Parker was badly burned and was compelled to go to Dr. Fox's office in Oneida street to have his burns dressed. He is all right again but it was a narrow escape for him.

ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS BANNER.

Purchased by City Manufacturers, Who Also Subscribe to Declaration of Principles.

The handsome Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner, to which attention was called in last week's Times, and which is suspended from the Dilts Machine Works on North First street, was purchased by the principal manufacturers of the city, the subscription paper containing the following declaration of principles:

"Believing that the principles and doctrines embodied in the platform of the Republican party are wise and right and desiring to substantially support our noble President, Theodore Roosevelt and his eminent associate, Charles W. Fairbanks, in the campaign of 1904, we cheerfully subscribe the sums set opposite our respective names toward defraying the cost of the Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner suspended across North First street in the City of Fulton, N. Y., thereby showing to the world exactly where the manufacturers of Fulton stand in this campaign."

Iron Brigade Reunion.

The Iron Brigade will hold its second annual reunion in Syracuse on Thursday, Sept. 8, at 11:30 a. m., on the State Fair grounds. Owing to that day being designated as Veteran's Day, the Fair Association will furnish a tent, on the front of which will be inscribed "Headquarters of Iron Brigade." It is hoped there will be a large attendance, and members are especially requested to send names of survivors of the Iron Brigade to the secretary, B. H. Searing, at Saratoga Springs, whether they attend or not, so that a complete roster of the brigade can be secured. Reduced rates can be obtained on all railroads in the State during Fair week.

To Syracuse and Return, 50 Cents.

Via D. L. & W. R. R. every Sunday in the year.

STEPHENS OPERA HOUSE.

For the eighth time the famous Brotherton's Famous W. W. W. Minstrels are before the public and a more finished and up-to-date minstrel show can not be found. Thirty white people, all artists, will come in their own private car with an equipment that is complete. The elaborate costumes and gorgeous stage settings are of an exclusive design, the like of which has never before been seen. At the noon hour a magnificent street parade will be given and in the evening an open air concert of both classic and modern music. A clean, high-class, up-to-date minstrel troupe is this that will appear at the Stephens Opera House, Saturday afternoon and evening, Sept. 3d. No one should fail to attend.

House and Lot for Sale.

I will sell to the right party the house and lot on west Fifth street, formerly occupied by Oscar E. Clark, cheap, upon the installment plan, viz.: $25 down and $10 per month, with privilege of paying more, if desired. The house is nearly new, in good repair and has city water.

Here is a chance for a man earning fair wages to pay for a home. Inquire of

Sale of School Bonds.

Notice is hereby given that I will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the law office of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton, New York, on the 27th day of Aug. 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m., at not less than par, ten (10) bonds of two hundred (200) dollars each amounting to two thousand (2,000) dollars, against School District No. 9 of the town of Volney, County of Oswego, New York, each to be dated August 27th, 1904, numbered consecutively from one to ten inclusive, one payable each year for ten years, each bearing annual interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum until paid. Said bonds will be issued for the purpose of borrowing money with which to build a new school house in said district, a tax having been duly voted therefor to be collected in installments. I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated August 16th, 1904.

GEORGE O. DUMAS,
Sole Trustee of School District Number Nine, Town of Volney, N. Y.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

For Furnishing and Laying Ten-inch Water Main in South Fourth Street, from End of Present Water Main to First Street.

CITY OF FULTON, N. Y., }
BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS }

Sealed proposals for the above-mentioned work, endorsed "Proposals for water main," will be received at the office of the City Clerk, Fulton, N. Y., until 7.30 o'clock p. m., of the 1st day of September, 1904.

The following estimate of quantities is to be considered only as approximate, and bidders are required to form their own judgment of the quantities and character of the work by personal examination of the specifications and drawings relating to it, or such other means as they may prefer. Bidders must not assert any misunderstanding in regard to anything relating to the work.

The contractors shall have no claim against the city by reasons of any variation between the quantities of the approximate estimate and the quantities of the work as done, nor on account of any misunderstanding or misconception of the nature and character of the work.

The several bids will be computed, tested and canvassed by the quantities and qualities mentioned in the following estimate:

CLASS A—Furnishing free on board cars, Fulton, N. Y.:

56 Tons 10-inch cast-iron water-pipe.
500 Pounds special castings.

CLASS B—

57 Tons unloading, hauling and distributing 10-inch pipe and specials.
2,000 Lineal feet trenching and refilling for 10-inch pipe.
2,000 Lineal feet placing, laying, jointing and calking in place complete, 10-inch cast-iron pipe.

Each bid must be made out on the forms of proposal furnished by the City Clerk or Board of Public Works, and must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, addressed to the City Clerk of Fulton, N. Y.

The prices for which bidders will agree to execute and perform each class of work must be written in ink in both words and figures in the form of bid, and all bids will be considered informal which do not contain prices set opposite each and all of the items which are called for in printed forms for bids, except as provided or which are otherwise not in conformity with this notice. No bid will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever, after it has been deposited with the Clerk of the Board.

Bidders are required to state in their bids, under oath, their names and places of residence, the names of all persons interested with them in said bids, also that the bid is made without any connection with any person making another bid for the same contract, and that the bid is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud.

Contractors will be paid monthly, approximate estimates, 85 per cent. of the amount due for work at that time done.

Within thirty days after the fulfilling of the contract, the final estimate will be paid in full to the contractor, less amounts previously advanced, except on class B, on which 10 per cent. of the contract price will be retained three months after the pipe has been in service, not including December, January and February, for the purpose of keeping the work in good repair. The unexpended balance will be paid to the contractor.

The person, or persons, whose bid shall be accepted, will be required to attend at the office of the Board of Public Works with the sureties offered by him, or them, and execute the contract and bond within ten days from the date of the service of a notice to that effect, delivered to him in person, or mailed to the address given in the bid. In case of failure or neglect to do so, he, or they, will be deemed to have abandoned the contract.

The sum of $100.00 for each class (currency or a certified check), payable to the order of the Chamberlain of the City of Fulton, N. Y., will be required to accompany each bid. All such deposits except that of the bidder whose bid shall have been accepted, will be returned to the person or persons making the same, within three days after the contract is awarded. If the successful bidder, whose bid shall have been accepted, shall refuse or neglect to execute the contract within ten days after the notice that it has been awarded to him, or them, the amount of deposit made by him or them will be forfeited to and be retained by the City of Fulton, N. Y., as liquidated damages for such neglect or refusal; but if he or they shall execute the contract and bond within the time aforesaid, the amount of his or their deposit will be returned to him or them.

A bond in the sum of $500.00 for each class conditioned for the faithful performance of this contract, with sureties to be approved by the Board of Public Works, will be required.

Bids may be submitted for either class A or class B, or both, but the Board of Public Works reserves the right to award separate contracts therefore and also reject any or all bids not deemed for the interest of the city.

Plans may be seen at the office of the Board of Public Works, and specifications, forms of proposal, etc., obtained from the City Clerk or Superintendent of Public Works.

By order of Board of Public Works of the City of Fulton, N. Y.

A Fortunate Young Lady.

Miss Jennie Martin, 176 North Paul street, Rochester, N. Y., says, I suffered long from kidney complaints; home physicians and their medicine failed to afford me relief. A friend induced me to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy made at Rondout, N. Y. The effect was wonderful. By the time I had taken two bottles I was completely cured and have had no trouble since.

Sunday School Picnic.

The union picnic of the Bristol Hill, Mt. Pleasant and Hawk's Sunday schools was held on Tuesday of last week in Eckert's grove. About three hundred were present and all greatly enjoyed themselves. The weather looked threatening early in the day, but by noon the sky had cleared and the sun came out beautifully for the afternoon. When dinner was over the following athletic events were run off:

200 yard dash—won by Herman Foster; Fred Vant, second.

100 yard dash—won by Charles Baldwin; Charles Howard, second.

Potato race—won by Jesse Whitney; William Atwater, second.

Running broad jump—won by Fred Vant; Herman Foster, second.

Standing broad jump—won by Charles Baldwin; Sylvester Keller, second.

Tug of war—won by the single men.

A game of ball was played between Volney and Mt. Pleasant. The Volney boys won by a large score.

The Volney Centre cornet band was present and discoursed pleasing music during the day.

Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement, "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed.."—Rev. Francis W. Poole, Paster Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mont.

After using Ely's Cream Balm six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh.—Joseph Stewart, Grand ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cents or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

A New Farm Free.

One that is sure to suit you with the same buildings, water and fences you have now. How is it done? Simple enough. Just use the "easy draft" and "easy to hold" Le Roy Plow that with no more horse power than the other makes will get down and turn up a new farm under the old one. This soil has rested for years and will bear good crops. Buy the Le Roy Plow and you will use no other. Sold by E. Quirk, Fulton.

Don't Worry and Don't Hurry.

Send a two-cent stamp to George H. Daniels, General Passenger agent, New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, New York, and he will forward you a copy of a little leaflet bearing the above title, which will be sure to interest you.

GOT EVERYBODY GUESSING.

Business World is Asking How it is That a Corning, N. Y., Concern Can Sell Choice Family Groceries Cheaper Than All Competitors—The Real Reason.

Grocer—to former customer: "How is it, Mr. Wright, that I don't get your trade any more?"

Mr. W.: "Well, to be frank, I am now buying this Signature Line from Brown over here as you don't keep them. My wife sent and got the catalog of a big Corning concern and we spent about a week o' evenings studying it. It stated that this concern had been handling choice groceries, teas, coffees, household supplies, etc., for more 'n 40 years. It said that their long experience had prepared them to handle goods at the least expense and their big capital enabled them to buy large quantities of merchandise for the least money. Then it went on to tell how they had originated what they call 'Signature Brands' of groceries. This 'Signature' business kind o' bothered Mandy and me at first, but Cora—that's our eldest daughter who had just graduated from the High school—explained that the 'Signature Brands' are choice family groceries put up in sealed packages by this firm. This, she said, guarantees both quantity and quality and absolute cleanliness. The firm's name is written across their seal on each package and stands for quality and character in the goods. These signatures are to be saved, as each one is valuable according to the amount of goods one buys. For instance, eight signatures cut from packages of Old Holland Coffee the firm puts up are equal to 400 points. These points are accepted in payment for any one of a list of 300 premiums. Thus each signature is valuable."

Grocer: "What's the name of this concern?"

Mr. W.: "C. R. Maltby Company of Corning, N. Y."

Grocer: "You ought to have experience enough by this time to know that they add the cost of these premiums to the price of the goods they sell."

Mr. W.: "It's natural for you, being in the same line o' business, to think that way. We did too, at first, but seein' as how we actually get better and more tea, coffee, flour, etc., in these 'Signature Brands,' we had to change our minds. Since we get these groceries cheaper 'n we ever got any before, Mandy 'lows that the premiums in silverware, cut-glass, chinaware, furniture, etc., are purty convenient things to have and are clear gain. These we get in exchange for the signature which is written on each package."

Grocer: "Somebody has to pay for these premiums and the chances are they are a snide lot anyway."

Mr. W.: "We were suspicious of them at first, but in their catalog it said that every article had been carefully selected and is of standard value and many of them are made specially for The C. R. Maltby Company. We asked our bank about this house and they told us there is none better and that their word is as good as their bond. We then began to use their 'Signature Brand' of groceries; we sent in the signatures and got a set o' silverware and other things and they are as pretty as a big, red apple and have never tarnished. By using their goods exclusively, the signatures accumulate rapidly and we get a lot of premiums."

Grocer: "You seem to have been studying this question of getting high-class groceries for the least money."

Mr. W.: "Yes, and there are others. The time is here when the women folks are going to buy where they can get the best goods for the least money. Don't you forget it!"

The Robin and the Rat.

One day while a gentleman of Porthallow, St. Keverne, was walking past a farm in the neighborhood he was attracted by a robin, which flew about him, flapped its wings in his face some two or three times, and appeared greatly excited and distressed. He watched the robin for some time, and followed it toward a hedge a short distance away. There he found a rat which had got into the bird's nest and was devouring one of the young birds. At the sight of the gentleman the rat jumped out and was promptly knocked senseless. When the robin saw the rat lying on the road she flew at him and pecked him viciously. There were four young birds in the nest; one was killed, but the other three were unhurt.—St. James' Gazette.

THIS is the day of the natural waisted woman. The W. B. Erect Form has changed the American figure. It has supplanted discomfort with ease—it has banished the impossible and exaggerated figure produced by the old corset idea. It removes the strain of lacing from the sensitive parts of the body and throws all pressure upon the hips and the strong back muscles, supporting the stomach within the corset and not forcing it below the garment. The Erect Form is made in more models than ever before. There are forty distinct styles of this popular make, each meant for a distinct type of woman. Dealers in all sized towns and cities the land over, sell the Erect Form. Prices range upward from $1.

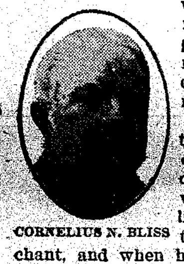
Men Who Run the Republican Campaign

THE political campaign of 1904 has now begun in earnest, and at the national headquarters of the Republican and Democratic parties in New York city all is bustle and activity. From now until election day the political pot will be kept boiling. The national Democratic headquarters is in the new Century building, at 1 West Thirty-fourth street, New York, while the Republican national committee has established offices in the splendid marble building at the corner of Madison avenue and Twenty-third street, where an extensive suit of rooms is devoted to the work of the committee. It is here that George B. Cortelyou, chairman of the Republican national committee, may usually be found. A western headquarters has also been opened in Chicago with Elmer Dover, secretary of the committee, in charge.

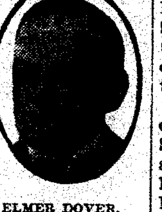
The men who run the Republican campaign are the members of the national committee, and most of this work devolves on the chairman, secretary, treasurer and an executive committee of eight members. In the campaigns of 1896 and 1900 the chairman of the Republican national committee was the late Senator Hanna. In choosing as chairman for this campaign a comparatively young man like George Bruce Cortelyou the Republicans made a new departure. Mr. Cortelyou was selected because of his intimate association with the president and because his close acquaintance with the issues upon which the battle must be fought, together with the capacity for organization he has developed, made him seem well adapted for the place. The president wanted him in this position, and the members of the committee deferred to his wish. Mr. Cortelyou is just forty-two years of age, and ten years ago he was stenographer to President Cleveland. Faithful service as private secretary to the president, first with McKinley and later with Roosevelt, won him promotion to the important post of secretary of the new department of commerce and labor.

GEORGE B. CORTELYOU.



CORNELIUS N. BLISS

Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the committee, is one of the heavy-weights of Republican politics, though he is a merchant, and when he has held official position it has been rather a case of the office seeking the man than the man the office. He was the treasurer of the Republican committee in the campaigns of 1892, 1896 and 1900. He was born in Fall River, Mass., in 1833, educated in the public schools and at an academy in that town and at the New Orleans high school. His business success was attained as a member of a New York firm of dry goods commission merchants. Mr. Bliss was a member of the pan-American conference of 1890, has been president of the Protective Tariff league and chairman of the New York state Republican committee. President McKinley appointed him secretary of the interior. He has several times been talked of as the candidate of his party for governor of New York, but has each time declined to permit his name to be presented to the convention.



ELMER DOVER.

The late Senator Hanna's connection with the committee is continued, it might be said, in the person of the secretary, Elmer Dover, who was the secretary of the Ohio senator. Mr. Hanna reposed great confidence in him. Mr. Dover is a newspaper man and began his career as an editor of Ohio papers at the early age of sixteen. He will feel at home in charge of the Republican headquarters in Chicago, for he did work at the western headquarters in that city in the campaign of 1896, and it was then that he attracted the attention of Senator Hanna. Mr. Dover is thirty years of age, is married and has two daughters.

NATHAN B. SCOTT.

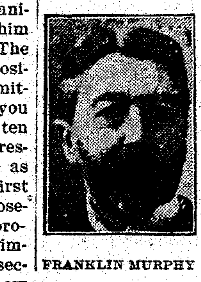
The executive committee of the national committee consists of eight members, as follows: Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut, Nathan B. Scott of West Virginia, Franklin Murphy of New Jersey, William L. Ward of New York, Harry S. New of Indiana, Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, R. B. Schneider of Nebraska and David W. Mulvane of Kansas. The first four named are assigned to the eastern headquarters at New York and the rest to the western headquarters at Chicago.

Charles Frederick Brooker was born at Litchfield, Conn., in 1847. He is a self made man and has been successful as banker, manufacturer and railroad man. He has been a member of the Connecticut state senate and was a delegate at large to the Republican national convention of 1900. He belongs to the Union League club and various other social, political and business organizations of New York. His residence is at Ansonia, Conn., although he has a business office in New York.

HARRY S. NEW.

Nathan Bay Scott is United States senator from West Virginia. He was born in 1842 at Quaker City, O. What learning he acquired as a youth was obtained at the village school, and at an early age he became a clerk in the village store. When the civil war broke out he abandoned the work of doing up sugar and flour and tea and enlisted in the Union army. After the war he located at Wheeling, W. Va., and took up the manufacture of glass. He became wealthy in this business, and in 1880 entered politics as president of the Wheeling city council. In 1882 he was elected state senator, serving until 1890. He was commissioner of internal revenue from 1897 to 1899, and in the latter year was chosen a member of the United States senate. Since 1886 he has been a member of the Republican national committee.

The New family has long been prominent in the management of Republican campaigns. Harry S. New is serving a second term as member of the national committee. His father, John C. New, was a leader in the councils of the party for many years and held numerous posts of responsibility, being assistant secretary of the treasury under President Arthur and consul general at London under President Harrison. As publisher of the Indianapolis Journal, one of the most influential dailies in the middle west, Harry S. New exerts a strong influence on public opinion. He was born at Indianapolis in 1858, educated in the public schools and at Butler university, Indianapolis, and in 1896 became a member of the Indiana state senate. In the same year he was a delegate to the Republican national convention. He served in the Spanish-American war as a captain and assistant adjutant general. He has been twice married and has a beautiful home on Capital avenue, Indianapolis.



FRANKLIN MURPHY

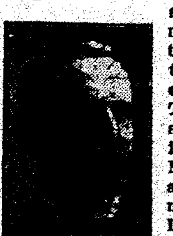
Franklin Murphy, governor of New Jersey, is a native of that state. He was born in 1846 and was attending the Newark academy when the civil war broke out. He enlisted in the Thirteenth New Jersey volunteers and served through the war, being mustered out as lieutenant. He is a manufacturer and has been chairman of the state committee of his state and president general of the Sons of the American Revolution.

FRANK O. LOWDEN.

William L. Ward is the national committeeman representing New York state. He is a wealthy manufacturer of Port Chester, a suburb of New York city, and has been for seven years chairman of the Republican committee of Westchester county. He has a fine reputation as a campaigner.

Frank Orren Lowden is a lawyer and capitalist of Chicago. He was born in Sunrise City, Minn., in 1861 and is an alumnus of the Iowa State university. He married a daughter of George M. Pullman and is an officer of several prominent financial institutions.

David W. Mulvane is reputed to be the richest man in Kansas. He emigrated to that state from Illinois in the seventies and built a flour mill at north Topeka. He now has extensive milling and lumber interests and is also engaged in banking.



JAMES A. TAWNEY.

James A. Tawney, representative in congress from Minnesota, has been assigned by Chairman Cortelyou to the management of the western speakers' bureau. Mr. Tawney was born at Gettysburg, Pa., in 1855, removed to Minnesota in 1877 and worked at the machinist's trade. In 1882 he was admitted to the bar. He was elected to the state senate in 1890 and to congress in 1893.

Mr. Tawney is the son of a blacksmith, the grandson of a blacksmith and himself worked as a boy at the forge. When fifteen he started west and walked through Pennsylvania to the Ohio river, where he took steamer to Cairo, Ill., changing there to a Mississippi river boat and going northward as far as his money would carry him. He went ashore at Winona, Minn., with 25 cents in his pocket, got a job in a blacksmith's shop and made the acquaintance of a man with whom he studied law evenings. In this way the foundation was laid for his career as lawyer and maker of laws.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS, 1904.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing amendment to article seven of the Constitution, relating to improvement of highways.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the seventh article of the Constitution be amended by adding thereto the following section: § 12. Improvement of Highways.—A debt or debts of the State may be authorized by law for the improvement of highways. Such highways shall be determined under general laws, which shall also provide for the equitable apportionment thereof among the counties. The aggregate of the debts authorized by this section shall not at any one time exceed the sum of fifty millions of dollars. The payment of the annual interest on such debt and the creation of a sinking fund of at least two per centum per annum to discharge the principal at maturity shall be provided by general laws whose force and effect shall not be diminished during the existence of any debt created thereunder. The legislature may by general laws require the county or town or both to pay to the sinking fund the proportionate part of the cost of any such highway within the boundaries of such county or town or the proportionate part of the interest thereon, but no county shall at any time for any highway be required to pay more than thirty-five hundredths of the cost of such highway, and no town more than fifteen hundredths. None of the provisions of the fourth section of this article shall apply to debts for the improvement of highways hereby authorized. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the Legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the Constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 1, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 2, 1903.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER TWO.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the constitution in relation to the time within which debts of the state must be paid and striking from said section certain limitations.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section four of article seven of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VII. § 4. Except the debts specified in sections two and three of this article, no debts shall be hereafter contracted by or in behalf of this state, unless such debt shall be authorized by a law for some single work or object, to be distinctly specified therein; and such law shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax to pay, and sufficient to pay, the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal of such debt within fifty years from the time of the contracting thereof. No such law shall take effect until it shall, at a general election have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. On the final passage of such bill in either house of the legislature, the question shall be taken by ayes and noes, to be duly entered on the journals thereof, and shall be: "Shall this bill pass, and ought the same to receive the sanction of the people?" The legislature may at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same; and may at any time, by law, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability under such law; but the tax imposed by such act, in proportion to the debt and liability which may have been contracted, in pursuance of such law, shall remain in force and be irrepealable, and be annually collected, until the proceeds thereof shall have made the provision hereinbefore specified to pay and discharge the interest and principal of such debt and liability. The money arising from any loan or stock creating such debt or liability shall be applied to the work or object specified in the act authorizing such debt or liability, or for the payment of such debt or liability, and for no other purpose whatever. No such law shall be submitted to be voted on, within three months after its passage or at any general election when any other law, or any bill, shall be submitted to be voted for or against. The legislature may provide for the issue of bonds of the state to run for a period not exceeding fifty years in lieu of bonds heretofore authorized but not issued and shall impose and provide for the collection of a direct annual tax for the payment of the same as hereinbefore required. When any sinking fund created under this section shall equal in amount the debt for which it was created, no further direct tax shall be levied on account of said sinking fund and the legislature shall reduce the tax to an amount equal to the accruing interest on such debt. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 21, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 22, 1903.—This resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section four of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the constitution in relation to justices of the appellate division of the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section two of article six of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article VI. § 2. The legislature shall divide the state into four judicial departments. The first department shall consist of the county of New York; the others shall be bounded by county lines, and be compact and equal in population as nearly as may be. Once every ten years the legislature may alter the judicial departments, but without increasing the number thereof. There shall be an appellate division of the supreme court, consisting of seven justices in the first department, and of five justices in each of the other departments. In each department four shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three shall be necessary to a decision. No more than five justices shall sit in any case. From all the justices elected to the supreme court the governor shall designate those who shall constitute the appellate division in each department; and he shall designate the presiding justice thereof, who shall act as such during his term of office, and shall be a resident of the department. The other justices shall be designated for terms of five years or the unexpired portions of their respective terms of office, if less than five years. From time to time as the terms of such designations expire, or vacancies occur, he shall make new designations. A majority of the justices so designated to sit in the appellate division, in each department shall be residents of the department. He may also make temporary designations in case of the absence or inability to act of any justice in the appellate division, or in case the presiding justice of any appellate division shall certify to him that one or more additional justices are needed for the speedy disposition of the business before it. Whenever the appellate division in any department shall be unable to dispose of its business within a reasonable time, a majority of the presiding justices of the several departments at a meeting called by the presiding justice of the department in arrears may transfer any pending appeals from such department to any other department for hearing and determination. No justice of the appellate division shall, within the department to which he may be designated to perform the duties of an appellate justice, exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court, other than those of a justice out of court, and those pertaining to the appellate division, or to the hearing and decision of motions submitted by consent of counsel, but any such justice, when not actually engaged in performing the duties of such appellate justice in the department to which he is designated, may hold any term of the supreme court and exercise any of the powers of a justice of the supreme court in any county or judicial district in any other department of the state. From and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, the appellate division shall have the jurisdiction now exercised by the supreme court at its general terms and by the general terms of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, the superior court of the city of New York, the superior court of Buffalo and the city of Brooklyn, and such additional jurisdiction as may be conferred by the legislature. It shall have power to appoint and remove a reporter. The justices of the appellate division in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding special terms therein, and to assign the justices in the departments to hold such terms; and to make rules therefor. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 29, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 6, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section two of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of Chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to trial commissioners.

Section 1. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that section six of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 6. Circuit courts and courts of oyer and terminer are abolished from and after the last day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-five. All their jurisdiction shall thereupon be vested in the supreme court, and all actions and proceedings then pending in such courts shall be transferred to the supreme court for hearing and determination. Any justice of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this article, may hold court in any county. Whenever and as often as the causes upon the trial term calendar of any county of this state, having a population according to the latest state enumeration of over five hundred thousand, shall have so accumulated that an unpreferred cause cannot be reached for trial in due course within one year after it has been placed upon the calendar, the appellate division of the department in which such county is embraced may, by a certificate signed by a majority of its members, certify the fact to the court of appeals, whereupon said court may by order authorize the appointment in said county of trial commissioners, stating in said order the number of commissioners to be appointed, and their terms of office, not exceeding six years. Such order shall be made in duplicate and one copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state, and one in the office of the clerk of the county in which said appointments are authorized. The appellate division of the department embracing said county shall thereupon appoint the number of trial commissioners authorized by said order, who must possess the qualifications required for a justice of the supreme court. They shall possess and exercise in the county for which they are appointed all the powers of a justice of the supreme court respecting the trial and disposition of causes upon said trial term calendar and the settlement of cases on appeal, but shall possess none of the powers of such a justice out of court or at special term. They may be removed in the same manner as is provided in case of a justice of said supreme court. They shall each receive an annual salary of twelve thousand dollars to be paid by the county for which they are appointed, and may not practice law. § 2. Resolved, (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature, to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity to section one, article fourteen, of the constitution be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Mar. 23, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 8, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER FIVE.

Concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the constitution.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that section seven of article seven be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Forest preserve.—The lands of the state, now owned or hereafter acquired, constituting the forest preserve as now fixed by law, shall be forever kept as wild forest lands, except as hereinafter provided. They shall not be leased, sold or exchanged, or be taken by any corporation, public or private, nor shall the timber thereon be sold, removed or destroyed. The legislature may authorize the removal of dead timber on burned areas so far as necessary for reforestation, through officers and employees of the state, but not by contract. The legislature may also authorize the sale of lands outside of the limits of the Adirondack park and the Catskill park as such parks are now established by law. The proceeds of such sales shall be set apart in a separate fund and used only for the purchase of lands in such parks. A violation of this section may be restrained at the suit of the people or with the consent of the supreme court on notice to the attorney-general at the suit of any citizen of the state. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one, of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 4, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section seven of article seven of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section one of article two of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such general election in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SIX.

Concurrent resolution, proposing amendment to section one of article two of the constitution relating to qualification of voters.

Resolved (if the senate concur), that section one of article two of the constitution be amended to read as follows: Article II. Section 1. Qualification of voters.—Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for ninety days, and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, and for the last four months a resident of the county or of a city comprising more than one county, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, and upon all questions which may be submitted to the vote of the people, provided that in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the state, or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district; and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election districts in which they respectively reside.

State of New York: In Assembly, Mar. 28, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER SEVEN.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to article six of the constitution in relation to providing additional justices of the supreme court and judges of the court of appeals.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section one of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 1. Supreme court; court of appeals; how constituted; judicial districts.—The supreme court is continued with general jurisdiction in law and equity, subject to such appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals as now is or may be prescribed by law not inconsistent with this article. The existing judicial districts of the state are continued until changed as hereinafter provided. The supreme court shall consist of the justices now in office, and of the judges transferred thereto by the fifth section of this article, all of whom shall continue to be justices of the supreme court during their respective terms, and of twelve additional justices who shall reside in and be chosen by the electors of the several existing judicial districts, three in the first district, three in the second, and one in each of the other districts; and of their successors. The successors of said justices shall be chosen by the electors of their respective judicial districts. The legislature may alter the judicial districts once after every enumeration under the constitution, of the inhabitants of the state, and thereupon reapportion the justices to be thereafter elected in the districts so altered. The legislature may at any time, when it deems that the public interests requires it, increase the number of justices of the supreme court or of judges of the court of appeals as it sees fit, provided that the total number of judges of the court of appeals shall not exceed eleven, and provided also that any bill increasing the number of justices or judges as aforesaid shall receive the assent of two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the legislature. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that section seven of article six of the constitution be amended so as to read as follows: § 7. Court of appeals.—The court of appeals is continued. It shall consist of the chief judge and associate judges now in office, and of such additional judges as the legislature may from time to time provide in accordance with section one of this article and as may be elected according to law, who shall hold their offices until the expiration of their respective terms, and of their successors, who shall be chosen by the electors of the state. The official terms of the chief judge and associate judges shall be fourteen years from and including the first day of January next after their election. The legislature may provide by law for the manner in which the court shall sit, whether in two divisions or one, and for the number of members of the court necessary to form a quorum in either instance and also for the number whose concurrence shall be necessary to a decision. The court shall have power to appoint and to remove its reporter, clerk and attendants. § 3. Resolved (if the assembly concur) that the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators, and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

State of New York: In Senate, Apr. 13, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the senators elected voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Senate, FRANK W. HIGGINS, President.

State of New York: In Assembly, Apr. 14, 1904.—The foregoing resolution was duly passed, a majority of all the members elected to the assembly voting in favor thereof, three-fifths being present. By order of the Assembly, S. F. NIXON, Speaker.

Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE Secretary of State, Albany, July 25, 1904.—Pursuant to the provisions of section one of article fourteen of the Constitution of the State of New York, and section seven of chapter nine hundred and nine of the Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-six, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution of the State of New York is referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next General Election of Senators in this State to be held on the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and four, and is published once a week for three months next preceding such General Election, in conformity with the aforesaid provisions. JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

AMENDMENT NUMBER EIGHT.

Concurrent Resolution of the Senate and Assembly, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the constitution, relating to the supreme court.

Section 1. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That section six of article six of the constitution be amended by adding thereto the following: In any department in which supreme court commissioners have been appointed, the justices of the appellate division of the department, or a majority of them, are authorized from time to time to designate one or more of such supreme court commissioners to hold trial terms of the supreme court within such department and to remove such designation. A supreme court commissioner so designated shall have power to hold a trial term of the supreme court within such department and to perform the duties of a justice of the supreme court in the trial term to which he may be assigned. § 2. Resolved (if the assembly concur), That the foregoing amendment be referred to the legislature to be chosen at the next general election of senators and in conformity with section one of article fourteen of the constitution, to be published for three months previous to the time of such election.

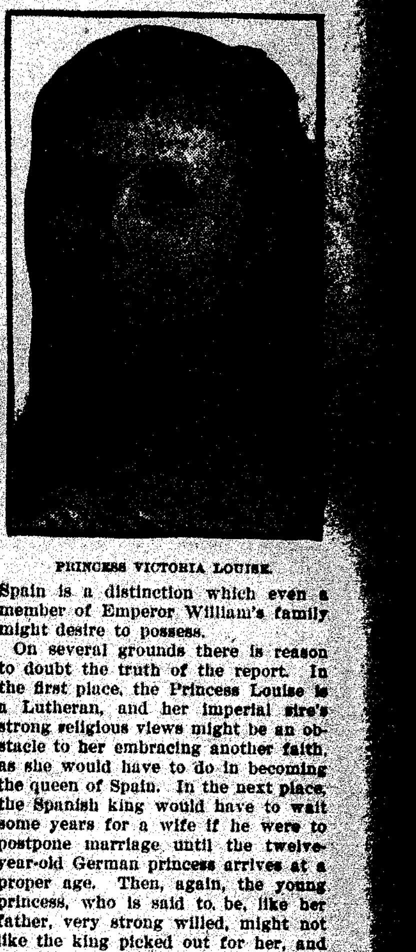
State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding copy of concurrent resolution, proposing an amendment to section six of article six of the Constitution, with the original concurrent resolution on file in this office, and I do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole thereof. Given under my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State at the city of Albany, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four. [L. S.] JOHN F. O'BRIEN, Secretary of State.

THE KAISER'S DAUGHTER.

Matrimonial Plans Involving Little Princess Victoria Louise.

The only daughter of the German emperor is the Princess Victoria Louise. This is the name by which she is generally known, though the child was laden at her christening with a list reading Victoria Louise Adelaide Mathilde Charlotte. She is an attractive miss of twelve summers and much like other children of her age in her behavior and ideas. But there is already talk of her marriage. As the only daughter of one of the most powerful monarchs of Europe she is of course a valuable commodity, so to speak, in the royal matrimonial market, and though the little girl has scarcely yet left off playing with her dolls the royal matchmakers are at work trying to arrange for her as brilliant a match as possible. Negotiations are reported to be in progress between the Berlin court and that of Madrid for the purpose of bringing about a match between the German emperor's daughter and the young king of Spain. Naturally it would be an advantageous thing for the Spanish monarch to be allied in this way with the head of the great German empire. On the other hand, to be queen of



PRINCESS VICTORIA LOUISE.

Spain is a distinction which even a member of Emperor William's family might desire to possess.

On several grounds there is reason to doubt the truth of the report. In the first place, the Princess Louise is a Lutheran, and her imperial sire's strong religious views might be an obstacle to her embracing another faith, as she would have to do in becoming the queen of Spain. In the next place, the Spanish king would have to wait some years for a wife if he were to postpone marriage until the twelve-year-old German princess arrives at a proper age. Then, again, the young princess, who is said to be, like her father, very strong willed, might not like the king picked out for her, and though perhaps this would not be final in the matter it would prove an additional obstacle.

At present little Victoria Louise is not bothering her pretty head about the plans of the matchmakers, but is worrying most about learning how to cook. She spends two hours every afternoon in a kitchen built for her especial use, practicing on dishes which one of these days she will try on her fond parents and brothers. The emperor believes that all women should know how to cook and makes no exception of his daughter. She is the youngest of the kaiser's seven children and might be in danger of being spoiled were it not for her father's strictness as a disciplinarian. But even the autocratic ruler of the German empire sometimes has difficulty in enforcing his authority with the lively, blue eyed "baby of the family," and he once said to a friend, "She often forgets when speaking to me that I am an emperor, but she never forgets for a moment that she is an emperor's daughter."

Some of Swift's Sarcasm.

Swift's "Rules and Directions For Servants" are quoted in What to Eat as an evidence that the servant of the seventeen century did not differ materially from the modern American article. Among these rules are the following: "Scrape the bottom of your pots with a silver spoon, for fear of giving them a taste of copper." "Write your name and your sweetheart's with the smoke of a candle on the roof of the kitchen to show your learning." "Whoever comes to call on your master or mistress when they are abroad never burden your memory with the person's name, for, indeed, you have too many other things to remember." "When you cut bread for toast do not stand idly watching, but lay it on the coals and mind your other business."

HOME MARKET THE FARMERS MAIN DEPENDENCE.

It can be stated without any fear of contradiction that if the people who labor are prosperous, the farmer can readily and profitably sell his product at good prices. The policy of the Republican party has always been to guard the interests of those who have to pay American wages against the cheaper products of foreign markets, and the entire country, regardless of politics, race or color, has shared in the benefits. The result has been the building up of manufacturing industries, enabling the farmer to obtain a higher rate for his products than ever before and a ready market at good prices near his home.

The Republican party promises wise legislation, thereby guarding the farming interests by protecting and preserving the home market.

The election of the Republican nominees on the National, State and County ticket will establish confidence, set all the wheels of industry in motion, and the farmer will at once feel the influence of the greater demand for his products in the better prices he will be able to secure.

President Roosevelt states: "We believe in reciprocity with foreign nations on the terms outlined in President McKinley's last speech, which urged the extension of our foreign markets by reciprocal agreements whenever they could be made without injury to American industry and labor."

SOME funny people out in Nebraska want to give the electoral vote to Roosevelt and send Bryan to the Senate. There is no doubt about Roosevelt—the question is how to get Bryan into the Senate.

Ex-Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley of Connecticut is a candidate for the United States Senate in place of General Hawley, whose health is such as to forbid his re-election. Gov. Bulkeley is one of the foremost Republicans of New England. And yet the passing of Gen. Hawley will cause sincere regret among all who know him.

It was very kind and thoughtful of Judge Parker, in his speech at Rosewater Mount, to assure the public that if the Democrats should succeed in putting him into the White House neither he nor his party could do any harm to the commercial interests of the country since the Senate is hopelessly Republican. How, then under the same circumstances, could the Democrats do any good?

MEN of all parties and all shades of opinion are praising President Roosevelt for his letter to the U. S Attorney General of Alabama, to put a stop to the removal of Federal office holders for partisan reasons. The letter is worthy of high praise for it has the [illegible] ring. The President will make [illegible] speeches this year. He follows the [illegible]ample of McKinley in 1900. The [illegible] is a good one, for it is hardly [illegible] for the President of all the [illegible] to indulge in partisan speech-[illegible].

[illegible] third battle of Bull Run, which [illegible] be fought next September, will [illegible],000. Already troops are on the march from Fort Ethan Allen in Vermont. They will have a 700 mile tramp. One thousand horses will be taken on the field; there will be thirty-eight ambulances, and six escort wagons. The boys all over the Union are enthusiastic at the prospect of fighting on the same field where their fathers fought and bled more than forty years ago. It is expected that a vast crowd of spectators will witness the mock carnage.

Mrs. F. E. Goodjon delightfully entertained about 150 of her lady friends at her pleasant home in Buffalo street on Tuesday afternoon, from 3 to 6 o'clock. The house had been artistically decorated for the occasion; white flowers predominating in the parlor; red and green in the library and the dining room was beautiful in pink and green. The guests were met at the door by Miss Katherine Wettengel in gown of pink silk mull. Master Walter Lawrence of Ossinning assisted her. Mrs. Goodjon was assisted in entertaining her guests by Mesdames William A. Groat and W. B. Fuller of Syracuse; W. A. Butts, C. C. Benedict, W. G. Morton, A. Wettengel, E. S. Brown, G. S. Piper, C. A. Wetherby, B. Pierson, H. L. Paddock, H. J. Wilson, J. H. Howe, and E. R. Redhead of Fulton. A superb collation was served. The husbands of the ladies assisting the hostess were entertained at dinner in the evening.

DIED.

On Sunday, Delia Ann, aged 92, widow of the late John W. Buck o Hannibal, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bruce Van Vleck in Oswego.

The remains of James R. Williams, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Marie S. McIntyre, in Oswego, on Saturday, were brought to this city for interment on Tuesday.

Rear Admiral E. M. Shepard, a native of Oswego, died at his Summer home in Jeffray, N. H., last week. The deceased was well known in this county, where he frequently visited and his acquaintances will learn with sorrow of his demise.

Saturday evening, Nellie May, the ten year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hartwick, died at their home on the west side after an illness of three days, with diphtheria. The body was buried in Mt. Adnah on Sunday evening. The baby brother of the dead girl is ill with the same disease.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Watson of Batavia will learn with regret of the death of their little daughter, Harriet Marion, aged 3 years, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Hilton Wallace in Herkimer, on Saturday. She was only ill three days.

Lawrence Curtis, aged 81, a former resident of Fulton, died at his home in Russell, Kan., on Saturday, from asthma. The deceased was a former member of Hiram Lodge, F. & A. M., and was very well known in this city. He is survived by his widow, a son, Clinton Curtis, of Russell, Kan.; a daughter, Mrs. Jackson Fitch of this city, and a brother, Mr Darwin Curtis, of this city.

Mrs. Hannah Ball, a former well-known resident of this city, died suddenly at her home in Norwich on Friday. The funeral services were held from her late home on Saturday afternoon and the remains, accompanied by her daughter and son, were brought to this city on Sunday morning for interment in Mt. Adnah. A number of the Fulton friends of the deceased met the funeral party at the station and accompanied them to the cemetery.

Edith Salisbury, aged 28, wife of Mr. Joseph Williamson, died at her home in Pine street on Saturday, after an illness of three years, with consumption. She has been a resident of this city for about eight years. Besides her husband, the deceased is survived by her father, Mr. Hiram Salisbury of Napanee, Ont., two sisters, Mrs O'Neil of Napanee and Mrs. Halstead of this city and two brothers, the Messrs. Hiram and Albert Salisbury of Fulton. The funeral services were held from the late home on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. A. H. Grant officiating. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

F. Jess Newton Injured.

The many friends of Mr. F. Jess Newton of this city will regret to learn that while he was conducting an open air concert at Anaconda, Mont., Aug. 14, he sustained severe injuries during the prevalence of a thunder storm. The lightning struck the orchestra loft and threw Mr. Newton to the floor. His right leg was temporarily paralized from the effects of the shock. It was at first thought he was seriously injured and he will undoubtedly feel the effects of the shock for some time.

Attorney and Mrs A. J. Dutcher and son of Utica are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Smith of West First street. Mr. Dutcher is an attorney of prominence in Utica and is clerk of the Surrogate's Court of Oneida County. He spent his boyhood days in Fulton and vicinity.

The consent of the stockholders of the Battle Island Paper Company to place a $200,000 mortgage on the company's property at Battle Island, has been filed in the County Clerk's office. The consent stipulates that the mortgage shall be given to Samuel C. Hunter, James C. Hunter, Thomas Hunter, William Hunter, John Hunter and Robert B. Hunter.

The O. P. Davis auction sale of jewelry, cut glass, silver & c., drew immense crowds last week and every one was well satisfied with the result of their expenditure of money. The surprise was how Mr. Davis could favor his patrons to such a generous extent. The sales will necessitate his purchasing an entirely new line of goods for the Fall and Holiday trade, as his stock has been greatly depleted.

Mrs. Marion Warner's many friends in this city will rejoice to learn that she is convalescing nicely from an operation for strangulated hernia which she underwent in a Syracuse hospital on Friday. Mrs. Warner came to this city from Midland, Mich., about three years ago to care for her sister-in law, Miss Sarah Warner, and she was taken suddenly and violently ill at the home in Cayuga street on Thursday night. Dr. Gladman was called and he at once saw that the only chance for her life lay in a prompt operation so she was taken to Syracuse where Dr. Hartman operated, assisted by Dr. Gladman. Mrs. Warner's daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Ball of Midland, Mich., was called to this city to care for her aunt.

Negro humor, without the hardships of difficult dialect, is found in the tales by Ella Middleton Tybout which, preparatory to a coming volume, have been appearing in Lippincott's Magazine. The latest is called "The Regeneration of Isaiah," and is printed in the September number.

The old First M. E. church pipe organ has been purchased by the Methodist society in Pulaski and will be removed within thirty days to permit the remodelling of the church in this city and the installation of the elegant new organ recently purchased.

The Rev. S. D. Robinson and Messrs. T. J. Redhead, Harry A. Allen and Chauncey Wilson were at Brewerton on Wednesday. Perhaps it would be just as well not to ask them anything about the fish they caught and the train they did not catch. It seems to be rather a serious matter.

The home of Mr. Harry L. Waugh was struck by lightning early on Wednesday morning, the fluid striking the fire-alarm box and running into his house on the wires connected with the alarm in his room. No damage was done beyond a slight shock to the family and the knocking off of a quantity of plaster in one room. A galvanized iron clothes line in the yard of John O'Grady was also struck, but no damage was done. A barn at Bristol Hill owned by Mr. Herbert Burlingham was struck by lightning and burned to the ground and the Bristol Hill church was in great danger of igniting from the burning building. The storm was of short duration, only about three peals of thunder occuring, but each flash of lightning did damage.

Mr. A. B. Fletcher suffered a painful wound on Thursday as the result of the ax with which he was chopping wood at his home in Fourth street. The ax struck a clothesline and bounding back, struck him just below the right temple. A severe contusion resulted. Mr. Fletcher is now convalescent.

The five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Kitts who was sent to the Buffalo hospital through the kindness of the employes in the Hunter Arms factory and members of firm, for atrophy of the muscles of the leg, has returned, greatly improved and able to walk. It is thought that the cure will be complete.

A somewhat new device in the fiction of adventure is that which substitutes a real woman for a wax one in the story by Clinton Dangerfield, called, "At the Sign of the Waxen Woman," in Lippincott's for September. Mine host has a waxen figure which helped to save from an undesirable bridegroom a fleeing maiden. The result was a happy wedding.

Senator and Mrs. Frank Lewis of Seattle, Wash., are the guests of Mrs. Lewis's sisters, Mrs. A. A. Rowlee and Mrs. M. A. Losey. Mr. Lewis is the supreme chancellor of the Loyal Lewis Legion, which was organized July 4, 1901, by nine enthusiastic representatives of the race, and established its Hall of Heraldry and Records at West Kingston, R. I., the purpose being to encourage the preparation and preservation of family records; to establish free university scholarships for worthy Lewis boys and girls; accord honor to whom honor is due, and to assist and insist that members shall achieve honor by which to be remembered by remote descendants. The Lewis camp at the World's Fair, St. Louis. represents an outlay of at least $20,000, and it is proposed to make Sept. 23 Lewis Day at the Fair grounds. This will mark the 98th anniversary of the return of the explorers Lewis and Clark from their perilous expedition to the Pacific.

IT HAS WEAKENED HIM

Judge Parker's Acceptance Fails to Show Him a Party Leader.

It Is Conventional, Hazy and Does Not Arouse Enthusiasm.

Judge Parker in his address accepting the Democratic nomination said nothing explanatory of his two votes for Bryan and free silver coinage at 16 to 1. His failure to tell the American people whether he then believed he was voting for the right, or whether for the sake of party regularity he was willing to support what he knew involved the national dishonor, has aroused fresh criticism among both the gold standard men and the Bryanites.

They looked for a manly statement of his belief. He dodged, with a simple reiteration of the substance of his telegram to his personal representative, Sheehan, that he considers the gold standard "irrevocably established."

Since his address has been before the public there has been a noticeable drop in the Parker enthusiasm. Those who hoped that he would give statesmanlike utterances which would lift him into leadership, that would show him to be greater than his party, have been disappointed. He has said nothing which offers a hope to the nation that the party has found the man to lead it away from the mire in which it has been floundering for eight years.

Pleases His Enemies.

It has satisfied his avowed friends because it is sober, harmless and filled with political maxims as old as the country and as well known as so many propositions from a treatise on plane geometry: it satisfies his political opponents because it reveals no original power, no commanding force, no masterful exhibition of strength, that would seize the opportunity for leadership which the Parker backers had promised. From it Republicans believe they have nothing to fear.

Attack on Protection.

Judge Parker indorses the platform of the Democrats. He calls it "admirable." That platform says:

"We denounce protection as a robbery of the many for the benefit of the few."

His elaboration of the tariff plank is brief and indefinite. He wants a reduction of the tariff, but dismisses the subject with the proposition that, as the senate is Republican, it is of not much use to talk about any change. His discussion is an effort to persuade the country that he would do no serious harm and that he would not materially disturb the existing order of things—as if, then, there were any reason for a change!

But behind all this profession of moderation remains the fact that he stands for a Democratic attack on protection and that his election would unsettle business and paralyze enterprise.

Trusts Favor Him.

"Judge Parker repeats the oft exploded Democratic claim that the trusts are the creatures of the tariff," says the Philadelphia Press, "and his only affirmative remedy for the evils of the one is to destroy the protection of the other. His premise is mistaken and his conclusion is necessarily unfounded. The most glaring trusts involve articles on which there is no tariff duty. How does the tariff help the Standard Oil? How does it aid the beef trust? How does it sustain the coal combination? What had it to do with the Northern Securities? Judge Parker thinks that, aside from tariff revision, nothing is needed to restrain monopoly except the application of the common law. Yet under the common law Judge Parker himself upheld the drug trust! He says that what is needed are officials with the disposition and courage to enforce existing law.

"Has not President Roosevelt done and directed just this thing? And how could any official enforce it if all judges, like Judge Parker, sustained the trusts? The country will not fail to note the weakness and hollowness of his utterance on this subject. No wonder the trusts look on him with favor!"

Ignores Southern Disfranchisement.

Judge Parker professes to be horrified that this nation should not permit the people of the Philippines to administer our government for them. He ignores the fact that here in the United States citizens of this our own country, whose political rights are pledged to them by the constitution, are not allowed to vote by Judge Parker's party and that it is on those states where the constitution is trampled underfoot by the very men who nominated him that he relies to elect him, if he is to be elected. He is sure of those states because black citizens of this nation are deprived of their inalienable right to vote against Judge Parker!

A Bourbon Argument.

Judge Parker talks of imperialism and "great military armaments." He says:

The display of great military armaments may please the eye and for the moment excite the pride of the citizen, but it cannot bring to the country the brains, the brawn and muscle of a single immigrant nor induce the investment here of a dollar of capital.

He protests against the feeling which, he says, is "prevalent" that we should intervene in every important question that arises in every part of the world.

This nation has shown an inclination to interfere in "important questions" whenever and wherever the rights of American citizens or American interests needed protection and in no other case. If he proposes to cease this sort of intervention he must reckon with the American people.

But the judge seems a bit of a bourbon, if not a demogogue, when he speaks of great military armaments. He talks of "Jeffersonian simplicity." The present standing army, according to an address delivered by Adjutant General Corbin the day before Judge Parker spoke, is not so great in proportion to the population as it was in Jefferson's time, for General Corbin said:

The suggestion that the army is at this time comparatively large is not founded in truth. Compared with our population and wealth it is much smaller than in the earlier days of the nation. The size of the regular army, viewed on these lines, is not without interest. During the administration of Washington, for every 10,000 of population there were 8.6 soldiers; of John Adams, 8.3; Thomas Jefferson, 13.7; Madison, 12.3; Jackson, 6.1; Van Buren, 7.4; Polk, 4.5; Grant, 7.1. About this proportion obtained during the administrations of Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland and Harrison. Under Arthur it was 4.5; under Cleveland and McKinley, until the outbreak of the Spanish war, it was only 3.7.

The present size of the army is, by authority of law, fixed by the president, 59,866 officers and men, including the line and staff—smaller in proportion than during the administration of either Washington, John Adams, Jefferson or Madison.

Judge Parker closed his address with the declaration that if elected he would not again be a candidate for that office. In this he followed the example of the only Democrat who has been elected since the civil war. It was not an original thought.

WOULD BUY A NOMINATION

J. J. Hill Would Give Half a Million to Help Defeat Roosevelt.

One of the Democratic national committeemen, according to the New York Times, which is supporting Parker, declared the other night that James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern and the head of the Northern Securities company, was so anxious to defeat Roosevelt that he was willing to pay half a million dollars as the purchase of the nomination of Daniel S. Lamont for governor of New York. Mr. Hill was willing to give this amount because he thought Lamont's nomination would help Parker.

The Times said:

It was learned last night that James J. Hill of St. Paul, the president of the Great Northern railroad, is especially anxious to see Mr. Lamont nominated. Mr. Lamont is the vice president of the Northern Pacific road. Both roads were parties to the Northern Securities merger, which President Roosevelt and his attorney general successfully combated in the courts. Mr. Hill is especially bitter against President Roosevelt and has espoused the Parker and Davis cause. Mr. Hill, however, as a preliminary to making his campaign contribution, which is one of the largest in the country, is understood to be insisting that he be assured that New York state is at least likely to go to the Democratic ticket.

It is said that Mr. Hill believes that Mr. Lamont can carry the state of New York and can materially aid the election of the electoral ticket. For this reason there is good reason to believe that Mr. Hill's contribution to the national campaign fund will be several hundreds of thousands of dollars more if Mr. Lamont is named for governor than if the nomination goes to another. Moreover, it is said that Mr. Hill would contribute materially to the campaign in New York state if his friend Lamont, who also is an intimate business associate, should be running.

From a national committee source the belief was expressed last night that Mr. Hill would contribute fully $400,000 to the national campaign and $100,000 to the New York state campaign if Mr. Lamont is named and that his donations might reach twice that sum if the indications continued to point to success and it could be shown to him where further contributions on his part would aid the canvass.

The next day the Times said that it did not believe this story, but that the national committeeman had had a hidden purpose in giving it out.

The Herald, also supporting Parker, published the same story in substance. It has said nothing to indicate that it did not believe it to be true.

Democrats believe that Mr. Hill holds the feeling of hostility toward Roosevelt which would lead him to make the offer.

WILL THE PEOPLE APPROVE?

Shall the State Be Turned Over to Hill, Sheehan and McCarren?

The Democratic national committee has established no national headquarters in the west. It is getting its entire force into the eastern campaign.

This has led to the conclusion by many that the west is regarded as hopeless for Parker and gives the idea that the controlling forces—namely, Sheehan, Hill, Belmont, McCarren, Meyer, Ryan and other capitalists—have resolved to stake everything on the hope of winning New York state.

If Parker should lose, these men plan to capture this state, with all that goes with it.

That would mean the restoration of Hill, who last came into power through a stolen senate.

It would mean the restoration to influence of William F. Sheehan.

It would put Pat McCarren, of the race track, the sugar trust and the Standard Oil trust, into a commanding position.

And the thing that startles the state is that Judge Parker takes these men to be his confidential advisers and everyday companions. The question is, Will the people approve of it?

BOLT FROM PARKER.

Democrats Tell Why They Will Not Support Their Party Ticket.

His Record and Attitude Please Neither Wing of Party.

The bolt from Judge Parker on the part of gold Democrats who believe the country will continue in safe hands only if Roosevelt be elected and on the part of the Bryan men who are indignant at what they call the trick by which Judge Parker was nominated is growing rapidly.

It is a long procession.

The Boston Pilot, Democratic, has come out for Roosevelt. An editorial under the caption "Lest We Forget" says:

We say: Forgive your enemies, but do not forget them. Pray for them, but do not vote for them.

Be grateful to your friends and do not forget them.

That is why people with long memories have a warm place in their hearts for Theodore Roosevelt—no fair weather friend, no favorer of any class or creed or race, but a just man and a safe one to trust in calm or storm.

H. Perry Blodgett, a well known Rochester lawyer, will bolt Parker. Mr. Blodgett says:

What do I think of the St. Louis ticket? I think so well of it that I shall vote for Roosevelt. Is that plain enough?

I have written to Mr. Bryan that his friends in Monroe county—his true friends, remember—intend to do to Parker what Parker's managers, Hill, Belmont and Sheehan, did to him in 1896 and 1900. Judge Parker was nominated by fraud and deceit, just as Mr. Bryan says. If he had given out his gold telegram ten days before the convention met he would not have been nominated, and no one knows that better than Messrs. Hill, Sheehan and Belmont. I thought I knew where Parker stood when I signed the call for the anti-Parker meeting in New York city, and subsequent events have demonstrated that I was right. Parker stands for Wall street, no more, no less.

In my judgment Parker cannot be elected. He will lose Monroe county by at least 9,000 votes. In 1896 and 1900 about 2,000 gold Democrats in this county voted for McKinley and swelled the Republican plurality to 9,000. This year I predict that 2,000 Bryan Democrats will vote for Roosevelt and so even things up.

Samuel Seabury, justice of the city court in New York city, has refused to vote for Parker. He said:

Judge Parker's persistent silence before he was nominated and his tricky telegram as soon as he had safely secured the nomination showed him to be an apt pupil of the political methods of David B. Hill. The deception to which Judge Parker and his friends resorted to secure the nomination and the repudiation of the compromises entered into in relation to the platform will, I believe, before the campaign is over be made perfectly apparent. When the facts are appreciated they can excite no other feeling than disgust and contempt.

Ex-District Attorney Eugene A. Philbin, a recognized leader of the gold Democrats in New York, will support President Roosevelt. In explaining his position he said:

The reason that I, being a Democrat, am going to support President Roosevelt is that through personal acquaintance with the man and from close observations of his administration I believe it for the best interests of this country that he be elected. Every patriot should allow this to be the prime motive in casting his ballot. The administration of President Roosevelt has been absolutely nonpartisan, and he has at all times shown a willingness to sacrifice personal desires for the public good and has exhibited a great degree of courage and sincerity. President Roosevelt also possesses the shrewdness and sagacity which thoroughly qualify him for the high office which he now holds and to which he is a candidate for re-election.

It has been stated that President Roosevelt is hasty, impulsive and erratic and that he is likely to take some action that may plunge this nation into war. I do not believe that there has ever been a president who has had as many delicate foreign questions to deal with as has Mr. Roosevelt during the past three years, and all these have been handled in a manner which has given prestige to the nation abroad. Though our course has been fearless every precaution has been taken to avoid friction which might bring about unfriendly relations. The experience of these three years will assist Mr. Roosevelt in handling such further developments as may arise.

The nations know Mr. Roosevelt to be a man who will not tolerate infringements upon the rights of this government.

DECLINING DEMOCRATS.

History Shows One Who Quickly Learned How to Forget.

Cleveland—Before Election.

[Candidate Cleveland's Letter of Acceptance, Aug. 8, 1884.]

* * * And of the means to this end (popular government) not one would, in my judgment, be more effective than an amendment to the constitution disqualifying the president from re-election. When we consider the patronage of this great office, the allurements of power, the temptation to retain public place once gained, and, more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of officeholders, with a zeal born of benefits received and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action which must characterize a government by the people.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage upon real property situated within the State of New York, whereby the power to sell has become operative, notice is hereby given that said mortgage, which is dated the 22d day of February, 1889, and is recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Oswego, at Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d day of February, 1889, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in Liber 156 of mortgages, at page 422, was given by John E. Cain and Hattie Cain, his wife, mortgagors to Orlando Howell, mortgagee, and the name of each assignee of said mortgage is as follows: 1st assignee, Fred O. Howell, 2d assignee, Maria A. Howell.

The sum claimed to be due upon the said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice is sixteen hundred seventy-five dollars and forty-one cents, which is the whole amount secured by said mortgage.

The following is a description of the mortgaged property, contained in the said mortgage:

"All That Tract or Parcel of Land, situate in the Town of Granby, County of Oswego and State of New York, and being on Lot No. 72 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is described as subdivision Number One of said Lot according to Peter Schenck's map, made from his survey & dated Sept. 26, 1839, and is bounded on the N. & W. by the N. & W. lines of said lot; on the S. by the State Road running E. & W. through said lot & on the East by Subdivision No. 2 containing 19 acres of land more or less.

"Also all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the said Town of Granby, N. Y. & being a part of the State's 100 acres of land on lot No. 62 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby), is bounded as follows: Beginning at the S. E. Corner of said Lot 62 and running West 21 chains & 62 links; thence N. 11 chains & 56 links; thence E. 21 chains & 62 links to the east line of said Lot, thence S. 11 chains & 56 links, to the place of beginning. Containing twenty-five acres of land, more or less.

"Also all that certain other tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Granby, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 71 of the original township of Hannibal (now Granby) is bounded as follows: Beginning in the East line of said Lot in the center of the Fulton & Hannibal Plank Road (so called); thence Northerly along the E. line of said lot 71 about 25 rods & 6 links to a stone wall intersecting said line of Lot 71 from the East; thence Westerly in a direct line with the center of said stone wall One Hundred four & one-half (104½) feet to a stone set in the Earth indicating said corner; thence Southerly parallel with the East line to the center of said highway; thence Easterly along said Highway to the place of beginning. Containing about one acre of land."

Pursuant to the power of sale contained therein, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the said mortgaged property, or a part thereof, at public auction, at the law offices of Piper, Rice & Wilson, in the City of Fulton County of Oswego, New York on the 29th day of October, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated and subscribed at Fulton, N. Y., this 3d day of August, 1904.

Old Tree Superstitions.

The old Teutonic and Saxon races in central and northern Europe, before the introduction and spread of Christianity, had a great veneration for trees. They would never willingly damage them. Under large trees, especially old oaks, the great councils were held and judgment given, and the graves of this people were found in groves, they always being buried under the roots of a tree. This all was a result of the superstition that their gods lived in those trees. In the linden tree Berchta dwelt, a benign spirit who took charge of the babies and rocked their cradles when the nurses fell asleep; in the oak, Donar, the thunder god; in the willows all sorts of spirits, in the elder trees the dwarfs. Whenever the festivals of these gods were celebrated their trees were decorated with lights, wreaths and questen (tassels), and offerings were hung in the branches, which, however, were plundered again when the festival was over, the gods being supposed only to appropriate the best.

The Camel as a Soldier.

The camel is a good soldier, says a London writer. It may be stupidity, and it may be bravery, but a camel is as steady under fire as a tower. The Persians mounted small cannon on the backs of their camels and called them zambwahs, or "little wasps." This fashion was adopted in India, and after the battle of Sobraon 2,000 of these artillery camels were captured. In the Indian mutiny the British had a camel corps of 150 beasts, and on the back of each camel sat a Scotch highlander in his kilt. In 1845 Sir Charles Napier had a camel corps in Sindh, and in one day he marched seventy-five miles, defeated a brigand chief and marched home again. In 1878 the British used camels against the Afghans, and the government paid for 50,000 camels that died in those campaigns. Many of these were driven to death by their owners in order that they might claim the government bounty.

Monster Beds.

Though the beds of the royal personages of England were elaborately carved and hung with rich curtains even so late as the Tudor period, it is recorded that King Henry VIII.'s bed contained only straw beneath all its finery. A curious order exists as to precautions to be taken against the possibility of intended mischief to the royal person in the making of the bed, for the usher was to search the straw through with a dagger, "that there be none untruth therein, and to tumble over on the down bed for the better search thereof." The bed of Henry VIII. was nearly eleven feet square, and of even more generous dimensions is the great bed to which Shakespeare refers in a well known passage in "Twelfth Night," which was twelve feet square. This "great bed of Ware" has been a marvel for centuries.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years; tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worst. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like." Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by H. C. Geisler.

Prisons in Japan.

Prisons in Japan resemble large country houses with many outbuildings, and do not, either in the solidity or detail of their construction, wear a penitentiary aspect. The prisoners get food in proportion to their conduct and industry. Those who do not behave will get a cake of rice, which must last them seven days. For the deserving it is the ration for but four days, and they get with it also a little horse meat and potato or pea sauce. The labor is compulsory, but not severe, and the prisoner gets part of his earnings, though it amounts to little. The discipline is military, and serving a term in prison does not impose an indelible stigma. Systematic efforts are made to improve the prisoners. All the youths under nineteen years pass two hours each day in school. Even when their term of sentence is over they cannot be released till a surety is found for their subsequent good behavior. Till this is provided they must remain in prison and may do so for indefinite periods.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

De Witt is the Name.

When you go to buy Witch Hazel Salve look for the name De Witt on every box. The pure, unadulterated Witch Hazel is used in making DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which is the best salve in the world for cuts, burns, bruises, boils, eczema and piles. The popularity of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, due to its many cures, has caused numerous worthless counterfeits to be placed on the market. The genuine bears the name E. C. De Witt & Co., Chicago. Three Women Writers.

Among ladies distinguished for the beauty of their penmanship—or penwomanship—was Charlotte Bronte, who wrote a very small, very delicate and carefully finished hand. Mrs. Hemans wrote in a free, flowing style. Elizabeth Barrett Browning's manuscript was very neat and carefully punctuated, the writing being distinct and legible, though the letters were not well joined.

A Summer Cold.

A Summer cold is not only annoying but if not relieved pneumonia will be the probable result by Fall. The Peruvians' Sacred Number.

The Peruvians cared nothing for any of the supposed mystic properties of either three, five or seven. To them the four was sacred, and around it they entwined the main features of all their religious ceremonies and queer beliefs. They believed the earth to be a square divided into four parts and suspended from the heavens by four cords—one at each of the four corners. All of their cities were quartered by four principal streets running from a square in the center. They held four annual feasts in honor of the moon, the "silver sister of the sun."

To them eternity was to be divided into four periods of time, each composed of four times 4,000 years, and at the end of each of these cycles the sun is to be blotted out of existence. They prayed to the four winds, or to "ye gods that dwell at the four corners of the earth." To them the rains came from four enormous heavenly turtles that vomited dampness, and the four winds from the lungs of the four gigantic caryatides which stand at the four cardinal points of paradise. The above are but a small portion of the fours alluded to in the legends of the Incas.

Gondolas of Venice.

A tourist writes: "Like most characteristic objects appertaining to Venice, the gondola is suitable to the place. Even as the hansom cab suits London or the rickshaw suits Japan or the jaunting car suits Ireland, so the gondola is the vessel for Venice. You cannot separate the lagoon from the gondola. One completes the other." The gondolier is a man given to many oaths and imprecations, of which the most terrible is, "Thy saint is a rascal who does not know how to make a decent miracle." The gondoliers are not as much given as they used to be to the singing of the sonorous verses of Tasso by moonlight in their musical patois. Occasionally an outburst of melody is secured by a traveler's coins, and there are always singing, playing and dancing at the inevitable festa.

Ringing Bells to Swarm Bees.

It is a foolish notion to suppose that the ringing of bells or "tanging" of tin pans will cause a swarm of bees to settle, says Country Life In America. The real origin of this custom dates back to the reign of Alfred the Great, who, in order to prevent disputes regarding the ownership of a swarm, ordered that the owner should always ring a bell when his bees swarmed, and ever since then the good farmer's wife has been rushing out with ringing bells whenever the bees swarmed, and the fact that they settled verified, in her own mind, the belief that the bell did it.

Taken With Cramps.

William Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. Mr. Gifford had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader (Iowa) Argus. This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

Rise Above Your Troubles.

How many celebrities we would have if men would be as anxious to make their own fame as they are to unmake the fame of others.

Cholera Infantum.

This disease has lost its terrors since Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy came into general use. An Antelope That Dwells in Swamps.

The general idea of an antelope pictures it as a swift runner, fleeing in graceful bounds over stretching brown plains. There is an antelope in the Congo region, however, which rarely ventures to the upland, but actually lives in water, spending practically all of its time wading around in the swamps and feeding on swamp growth, such as papyrus and other water plants.

This swamp antelope represents among animals what the heron and other wading birds do among birds, and like these wading birds the swamp antelope has extraordinarily long and thin legs, while its hoofs are wonderfully long and spread out almost as wide as bird's claws when the animals wade in the mud, thus supporting them on the soft bottom.

These swamp antelopes are by no means small animals, but belong to the larger forms of their species. A full grown male is as big as the buck of the fallow deer in Virginia.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by H. C. Geisler.

The Name of Sally Lunn.

Every one knows what a Sally Lunn is, but few people have any idea how this particularly nice kind of tea cake got its name. Sally Lunn was a Bath celebrity, who kept a cake shop, which was a favorite resort of both youth and age in the old west country town. Sally orginally carried out her cakes morning and evening, in a basket with a white cover. Later on her small shop in Lilliput alley became a favorite haunt, and Dalmer, a baker and musician, seeing that it was a very good thing, bought the business, composed a song and set it to music. This song became a popular street ditty, barrows were used to distribute the cakes, and Dalmer finally retired on the profits of the business.

Queer Contrivances on the Highways of the "Hermit Kingdom."

The Korean landscape to a visitor from Europe or America presents many strange features. The country over which the Russians and Japanese have battled and which for centuries has been a fighting ground for surrounding nations has customs that are unique and scenes that are both picturesque and grotesque. One of the curious sights is illustrated in the accompanying picture, a signpost which looks as if it might be either a scarecrow or a rude mystic shrine to some barbarous divinity. It reminds one a trifle of the totem poles of the Indians of Alaska, and many like it line the Korean roads. Korea is a land of superstition, and the traveler can scarcely take a glimpse of the landscape without seeing some evidence of it. The hideous looking wooden gentleman is not only supposed to show the traveler the way, but to scare away evil spirits that may be lying in wait for him.

How and Why Cal-Cura Solvent, Cures Rheumatism, Blood and Urinary Diseases.

It is a wonderful discovery, this new medicine, that swiftly removes Stone, Red and White Gravel, from the Kidneys and Bladder, avoiding the intense suffering produced by these foreign bodies, and often rendering a dangerous surgical operation unnecessary. Cal-cura Solvent does this. The greatest work of Cal-cura Solvent, is that it prevents the formation of stone and gravel by dissolving uric acid and phosphatic sediments, thus purifying the blood and correcting all those uric acid conditions of the stomach which are responsible for the formation of uric acid or gout poisoning and rheumatism. Dr. David Kennedy said: "I consider Cal-cura Solvent the crowning achievement of my life. It will not disappoint."

Lackawanna Summer Resorts Described.

"Mountain and Lake Resorts" is the title of an attractive publication issued by the passenger depatment of the Lackawanna Railroad. The book is intended to give readable and reliable information about vacation places along that road, and its 128 pages are filled with suggestions for those seeking Summer homes.

The various hotels and boarding places, their location, rates and facilities are accurately described, and in addition there are two large maps of the territory reached by the Lackawanna, showing the principal roads, streams, lakes and other topographical features on a large scale. These maps are in colors and were especially designed for this edition. More than 100 half-tones add to the interest of the book, and a brightly written love story, entitled "A Chance Courtship," completes its contents.

The book may be had by sending the necessary postage of 10 cents to T. W. Lee, general passenger agent, Lackawanna Railroad, New York.

BOLT FROM PARKER

Hon. John A. McCall and Other Prominent Democrats For Roosevelt.

The Stream of Defections From Parker Dismays Democratic Managers.

The bolt from Parker by Democrats of high standing is causing dismay at Democratic national headquarters.

John A. McCall, the president of the New York Life Insurance company, a lifelong Democrat, a brother of Judge E. E. McCall of the New York supreme court, who was elected on the Tammany ticket in 1902, is the most notable of those who have declared for Roosevelt. Mr. McCall, as the head of such a company which comes so closely into touch with hundreds of thousands of citizens, is compelled to scrutinize with great care the position taken by the two parties on financial matters. It is considered of deep significance that a man in such position was not swung back to the Democratic party by the Parker telegram and that in spite of Judge Parker's change from Bryan in 1896 and 1900 Mr. McCall does not yet trust the party which is behind Judge Parker.

On the same day that Mr. McCall's attitude was made public Major John Byrne, president in 1896 and 1900 of the Democratic Honest Money league, declared that he, too, proposed to support Roosevelt. The league of which he was president had branches in nineteen states. Mr. Byrne said, in announcing his decision:

Judge Parker, realizing, no doubt, that absolutely no hope existed for his election on the platform adopted, informed his representatives that he regarded the question of the gold standard as settled and would govern himself accordingly and could not accept the nomination on any other understanding. And the convention, facing the crisis and realizing that chaos and party disintegration and ruin would follow rejection of its nominee, governed solely by expediency, violated its principles and under pressure of political necessity accepted Judge Parker on his own terms—a transaction of doubtful character, of problematical value to the country and, as I view it, not creditable to either party. The deal that secured the surrender by Senator Tillman of his cherished convictions and his acceptance of Judge Parker as the party candidate on the terms set forth in that telegram bodes no good to the country if Judge Parker is elected.

Had the declaration of his views been made by Judge Parker before his nomination he would not now be under consideration. His name would have met the fate of the gold plank.

Another significant defection is that of Augustus K. Sloan of New York city, a Democrat who has been elected president of the Jewelers' Roosevelt club.

Noah Palmer, who describes himself as "southern born and a lifelong Democrat," has declared in a public letter that he will this year support Roosevelt. Judge Parker's speech of acceptance was the thing that decided him. Mr. Palmer says:

Instead of proving himself a leader of men and that he is above the party that nominated him, the Democratic nominee, by his utterances at Rosemount, demonstrated the fact that he is a political trimmer and is not ashamed to wear the collar of David Bennett Hill.

The faithful observer and chronicler must report that Judge Parker's gold telegram gave a distinct impulse to his candidacy and that his speech of acceptance has given it a distinct setback.—Philadelphia Press.

The Oriental Thief.

Even in common robbery the orient has picturesque ways peculiar to itself. A Burmese woman traveling in a third class compartment by the day train recently was reclining in the carriage with one of her arms out of the window somewhere near Sitkwin, on the Burma state railway, when some one came along the footboard and cut her arm clean off, apparently with a sharp sword. On the lost hand were rings with the usual accompaniment of bangles.

The Disenchanting Phonograph.

The best story I have heard recently is that told of a well known Oxford don who was asked to speak into a phonograph. A little later the machine was turned on again, and he was requested to listen to his own voice. The don then turned to the assembled company and said, "It is strange that through this machine I am made to speak in a peculiarly bumptious and affected manner."—London Tatler.

Old Settlers' Association.

EDITOR TIMES: The Old Settlers' Association of Oswego County held its twenty-ninth annual reunion at Dempster Grove, New Haven, on Tuesday, Aug. 16. The president, Col. L. T. Mattison of Scriba, called the assemblage to order at 11 a. m. with but very few in attendance. A nominating committee was appointed by him and an adjournment taken until 1:30 p. m. At the hour named, about one-third the usual audience greeted the speakers, many of whom were in attendance at the camp ground.

The Presiding Elder made a pleasant welcoming speech, which was aptly responded to by the president. Attorney S. C. Huntington of Pulaski gave the principal address of the day and showed himself well informed in the early history of the country, and very close attention was accorded the speaker. Miss Lena Jennings of Palermo gave a recitation entitled, "That old sweetheart of mine," which was received with hearty applause.

Rev. Harry Idle was called to the stand and gave a brief but interesting talk. The secretary then began the call of the towns, but very few responses were given.

Mr. Slater of Sandy Creek gave a reminiscent talk of the early history of his town. Alexander Whittemore for Scriba did remarkably well for a man close to his eightieth year. Smith Merwin answered spiritedly for Palermo. Robert Lawrence, a veteran of many wounds, for New Haven. Ovid N. Taft answered for Volney. Hon. J. J. Lamoree spoke of the early settlers' trials, of their tenacity of purpose in the settlement of this wooded county and of their triumphant success. Rev. Mr. Shepard followed him briefly and showed that he was, as usual, in a humorous mood. No additions were made to the membership

The officers elected were:

President, Col. L. V. S. Mattison, Scriba.

Vice presidents, Robert Lawrence, New Haven; F. L. Barga, Volney; Smith Merwin, Palermo; Alexander Whittemore, Scriba.

Secretary, Ovid V. Taft, Volney.

Volney, N. Y., Aug. 19, 1904.

DO YOU WANT A CHANGE?

Merchandise exports in 1896 were $882,000,000 as against $1,460,000,000 in 1904. Do you want a change?

The favorable balance of trade in Democratic 1896 was $102,000,000 as against $470,000,000 in Republican 1904. Do you want a change?

We imported $33,000,000 in gold in 1896 as compared with $99,000,000 in 1904, and we exported $112,000,000 in 1896 as against $81,000,000 in 1904. Do you want a change?

Our total foreign commerce in Democratic 1896 was $1,661,000,000 as compared with $2,451,000,000 in Republican 1904. Do you want a change?

The bank deposits in December, 1896, amounted to $4,945,000,000 as compared with $9,530,000,000 in December, 1903. Do you want a change?—Elmira Advertiser.

Judge Parker says he regards the gold standard as a settled fact. He voted for free silver coinage twice. Did he think he was doing right in 1896 and 1900? His "incidental allusion to the currency question," says the Providence Journal (independent), "is proof either that the candidate is not positive in his views or that he will sacrifice principle with the hope of unifying the disrupted party."

The number of savings bank accounts in New York state was about 79,000 greater on June 30, 1904, than on the same date in the preceding year. The deposits increased $54,672,892. Possibly the people will decide to let this thing continue.

TRUSTS FOR PARKER

Democratic Candidate Selects Wall Street Men to Manage Canvass.

The Barrel to Be Tapped by Sugar and Standard Oil.

Judge Parker has requested August Belmont, the agent of the Rothschilds, to take an active part in managing his campaign. He has also installed his close personal friend, William S. Rodie of the Delaware and Hudson Coal company, as assistant to Pat McCarren in the management of the state campaign.

Mr. Belmont's withdrawal from his race track and Wall street interests to devote his entire energies to helping elect Judge Parker was officially made public by Chairman Taggart of the Democratic national committee in these words:

"From now on Mr. Belmont will be at the national headquarters every day. He has arranged his business affairs so that this will be possible, and he will occupy a front office here, right next to Vice Chairman Nicoll. He has practically given up his business for the time being to aid in electing Parker and Davis."

Mr. Belmont has the most intimate connection with Wall street. He has vast financial backing both here and by the Paris and London banking houses, and he was thus able to become one of the participants in the Cleveland bond syndicate operations under the last Democratic administration. Until he became interested in the nomination and election of Parker the Cleveland bond deal was his last advertised appearance in politics.

To Organize the Farmers.

Mr. Rodie, who is to reorganize the rural portions of the state, is a wealthy member of the Manhattan club. He is a member of the club to which Judge Parker recently repaired for a two days' rest in the Catskills. He went with Judge Parker, and it was on the day after his return that he was placed in charge of the rural end of the campaign. Democrats say that Judge Parker thinks that Mr. Rodie's connection with the coal trust will not injure the judge, although many who are not absolutely partisan believe Judge Parker has made a mistake in publicly tying up with any more of the great trust representatives.

Sugar and Oil.

Cord Meyer, the chairman of the Democratic state committee, was one of the originators of the sugar trust.

Pat McCarren, chairman of the executive committee, has not yet offered to disprove Thomas W. Lawson's charge that he is in the pay of the Standard Oil trust, and he is on record as favoring the sugar trust.

The recent developments, taken in connection with Judge Parker's declaration in his speech of acceptance, that no further legislation against the trusts is needed, have strengthened the impression, voiced by the Wall Street Journal, that Judge Parker was selected months ago by Wall street interests to defeat Roosevelt, who had enforced the laws too vigorously to suit the "leaders of high finance."

David B. Hill is much pleased with Judge Parker's speech of acceptance. The former declares that his own ideas are clearly and forcibly expressed by the candidate.—Albany Journal.

A Whistler Adorer.

In his book on Whistler, Mortimer Menpes writes: "Once an interesting figure appeared on our horizon, a French painter. He was Whistler's find and was held up to us followers as an example. 'At last,' Whistler said, 'I have found a follower worthy of the master.' I noticed with secret joy that he did not call him pupil. This man went bareheaded always when in the presence of Whistler. Whether out of doors or in, no one could persuade him to wear a hat."

Infallible.

He—The trouble with you, dear, is that you never will admit it when you are in the wrong. She—That's no such thing. I'd admit it in a moment if I were wrong, but the fact of the matter is I never am wrong, and you know it, Harry Merrilton.

His Pen Work.

"You say you earn more money by your pen than you did a year ago?"

"I do."

"How's that?"

"I stopped writing stories and began addressing envelopes."

The Sharper Vision.

"I believe there's something between our daughter and young Huggerly."

"I seen them in the parlor last night," volunteered young brother, "an' there wasn't nothing between them."—Houston Post.

An Exception.

She—True happiness is found in pursuing something, not in catching it. He—If you had ever pursued the last car at night, you wouldn't say that.—Chicago Journal.

Cast your bread upon the waters, and you will realize how many people are out for the dough.—Philadelphia Record.

THE CONSTITUTION CLUB.

Democrats have organized in New York what they call a Constitution club.

Many Democratic lawyers who voted for Palmer and Buckner and some who supported McKinley in 1896 are members of it. They are now for Parker. They have issued a declaration that they believe the constitution is in danger from Roosevelt. They say he is dangerous.

This is simply a demonstration to divert attention from the real issues. It is the Democratic excuse for overlooking Judge Parker's two votes for Bryan, 16 to 1 and the national dishonor.

They plead for the constitution Judge Parker stood squarely for the income tax, which the supreme court declared unconstitutional.

They plead for the constitution. Judge Parker stood squarely for the packing of the supreme court under the 1896 platform to give a court which would overturn the equal rights of citizens before the law.

They plead for the constitution: Judge Parker stood squarely for nullification of the constitution as set forth in the Bryan platform.

They cannot under this constitutional tommyrot hide the fact that Parker stands for a platform which declares the protective tariff "robbery;" that he twice voted for Bryan and has not yet told the people whether he believed he was right or wrong in so doing; that he would reverse this government's Philippine policy; that he is surrounded and managed by the Wall street enemies of Roosevelt: that he dared not say the word "gold" until he had been nominated by men who would not have nominated him if his telegram had been sent twenty-four hours earlier.

The Constitution club may declare Roosevelt dangerous until election day. Some of the same men who raise that cry now called Lincoln "dangerous" in 1864 and Grant "dangerous" in 1872 and McKinley "dangerous" in 1900, but the American people knew Lincoln and Grant and McKinley, and they know Theodore Roosevelt.

HISTORIC SPY ISLAND.

Daughters of the American Revolution Make a Pilgrimage to the Island and Honor the Name of Silas Town; also, Those Who Have Aided in the Erection of the Monument—Address by Mrs. Vincent.

THE recent visit of Captain W. M. Coulling of the United States Army to Mexico Point, for the purpose of suggesting the best methods for the beautifying of Spy Island by means of an appropriation set apart by the State Legislature for that special work, makes this a fitting time for presenting to the general public some interesting facts concerning the man who made this spot historic and whose body is buried there, and also in regard to those who have done their part toward marking the place and keeping in remembrance the patriotic deeds of a brave soldier of the American Revolution.

Years ago the island was deeded to the town of Mexico by Squire Parker, in trust, for the erection of a monument to the memory of Silas Town, to stand thereon for all time.

Two years ago, at the urgent wish of a number of prominent and patriotic citizens of the town of Mexico, the island was deeded to the State of New York, and Assembly Costello, with a like patriotic interest, was instrumental in securing the appropriation for its improvement. Among those who should be mentioned especially are Colonel Hosmer, a resident of Mexico, and Silas Town Davis of Oswego. The first did much to bring about the transfer of the island from private ownership to that of the town, and the second, at his own expense, erected the shaft which now marks the grove.

A SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF SILAS TOWN.

[Taken from the Mexico Independent of July, 1871.]

As near as can be ascertained the history of Silas Town is as follows:

He was born in one of the New England States, and his early manhood was spent upon the sea, but upon returning from his last voyage he learned that the young lady to whom he was engaged had died. This seems to have changed his plans in life, for he immediately started for the seat of war.
